"He hasn't had any responsibility. They are so wealthy he knew he never would have to earn a living."

"That's just it," interrupted Nell; "he's a male butterfly. Do you know," Nell lowered her voice, "I am greatly in hopes the doctor will score there."

"The doctor's sister says he has received a couple of letters from Detroit." Mrs. Parsons' tone was almost a whisper. "The sister is a pleasant, gossipy sort of a woman; tells everything she knows."

"If she confines herself to what she knows, that's something to be thankful for," laughed Nell. "Anything I can do to help you?"

"No; this is nearly boiling," replied Mrs. Parsons, dropping in a lump of butter and some salt.

Nell came near and, leaning toward her, whispered:

"Do you know where Mrs. Ellson is living now?"

Mrs. Parsons shook her head. "Why?"

"Because we saw her get off the very train we were on at Jackson, and Mary, her maid, met her at the station." Nell looked impressive.

"The maid you had; the one who read Olive's letters and was a spy for her?" asked her friend.

"The very same. She took Mrs. Ellson's bag and they walked off together. She must live there. Evidently she sent for her when I turned her away. Where does the girl live, anyway?"

"Her people live about a mile from here on a little patch of ground, two or three acres, I believe," replied Mrs. Parsons, tasting the stew.

"Whenever we see that girl here we will know that Mrs. Ellson is in town or has sent her to spy out the land."

Mrs. Parsons nodded with compressed lips.

"Aren't we going to get anything to eat, or are you two so busy visiting that you've left us to starve?" Mr. Parsons put his head through the kitchen door.

"Bring the tray, Nell, dear, and I'll dish the oysters."

"And I'll take in the olives and crackers while you do that." Nell set down the tray and bustled off.

"Does the smell of food revive you?" asked Mrs. Parsons solicitously, passing the tray under her husband's nose on the way to the table.

The two men took an arm apiece and supported him with great gravity to his place.

"A spoon in my hand will be better."

"Sit down, good people," called Nell; "he needs a little gentle exercise and he will be all right."

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Strawberry Jelly — Wash, hull, mash berries, and drain them over night in a jelly bag. To each pint juice use one pound sugar. Bring juice quickly to a boil, boil fifteen minutes, add sugar, stir until sugar is dissolved; boil ten minutes. Put a little in a saucer and stand on the ice; if it forms a jellylike crust quickly, it is done. If not, boil longer. When done put in tumblers, cool and cover with paraffin.

Fruit Juices—After making jelly, put into sauce pan the fruit left in your jelly bag after the juice has dripped through, cover with water, boil. Then strain it through the bag again, boil it a second time with sugar, and put it in a preserve jar. It can be used in making cool drinks. This is a great economy when lemons are high, as you need only two lemons in a large pitcher of punch.

In planting cucumbers, scatter a little tobacco in the hills and you will not be bothered with bugs; the large black bugs which are so destructive will not bother them. Also, plant late cucumber pickles when blackberries are in bloom and you will not be bothered with any bugs.

TEMPTING SALADS

Here are submitted some salad recipes which are appetizing for both summer and winter:

Pineapple Salad—Drain the slices of canned pineapple and arrange each slice on a bed of lettuce; over this put a tablespoonful of boiled dressing, in which plain cream or whipped cream has been added to give a mild flavor for a fruit salad. Now sprinkle grated cream cheese over this, add a dash of paprika and one has a very delicious salad.

Boiled Dressing—One tablespoonful of butter melted slowly, one tablespoonful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of paprika; mix into a smooth paste, then add one-half cup of water and one-half cup of vinegar, stirring all the time it cooks to prevent lumps. When thick remove from fire, add yolks of two eggs and one-fourth teaspoonful of prepared mustard, beating all the time, then set on the fire again about two minutes to heat the eggs through. This may be kept in a jar in a cool place indefinitely.

Tomato Salad for Four People—Select four smooth tomatoes the same size, scoop out the inside and place the shells on ice to cool; dice the insides of the tomatoes, add one mango diced, one bunch celery diced and, if cared for, one cucumber; drain in a colander to remove juice, then marinate in a French dressing, using two tablespoonfuls olive oil to three of vinegar, salt and pepper to taste, and one-fourth teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Fill the tomato cups with the above mixture when ready to serve. Garnish with parsley.

THE TABLE

Ham Soup—When boiling ham, save the water in which it was boiled; when cool, skim off fat and add rice and sliced vegetables. Boil well and you will have a delicious soup which also will prove a saving.

Hamburg Roast With Tomato Sauce—Two pounds hamburg steak, two tablespoons melted butter, six tablespoons bread crumbs (brown in oven and roll with rolling pin), two level teaspoons salt, half spoon pepper, one chopped onion. Mix thoroughly, form into a long, round roll, dip in egg and bread crumbs and lay in buttered bread tin. Pour following over it and bake an hour in hot oven. Tomato sauce: One tablespoon each melted butter and flour, pint hot water, half can tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste, one bay leaf.

Bread Sponge Cake—Into two cups granulated sugar mix three teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon salt; mix through sugar, then add three-fourths cup lard, two eggs, two cups yeast. Put scant teaspoon soda in enough hot water to dissolve, add it, then enough flour to make stiff as other cake. Pour into large baking pan, let stand one hour, then bake. Raisins, figs or dates may be added.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Seattle—The wives and daughters of the Mystic Shriners who have come to the big convention from many sections of the country are receiving the most unique gifts that their northwestern hosts could obtain. From Point Barrow, the northern-most point on the North American continent, have come Eskimo totems of walrus ivory, knives carved from the same material and beautiful souvenirs from the strange land in the North. The gifts for the Shriners' ladies travelled 3,000 miles, by reindeer, dog-team, stage-coach, railroad and steamboat. The pretty gifts were made by the Nuwunmeum tribe of Eskimos, who are the best skilled in the art of carving ivory.

Manchester, N. H.—A Manchester woman, Mrs. Hannah M. Currier, widow of former Governor Moody Currier, has left a million dollars for art. The Currier Gallery of Art will be established here as a public institution.

St. Louis, Mo.—If Sheriff George A. Bode, of St. Louis county, springs the trap at the hanging of William Sprouse on July 16, his wife will leave him. The sheriff must decide between his duty and his wife. The condemned man was sentenced to hang for wife-murder, but even this circumstance cannot move Mrs. Bode from her determination.

Milwaukee, Wis.—"A girl without a country," is the predicament of Miss Sturmer, a pretty German heiress, daughter of a prominent and wealthy administrative officer of Straussburg, Germany. Although wealthy in her own right, and possessing everything that a girl can desire outside of her own country, she wants to go home, but cannot. Her father has forbidden her to try to reach Germany, for her home town is just now the scene of war activity, hospitals and relief stations. The girl was in school in England when the war broke out. It was too late for her to reach home, so she came to America.

Chicago—Mrs. James Johnson, the wife of a striking union carpenter, has taken the saw and hammer and completed the shed her husband abandoned when he was ordered to quit work. He is not allowed to lift a hammer, a saw or a chisel. But Mrs. Johnson recognizes no restrictions, although she sympathizes with the strikers. "Somebody has got to do it," is her motto.

Philadelphia—Whether women are to be considered on the same plane as men in the selection of trained educators for high posts in this city will be decided tomorrow at the meeting of the Board of Education. All the women teachers are booming Dr. Lucy Langdon Wilson to be principal for the new Southern High School for Girls, but it is known that there is a feeling in the Board that only a man will answer the qualifications. Supporters of Dr. Wilson declare today that only prejudice can keep her from election to the new office.

San Francisco—According to Mrs. Philip Snowden, who has come from England to the Peace Conference here, the suffrage movement in England has been "betrayed" by the Pankhursts to the cause of militarism. Christabel, the younger of the Pankhursts, is blamed by Mrs. Snowden, who declares that for a mere promise of future victory for suffrage, the Pankhurst leadership has been won over to the Tory party. Many of the former adherents of the Pankhurst propoganda have deserted them in their new campaign for enlistments.

Berlin—Frau Hedwig Heyl is the most powerful woman in Germany, it is said in government circles. The Imperial Government depends largely upon her suggestions regarding food values, in its supervision of the food supply of the empire. Her recommendations are followed strictly, and she is called upon to analyze and test many foods and substitutes which are offered in the war emergency.

Oakland, Calif.—Mrs. Emma J. Mellette, the Oakland philanthropist, has purchased a big ranch here, on which she will furnish care for 1,000 children. She will herself mother the thousand youngsters of all ages and see that they find health and happiness and be fitted for future usefulness.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Tomorrow is to be recognized as "Pearl White Day," when contests of make-ups of the popular moving picture world will hold the boards both afternoon and evening. Appropriate prizes are offered to the best make-ups appearing. Capacity audiences are expected, as were the cases at the "Charlie Chaplin Contest."

The feature film as announced for this evening at Proctor's Theatre is "Fine Feathers," a production which will more than meet the expectations of the most critical of the followers of the screen.

For tomorrow, the seven-part production, "The Escape," founded on Paul Armstrong's play of that name, will be shown at the Proctor house, and should prove to be the banner attraction of the present summer season. "The Escape" is a picture showing the escape of a woman from poverty and degradation, but through sin, suffering and sorrow, the ultimate destination of a better life finally being reached. Blanche Sweet, one of the popular actresses of the moving picture world, takes the leading role in this picture.

"The Girl of the Golden West," a Jesse L. Laskey production, which is sure to please the lovers of the legitimate stage, is scheduled for Wednesday, being presented by an all-star cast. This picture is the greatest romantic dramatic success ever presented in picture form, and many will be attracted to the Proctor Theatre by this picture alone.

INSURANCE THAT INSURES

Most men realize their responsibilities. They know that those whom they support in life must be supported when they are dead, and so they insure their lives. But in many cases they fail to provide for the investing and safeguarding of this insurance fund, with the result that it is often squandered or dissipated.

If you appoint The Plainfield Trust Company as Trustee under your will your insurance money will be invested according to law and your dependent ones will receive an assured income. We consider this matter so important that we have issued a booklet on the subject which will be sent you on request.

WILL ESTABLISH BOY SCOUT CAMP

MANY TO CONTRIBUTE

Funds Will Be Raised by Voluntary Subscription and Much of the Erection Work to Be Done by Scouts—New Division Authorized.

Provision is being made, according to announcement of the Boy Scout Council which met last evening in the Y. M. C. A. parlors, for a permanent summer camp for all the Scout troops in this city, which will be conducted along the lines of the State National Guard encampment at Sea Girt. William Coriell, who has extensive acreage on Terrill road, together with other neighboring property-owners, has determined to have a Scout troop established there for the benefit of the boys just outside of the city who live too far away to attend the evening meetings of the nearest troop, No. 15, in the Netherwood Reformed troop. Accordingly they determined to build a place for the boys of their neighborhood to meet in and $40 has already been raised by voluntary subscriptions among the residents of that neighborhood by Cedric Ostrom, Scoutmaster of Troop 15, for the purpose of erecting a suitable frame building as a permanent meeting-house.

The council last night authorized the commissioner, Allen E. Beals, to appeal to the people of the city who feel that they would like to help the work among the Boy Scouts for funds sufficient to erect this structure during the present summer. Every Scout troop in the city will have the privilege of making this encampment its summer headquarters by turns and about $100 in all is needed in addition to what has already been subscribed. The material for the erection of the camp has been promised to the Scouts at actual cost, and Edward V. French, the architect, has promised to draw up the working plans, and in the erection of the building the Boy Scouts who are desirous of passing or have passed merit badge examinations in carpentry will have an opportunity of putting their instruction into practical use under the instruction of a carpenter who will give his services to the boys as his contribution toward the camp.

Contributions may be sent to Cedric Ostrom, 136 Crescent avenue, or to Commissioner Allen E. Beals, 634 East Second street. Assistant Scoutmaster William Thomsen, of Troop 5, will be Scoutmaster in charge of the camp for the summer. Mr. Thomsen, with Mr. Ostrom, were in the original Boy Scout troop in this country established here by Seton Thompson and out of which the Boy Scouts of America developed.

The rapid growth of the Scout movement in this city has necessitated the establishment of Scout divisions which was approved by the council last night. The city has been divided into three Boy Scout districts in charge of each of which will be one of the Deputy Scout commissioners as follows: Division No. 1, comprising Troops 5, 7, 8 and 15, will be in charge of First Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., of 235 East Sixth street, who will issue orders, blanks and sign requisitions for all Scouts in his division. Division No. 2, comprising Troops Nos. 11, 12, 13, will be in charge of Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, of 1275 Marion avenue, and Division No. 3, comprising Troops 9, 10, 14 and the new troop to be organized in the Temple Baptist church, in East Third street, which will be No. 16, will be in charge of Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, of 232 Somerset street. The commissioner will concentrate upon the organization of new troops.

The council resumed the examination of Scouts for merit badge examinations last night. Scoutmaster Joseph A. Garner, of Troop 7, made application for examination in civics, astronomy, chemistry, swimming, athletics, physical development, bird study, first aid, cycling, cooking, handicraft, path finding, personal health and public health. F. M. Genung was assigned as examiner.

Scout Caryl Dunavan, of Troop 9, applied for examination in bird study and physical development. Second Vice-President L. M. Leek was assigned as examiner.

Scout Edwin Addis, of Troop 10, applied for examination in scholarship, civics, cycling and camping. F. K. Anderson was assigned as examiner.

Scout Jack Fawcett, of Troop 5, applied for examination in cycling, in addition to other subjects previously applied for and was assigned to O. W. Smith and secretary pro tem, Howard W. Satterfield.

Scout Harold McKay, of Troop 5, was assigned for tests in subjects previously applied for to C. E. Bond and

BRANCH OF NATIONAL LEAGUE IS FORMED

Mrs. Orton G. Dale, of This City, is Chosen a Director of Organization.

A branch of the National Made in U. S. A. League has been formed in New Jersey, with Miss Katherine Baker, of Wildwood, as vice-chairman for the State. Women who are active in civic as well as in club life in the State have been named by Miss Katherine Baker as directors in their various localities to be in charge of the work. Mrs. Orton G. Dale, of 134 East Sixth street, was named as the Plainfield director.

The national headquarters of the league is in Washington, and it is planned to have an exhibit of articles grown and manufactured in New Jersey at the free made in the U. S. A. Exposition to be held in Washington in January under the auspices of the league. Each State is to have a section and the plan is to make the Exposition an object lesson in what can be made in the United States.

Miss Baker is a member of the league's national executive committee also, and she will direct the work of getting the New Jersey exhibit together and State manufacturers and producers are urged to co-operate with her.

Any woman in New Jersey can join the league by sending to either Miss Katherine Baker, State chairman, Wildwood, or to the Woman's National Made in U. S. A. League, Washington, D. C., the following pledge with her name:

"I pledge myself for the welfare of our country to demand and buy everything, whenever possible, 'Made in U. S. A.,' and urge my friends to do likewise."

There are no dues and the league is non-partisan and formed for the purpose of promoting American goods. Although only five months old, the league has a national membership of nearly 100,000 and it is hoped to reach the 1,000,000 mark in membership by the first of the year.

SHERIFF TO BREAK UP SUNDAY PARTIES

Deputies Will Guard the Woodlands of Union County Against Celebrants.

Union county's "simon-pures" have appealed to Sheriff George Otto for assistance in ridding the county of Sunday "beer parties" and that official has promised to head an active crusade during the remaining summer months to put a ban on such outings. If the sheriff's plans materialize those weekly excursionists who take a load of good things to eat and drink into a cozy nook in the woods back of Scotch Plains and at other points of interest early in the morning, and come out at night feeling the effects of their thirst-quenching portion of the day's menu, will have to find another source of recreation. Sheriff Otto has voiced his determination to keep a strict surveilance on this end of the county and prevent pleasure seekers from visiting the cozy nooks early in the morning with a load of goodies in their arms and coming out at night with the load on the inner portion of their anatomies.

Parties of Newarkers are said to have made a regular camping place of certain wooded nooks in Union county which they visit on Sundays with almost unlimited quantities of liquid refreshments, eatables and other things. The picnicers become noiser and noiser as the day passes in proportion to the decrease in the stock of beverages. Deputy sheriffs will be assigned to the rural districts next Sunday to see that the law is enforced.

T. A. B. SOCIETY WILL PAY ITS RESPECTS IN A BODY

Members of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society will meet tonight at the headquarters on West Fourth street and will go from there in a body to the home of Francis J. Walsh, a member of the organization, who died following a shock sustained while working in a local machine shop Saturday. Mr. Walsh was engaged in work nearby the spot where a huge hammer fell and the shock caused by his narrow escape from being crushed to death ultimately was responsible for his demise.

At the home of the Walsh family the T. A. B. Society will conduct its usual service of prayer for a departed member. The delegation will be in charge of officers and a full attendance is desired.

MRS. MENGER IS IN HER 94TH YEAR

ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH

Was Born in New York and Has Resided Here Twenty Years—Family Dinner Party to Mark the Event.

Spending the day quietly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cornelia A. Zabriskie, of 11 West End avenue, with whom she lives, Mrs. Eliza Jane Menger is observing the ninety-third anniversary of her birth today. She has three children living—Mrs. Zabriskie, Mrs. Charles Smith, of South Beach, Conn., and Louis Menger, of New York. Mr. Menger is spending part of the day with his mother.

Mrs. Menger has resided in this city for nineteen years, she and her daughter having moved here about 1896. Mrs. Menger has made her home with Mrs. Zabriskie continuously. She has enjoyed excellent health and reads the newspapers, sews and takes an active part in the family conversations. Concerning Plainfield affairs she is always interested. She attributes her longevity to her even, quiet life. She maintains an interest in politics and keeps abreast of the times in those things as well as in all current events.

Born in New York, Mrs. Menger has always maintained a keen interest in affairs connected with the Metropolis. Her father was Leslie McCandless, who was employed on the New York Evening Post. Mr. McCandless died from cholera, being one of the first New Yorkers to fall a victim to the cholera plague which visited that city many years ago.

Several relatives and neighbors dropped in today to extend their congratulations and well wishes. Besides her children, Mrs. Menger has a sister, also living in New York; five grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

She is a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, but does not attend at present because of her great age.

GIVE A RECEPTION TO ENGAGED COUPLE

Members of the Yea Bo Club and their friends, to the number of one hundred and fifty, gathered in the Doyle and McCormack studio on East Front street, last night, to render a reception to Miss Nora Meaney and James P. Lynch, whose engagement was announced a few weeks ago. Dancing was the principal event of the evening, although several vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by the guests. "Mickey" Moore, of Washington, a former Plainfielder, entertained those present with an address, telling of his many experiences while traveling. A number of original jokes kept all in a continuous roar of laughter, those present recalling the speaker and his appearances in many social events in Plainfield a number of years ago.

The guests of honor, both responded to a call for speeches, each thanking the members for the fine reception accorded them. Several of those present gave exhibition dances which brought much applause. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of the Misses Annabel McAfee, Catherine McGaukey, Nora Callahan, Anna Doyle, May Murray and Mrs. H. Forristel. The young couple are popular with a host of friends in the city and borough, and last night's affair was in the form of a congratulation to the two. The engagement of Miss Meaney, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Meaney, of Watchung avenue, and Mr. Lynch was announced last month, the day when Miss Meaney was graduate from the North Plainfield High School. Mr. Lynch is the son of Mrs. Catherine Lynch, of West Fourth street, and holds a responsible position with the C. R. R. of N. J.

YANKEES TO LET TWO GO.

New York, July 13—It was reported here today that Manager Donovan, of the Yankees, decided to turn loose Pitchers McHale and Cottrell. McHale, in all probability, will go to the Montreal club of the Internationals, and Cottrell will join Johnny Dunn's Richmond club of the same league.

The lost article that is of enough consequence to worry about is of enough consequence to advertise.

MAYOR CLARK WILL RETIRE FROM OFFICE

Credence was given to the rumor circulated in this paper several weeks ago, to the effect that Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, would not be a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket next fall, when that official this morning announced that he would retire from the mayoralty chair at the completion of his present term. Unless the advocates of consolidation put forward a candidate on the Republican ticket the field will be a clear one for William L. Smalley, of Greenbrook road, who is known to be opposed to the merging of the two municipalities.

Mayor Clark has served the borough efficiently for two terms and seeks retirement, which he could not enjoy while burdened by his present executive duties. His present term does not expire until January 1, 1916.

At the time that Mr. Smalley, who is a former councilman, announced that he would seek the Republican nomination, it was stated by the wiseacres, who claim familiarity with borough politics, that Mr. Clark would withdraw from office, but he refused to either affirm or deny the report at that time. The source from which it came, however, bore every indication of certainty and investigation on the part of the Press revealed the fact that Mr. Clark sought a retired life.

SUDDENLY STRICKEN; BOROUGH MAN DIES

Suffering with a sudden illness, the nature of which is unknown at the present time to members of the family, John Conroy, of Summit avenue, North Plainfield, died in St. Vincent's Hospital, Staten Island, shortly after noon yesterday. The police of that place identified the man by means of a commutation ticket found in his coat pocket, it being impossible to secure a statement from him before he passed away.

The local authorities were notified and in turn they communicated with Chief Weiss, of the borough, and he delegated Marshal Keller to convey the sad news to the family. The surviving members of the family, including a wife and two daughters living at home, were all ill when notified and the shock has caused a serious change in their conditions. Owing to this fact it was impossible to obtain any information concerning the dead man. He is also survived by a married daughter, a Mrs. William Sacks, of Grove street.

From the meager information obtainable it was learned that Conroy had been employed for a number of years as an engineer on board one of the Murray Transportation Company's steamboats. It was while discharging his duties yesterday that the fatal illness came upon him. The family formerly lived in Mt. Bethel but removed to this city a short time ago and he has been a commuter to Jersey City each morning. No details concerning the funeral arrangements have been received as yet.

SHIRTWAIST RECEPTION WAS POPULAR AFFAIR

A large number of members and their friends attended the "shirtwaist reception" and ice cream social given by the Women's League of St. Joseph's church, last night, in the new hall at Watchung and Jackson avenues. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour, music being furnished by Alfred Squier's orchestra. The affair was an entire success, both financially and socially, and it is highly probable that similar gatherings will be repeated from time to time. Much of the success of the affair is due to the efforts of Miss Katherine Conshay, who was chairman of the committee of arrangements. She was ably assisted by various members of the league.

The next meeting of the league will be held in the new hall the first Monday in August at which time plans for a winter schedule will be completed.

JACOB TEPPER HERE.

Jacob Tepper, of the firm of Tepper Bros., who recently went to Fort Wayne, Indiana, where another store in the chain already owned by the firm was opened, returned to this city Sunday on a business trip. He will stay in Plainfield for several weeks before returning out West.

DEATH SUMMONS REV. CHAS. E. DUNN

NATIVE OF THIS CITY

Graduated From Plainfield High School and Princeton University—Held Several Pastorates—Wife and Four Sons Survive.

Rev. Charles E. Dunn, formerly of Plainfield, where he was born and is well-known, died suddenly at his summer home in Spring Lake, yesterday, following a stroke of paralysis. Previous to the attack Mr. Dunn had been enjoying excellent health and a rest at the seashore. He had been about as usual and his death came as a severe shock to his family and many friends.

Mr. Dunn, who was pastor of the Tioga Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, had been at Spring Lake since last May, during which time he had been attending to his pastoral duties as usual. Word of his death, which reached here this morning, was received with deep regret.

Mr. Dunn was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Solomon F. Dunn, who resided on Park avenue for many years. He attended the Plainfield public schools, from which he was graduated. He pursued his college course at Princeton University and following his graduation there completed his theological course at Union Seminary. His first charge was at the Presbyterian church, Hempstead, L. I., from which place he went to a Presbyterian church at Freeport, Ill., and left that pastorate to accept the one at the Tioga Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, where he had been for eleven years. During his last pastorate he did a good work, increasing the membership and usefulness of the church. He was beloved by his congregation. He was in the Presbyterian ministry 31 years.

After entering the ministry Mr. Dunn married Miss Emeline Demarest, sister of the late J. Fred Demarest, who was at one time managing editor of the Plainfield Daily Press. Beside a wife there survives four sons, Rev. William P. Dunn, who is engaged in religious work in New York, and who will be remembered as organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church during his college days; Allen E. Dunn, of Philadelphia; Carl E. Dunn, who was graduated from Princeton University last June and who enters Princeton Seminary next fall, and Robert Dunn, who enters Princeton University next fall. There also survives two sisters, Mrs. John H. Manning, of this city, and Mrs. J. Fred Demarest, of Brooklyn. Mr. Dunn on several occasions preached at the First Presbyterian and First Baptist churches, this city. The notice of funeral will be given later.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES AT MISS BRICK'S FUNERAL

The funeral of Miss Alice M. Brick, of 930 South avenue, who died Saturday morning at Muhlenberg Hospital, was held yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the house and at 9:30 o'clock from St. Mary's church, where a solemn requiem mass was said. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral was largely attended and the floral offerings were worthy of special note. It required a carriage to convey the cut flowers and set pieces to the cemetery. Included among the set pieces was one marked "From Mother;" another bore the inscription "Our Sister;" there was one from the teachers of the Washington School, in Westfield, where Miss Brick taught, and another from her former pupils in the fifth grade of that school. Still another piece was sent by the friends she had been in the habit of meeting each day on the train as she rode from the Fanwood station to Westfield.

PUT OUT SIGNAL TO STOP LEHIGH FAST MILK TRAIN

Under suspicion of having been implicated in the holding up of a fast milk train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Saturday night, two men giving their names as William Long and Charles Lincoln, both of Easton, Pa., yaerrastr-edws tSouth ePlaine fieldU were arrested at South Plainfield yesterday by Railroad Detective William Everhardt. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Patrick Kaine the men were held for the Flemington authorities, the alleged offense having been committed in that vicinity.

The train was stopped by putting out the signal and it is said that they did the trick in order to get aboard and steal a ride to Jersey City.

BUSINESS DEMANDS WIDENING, HE SAYS

L. Z. Weiss Resents Statement Appearing in Another Newspaper.

Taking exception to a statement in another Plainfield newspaper to the effect that there is not enough business done by Somerset street merchants to warrant the expense of widening that thoroughfare, L. Z. Weiss, the Somerset street druggist, declared that some of the largest business houses in the city are located in the block between Pearl street and the bridge, and that the article in question reflects upon him and his business associates.

The paragraph which he finds fault with reads as follows: "There is little business on Somerset street to demand a wider thoroughfare and it will be up to those who advocate the plan to show the necessity for the improvement."

"I am in favor of the proposed widening of Somerset street, as all progressive business men ought to be," said Mr. Weiss in an interview with a Daily Press reporter this morning. "When the statement is made that 'there is little business on Somerset street to demand a wider thoroughfare' it is a reflection on the business men and the business establishments on that street, some of which compare favorably with business establishments carrying the same lines in Plainfield.

"Besides my store, there are: J. P. Homan's carriage repairing shop; the Somerset Garage, one of the finest in the city or borough; Joseph Harrigan's coal and feed place; S. J. Carhart & Son, the grocers; L. M. French's carriage emporium, and Louis Kadesh's furniture store, all large establishments and well conducted.

"Then there is a fact about Somerset street which must not be overlooked. It is the great thoroughfare of travel for the farmers and others who live to the north of Plainfield and North Plainfield. Many of them use Somerset street in preference to any street."

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO TAKE ANNUAL DIP

Although the summer has entered upon its homeward stretch there are many Plainfielders who have yet to acquire their usual coat of tan and indulge in their annual frolic with Old Neptune. No better opportunity will be afforded those who look forward to a yearly twenty-four hours by the seaside than the one on Thursday when the annual excursion of the Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue, Grace Episcopal, Holy Cross, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's, Seventh-Day Baptist, New Market Baptist and Dunellen Presbyterian churches and Bethel chapel, will be run to Asbury Park.

This is the second Sunday-school trip to Asbury Park from Plainfield this season, the one last Thursday having for its companions some unusually heavy clouds and Jupiter Pluvius during a part of the day. Contrary to the usual custom of having an excursion each week to Asbury Park the railroad, in arranging its 1915 schedule, has omitted Thursday, July 22, from the list and therefore the outing of the Presbyterian schools will be the only ones for two weeks.

With the promise of good weather for the remainder of the week, and the fact that surf bathing is at its best at the popular Jersey resort just at present, the excursion Thursday should prove a record breaker and accommodations will be made for one of the largest crowds these Sunday schools have ever taken when the train sections leave the North avenue depot at 8:15 that morning.

"The town without a frown" is enjoying the zenith of summer activity just at present and everything of interest to the excursionist is open.

FRACTURED HER ARM.

While attempting to move from one chair to another, Mrs. Mary Firstbrook, of East Second street, who has been an invalid for some time, fell and broke her left arm yesterday. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was summoned and set the bone. Mrs. Firstbrook is reported resting comfortably today.

MISS KING ARRIVES.

USE AMERICAN BOAT FOR AMBUSH

ELEVEN LIVES LOST

French Aviator Drops 171 Shells on Town of Vig Eulles and Escapes—Germans Report a French Hand Grenade Attack.

London, July 13.—Forced by threat of destruction to act as an ambush for a German submarine, the American bark Normandy lay by while a Russian ship was torpedoed and sunk with the loss of eleven lives off the Irish coast last Friday evening. Three Americans were among the fourteen survivors picked up after the U-boat had departed.

This is the story told by the crew of the Normany, which arrived at Liverpool last night, from Gulfport, Miss. The submarine's victim was the Russian steamer Leo, which was torpedoed and sunk sixty miles southwest of Tuskar Rock off the southeast Irish coast. Under threats of being sunk the captain of the Normandy was forced to permit the submarine to hide behind his vessel until the unsuspecting Russian ship was within such range of the German's torpedo.

Survivors of the Leo, numbering fourteen, arrived at Liverpool last night. Eleven of the twenty-five persons on board were drowned, including three stewardesss. No opportunity was given them to escape. Three American citizens were among those saved, Walter Emery, of North Carolina; Harry Clark, of Siera, and Harry Whitney, of Camden, N. J. These Americans corroborate the story of the other survivors as well as the statements of the captain of the Normandy. The Leo was proceeding from Philadelphia to Liverpool with a general cargo.

The American bark, according to the crew, was stopped by the submarine Friday evening. The captain was taken on board the undersea craft, where his papers were scrutinized by the German commander. These showed that the Normandy was chartered by an American firm on January 5.

The captain was then allowed to return to his ship, but with the understanding that the Normandy would be sunk unless she stood by and obeyed orders to so manoeuvre as to keep the submarine out of view of a ship which was coming up at that time.

The approaching vessel was the Leo. As she drew near the German boat submerged and passed around the bow of the Normandy. The crew say that ten minutes later they saw the Leo blown up. She sank almost immediately. The Normandy rescued everybody in sight, but in the darkness and the suddenness of the attack nearly half of those aboard the Russian ship were lost.

The captain of the Normandy told the survivors of the Leo that he did not dare to signal them of their danger because his own ship, which was uninsured, would have been sunk.

Capt. Gustav Jearnstrom, master of the Leo, says his ship was sunk suddenly without warning. It was about 5:30 o'clock when the torpedo struck.

"The Leo sank in two minutes," he said. "None of us saw the submarine either before or after the firing of the torpedo, but we experienced a terrific explosion and we were all thrown into the water.

"The American bark Normandy was near and she rescued fourteen of us. It all happened with startling suddenness and few of us had time to get life belts."

The steamer Leo, built in 1903, was a vessel of 2,324 tons and belonged in Helsingfors. She sailed from Philadelphia, June 25, for Leith.

The Normandy is a timber bark of 1,098 net tons, built at Damariscotta, Me., in 1877, owned by F. V. L. Jones. Her port of registry is Portland, Me.

Paris, July 13.—French aviators have made a sucessful attack upon he railroad station at Vig Eulles, which is held by the Germans, the War Office announced today. The areo fleet, consisting of 35 aeroplanes, one of the largest sent out during the war, swooped upon the German position and bombarded it heavily. The aviator dropped 171 shells upon the station and the town. The station was set on fire. The aeroplanes returned in safety to their base, according to official communique.

"A German attack was attempted last night before our labyrinth positions under the protection of violent fire. The assailants were cut to pieces and driven completely back upon their own lines. In the Vosges the German attempted an attack in the direction of a bridgehead occupied by us on the east bank of the Fecht at Sondernach. It was repuls-

REFUSES TO RE-EMPLOY MEN WHO LEFT THEIR JOBS

Twenty-four men, who have been in the employ of the Levgar Structural Company for periods ranging from five to seventeen years, refused to work last Saturday afternoon for straight time when ordered to do so by Superintendent Coyle, and they have been discharged. The men claimed that they should receive extra pay for working on a half holiday and being refused this by the superintendent they walked out. When these men returned to go to work yesterday morning they were told by the superintendent that their services were no longer required. They are mostly local men with families and they were employed in the layers' out department of the shop. They claim that owing to Saturday being a half holiday that they had a right to refuse to work for straight time if they didn't think that compensation just and that Superintendent Coyle, in acting as he has, in view of their past lengthy and efficient service, has done them an injustice.

The borough is likely to lose the presence of a number of these men who have boarded here and have made good and desirable citizens, by this act of dismissal. Last night a few of them were heard to remark that they would leave town before the end of the week.

The order to work Saturday afternoon was given by the superintendent because the shop is behind in filling orders. Yesterday the entire shop of about 250 men worked until 9 o'clock last night and it was said that the night work might continue for the rest of the month.

STOPS RUNAWAY.

At the risk of bone and limb Richard Sullivan, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, of Dunellen avenue, stopped a horse belonging to Koschek, the North avenue butcher and grocer, which was running away Sunday morning. The horse had been pasturing in the yard of Mr. Koshek's home on Bound Brook road when it became scared and bolted. It proceeded along Bound Brook road to Madison avenue and down that thoroughfare to Front street where it turned east.

ELECTED COACH.

The baseball team of the local organization of Boy Scouts held a meeting last evening at the residence of Scout Commissioner Edward J. Dusel. Benjamin Dodwell, the former Dunellen star, was elected coach of the team at this meeting.

NEW COMPANY FORMED.

A new concern known as the Wilcox Merchandise Company, has been organized by Fred K. Wilcox, of Dunellen avenue. The officers of the company are: Fred K. Wilcox, of Dunellen, president; Fred K. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Praed, of Dover, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William F. Appleby, Jr.

Mrs. George Rittenhouse and Andrew Rittenhouse, of Lebanon, have concluded a visit to Mr. and Mrs. William F. Nichols.

Miss Evelyn Schenck, of Brookside, will teach the Masonic School, Chester township, the coming year.

Miss Agnes Commons has recovered from an operation for appendicitis.

'Plains & Fanwood.

The monthly session of the Bucket and Engine Fire Company was held last night in the 'Plains firehouse. Only routine matters were brought up.

Miss Helen Neilson, of Martine avenue, has returned from visiting her aunt, Mrs. R. R. Benton, of Perth Amboy.

Mr. and Mrs. James Miniszek and children have returned to their home on Midway avenue after spending several days at Asbury Park. During their absence someone stole a large palm that stood to one side of the entrance to the house and, although other portable things were about, nothing else was touched.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Eckhart and children, of Midway avenue, are summering during July and August in Southern New Jersey.

With the nearing of fall and elections, the political "bee" is beginning to buzz in the borough. The terms of the Mayor and two councilmen expire this year and, although they have not said anything as to their candidacy, there is no one looming up as opposition to their re-election. William H. Hoar, as Mayor, and Councilmen Thomas Norton and Augustus Sheelen will undoubtedly seek a re-election. With the exception of William G. Britton, who entered last fall, the Council has remained the same for six years and in that time has paid off the road bonds, purchased all of the present borough vehicles and apparatus and a building to house them in, besides making numerous improvements to streets and other borough property. Ira G. Walker's term as a member of the Township Committee, of which he is president, will expire this fall. He too, from present indications, it is believed, will have no opposition if he chooses to run for the office again.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association held in the lecture room of the Baptist church, last night, it was decided to hold a meeting on every Monday night until August 11 in order that the different committees appointed to arrange for the "community picnic" would have more time in which to complete details. All of the committes reported progress. It has now been settled that the affair will be held on the grounds of Clinton Clark along Green brook, at the corner of Hunter and Mountain avenues. The Westfield band will probably be present, and an athletic meet, with medals for the winner in each event, will be a feature of the program. The younger children will be entertained with games and other things in the morning, the picnic starting at 10 o'clock. Governor Fielder is expected early in the afternoon as he has a later appointment in Sea Girt on that date. Everyone will be expected to bring their own lunch, the public safety committee supplying the water and benches. So far there has not been any arrangements made for the young women who would be present and last night William Sisserson, president of the association, appointed Miss Margaret Jahn, Miss Helen Lambert, Miss Hannah Lambertson and Miss Ruth Dunn a committee to arrange for the girls to take some part in the day's program. Various kinds of circulars are to be printed and distributed on the "Big 8" excursion and about the town advertising the "community picnic," which is intended to be a day of pleasure for every man, woman and child in the borough and township. A special invitation is extended to former residents.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. McAneny, of North avenue, are entertaining Mr. McAneny's mother, Mrs. George McAneny, of New York.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

There remains no doubt in the mind of Earle Williams, premier screen actor of the Vitagraph Company of America, who appeared at the Astor Theatre in person last night, that he has a host of admirers in Plainfield. Had the West Front street theatre been built of rubber it is doubtful whether more spectators could have gotten inside than jammed the auditorium last night to greet the popular film star and hear him tell about his experiences before the camera and of his career on the legitimate stage.

Last night was "Williams Night" at the Astor Theatre. In addition to the personal appearance of Mr. Williams, the big Vitagraph production "The Sins of the Mothers," in which he and Miss Anita Stewart are co-stars, was shown, and Mr. Williams gave a very interesting description of the manner in which some of the thrilling scenes of the film were photographed. Mr. Williams proved himself to be a very engaging speaker last night. Of course one expects much from a young man who has attained the position of high distinction he occupies on the screen and stage, but Mr. Williams exceeded all expectations. He gave an intimate chat that delighted everybody and those present applauded him with much enthusiasm.

The actor told of his early entrance into the theatrical business in California and of the many discouraging obstacles he encountered. But he was not discouraged by adversity. Today Mr. Williams occupies a position second to none in the motion picture world.

It was announced that Miss Anita Stewart and several other screen stars of equal prominence soon would appear in person at the Astor Theatre and tell of their experiences before the camera.

"The Sins of the Mothers" proved to be a film of most engrossing interest. It never permitted the interest of the spectators to lag and furnished many thrills and heart throbs. It related a story of a beautiful young woman addicted to the habit of gambling. After leaving the convent, where she was educated, she is first lured to the bridge tables, then to the race tracks and later to a common gambling house, which happens to be the establishment which her mother, who also was a gambler, conducted many years ago. But the girl falls in love with a smart young man (Mr. Williams) and he leads her in the path of righteousness until all ends happily. The film is a powerful preachment against the sins of society and should be witnessed by every young woman and every young man in Plainfield. A supplemental program of unusual quality also will be shown this afternoon and tonight.

RECREATION NOTES

The "Zephers" will meet tonight in the High School "gym." The first rehearsal of the playlet, "The Burglar," will be held. Games and dancing will follow the regular business meeting.

The Y. W. H. A. girls will meet at the High School this evening. A social hour will follow the business meeting, as usual.

All girls who are interested in the athletic meet which is being planned by the Recreation Committee are requested to meet in the gymnasium at the High School, tomorrow night. Names may be entered for the various events, either as individuals or as representatives of a club or organization.

PLAN A LAWN PARTY.

The Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a lawn party on the grounds adjoining the church, Friday night, July 16. The committee in charge of the affair has planned a most enjoyable time for all who attend.

PLANS FOR STATE C. E. CONVENTION

Annual Gathering to Be Held At Elizabeth in October.

THREE DAYS' SESSION

Many New Features Will Be Introduced Covering Evangelism, Missions and Peace—Resume of Program.

Elizabeth, July 13—New Jersey Christian Endeavorers unable to be present at the big International C. E. Convention now in full swing at Chicago, will have in October an opportunity which State C. E. leaders declare will go far to compensate them for absence from the larger convention. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 6, 7 and 8, in the Third Presbyterian church, this city, the twenty-ninth annual State convention of the Endeavorers will be held.

A part of the Chicago convention will be transplanted. The fine exhibits of the Missionary Education Movement and the United Society of Christian Endeavor will be kept intact, and will be shipped to this city for the October meetings. They will be explained and demonstrated by experts.

William Shaw, LL.D., of Boston, general secretary of the United Society, will present the "million more" policy, a plan that is receiving enthusiastic welcome at Chicago and which is closely akin to the forward movement recently inaugurated by the Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Shaw will also give an evening address.

For the first time in the history of the State Union the convention will occupy three full days. For several years it has been the custom to open the sessions formally on Thursday morning, the meeting held on Wednesday being merely preliminary. This year the convention will be called to order promptly at 10 a. m., Wednesday, October 6, and will continue in session until 10 p. m., Friday, October 8. This will incorporate into the convention proper the workers' conference, the Wednesday afternoon feature that has been increasing in size and interest for a number of years.

The chairman of the program committee is the Rev. Elliot Field, of West Hoboken, and having been a field secretary of the New York State C. E. Union for a number of years, he is well qualified for this work of program-building. Mr. Field has arranged for Thursday afternoon a relay conference feature. In three conferences presided over by H. A. Kinports, secretary of young people's work in the Reformed Church in America; Harold A. Waite, field secretary for the New York State C. E. Union, and Mr. Field, the delegates will have the opportunity to gain a fund of information. The conferences will be held simultaneously, the delegates attending in relays.

Another new feature will be class sessions in three important branches of Christian work. A delegate may enroll for all three classes, taking one subject each day, or he may enroll for only one subject, getting the thorough knowledge that will be afforded by the three sessions on that theme. All these classes will be taught by competent leaders.

The exhibit demonstrations are also new to New Jersey Endeavorers. These up-to-date charts and tables and pamphlets now being shown at Chicago will be set up in the chapel of the Central Baptist church, a close neighbor, geographically and in spirit, of the Third Presbyterian church. From 12 to 12:30 competent leaders will give talks about these exhibits.

A conference for pastors is another new departure. Ample time will be given for this on Thursday afternoon, and H. A. Kinsports, a layman who is very popular among the clergy, will lead. If feasible, a second session of the conference will be held Friday afternoon. There are many New Jersey pastors who are loyal friends of Christian Endeavor, and it is expected that this pastors' conference will be largely attended.

For the workers' conference on Wednesday afternoon, in charge of the State secretary, Miss Nellie K. Foote, of Elizabeth, a good program, with bright, enjoyable features, has been planned, several of the leading Endeavorers of the State taking part. "The Summons to the Colors" will emphasize the work done in each of the three districts.

In recognition of the cordial co-operation given by the Methodist young people of Elizabeth in the preparations for the convention, two prominent men of that denomination have been secured to address the convention. Rev. Dr. Worth H. Tippy, pastor of the Madison Avenue M. E. church, New York city, and until recently pastor of the large institutional church in Seattle which has made his name known the continent over, will speak Thursday afternoon, and Fred B. Fisher, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Methodist Episcopal church, will address the delegates on Friday morning.

In former years the convention sermon was an important feature of the New Jersey C. E. convention. For the 1915 meeting this is reintroduced, and the sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. John T. Kerr, pastor of the convention church, and the second president of the State Union. Dr. Kerr has been closely identified with the movement and a warm friend of Dr. Francis E. Clark and General Secretary Shaw for many years. He will bring to the young people a strong message.

The unequivocal stand which Christian Endeavor has taken on the question of prohibition of the liquor traffic and the establishment of world peace will receive due emphasis. It is expected that the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, of New York city, will deliver the address on peace.

James Melvin Lee, director of the Department of Journalism in New York University, will speak on "Practical Publicity for Christian Endeavorers," presenting this topic on behalf of the press department of the State Union, of which Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, is the efficient chairman.

DECRIES HASTY JUDGMENT OF CHILDREN AS DEFECTIVE

Jamesburg, July 13—Hasty designation of a criminally inclined child as defective and its subsequent railroading to a refuge for the feeble-minded was decried by Dr. M. P. Groszmann, of Plainfield, superintendent of the Association for the Tentative Classification of Exceptional Children, in addressing the July meeting of the State Attendance Officers' Association at the State Home for Boys. He declared that a little training and common sense could have made good citizens of many who have been lost by commitment to asylums.

"New-fangled" methods of teaching children were criticized by Dr. Groszmann. He advocated that more attention be given the body of the child.

Answering those who regard the State Home as a failure as a correctional institution, the superintendent, John C. Kalleen, declared that the only former inmates of whom the public hears are those brought into police courts. He asserted that here is a steady increase in the number of those who have succeeded after leaving the Home, concealing the fact that they had ever been there.

Others who spoke were Dr. John C. Davis, director of the Bureau of Compulsory Education, New York; John J. Gascoyne, of Newark, president of the National Probation Officers' Association, and Miss Laura Moore, of Camden, inspector for the State Department of Labor.

Charles A. McCall, supervisor of attendance of the Newark schools, presided. The association voted to resume the effort to have the Legislature pass a bill defeated last year, which called for an extension of the tenure of office of probation officers. State Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall is held responsible by the probation officers for the defeat of the bill last year. The association was invited to hold its next meeting at Hackensack.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Through lack of entries, the "Pearl White" contest, which was scheduled for this afternoon and tonight at Proctor's Theatre, was cancelled.

Beside being "Ice Cream Day," the patrons of the theatre tomorrow will have an opportunity to view that red-blood drama of love and adventure, "The Girl of the Golden West," by far the most famous legitimate drama ever filmed. "The Girl of the Golden West" is an orphan who keeps the saloon in the California mining town of Cloudy during the days of the '49 gold rush. Her utter honesty and fearlessness command the respect of all the "boys." Of her many suitors, the one she is most disposed to favor is Jack Rance, the sheriff-gambler from New Orleans, who is somewhat less rough than the rest of the men. At the time when the story begins the community is at a high pitch of excitement concerning the exploits of a city bred road agent whose real name is Johnson, but who is known as Ramerrez and leads a particularly desperate band of Mexicans. In spite of the fact that $5,000 has been offered for his capture, Ramerrez holds up the Wells-Fargo stage, robbing all the passengers. Doing this he receives a slight wound in his wrist and when the band disperses with the booty he remains to bathe his injury. The "girl" chances to ride by, is interested, stops, and binds up the wound with her bonnet string.

This is the beginning of the romance between the "girl" and the road-agent, whom she only knows as "Mr. Johnson." From this point exciting events follow in rapid succession, the culmination of the meeting is the beginning of a new life by the "girl" and the road-agent.

Thursday the management of Proctor's theatre will offer "The Italian," with George Beban in the title role.

BORO POLICEMEN'S VACATIONS.

Officer George Cooper, of the North Plainfield police force, has returned from his vacation and is doing night duty. Officer John Herrmann is now enjoying a brief respite from the arduous duties which make up the daily life of the members of the borough police force.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

If the trial now being held in New York is to be the last which the people are to be forced to hear of the Thaw case, the public may find itself in forgiving temper toward those lawyers and others who have kept the disgusting spectacle to the front for so many years.

That Stanford White was the type of man of whom the world is well rid of there is no doubt in the minds of clean-minded men and women. That the world gained anything by the survival of Thaw is not believed.

Many cases of divorce which carried nothing of the hideousness of the Thaw case were heard in secret in the interest of public morals and disposed of without the public knowing anything of the details. But the Thaw case, involving the death of one man the world does not miss, and the life of another the world could well lose, spreads itself over nine years, sickening decent men and women and trying to put two men of low morality on a plane higher than the rest of the community.

To inflict this picture of degeneracy upon the public for nine years is something of which those most responsible for it should feel a blasting shame, as the Pittsburg Leader says. In general the American public doesn't care a hoot that Thaw killed White. In general the public doesn't care a hoot whether Thaw is crazy or not. What the public wants is to be rid of Thaw, as it is rid of White.

It is probable that of the millions of people who have read the history of the Thaw case there are few if any who have not concluded that Thaw's real reason for killing White was, not that White had debauched Evelyn Nesbit, but merely that White had anticipated Thaw in the possession of the victim. For at the time Evelyn told Thaw her story of White they were leisurely traveling through Europe as man and wife. The public's chief interest is in knowing when this parading of a mass of immoral acts is to stop.

RENEWING OUR YOUTH.

There are few newspaper men in New Jersey who can look back over so long and useful a career as does Joseph Crowell, the editor of the Paterson Call, who has been steadily in the harness for so many years that we dare not tell how long it really is. And yet of all the exchanges that come to our desk there is none that contains brighter or more interesting comment than that sent forth by this grand old man of Passaic county journalism. He makes everyone of us young again these summer days with little reminders of our youth such as the following, and it is not surprising that the Call is the only really successful morning paper in New Jersey, as successful papers go nowadays. Says he:

"Ma and pa and the kiddies grab a bushel basket stuffed to the brim with good things to eat and hit the trail to the city parks, and picnic all day. Of course, there is much to be said against picnicing, and not the least objections are these: It always rains just about the time ma gets the dinner spread out on the white tablecloth stretched out on the grass. Some stray pup always gets into the lunch basket and makes away with the best piece of the fried chicken. A thousand ants and other lunch-eating insects crawl into the sandwiches and go to sleep. Brother Willie always gets his best Sunday pants torn. Sister Susie gets her pretty white dress daubed up with a varied assortment of jams and jellies and such like. But the fact remains that there isn't any other amusement in which the great American public indulges that gets the same whole-souled glad hand as does this picnic idea when ma announces on the evening before the day: 'Well, pa, I've got everything ready for the picnic tomorrow!' There isn't anything else that will make a fellow carry a great big lunch basket all the way to the park and two sleepy, tired kiddies all the way back home again; but he will do it for a picnic, not only once in his lifetime, but every summer as long as ma is here to fix up a nice lunch, and the kiddies are here to be taken."

The streets in the borough are not in as good condition as they might be and a large amount of money will need to be spent to put them on a par with the streets of Plainfiled. But when it is remembered that sewer pipes have been laid in most of the borough streets and that the work is by no means finished, allowance must be made for their condition. The borough authorities were three years getting ready for the sewer work now under way and wisely refrained from spending money on the streets in the interval, realizing that it would be money wasted. Certain streets were set apart annually to be repaired, but that has not been done for three years. The borough officials can be depended upon to make all necessary improvements in the condition of the streets as soon as the sewer work is completed.

BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE CAMP

C. Leslie Bond.

First Vice-President T. A. Davis presided at last night's meeting and councilmen present were Frederick A. Martin, O. W. Smith, Brokholst Miller, Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, and Scoutmasters Ernest K. Powlison, Joseph A. Garner and Cedric Ostrom and R. M. Harris, with Assistant Scoutmaster Paul Westergard. Troop 14 attended the meeting as guests of the council. A preliminary meeting called by Edward Baker, will be held at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow night for the purpose of planning the establishment of Troop 16.

The commissioner announced that headquarters had made modification in the physical development examinations making it less difficult for Scouts to achieve the degree of Eagle Scout.

YOUNG WOMEN WILL ATTEND CONFERENCE

The Camp and Conference Club, of the Y. W. C. A., will send the following young women as representatives of the local institution to the annual Eastern City Conference to be held at Silver Bay on Lake George, New York, from July 20 to 30, inclusive: The Misses Kathryn Aller, general secretary of the association; Clara Smith, Ethel Colton, Edith Wickett, Mildred McAuliffe and Mrs. J. D. Tennyson. The young women will leave Plainfield, Monday afternoon, to be gone ten days.

The program for this year has been planned with especial reference to the girl who has only a short vacation and is in need of physical as well as spiritual up-building. There will be only two morning hours which all the delegates will be asked to attend—an hour of Bible study and one for the consideration of association work. There will be classes for mission and community study also, as at former conferences, but attendance at these is not obligatory, and all the recreation facilities will be open at 11 o'clock each morning, the afternoon, as always, being entirely free.

A special afternoon to aquatic sports furnishes amusement both for participant and onlookers—with its trials of real skill and endurance in the rowing contests and its ludicrous "crab" races, "umbrella" races and tilting matches. Jolly launch parties go off for picnics to Gem Island or Paradise Bay, while to those familiar with the early history of our country, a trip to Fort Ticonderoga, with its commanding view of Lake Champlain and to Crown Point, makes an interesting excursion. Competent guides take parties for thrilling climbs over the boulders of Adirondack trails to the cascades or to the top of the Black Mountain, and some of the sunsets seen from these heights leave pictures which brighten many a gray day in the city in coming months of hard work. Evening vespers, with the moon rising over the mountains and making a rippling path of light across the waters, are a fitting close for these happy days of close companionship.

During the time the local girls are at the conference Miss Kathryn Aller will be among the Bible teachers. Her topic will be "A Girl and Her Relationships."

PIANO LESSONS ADDED TO RECREATION WORK

Piano lessons is the latest addition to the long list of feature now conducted under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee of the city. In order to help aspiring musically inclined children of the city and borough, the Committee has arranged a summer course of music which will be taught at the Stillman School on Monday and Thursday mornings. The fee is nominal and barely covers the cost of expense. A competent teacher has been secured for the work and the best of instruction will be given each individual pupil, thus laying the foundation for a good musical education within the reach of all. Young children should have careful training at the start when the fundamentals and principals which stay with them through life are first presented to them. It is for the purpose of keeping up this high standard of musical training that the piano classes are started by the Committee, who feel confident that the parents will co-operate with them, and make it possible to continue the new course through the winter.

Children wishing to join the class may apply at the Stillman School, at Arlington avenue and Fifth street, on Thursday morning between 10 and 12 o'clock.

DR. SHAW'S AUTO SEIZED FOR TAX

Whether or not Dr. Anna Howard Shaw will sacrifice the little yellow roadster that was presented to her about ten days ago by the suffragists and which has been seized in Pennsylvania for taxes is a question that is engaging the attention of the suffrage leader's friends. The seizure of the car by the Pennsylvania authorities, according to dispatches, was based on the fact that Dr. Shaw has refused to pay $126 State taxes. Her ground for refusing is that she is a resident of the State of New York and therefore not required to pay taxes in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Suffrage Association, in a statement, says she believes the seizure was made for personal taxes and that Dr. Shaw does not consider herself a resident of the State of Pennsylvania. When Mrs. Feickert was her guest a week ago the question of taxation came up in the conversation and then Dr. Shaw told the Plainfield woman that she always paid her county tax, under protest, however. Dr. Shaw said she was perfectly willing to pay the tax collector the figure for which she was assessed, but that she had repeatedly refused to make any declaration of her personal taxes.

The car is brand new and painted suffrage yellow, and was purchased as a gift to show the love of the suffrage women for their leader. Several prominent snuffragists believe that the principal of "no vote no tax" is at stake.

POLITICAL NOTES.

It would seem, despite the wave of harmony which has apparently started to roll over the Democracy of the county, that the threatened fight for the chairmanship of the county committee between the present incumbent, Lucius T. Russell, and Francis V. Dobbins, may develop at the September primaries. Dobbins admitted several months ago that he was being urged to run and he appeared to be in a receptive mood. A Russell-Dobbins showdown would no doubt add a little zest to what otherwise would be a dull primary. It would mean a battle in every Democratic election district in the county and would surely be a test of strength for Russell. The latter easily won out over Abram P. Morris a year ago and since that time has been elected chairman of the State Association of Democratic Chairmen. The harmony dinner in St. Michael's Hall last week is taken as an indication of Russell's ability as an organizer and may have left a very favorable impression on the large number of Democrats present. It was the first time in a great many years that the warring forces within the Democratic ranks had been brought together at the festive board.

Mayor Mravlag's announced intention of dropping Captain William C. DeHart from the Police Commission in Elizabeth, when the time comes for his re-appointment in January, is giving friends of the police officers and patrolmen food for speculation as to who the captain's successor will be. He must be a Democrat, as the two other members of the Commission are of opposite political faith. Dr. Norton L. Wilson is a Republican and Wyck Lott a Progressive. It may be that the Mayor will name a downtown Democrat. The appointment will give the executive oportunity to strengthen his political fences if he is considering running again next year. He has frequently declared that he is going to "keep right on being Mayor."

SHRINERS CAPTURE SEATTLE.

Seattle, Wash., Junly 13—With the arrival yesterday of Dr. Frederick B. Smith, Imperial Potentate, the host of Shriners gathered here for the 41st annual session of the Imperial Council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, formally opened their big meeting. Today the Imperial Council held its first meeting, and this afternoon the ladies of the nobles are being entertained at a lawn fete. The second big parade of the week will take place tomorrow, when all the bands, patrols and nobles will be reviewed by the Imperial Potentate. The council will formally close its deliberations on Thursday, but the gathering will remain for the many events that have been arranged up to Saturday night.

ABE RUEF SEEKS FREEDOM.

San Francisco, July 13.—Abe Ruef, former political boss of San Francisco, today completes half of his term of fourteen years in San Quentin prison for bribery, and is hopeful that he will be given his parole soon. He has made application to the board of prisoner directors who will act on August 13. He is more hopeful than ever today that his liberty will be granted him, for reports have reached him that the members of the prison board are favorable to grant his application. The present effort in his behalf is the third one, the others having failed because it was necessary for a prisoner to serve half his sentence before parole could be granted.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

IT'S A WET, WET WAY TO WARSAW!

AN ORDINANCE

To Regulate the Use of Sewers in the City of Plainfield and the Making of Connections Therewith.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The Committee on Sewers shall have the direction and control, subject to the orders of the Common Council, of all sewers and appurtenances in the City, and of the construction, maintenance, repair and use of the same.

Sec. 2. No person shall make any connection with any sewer or sewer connection in the City of Plainfield or open any manhole, lamphole or flushtank, or clean or repair any sewer connection, except with the written permit of the Engineer in charge of Sewers (hereinafter called the Engineer), or his authorized representative. The applicant for a permit to make house connections shall, at the time of making application, deposit with the City Treasurer or with the said Engineer (by him to be deposited with the City Treasurer), the following sums:

If the connection has already been laid to the curb line, the sum of one dollar; if the connection has not been laid to the curb line, the applicant shall deposit such additional sum as the Committee on Sewers may from time to time determine, said additional sum to be approximately the average cost of furnishing the materials and doing the work of constructing a 4-inch cast iron house connections from the sewers to the curb lines, said cost to be ascertained by advertising for bids for furnishing the materials and doing the work. For [illegible] when the connection will be laid by the city contractor from the sewer to the curb line.

Where openings are made in brick or similar permanent pavements, an additional charge of three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75) shall be paid for each square yard of such pavement to be replaced, which amount shall be paid at the time the permit is issued. Where openings are made in concrete pavement, the charge shall be two dollars and ten cents ($2.10) per square yard in addition to the one dollar permit fee.

Sec. 3. No more than one building shall be connected with the sewer through one connection without a special permit from the Department of Health.

Sec. 4. No trap shall be placed on any connection between the sewer and the building.

Sec. 5. No surface, underground or rain water shall be allowed to enter any sewer or house connection, and no vault or cesspool shall be connected with any sewer or house connection.

Sec. 6. No person shall permit or cause to enter or flow into any sewer or appurtenance, any hot, corrosive, suffocating, inflammable or explosive liquids, gas, vapor or substance, or any substance which may injure the sewers or their appurtenances, or shall tend to form deposits or obstruct the free flow of sewage therein; but the provisions of this section shall not apply to water from ordinary hot water boilers.

Sec. 7. All stables, garages, ice cream factories, milk depots and similar establishments, in which floor drains are to be connected with the city sewers, shall be provided with catch basins or sand traps to receive and retain all sand, dirt and other refuse which would tend to clog the house drain or sewer. The catch basin or sand trap shall have a cover of ample size which can be easily opened and the sand and refuse must be removed at sufficiently frequent intervals to keep the trap a below the bottom of the outlet pipe.

Where any sand traps now in use are, in the opinion of the Engineer, incapable of performing the work for which they are intended, they shall be removed and new sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the requirements of this ordinance and these specifications, within sixty days after receipt of notice from the Engineer to make such change.

Sec. 8. All garages, industrial establishments and other buildings from which gasoline or oil are liable to flow into any house connection or sewer, shall be provided with properly constructed separators of ample capacity to intercept the gasoline and oil and prevent them from entering the sewer.

Gasoline or other volatile oils shall not be permitted to drain into the house connection or sewer.

Sec. 9. All work done in making connections to sewers and all materials furnished therefor shall conform to the requirements of the specifications annexed hereto and adopted herewith and entitled "Specifications for the Construction of Drains or Connections to Sewers in the City of Plainfield, N. J."

Sec. 10. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding ten days for each offense, or both such fine and imprisonment.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF DRAINS OR CONNECTIONS TO SEWERS IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Inspection.

All work and materials shall be subject to the inspection of the Engineer or his representative, and all improper work shall be reconstructed, and all materials which do not conform to the requirements of the specifications shall be removed from the work. In no case shall any work be covered until it has been inspected and approved by the Engineer or his representative.

Location.

The proper location for the connection will be given at the time the permit is issued and no deviation from this location shall be made and no opening shall be cut into a sewer without special permission from the Engineer or his authorized representative.

Precautions.

All excavations, piles of materials and other obstacles incident to the work must be protected with barricades and lights to prevent accidents.

Excavation.

All macadam stone or other paving material removed in excavating the trenches shall be piled by itself, and after the completion of the work shall be relaid and the street left in as good condition as before being disturbed. In case the stone is wasted, or if the trenches settle, the contractor shall furnish new stone and restore the surface to the proper grade at his own expense.

Excavation shall be made in open trenches and no tunneling will be allowed except by permission of the Engineer.

In case the ground in the bottom of the trench is soft or spongy, it shall be excavated to such increased depth as the Engineer may direct, and shall be refilled with gravel or other suitable material, thoroughly rammed.

House Connections.

House connections shall be constructed of four inch cast iron pipe, strong, tough and of sound, even grain, weighing not less than 13 pounds per linear foot, and coated inside and outside with hot coal tar varnish. Larger pipes shall not be used except by special permission.

In laying the iron pipe, gaskets of clean, sound oakum or jute, braided or twisted, and tightly driven, shall be used to pack the joints. The best quality of pure, soft lead, suitable for caulking, shall be used, and the depth of lead shall not be less than one inch. Before running the lead, the joints shall be carefully wiped out, and shall be run full at one pour. If the gasket becomes wet before time for pouring, it must be removed and a dry gasket inserted in its place. The joints shall be thoroughly calked by competent and experienced men, and when finished, the lead shall be flush with the face of the socket and the joint shall be absolutely tight.

Grade.

No connections with the sewers shall be laid with a less inclination than one-quarter of an inch to the foot except by special permit and at owner's risk.

Pipes to Be Clean.

All rubbish must be removed from the pipes before they are laid, and the open end of the pipe must be protected to prevent the intrusion of dirt.

Pipes to Be Plugged.

When the pipe is not connected to the soil pipe at once, the upper end shall be closed with a cemented or leaded plug.

Refilling.

The lower part of the trenches shall be refilled with the best of the excavated material, and no filling shall be done above the pipe until the material around it shall have been thoroughly tamped. The remaining portion of the trench shall be refilled in horizontal layers not exceeding nine inches in depth, each of which shall be well rammed. The earth must not be thrown into the trench faster than it can be distributed and properly rammed, and in filling, the number of men ramming shall not be less than the number of men filling. All extra material and rubbish must be promptly removed after the completion of the backfilling.

Sand Traps.

Sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the plans on file in the office of the City Clerk and under the direction of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

Gasoline and Oil Separators.

Gasoline and oil separators shall be installed under the supervision and subject to the approval of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

Adopted by the Common Council, July 6, 1915, approved by the Mayor, July 12, 1915.

LEIGHTON CALKINS, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

EXPECT RECORD NUMBER AT K. OF C. CONVENTION

The thirty-third annual convention of the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus, to be held at Seattle from August 3 to 5, inclusive, promises to be the largest gathering of members of the order since its inception. Delegates will be present from every State and Territory in the United States, from Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

New Jersey delegates will leave for the convention city next Saturday. In the party will be State Deputy John F. O'Neill, of Jersey City; Past State Deputy Cornelius J. McGlennon, of Harrison; John J. Berry, of Newark Council; Richard V. Marnell, Hoboken; John J. Daly, New Brunswick; T. M. O'Connell, Burlington; Edward J. Sweeney, Bayonne; William Smith, Jersey City, and William F. Doyle, of Trenton.

Thomas J. McLaughlin, a member of Newark Council, who has held the office of national warden for several years, will start for Seattle today, making various stops while en route. Mr. McLaughlin's re-election as national warden is expected.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF KANSAS TO TOUR JERSEY

Lieutenant W. L. Morgan has offered his services to the leader of the Woman Suffrage Association in New Jersey, for a tour of the State during the last week of the suffrage campaign.

As Kansas women have had municipal suffrage for twenty-eight years, and full suffrage since 1912, Lieut. Gov. Morgan is an authority on the working of votes for women. He is a practical business man as well as a prominent political leader and is also the editor of the "Hutchinson News." His tour will include the principal cities of New Jersey.

JANE ADDAMS WELCOMED.

New York, July 13—A public welcome back to America from her long trip through war-swept Europe in an effort for early peace will be tendered tonight to Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago. The meeting will be held in Carnegie Hall, and has been planned by the Women's Peace Party and other peace organizations. Miss Addams went abroad early in the spring as the leader of the American contingent to the International Congress of Women for Peace. The Congress met at The Hague, and Miss Addams presided. Resolutions looking to early peace in Europe were adopted by the women, and Miss Addams undertook the arduous task of personally heading the committee which called at the principal capitals of the belligerents. She talked with the heads of many governments, to whom she was known through her world-wide reputation. Miss Addams has already declared her opinion that peace can be brought about through neutrals if the right methods are adopted, for it is her belief that the people of Europe are war-sick and long for peace.

NEWS AND VIEWS

THE W. C. T. U.

On the last night before a no-license election in one of the Minnesota counties which recently went dry, a speaker from Kansas City, Mo., was advertised to tell the voters about the failure of prohibition in Kansas. In reply to a telegraphic communication to the chief executive of Kansas, Governor Capper wired the following message:

"Prohibition the greatest blessing that ever came to Kansas. Makes more happy homes, fewer heart-broken wives, less crime, an unqualified success. Our people enthusiastically for prohibition, and would not think for one moment of going back to the saloon and its attendant vices, whatever may be said to the contrary by hired spokesmen for liquor interests.

"Arthur Capper, Governor."

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania's National Guard, a sweeping order affecting the use and sale of intoxicants in camp has been issued by the adjutant general. The order comes through the regular military channels, direct from Governor Brumbaugh, who, by virtue of his office, is commander-in-chief of the militia forces.

"The canteen has been chiefly noticeable by its absence at encampments of the Pennsylvania citizen soldiery in recent years," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "and while the camps have not been entirely dry, the falling off in the use of alcoholic beverages among the men has been marked, according to officers."

Intoxicants will be barred in the encampment of the two reinforced brigades of the New York National Guard at Fishkill Plains, July 17 to August 1.

"The use of liquor in any form will be strictly prohibited to both officers and men," is the announcement made by an officer of the guard. "Formerly alcohol was considered essential, but Major General O'Ryan for several years past made determined efforts to eliminate it, and with great success."

Instructions approved by President Wilson for the sale of town sites along the route of the government railroad between Seward and Fairbanks, Alaska, stipulate that no liquor selling, gambling or immorality will be allowed on any of the lots, under penalty of forfeiture.

Among the rules and regulations being sent out by Secretary of the Interior Franklin Lane is one that states, "No drinking saloon or barroom will be permitted upon government lands in Yosemite National Park."

Enforcement of the prohibitory law in West Virginia, which became operative a year ago, has cut the number of arrests in thirty-five towns and cities throughout the State more than half—from 14,000 to 6,986—according to statistics made public by the department of prohibition. In 1914 half of the arrests were for intoxication.

The new auto speedway, one of the largest in the world, which was recently completed in Maywood, a suburb of Chicago, has refused to allow liquor on its grounds. During the construction of the course a brisk trade in intoxicants, especially bottled beer, went on inside the enclosure through a special permit from the Maywood authorities. The speedway officials decided, however, that the sale of liquor within the enclosure was attended with too great risks, and an order went forth that every drop of booze must be cleared from the park. "I don't propose to go on record as a prohibitionist," said F. E. Edwards, director of contests, "but I have seen more than one fatal accident on automobile courses, due to the presence of liquor."

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS.

Montreal, July 13—A Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic church throughout Canada opened here today, with His Emminence, Cardinal Begin, and His Grace, Archbishop Bruchesi, presiding. Cardinal Begin is honorary president of the convention, and besides addressing the monster meeting of the clergy and laity tonight in Notre Dame church, will attend the various gatherings of the Congress. Auxiliary Bishop Hayes, of New York, is the only American prelate invited to take part in the proceedings. The pontifical blessing of Pope Benedict XV. on the Congress will be read tonight at the big public meeting. The Congress will sit for three days, with separate meetings for the French and English speaking prelates of Canada.

CANDY MEN MAKE MERRY.

Brighton Beach, N. Y., July 13—The surf is today full of candy men—400 of them—and none of them seem to melt up in the brine. The candy ladies are with them, also the candy kids. For the annual convention of the National Association of Confectionery Salesmen is one round of merriment, and trainloads of candy families always attend. For three days the candy men will hold forth here.

ATLANTIC FLEET STILL BUSY.

Boston, July 13.—The Fourth Division of the Atlantic Fleet arrived here today, for division tactics and exercises. The first division remained at Newport, the second is at Provincetown and the third at Rockport, Mass. Each division will be put through a course of special exercises as separate units, with the big battleships and the torpedo boats and destroyers practicing under strict war conditions. This drill will continue until the end of the month, when the entire fleet will assemble in Narragansett Bay for torpedo practice. War College lectures, coaling at sea, and overhauling of machinery. Following this phrase of the training, the fleet will go to Block Island on August 15, where fleet maneuvres will be carried out night and day. This strenuous work will be followed up by target practice off the Virginia Capes. In September another defense war game will be played by the Atlantic Fleet, in which the problem of defending the coast will be worked out. The active and reserve destroyer flotilla, the submarine and auxiliary squadrons and the cruiser squadron is still in Narragansett Bay and will be engaged until August 14 in divisional and flotilla exercises, mine laying, mine sweeping, development of the offensive against submarines, etc. The flotilla of destroyers will then join the battleship fleet.

A double bill in which the Laurels were twice victorious over the Red Stars, the score in both cases being 7 to 0, opened the Parker Field Senior League season yesterday.

Besides being the pitching star of the day, Butler clouted the pill heavily, getting five hits in the two games.

Strikeouts were prominent during the fray, nineteen men taking the count, Mullin whiffing four, Marsh two and Butler thirteen. Heavy hitting was a feature of both encounters, there being four doubles registered, all of them being contributed by members of the winning combination.

O. B. MOGULS ADMIT POOR ATTENDANCES, BUT SAY FEDS ARE NOT WORRYING THEM

The National League found a way, at its meeting yesterday, to get around the twenty-one player limit which has caused much dissatisfaction among several of the clubs this season. Hereafter the league will keep a "disabled" list, which provides that an injured player can be kept out of the game at least ten days, and an extra player substituted for him.

By this arrangement, the clubs can carry extra players regardless of the twenty-one player limit. A player placed on the "disabled" list will not be allowed to participate in a championship game for at least ten days, including the day of his injury.

Yesterday's meeting was held in the league's new headquarters, where all the league conclaves will be held hereafter. The Federal League came in for some discussion, but President Tener announced that none of the club owners were worrying about the independent organization.

While the attendance in some of the cities, this season, has not been up to other years, the club owners blame this condition on the bad weather and not on the competition of the new league.

President Dreyfuss has put in a claim for the services of Pitcher George Sisler, who is now with the St. Louis Browns. Dreyfuss says that he signed the pitcher some time ago before he attended the University of Michigan. The matter will be decided by the National Commission.

The league also passed a rule requiring all the clubs to have canvas covering for the diamond, so that it will be possible to play after a rainstorm. In St. Louis many of the postponed games could have been played if the diamond had been covered during the rain.

AMATEUR BALL JINGLES

Generick, the Dunellen addition to the Clinton Avenue combine, was certanly in the limelight Saturday, although up until the ninth inning his hitting and fielding were inconspicuous. But in the last frame, with two down and two on, he smashed a liner at Britt Martin, who stopped the speedy pill, but was unable to field it. This tied the score.

"Pop" Martin is some prophet. After Betzenberger had walked, Martin, who was the next man up, yelled to the crowd that he would either fly out or hit the pill over the fence. His remark produced laughter and even ridicule, but at that "Father" put the pill on Crescent Oval soil, scoring "Betsy."

Earl Moran, the Netherwood backstop, bids fair to become the league's best catcher. He made one great stab Saturday and is hitting the pill regularly and heavily.

The Baptist outfit is a rejuvenated one and the addition of Ralph Smalley and "Wren" Townley is the cause. These two youths are bound to lift the team from the cellar position and lift it soon, too.

Eddie Gunzelman is so proud of his title of the City League "Fritz Maisel" that he is not regarding even ordinary discretion in running the bags now. However, he did not lose by any of the daring chances he took Saturday.

Dick Schott has taken a firmer grasp on the title of best flinger in the league, but we think that he had better look out more for "Babe" Gleason than for "Tone" Denny. "Babe" can pitch, field and hit, doubles being his favorite dish.

Patterson, the Baptist hurler, deserves a pile of credit for the splendid manner in which he has pitched during the past month. Although he has yet to register a win, he has twirled better ball than several of the flingers who have yet to taste defeat.

Sunday ball seems to be tolerated in Plainfield now, although the fans are not willing to support the teams that perform here on that day. The games at Avon Park, Highland Park and Crescent Oval did not attract any record-breaking crowds.

SUBURBAN HANDICAP.

Racegoers will concentrate their attention this week on the Suburban Handicap, which will be run at the opening of the Empire City Racing Association at Belmont Park tomorrow. The first ten days of the Empire City meeting will be run at Belmont and the last six will be at Aqueduct. This will be the first year that the Suburban has been run under the auspices of the Yonkers Association. There was no renewal of the classic last year, while in 1913 it was run under the auspices of the Westchester Racing Association, and in 1911 and 1912 there was no Suburban. Previous to these years the event was the big race of the season at Sheepshead Bay.

MULLIN AT KEYPORT.

The Keyport A. C. defeated the Franklins, of Perth Amboy, Sunday, 1 to 0, but it took twelve innings to do the trick. Tommy Mullin, the local boy, was the heaviest hitter of both nines, getting three hits. His fielding, too, was a feature of the game.

PLAINFIELD JUNIORS ARE OUT TO FIGHT FOR FORFEIT

The following communication was received at this office from Samuel Semer, manager of the Plainfield Juniors:

"Referring to Saturday's game between the Dunellen Boy Scouts and the Plainfield Juniors, I would like to say that Mullin, who, after singling, advanced to third and was called out by the umpire for being touched by Jackson, who was coaching at third, was safe inasmuch as Jackson did not touch him as alleged. This was not only the opinion of the Juniors but also that of the majority of the Dunellen fans and of the scorer. The umpire thought differently, however, and the Juniors refused to go by his decision as it robbed them of a chance to capture the game. The game was then forfeited to the Scouts."

KAUFF BACK IN HARNESS.

Benny Kauff, the greatest jumper that baseball ever knew, settled down with the Brooklyn Tip-Tops again yesterday, when he performed with them in Buffalo against the Blues. Benny displayed some more of his clouting specialty by hammering out a triple and two singles out of five trips to the plate. Benny also scored two of Brooklyn's nine runs.

NO INTERNATIONAL SPORTS THIS YEAR

International competition, so far as sporting events are concerned, is apparently off the boards for some years. Announcement was made last week that the next Olympic games would positively not be held until 1920, if then, and Foxhall Keene declared it would not be a sportsmanlike thing for this country to make any effort to regain the polo trophy for a long time to come.

This seems to be the sentiment of many polo leaders. Of course in the event of the European war ending, soon a challenge for the international polo trophy might be made a year or so after the ending of hostilities. But it is safe to say that the United States will make no effort to regain the trophy until Great Britain is in a position to put a good defending team on the field.

The same condition is likely to hold good in any challenge for the Davis International Tennis Cup. Tennis officials in this country would be reluctant to make any effort to regain the trophy until conditions abroad have become settled. From the present state of affairs in Europe it does not seem likely that this country will get a chance to regain either the tennis or polo trophies for some years. But in the meantime possible international team candidates in tennis are coming to the front while some sterling good polo players are being developed.

Unless the United States becomes involved in the struggle sporting authorities agree that this country will hold supremacy in practically every line of sport for years to come. The pick of the track and field athletes and tennis players of foreign countries and the best polo players of Great Britain are serving at the front. Many of them have been killed in action and others will lose their lives before the end of the conflict.

With death taking such a toll on the athletic talent of foreign countries it will be some time after the war before seasoned campaigners in track and field sports, tennis, golf and polo can be developed in other countries.

WILLARD VS. COFFEY.

John Weismantel, who is making the matches for the open-air boxing shows at Ebbets Field, announced yesterday that hereafter the bouts will be held on Tuesday evenings, the first under that arrangement to be held on July 20. But John has one bout in view which he is willing to hold on Monday. That would be between Jesse Willard, heavyweight champion, and Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant. The Monday on which he would change his plans is Labor Day.

SCOUTS HAVE EYE-OPENER.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 13—Arthur Nehf, left-hand pitcher for the local Central League Club, who set a league record Friday, when he struck out sixteen men, is being watched by Ira Thomas, of the Philadelphia Americans, and four other major league scouts who are now in Terre Haute. The management of the local club has refused all offers for the pitcher. Nehf has struck out 131 men in twenty games.

ONE LOCAL ENTRY FOR ASBURY PARK TOURNAMENT

When the Asbury Park Fishing Club holds its set of six events, including surf casting, at Deal, on August 7, there will likely be one local man on hand to compete. John Yates, of DeLacy avenue, the borough, will be the only person from this vicinity to try for honors. There was, up until today, a chance of there being another Plainfielder entered in the events. However, John Doughty, of North avenue, will be occupied with his business on the date when the events are to be run off.

The day's activities are held with the sanction of the Association of Surf Angling Clubs, which is to the fishing pastime what the National Lawn Tennis Association is to the court game. The events will begin at 8 o'clock in the morning and will conclude at 6 in the evening.

There are, at this early date, sixteen anglers entered in the contests, several of the most prominent being Hardy Phillips, Walter Travis, "Cap" Fennimore and Henry C. Comegys.

According to reports given out by local promoters of the fishing game, Dr. Carlton H. Simon will try for the world's record in the surf casting event.

BRUGGY BREAKS ANKLE IN GAME ON TROY FIELD

Frank Bruggy, the Elizabeth boy, who was sent to the Troy Club, of the New York State League, by George F. Stallings, of the Boston Braves, is today a patient in a Troy hospital, having broken a bone in his right ankle as he was sliding into second base.

His spikes caught in the dirt, twisting his ankle and snapping one or more of the bones. The accident is likely to keep him idle for several weeks and comes at a time when it was rumored that Stallings had decided to re-call him.

RUNYON ENTERED FOR GENERAL ELECTRIC GAMES

Ralph Runyon, the local pole vaulter, expects to enter the junior metropolitan track and field championships to be decided at Schenectady, N. Y., Saturday. The meet is to be held under the auspices of the General Electric A. A. and has the sanction of the A. A. U.

Only athletes attached to metropolitan clubs are allowed to compete and up to date entries have been received from all the large athletic clubs of New York city, the N. Y. A. C. leading in numbers.

LOCAL WOMEN TIE FOR "MET" GOLF NET AWARD

In the Woman's Metropolitan Golf Association tournament held yesterday on the links of the Hollywod Golf Club of West End, Mrs. A. S. Rossin, of the home club, won the gross prize.

It is a rule of the tournament, however, that one person cannot take both prizes. Consequently it left a tie for the net award between Mrs. N. P. Rogers, of Baltusrol, and Mrs. H. R. Stockton, both of Plainfield. On the play-off Mrs. Stockton won with 98 to Mrs. Rogers' 101.

Mrs. Rogers, although playing under the colors of the Baltusrol Golf Club, is a resident of this city.

Haberman, who played centre field for the Saurer team in Saturday's Saurer-Clinton Avenue tilt, broke his collar-bone a short while after the completion of the game.

He was boarding a crowded trolley car on West Front street and was jostled about so that he collided forcibly with a support in the car. His injury is not considered serious, but it will end his baseball career for this season.

SAYLOR AND WHITE MEET.

Boston, July 13—One of the best ring battles of the seson will be staged here tonight, when Milburn Saylor, the Indiana wonder, clashes with Charlie White, of Chicago. Both boys are going good and are hard workers. White recently held his own against Freddie Welsh, at New York, and some of the fans thought he earned a victory over the champion. Saylor and White will go 12 rounds here.

MAY FORM CLUB.

An important meeting of the "Plainfield Five" feminine basketball team will be held in the gymnasium of the Plainfield High School, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present. Plans for the formation of an athletic club will be discussed and officers elected.

CRITICIZE WORK OF LEAGUE 'UMPS'

Request Made That They Give Decision From Behind the Plate.

REPORT ON PENNANT

Several Changes Made in Players' Lists—Clinton Avenue to Play T. A. B. on Baptist Field on Saturday—Other Baseball Chat.

Aside from a few complaints about the work of the umpires, the weekly meeting of the City Amateur Baseball League, held at the Plainfield Daily Press office last night, was marked by complete harmony. All of the managers expressed themselves as being satisfied with the progress of the league and remarked upon the spirit of rivalry existing among the various teams. This is especially true just now between Hope Chapel and the T. A. B. teams, as both are fighting for first place. The scores in Saturday's games were close and furnished good sport.

There was some criticism of the work of the "umps" and Manager Dan. Randolph, of the First Baptist team, thought that they should give decisions from behind the home plate when there were no men on bases. It is stated that the umpire is privileged by the National League rules to use his own judgment in this respect and it was finally decided that managers could make such a request of the arbitrators if they thought best. The umpires will be invited to attend the next meeting of the league for conference purposes.

Managers Britt Martin, of the Saurer team, and J. B. Coughlin, of the Netherwood A. C., reported progress in the matter of securing a pennant from Harry Dreier and it was the opinion that such a prize would be secured inasmuch as all of the teams are purchasing their supplies from the latter.

The managers reported a few changes in their list of players. Carlton Dunham, who formerly played with Clinton Avenue, was posted on the First Baptist team. Manager Britt Martin, of Saurer, listed "Warry" MacLaughlin and Hirsch, the latter not having played with Netherwood, although signed. Martin stated that Hirsch had expressed a desire to play with his aggregation. Under the circumstances Coughlin willingly released the player. Martin also posted Tommy Mullin, dropping Lester Lyon, Garretson and Haberman. The last named player broke his collarbone Saturday night and is out of the game for some time. J. B. Coughlin's name was added to the Netherwood team, taking the place of Hirsch.

In view of the fact that Hope will play the Baptist team on the former's grounds Saturday, Manager Tom Apgar, of the Clinton Avenues, decided to accept the offer of the Baptist management and play T. A. B. on the West End avenue field on Saturday to lessen the competition. Saurer will play at Netherwood.

There was some discussion regarding Hope's game on the date of the Hope chapel excursion, but this will be decided upon later. Postponed games will be played at the end of the season, it being considered unwise to play double-headers on Saturday. George Gage made application for appointment as umpire and he was made a substitute arbitrator.

ROD AND REEL

W. L. Julliard, of Elm place, caught the biggest small mouth bass yet landed by local anglers. The speckled beauty weighs two pounds and six ounces and is almost sure to bring the prize offered by John Doughty to the local angler who catches the biggest bass during the whole season.

Dr. Frederic J. Hughes, of Park avenue, is now in the Hudson Bay country, a section but little explored, scarcely populated and hardly ever traversed by tourists. The doctor is accompanied by an Indian guide and will have to rough it. Although it is purely a pleasure trip, to be spent canoeing and fishing, the doctor will have a chance to study the modes of living there, which, contrary to opinion prevalent here and elsewhere, are very bad.

Leslie C. Bond, of East Front street, landed a fine rainbow trout Sunday. It was seventeen and a half inches long and weighs two pounds and two ounces.

W. A. W. Burnett, who left on July 10 to spend his vacation in the North, will, after a short stay at Montreal, devote five or six weeks to canoeing and fishing in the Nepigon Lake section, where the trout weigh from three to seven pounds, and run in large numbers. It is a yearly custom with Mr. Burnett to spend his vacation around the trout and salmon streams of Canada.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 70 degrees; 11 a. m., 80 degrees; 11 p. m., 85 degrees.

LOCAL PLAYERS SUFFER DEFEAT

Westfield Golf Club's Annual Night Tennis Tourney Got Underway Last Night.

TWENTY-FIVE ENTERED

Collier and Bellows Put on the Shelf by Home Duo—Three Other Plainfield Teams Scheduled to Start—Competition Likely to Be Heavy.

One Plainfield tennis doubles team was put out of the running in the first round of competition staged in connection with the annual tournament of the Westfield Golf Club last night, Paul Collier and Stanley Bellows bowing to a pair of Westfield rivals. Twenty-five teams have entered the tourney, the schedule calling for four matches each evening this week and the event will probably be run into next week. The competition will eclipse that of one year ago when only twenty teams were entered. The local players put up a good article of tennis in the matches last night, making Todd and Kyte, the Mt. Ararat cracks, taste a 6-8 beating in the first set, but succumbing in the final pair by tallies of 6-1, 6-2.

The elimination of the one local team leaves three survivors, Jack VanDeventer and A. W. Ransome and Percy Ransome and Joseph VanDeventer being slated for the first round, and Phil VanDeventer and R. M. Kirkland drawing a bye in the first, to start in the second. The entries and the schedule follows:

Tonight: A. W. Donalddson and D. Donaldson, Westfield Tennis Club, vs. Linsley Dunham and H. Mck. Glazebrook, Ilderan Outing Club, Rahway; Oliver Hall and W. O. Titus, Westfield Tennis Club, vs. Irving Throckmorton and Harry Balch, South Orange Tennis Club; Jack VanDeventer and A. W. Ransome, Plainfield Tennis Club, vs. B. Throckmorton and D. Havens, Sewaren Tennis Club; W. B. Clarkson and L. T. Ballard, Sewaren Tennis Club, vs. H. P. Randall and E. M. Randall, Westfield Golf Club.

Tomorrow night: Percy Ransome and Joseph VanDeventer, Plainfield Tennis Club, vs. L. A. Stimpson and C. H. Warfield, Westfield Tennis Club; E. S. Cubberly and W. Livingston, El Mora Country Club, vs. F. W. Ellesworth and E. R. Merry, Jr., Westfield Tennis Club.

Second round—Thursday night: Victor Underwood and W. M. Lambert, Westfield Tennis Club, vs. George Throckmorton and P. Ernst, Sewaren Tennis Club; Russel Brown and W. H. Brown, Clifton Tennis Club, vs. R. M. Kirkland and Phil VanDeventer, Elizabeth Town and Country Club; L. E. Meyer and A. G. Deane, Westfield Tennis Club, vs. F. C. Clarkson and E. C. Rowland, Metuchen Tennis Club.

The summaries of last night's play:

First round: John H. Kyte and J. H. Todd, Westfield Golf Club, defeated Paul R. Collier and Stanley Bellows, Plainfield Tennis Club, 6-8, 6-1, 6-2.

A. T. Martin and Fred Hardcastle, Bayonne Tennis Club, defeated W. Throckmorton and C. Birkholtz, Colonial Golf Club, 3-6, 11-9, 6-4.

E. S. Pendergast and M. R. Martin, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, defeated H. H. Knight and Gordon Urner, Fanwood Tennis Club, 6-0, 6-0.

BOROUGH BOWLING SCORES.

Kunzman	142	137	162
W. Conover	150	154	136
Ferrero	130	173	167
Kunzman	118	170	123
Voorhees	204	209	202

PLAIN GIRLS' MEET.

The committee in charge of the girls' athletic meet, to be held on Labor Day at the Parker Field, will be in the Plainfield High School gymnasium tomorrow night, to meet any girls who wish to enter their names in the different events. Further information can be secured at that time also.

ZIMMERMAN DUE TO GO.

New York, July 13.—President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Nationals, has asked for waivers on William Zimmerman, the outfielder. If waivers are secured Zimmerman will go to the Rochester club, of the International League.

INTERESTING REPORTS ARE PRESENTED BY DELEGATES

The monthly meeting of the Young People's Association, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was held last night, at which time routine business was transacted and reports submitted by the various committees. The society intends to keep up its activities throughout the summer, including especially attractive services and social occasions.

Two exceptionally interesting reports were given by Miss Anna Clark and Miss Marion Hudson, delegates to the Young People's Assembly at Heightstown.

CARRANZA PREPARING TO FORCE CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 13.—Gen Carranza is preparing to push ihs campaign against Gen. Villa to a speedy windup, according to messages from Vera Cruz today.

The capture of Mexico City was said to have encouraged the first chief and his followers immensely, and indications point to a campaign of the most energetic sort, to prove the Carranzista provisional government's title to recognition by the Washington Administration.

It was the general impression here that this program stands an excellent chance of success. Utterances by Secretary of State Lansing Monday afternoon to the effect that President Wilson might not find Carranza recognition incompatible with his views, was looked on as practically settling the question—provided the Constitutionalist leader follows up his capture of Mexico by energetic action in the north.

CRUISER KOENIGSBERG COMPLETELY DESTROYED

London, July 13.—British river monitors have completely destroyed the German cruiser Koenigsberg, which took refuge in the Rufiji River in German East Africa. The destruction of the cruiser, which became known here today was described in a statement issued by the Admiralty.

The Koenigsberg was a protected cruiser of 3,348 tons and possessing a speed of 23 knots. She took refuge from the British fleet last fall.

On July 4 two British river monitors steamed into the Rufiji River and made an attack upon the Koenigsberg. In the engagement that followed the Koenigsberg was severely damaged, but the monitors were finally forced to retire, having lost four sailors.

The two river monitors entered the river again on July 11, and, according to the Admiralty statement, they were successful this time practically destroying the German vessel.

FATHER HOGAN HERE.

The Rev. Daniel F. Hogan, formerly of St. Mary's church, but at present an assistant at St. Rose of Lima's church, Roseville, was in this city today renewing old acquaintances.

INSECT GERM CARRIERS.

Roaches, Ants and Even Bees Are Now Regarded With Distrust.

The investigations of recent years have disclosed the relations of insects to malaria, yellow fever, bubonic plague and sleeping sickness. The striking results already demonstrated in respect to the activity of mosquitoes, fleas, bedbugs and houseflies inevitably raises the question as to the possible significance of other species of insects which may be less abundant, but whose contact with man may be occasional or confined to restricted localities. The group includes cockroaches, ants and bees.

"That an insect which will devour any sufficiently soft substance, from human foods to glue, grease and water colors and which will live by preference in the cracks of the floors and walls of houses, bakeries, restaurants, sugar refineries and tanneries, where their bodies come into contact with the filth and refuse that necessarily accumulate in such places, should carry a host of germs about on and in their bodies and be able to infect our foods is certainly not surprising," says the Journal of the American Medical Association. "Yet this is the habit of life of the omnivorous cockroach. Roaches propably also feed on tuberculous sputum and disseminate the bacilli as readily as the housefly.

"Ants, which are often abundant in houses and are readily disseminated by commerce, sometimes become a pest to the housewife, particularly when they get into the stores of food. They have not escaped suspicion as disseminators of pathogenic micro-organisms. Wheeler points out that it thus becomes possible for ants to spread disease in different ways.

"Finally the bees, lauded for centuries by poet and prose writer alike, have not escaped the accusation of suspicion. Wheeler has observed the stinging bees visit collections of garbage in the canal zone, presumably gathering foreign substances, which they knead into the cerumen cells in which they store honey eagerly collected for food by the natives in many parts of tropical America. According to Wheeler, there are records of intestinal disorders or even death following the eating of such honey. The suggestion of possible contamination with disease germs collected by filthy insects is plain."

Tuning a Bell.

No matter how great may be the care taken in making the mold, a bell has to be tuned before it will ring a clear, true note. As a matter of fact every bell sounds five notes, all of which must blend together harmoniously. If one is the least bit out the tone will be spoiled. The first of these notes is produced by the vibrations at the mouth of the bell, the second by the vibrations a little higher up, the third still higher up, and so on to the fifth, which is produced quite near the top. As the character of the sound which rings depends upon the thickness of the metal, it is possible by taking thin shavings from various places in the inside of the bell, to alter the five notes until they are all in harmony.

SCHOOL ELECTION IN BORO TONIGHT

Taxpayers Will Be Asked to Pass on Appropriations for Improvements.

A big vote is desired tonight at the special school election in North Plainfield when the question of issuing a note for $3,000 to make up the amount needed to pay for alterations and improvements to the Somerset School will be decided. The polls will open at 8 o'clock and remain open one hour, or longer, if additional time is necessary. To vote for the resolutions, the voters are requested to cast them as they are printed on the ballot; if opposed to them, to cancel the resolutions with ink or pencil. Following are the two resolutions:

Resolved, That for the purpose of securing the money needed to complete the re-modeling of the Somerset School building, the Board of Education be authorized to issue three notes of the district, in the corporate name of the district, in the denomination of one thousand dollars each.

Resolved, That three notes of one thousand dollars each be issued, said notes shall be dated the first day of August, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and shall be payable as follows: One note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and sixteen, one note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and one note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and eighteen.

W. M. CONOVER RECOVERS HIS STOLEN BICYCLE

Walter M. Conover, of 15 Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, has recovered his new Pierce bicycle which was stolen Saturday night from in the rear of Proctor's Theatre. The wheel was ridden to the borough and left by the barn of Vitelli & Arenallo, bottlers, of 11 Greenbrook road.

Mr. Conover did not report his loss to the police, but Chief Marshall Weiss was notified Sunday morning that a wheel had been found in the rear of the bottling establishment. As Mr. Conover was also given this information, he recovered possession of it before the police saw him. The wheel was not damaged.

TWO LOCAL DENTISTS WILL ATTEND STATE CONVENTION

Dr. Clive W. Montfort, whose offices are locate in the Babcock building, and Dr. Charles Moore, of West Front street, will leave Thursday for Asbury Park to attend the annual two days' convention of the New Jersey Dental Association. They will make the trip to and from the "Town without a frown" by automobile. An interesting program of procedure has been mapped out for the dentists and the gathering will be an instructive, as well as social one.

Dental practitioners from all parts of New Jersey will be present, all cities of the first and second classes being well represented. The speakers' roster includes men well qualified for the honor and several noted specialists will deliver talks along specific lines.

GROVE STREET BRIDGE IS BEING CARTED AWAY

Piece by piece the iron truss bridge over Green brook at Grove street, has been removed from its position and is to be taken to Somerville. Expressman H. C. Smith, of Dunellen, has the contract to transport it and he has found that the metal sections of the bridge are heavier than he had calculated upon.

Mr. Smith loaded two big girders on a truck yesterday and attempted to drive with the load to Somerville, but when near Grant avenue the rear wheels gave way and precipitated one end of the load to the ground. Mr. Smith then brought his six-ton auto truck into commission and today got some of the parts on their way.

The bridge was bought by the Somerset County Board of Freeholders. As Somerset county owned one-half of it anyway, the Union county Freeholders accepted $100 cash from Somerset county as their share in the bridge. The Somerset county officials will set the bridge up in some part of the county where it woll no doubt do duty for many years.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

All men are invited to spend a cool half hour tomorrow in the heat of the day at the men's noonday gospel meeting, 12:30 to 1 p. m., held in the Rescue Mission Hall, 10 Madison avenue. J. H. Manning, former secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker.

William D. Murray will speak at the mid-week prayer meeting at the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow night.

In "the Game of Life" generally, as well as in want advertising, persistence wins in nine cases out of ten.

GERMAN REPLY IS BEING CONSIDERED

Windsor, Vt., July 13—With President Wilson secluded in consideration of the German note, it was impossible to see him this morning in regard to the impressment of the American bark Normandy by a German submarine commander in the attack on the Russian steamship Leo.

This incident, if verified by official investigation by Ambassador Page, may strain to a critical point the situation which was already sufficiently grave. The Normandy incident, however, will await further explanation.

No reply to the last German note will be sent this week, and probably not for a fortnight. It is said on high authority that the President thinks there is nothing in the document itself which makes imminent a rupture of diplomatic relations or more serious consequences.

The President believes he must proceed with the utmost care and deliberation. Considered merely in itself he is not of the opinion that the Germain answer has brought our international crisis to a head.

Instead of taking his usual round of recreation he spent the morning in further study of the situation. Aside from his close personal application to the problem he is obtaining information from two sources—officially from Secretary of State Lansing, whom he has asked for a memorandum opinion, and unofficially from Col. E. M. House. The secretary's memorandum will deal with the legal points involved. Col. House's views it is believed, will deal with the matter of public opinion, both in the United States and Germany.

The President has already exchanged views with the Secretary of State, but as yet there are no plans for a personal conference.

BOROUGH HEALTH BOARD PREPARING NEW CODE

The North Plainfield Board of Health held its July meeting last night at which bills were ordered paid and the inspectors' reports were received. The task of preparing a new code to regulate plumbing when property owners shall commence making sewer connections is progressing favorably. It is expected that the code will be completely drawn up and ready for adoption at the August meeting. The provisions of the code will be adaptations from codes from other municipalities and will contain the best from each of them.

MASTER MASONS SEEK TO ADJUST DIFFERENCES

At a meeting of the Master Mason' Association last night a committee composed of B. F. Tallamy, chairman; William C. Smith and Albert Pangborne was appointed to meet with a committee from the Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' Union to see if some adjustment of the local friction between the two bodies cannot be brought about. The latter body will appoint a committee and the conference will be held at a date to be mutually decided upon.

The Master Masons' Association is said to be in favor of doing away with the existing agreement with the local union, and at a meeting of the joint arbitration board last Friday night the association requested the board to nullify the agreement. This the board refused to do. In some quarters it is charged that the master masons desire to declare "open shop." Many of the parties interested hope that the joint meeting will result in a plan for drawing up a new agreement whereby both sides will be satisfied.

Berlin (by wireless), July 13.—The following statement was given out at German headquarters today: "In the western theatre a French hand grenade attack on the sugar refinery at Souchez was repulsed yesterday. In connection with the storming and capture of the Souchez cemetery our positions have been pushed forward across the cemetery over a width of 600 yards. The Cabaret Rouge on the road to Arras was captured by us. Between the Meuse and Moselle the enemy devoloped lively artillery activity. He attacked our positions at Le Pretre forest four times in the course of the evening. His attacks broke down with heavy losses under our fire."

London, July 13.—The trawlers Merlin and Emerald, both of Lowestoft, were sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea on Monday. Their crews were landed at Lowestoft today.

The FORESTER'S DAUGHTER

A ROMANCE OF THE BEAR TOOTH RANGE

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

CHAPTER II.

"This is our ranch."

BEFORE Berea could reply a man's voice called, "Hello, there!" and a tall fellow stepped up to her with confident mien.

Norcross awkwardly shrank away. This was her cowboy lover, of course. It was impossible that so attractive a girl should be unattached, and the knowledge produced in him a faint but very definite pang of envy and regret.

The happy girl, even in the excitement of meeting her lover, did not forget the stranger. She gave him her hand in parting, and again he thrilled to its amazing power. It was small, but it was like a steel clamp. "Stop in on your way to Meeker's," she said, as a kindly man would have done. "You pass our gate. My father is Joseph McFarlane, the forest supervisor. Good night."

"Good night," he returned with sincere liking.

The hotel was hardly larger than the log shanty of a railway grading camp, but the meat was edible, and just outside the door roared Bear creek, which came down directly from Dome mountain, and the young easterner went to sleep beneath its singing that night. He should have dreamed of the happy mountain girl, but he did not. On the contrary, he imagined himself back at college in the midst of innumerable freshmen yelling: "Bill McCoy! Bill McCoy!"

He woke a little bewildered by his strange surroundings, and when he became aware of the cheap bed, the flimsy washstand, the ugly wall paper and thought how far he was from home and friends he not only sighed, he shivered. The room was chill, the pitcher of water cold almost to the freezing point, and his joints were stiff and painful from his ride. What folly to come so far into the wilderness at this time!

As the eastern youth crawled from his bed and looked from the window he was still further disheartened. In the foreground stood a half dozen frame buildings, graceless and cheap, without tree or shrub to give shadow or charm of line—all was bare, bleak, sere. But under his window the stream was singing its glorious mountain song, and away to the west rose the aspiring peaks from which it came. Romance brooded in that shadow, and on the lower foothills the frost touched foliage glowed like a mosaic of jewels.

Dressing hurriedly he went down to the small barroom, whose litter of duffle bags, guns, saddles and camp utensils gave evidence of the presence of many hunters and fishermen. The slovenly landlord was poring over a newspaper, while a discouraged half grown youth was sludging the floor with a mop. But a cheerful clamor from an open door at the back of the hall told that breakfast was on.

Venturing over the threshold, Norcross found himself seated at table with some five or six men in corduroy jackets and laced boots, who were, in fact, merchants and professional men from Denver and Pueblo out for fish and such game as the law allowed, and all in holiday mood. They joked the waiter girls and joshed one another in noisy good fellowship, ignoring the slim youth in English riding suit, who came in with an air of mingled melancholy and timidity and took a seat at the lower corner of the long table.

As he looked about the room the tourist's eye was attracted by four young fellows seated at a small table to his right. They wore rough shirts of an olive-green shade and their faces were wind scorched, but their voices held a pleasant tone, and something in the manner of the landlady toward them made them noticeable. Norcross later asked her who they were.

"They're forestry boys."

"Forestry boys?"

This information added to Norcross' interest and cheered him a little. He knew something of the United States forest service and had been told that many of the rangers were college men. He resolved to make their acquaintance. "If I'm to stay here they will help me endure the exile," he said.

After breakfast he went forth to find the postoffice, expecting a letter of instructions from Meeker. He found nothing of the sort, and this quite disconcerted him.

"The stage is gone," the postmistress told him, "and you can't get up till day after tomorrow. You might reach Meeker by using the government phone, however."

"Where will I find the government phone?"

"Down in the supervisor's office. They're very accommodating. They'll let you use it if you tell them who you want to reach."

It was impossible to miss the forestry building for the reason that a handsome flag fluttered above it. The door being open, Norcross perceived from the threshold a young clerk at work on a typewriter, while in a corner close by the window another and older man was working intently on a map.

"Is this the office of the forest supervisor?" asked the youth.

The man at the machine looked up and pleasantly answered: "It is, but the supervisor is not in yet. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"It may be you can. I am on my way to Meeker's mill for a little outing. Perhaps you could tell me where Meeker's mill is and how I can best get there."

The man at the map meditated. "It's not far, some eighteen or twenty miles, but it's over a pretty rough trail."

"What kind of a place is it?"

"Very charming. You'll like it. Real mountain country."

This officer was a plain featured man of about thirty-five, with keen and clear eyes. His voice, though strongly nasal, possessed a note of manly sincerity. As he studied his visitor he smiled.

"You look brand new. Haven't had time to season check, have you?"

"No. I'm a stranger in a strange land."

"Out for your health?"

"Yes. My name is Norcross. I'm just getting over a severe illness, and I'm up here to lay around and fish and recuperate—if I can."

"You can—you will. You can't help it," the other assured him. "Join one of our surveying crews for a week and I'll mellow that suit of yours and make a real mountaineer of you. I see you wear a Sigma Chi pin. What was your school?"

The other man displayed his fob. "I'm ten classes ahead of you. My name is Nash. I'm what they call an 'expert.' I'm up here doing some estimating and surveying for a big ditch they're putting in. I was rather in hopes you had come to join our ranks. We sons of Eli are holding the conservation fort these days, and we need help."

"My knowledge of your work is rather vague," admitted Norcross. "My father is in the lumber business, but his point of view isn't exactly yours."

"He slays 'em, does he?"

"He did. He helped devastate Michigan."

"After me the deluge! I know the kind. Why not make yourself a sort of vicarious atonement?"

Norcross smiled. "I had not thought of that. It would help some, wouldn't it?"

"It certainly would. There's no great money in the work, but it's about the most enlightened of all the governmental bureaus."

Norcross was strongly drawn to this forester, whose tone was that of a highly trained specialist. "I rode up on the stage yesterday with Miss Berrie McFarlane."

"The supervisor's daughter?"

"She seemed a fine western type."

"She's not a type; she's an individual. She hasn't her like anywhere I've gone. She cuts a wide swath up here. Being an only child, she's both son and daughter to McFarlane. She knows more about forestry than her father. In fact, half the time he depends on her judgment."

Norcross was interested, but did not want to take up valuable time. He said, "Will you let me use your telephone to Meeker's?"

"Very sorry, but our line is out of order. You'll have to wait a day or so, or use the mails. You're too late for today's stage, but it's only a short ride across."

As they were talking a girl came galloping up to the hitching post and slid from her horse. It was Berea McFarlane. "Good morning, Emery," she called to the surveyor. "Good morning," she nodded at Norcross. "How do you find yourself this morning?"

"Homesick," he replied smilingly.

"Why so?"

"I'm disappointed in the town."

Berrie looked round at the forlorn shops, the irregular sidewalks, the grassless yards. "It isn't very pretty, that's a fact, but you can always forget it by just looking up at the high country. When you going up to the mill?"

"I don't know. I haven't had any word from Meeker, and I can't reach him by telephone."

"I know. The line is short circuited somewhere. But they've sent a man out. He may close it any minute."

"Where's the supervisor?" asked Nash.

"He's gone over to Moore's cutting. How are you getting on with those plats?"

"Very well. I'll have 'em all in shape by Saturday."

"Come in and make yourself at home," said the girl to Norcross. "You'll find the papers two or three days old," she smiled. "We never know about anything here till other people have forgotten it."

Norcross followed her into the office, curious to know more about her. She was so changed from his previous conception of her that he was puzzled. She had the directness and the brevity of phrase of a business man as she opened letters and discussed their contents with the men.

"Truly she is different," thought Norcross, and yet she lost something by reason of the display of her proficiency as a clerk. "I wish she would leave business to some one else," he inwardly grumbled as he rose to go.

She looked up from her desk. "Come in again later. We may be able to reach the mill."

He thanked her and went back to his hotel, where he overhauled his outfit and wrote some letters. His disgust of the town was lessened by the presence of that handsome girl, and the hope that he might see her at luncheon made him impatient of the clock.

She did not appear in the dining room, and when Norcross inquired of Nash whether she took her meals at the hotel or not the expert replied: "No; she goes home. The ranch is only a few miles down the valley. Occasionally we invite her, but she don't think much of the cooking."

One of the young surveyors put in a word: "I shouldn't think she would. I'd ride ten miles any time to eat one of Mrs. McFarlane's dinners."

"Yes," agreed Nash, with a reflective look in his eyes. "She's a mighty fine girl, and I join the boys in wishing her better luck than marrying Cliff Belden."

"Is it settled that way?" asked Norcross.

"Yes. The supervisor warned us all, but even he never has any good words for Belden. He's a surly cuss and violently opposed to the service. His brother is one of the proprietors of the Meeker mill, and they have all tried to bulldoze Landon, our ranger over there. By the way, you'll like Landon. He's a Harvard man and a good ranger. His shack is only a half mile from Meeker's house. It's a pretty well known fact that Alec Belden is part proprietor of a saloon over there that worries the supervisor worse than anything. Cliff swears he's not connected with it, but he's more or less sympathetic with the crowd."

Norcross, already deeply interested in the present and future of a girl whom he had met for the first time only the day before, was quite ready to give up his trip to Meeker.

Early on the second morning he went to the postoffice—which was also the telephone station—to get a letter or message from Meeker. He found neither. But as he was standing in the door undecided about taking the stage Berea came into town riding a fine bay pony and leading a blaze faced buckskin behind her.

Her face shone cordially as she called out, "Well, how do you stack up this morning?"

"Tiptop," he answered, in an attempt to match her cheery greeting.

"Do you like our town better?"

"Anybody turned up from the mill?"

"No, I haven't heard a word from there. The telephone is still out of commission."

"They can't locate the break. Uncle Joe sent word by the stage driver asking us to keep an eye out for you and send you over. I've come to take you over myself."

"That's mighty good of you, but it's a good deal to ask."

"I want to see Uncle Joe on business, anyhow, and you'll like the ride better than the journey by stage."

Leaving the horses standing with their bridle reins hanging on the ground, she led the way to the office.

"When father comes in tell him where I've gone and send Mr. Norcross' packs by the first wagon."

"You'd better take my bay," said Berea. "Old Paintface there is little notional."

Norcross approached his mount with a caution which indicated that he had at least been instructed in range horse psychology, and as he gathered his reins together to mount, Berrie remarked:

"I hope you're saddle wise."

"I had a few lessons in a riding school," he replied modestly.

Young Downing approached the girl with a low voiced protest. "You oughtn't to ride old Paint. He nearly pitched the supervisor the other day."

"I'm not worried," she said and swung to her saddle.

The ugly beast made off in a tearing sidewise rush, but she smilingly called back, "All set." And Norcross followed her in high admiration.

Eventually she brought her broncho to subjection, and they trotted off together along the wagon road quite comfortably. By this time the youth had forgotten his depression, his homesickness of the morning. The valley was again enchanted ground.

After shacking along between some rather sorry fields of grain for a mile or two Berea swung into a side trail. "I want you to meet my mother," she said.

The grassy road led to a long, one story, half log, half slab house which stood on the bank of a small, swift, willow bordered stream.

The young easterner looked about in astonishment. Not a tree bigger than his thumb gave shade. The gate of the cattle corral stood but a few feet from the kitchen door, and rusty beef bones, bleaching skulls and scraps of sun dried hides littered the ground or hung upon the fence. Exteriorly the low cabin made a drab, depressing picture, but as he alighted, upon Berea's invitation, and entered the house he was met by a sweet faced, brown haired little woman, in a neat gown, whose bearing was not in the least awkward or embarrassed.

Mrs. McFarlane extended her small hand with friendly impulse. "I'm very glad to meet you, sir. Are you going to spend some time at the mill?"

"I don't know. I have a letter to Mr. Meeker from a friend of mine who hunted with him last year—a Mr. Sutler."

"Mr. Sutler! Oh, we know him very well. Won't you sit down?"

The interior of the house was not only well kept, but presented many evidences of refinement. A mechanical piano stood against the log wall, and books and magazines, dog eared with use, littered the table, and Norcross, feeling the force of Nash's half expressed criticism of his "superior," listened intently to Mrs. McFarlane's apologies for the condition of the farmyard.

"Well," said Berea sharply, "if we're to reach Uncle Joe's for dinner we'd better be scratching the hills." And to her mother she added, "I'll pull in about dark."

The mother offered no objection to her daughter's plan, and the young people rode off together directly toward the high peaks to the east.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Story of Rip Van Winkle's Little Boy.

"Who are you, little boy?" asked the funny old man.

"YOU have been told the story of Rip Van Winkle," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn. "It is a make believe story, of course, but a fascinating one. How Rip Van Winkle strayed up into the Catskill mountains, and heard what he thought was thunder, and it was instead the little white whiskered gnomes playing ninepins, and how they gave Rip some strange fluid to drink, and how he slept for twenty years, and how he came back to the village and nobody knew him. But did you ever hear the story of Rip Van Winkle's little boy, children?"

"No, daddy," they replied, "we never have."

"Well, I never have either," confessed daddy, "but I think we will make up one. Rip Van Winkle had not only one little boy, but several, the story says.

"Well, let's see. Oh, yes! After Rip Van Winkle had taken his dog and gun and wandered away into the mountains that day this little boy of his was quite lonesome. Several days passed, and then he made up his mind to go up into the mountains and find what had become of his daddy.

"So one afternoon he left home and wandered up into the mountains. He arrived there as night was falling, and he almost was afraid that he would be afraid. But he wasn't, because he was a very brave little boy.

"Then all of a sudden he heard a little squeaky voice addressing him among the growing forest shadows of the evening. And he looked under a big tree, and there was one of those funny little gnomes with a funny hat and white whiskers and queer Dutch clothing and many pairs of baggy trousers. A funny little ghost of one of the gallant Hendrik Hudson's crew he made, I assure you.

"'I'm Rip Van Winkle's little boy,' said the youngster, 'and I am looking for my father. He disappeared in these woods several days ago with his dog and gun, and I haven't seen him since.'

"Then the little old man looked grave and said: 'My boy, if I were you I would go back to my mamma. I can't tell you why, but you must not come any farther into these woods. You just go back and do the best you can, and some day your father will come back. Do as I tell you now.'

"And somehow that little boy didn't dare to do anything else. He just turned right around and hurried back home as fast as he could.

"Twenty years afterward his father came back to him. The little boy was then a grown man. He was very glad to see his father. And they used to sit and talk about their queer experiences with those funny little gnomes."

Because a third wife is unlucky in India, many men who have lost two wives marry a flower for the third and then find a real fourth wife, thus evading the hard luck that they believe is sure to come with the third.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Great excitement prevails," exclaimed Dick, waving his arms as he swung into the cozy living room, where sat Nell and Jo Parsons with their sewing.

"Divulge!" called Nell gleefully, for it was clear the news was good.

"Read that!" Dick tossed a bulky envelope into her lap.

"Allow me?" Nell smiled into her friend's face.

"Surely; I'm consumed with curiosity," answered Jo.

Both watched Nell as she read and only the ticking of the clock was heard in the still room. The puzzled look on her face only deepened as the minutes passed.

"I don't understand," she exclaimed at last, laying the letter in her lap; "tell us about it."

"Simply this." Dick drew up a chair and sat down. "The branch of mother's family living in Sweden has died out. The last member died 'without heirs of his body,' and the property reverts to the American heirs."

Nell cast a radiant glance at Jo.

"Go on," she commanded, for Dick had stopped.

"I stopped because I was through talking," laughed Dick.

"Never, young man! You are not through until you tell us how large the property is, and how many there are to inherit, and why they wrote to you, and——"

"One question at a time, please." Dick was fending with his hands as if to ward off an avalanch.

"Number one: I do not know the amount of the fortune. Secondly: There is a regular nest of mother's relatives who would come in for a share. As I understand it, all relatives, little and big, share alike—so two portions come here and only one to mother. Probably all have received a copy of this voluminous document. We can imagine that the numerous members of the Neuman family resemble a distributed ant hill this afternoon."

"I hope it's a big fortune," said Nell with shining eyes. "Tell us about the Swedish branch of the family."

"They have had the magnificent position of hereditary imperial bootjack to His Majesty, the King, since the days of Gustavus Adolphus. One after the other they have enjoyed the privilege of being kicked by one royal foot while they removed the boot from the other."

"I am afraid you have inherited monarchical leanings," laughed Mrs. Parsons.

"Oh, Dick, don't work your imagination overtime; I'm going to ask your mother; she'll tell me the truth about it," said Nell.

"Well, you asked me to tell you something about which I am ignorant. I had to draw on my imagination somewhat."

"When will we know about it?" Nell was laboriously reading the legal document which was all Greek to her, trying to get a scrap of information from the wealth of legal verbiage before her.

"Tradition sayeth not. I'll write to mother and see what she knows about it," said Dick.

"Ask them to come down. We haven't seen them for months, and it will be easy to get someone to care for the animals on the farm, I should think, and that is all there is to do in the winter."

"I'll try to get them here some way." Dick started toward the bedroom.

"Don't wake the baby," called Nell. "I just got him to sleep before you came in and he's so cross today."

"I hope you come in for a snug fortune, dear girl," said Jo when they were left alone.

"I can't believe it; it's too good to be true." Nell fluttered about the room too excited to resume her sewing.

"Mother Morton will be able to tell us what we want to know. You'll see her when she comes," she said as Jo rose to go.

Household Hints

WINDOW CLEANER

A reader says she has found that a bag filled with powdered pumice stone is an excellent window cleaner. She makes the bag of unbleached cotton cloth of a soft quality, not too firm. When finished the bag is six inches wide and twelve inches long. Into this she puts about one-eighth of a pound of the pumice stone. To prevent soiling this bag it is slipped into a cheesecloth case that can be removed and washed. No water is used on the window, but it is rubbed first with a piece of tissue paper, then polished with the bag.

GINGHAMS FOR CHILDREN

The new ginghams are great favorites for children's dresses. Plaids predominate. While the decided blue and white and the red and white are in evidence, black and white is very popular, partly due to the fact that this plaid launders well and is a dressy combination.

THE TABLE

Watercress Sandwiches — Some watercress, hard-boiled eggs, bread (rye preferred) and butter, juice of lemon. Wash well some watercress and then dry them in a cloth, pressing out every atom of moisture as far as possible; then mix with the cress hard-boiled eggs chopped fine and seasoned with salt and pepper. Have a stale loaf of bread (rye preferred) and some fresh butter, and with a sharp knife cut as many thin slices as will be required for two dozen sandwiches; then cut the cress into small pieces, removing the stems; place it between each slice of bread and butter, with a slight sprinkling of lemon juice; press down the slices hard and cut them sharply on a board into small squares, leaving no crust.

Spring Vegetable Soup—Half pint green peas, two shredded lettuces, one onion, a small bunch of parsley, two ounces butter, the yolks of three eggs, one pint of water, one and a half quarts of soup stock. Put in a stew pan with one pint of water and let them simmer till tender. Season with salt and pepper. When done strain off the vegetables and put two-thirds of the liquor with the stock. Beat up the yolks of the eggs with the other third, toss it over the fire and at the moment of serving add this with the vegetables to the strained-off soup.

Orange-Pine Marmalade — Six Florida oranges, three lemons, one medium-sized pineapple. Wash oranges and lemons, slice thin; peel and shred pineapple. To one pound of fruit add two pints of water, cook one hour and set aside until next day. Then cook until rind is tender; allow to cool. Add one pound of sugar to a pound of fruit and cook until of desired consistency.

Peas in Turnip Cups—Steam fine even sized turnips until tender, hollow out a small piece from the top of each to form cup. Season with salt and pepper. Have ready creamed peas—green or canned—and fill the opening with them. Serve hot. A sprinkling of chopped parsley over the peas and a spray of parsley on the serving dish adds to the appearance.

Neufchatel Salad—Place on a dish some crisp lettuce leaves, then grated cheese or slices, and over this chopped olives. At last comes a dressing of one teaspoon of vinegar, two teaspoons of olive oil, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, few grains of pepper and a few drops of lemon juice.

Cream Puffs—Melt four level tablespoons butter in one-half cup boiling water in a sauce pan, add one cup sifted flour, cook till mixture leaves sides of pan. Remove from fire, cool by beating. When cold beat in one at a time two unbeaten eggs. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet. Bake from 25 to 30 minutes. When cold split, fill. Filling: Mix four level tablespoons of cornstarch with four tablespoons of sugar. Pour into this stirring constantly one cup scalded milk. Cook in double boiler 20 minutes, add two egg yolks, cook till thickened, then add one teaspoon vanilla.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — MRS. SCOOP AND THE BOSS WILL BE WARM FRIENDS — BY "HOP"

APPEAL FOR FLOWER GUILD BY J. M. HARPER

The following poem relating to the work being done by the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild of this city has been composed by Joseph M. Harper, one of the officers of the Guild:

Did you ever think how many
Are lying on beds of pain,
Right here in your beautiful city,
Without proper attention
And very little to eat,
Living only to suffer,
With no one near to care?

Have you seen the women
Enter these cheerless rooms,
With a bunch of flowers, a little fruit,
Food or delicacies
And as they passed to the bedsides,
With words of comfort and cheer,
Have you seen their faces brighten?
For they felt that God was near.

This beautiful work of Jesus,
Is what we are here to do.
Will you give of your abundance
To help us carry it through?
If you cannot give of your substance,
You can always give yourself,
And remember that service rendered,
Is rendered to Christ Himself.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

St. Paul, July 13—Two thousand delegates, representing 800,000 members of the Woodmen of the World and its auxiliary, the Woodman Circle, are attending the biennial convention which opened here today. A long list of prominent speakers has been provided for the meetings, which will extend until July 24. Important by-laws are up for discussion, and great interest in the biennial is manifested in all sections of the country. Atlanta is making a bid for the next biennial, to be held in 1917, and the South is solid for bringing the big meeting to Atlanta.

Most men realize their responsibilities. They know that those whom they support in life must be supported when they are dead, and so they insure their lives. But in many cases they fail to provide for the investing and safeguarding of this insurance fund, with the result that it is often squandered or dissipated.

If you appoint The Plainfield Trust Company as Trustee under your will your insurance money will be invested according to law and your dependent ones will receive an assured income. We consider this matter so important that we have issued a booklet on the subject which will be sent you on request.

MANY ATTENDED LIVELY HEARING

Considerable Food For Thought Advanced Relative to Street Widening.

ONE SPEAKER IN FAVOR

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley Upholds the Petitioners Against Strong Opposition Advanced by C. Gloekler and Others.

Keen interest, interspersed with spirited and convincing arguments delivered by factional leaders, featured an enthusiastic public hearing relative to the proposed widening of Somerset street, from West Front street to the Green brook bridge, in the Common Council chambers last night. Held primarily for the purpose of ascertaining the status of public opinion regarding the expediency of the proposition, the meeting fully accomplished its aim and the councilmanic street committee was furnished with an abundance of food for thought in acting on the petition requesting it to reconsider the old plea for adding five feet to either side of this thoroughfare.

Councilman Francis J. Blatz, chairman of the street committee, presided at the session, and a representative number of councilmen, including Richard A. Claybrook, Charles C. Graves, Juan Babcock, Thomas Hylan, Archibald Cox and John H. Cose, were present. Mayor Leighton Calkins, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett were also interested visitors. Fifty citizens attended the hearing.

Participating in the debate that developed over the issue were former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, representing those who had petitioned for the improvement, and Attorney William Newcorn, Christian Gloekler and Herman Schwed upholding the opposite side. Remarks made by the speakers were pointed, and founded on facts that have recently been made public and upon matter that was brought to the attention of the Common Council when a similar proposition met defeat three years ago.

What was beyond a doubt the most impressive utterance against the improvement came from the lips of Christian Gloekler, one of the property-owners whose tract of land would probably come in for a large share of the widening work. During the course of his remarks the speaker told of the delayed action of the Council when the proposition was previously brought up, which eventually caused the United Cigar Store Company to turn back a lease calling for a twenty-one-year rental of the property for $4,500 a year from him. The "dilly-dallying" of the city fathers, according to Mr. Gloekler, so provoked the big concern at that time that they "threw up" the negotiations when they were nearing completion. Recently the same company entered into a three-year contract with Mr. Gloekler, at the same figure and he declared that "juggling" the proposition at the present time would without a doubt mean the permanent cancellation of negotiations with a firm that would be welcomed by any community of Plainfield's standing. The plans have been made for the lessee's building and the materials purchased, and a change in the curb line would seriously affect all of the present undertaking. Mr. Gloekler stated that John P. Homan, one of the signers of the petition requesting the Council to widen the thoroughfare, had since told him that "he was a fool to have done it" and that such work would be folly at the present time. Relating to the argument previously made by Mr. Smalley to the effect that the widening would increase property values, Mr. Gloekler told of an instance where a man purchased a store on Somerset street and rented it for $25 twenty-five years ago. Since the improvement has been made, according to Mr. Gloekler, he has been able to get but $12 for it. This contrast brought forth a round of applause from the "gallery" and Chairman Blatz was compelled to rap for order. Concluding his talk Mr. Gloekler said that he was not opposed to widening the street but that his present lease with the United Cigar Store Company called for the full amount of ground and if five feet were "chipped" off the lease would be void.

Mr. Smalley, who was Mayor of North Plainfield when the borough side of the thoroughfare was widened, referred to the objection that was launched against it at that time and told how certain of the most vigorous opponents of the improvement had since come to him and acknowledged the good it had wrought. He told how one man had since disposed of property for $83,000 which he purchased for $33,000 before the street was widened. He said in part:

"Plainfield is one of the 'toughest'

SEVERAL APPEAL FOR REDUCTION IN TAXES

Several property owners appeared before the Board of Assessors last night in the city building, to protest against the assessed valuation of their real estate, but in each case that was disposed of a satisfactory adjustment was arrived at. A full attendance of the assessors, including Henry Liefke, John McLaughlin, Thomas Hughes and DeWitt Ivins, heard the complaints.

Mrs. Annie Berkowitz, of East Fifth street, asked for a reduction in the assessed valuation of property located on West Third street and East Fifth street, but after considerable argument she admitted that the present figure was a fair one and the appeal was dismissed. The present valuation on one of her holdings made by the assessors is $3,500, while she admitted on examination that she would not sell it for $5,500 and that she carried a $3,700 mortgage on it.

John McIntyre protested against the figure placed by the assessors on his property on Park avenue. He promised to collect data and maps for presentation to the Board at tonight's session and his appeal was accordingly laid over until that time.

Claiming that he was discriminated against Richard Haden Hood, owner of "The Roses," at 541 Stelle avenue, appealed for a reduction and was granted it. He presented figures to uphold his contention, showing the property of apparently the same value on either side of him was assessed at a lower figure.

SUMMER ACTIVITIES IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Various Clubs and Organizations Complete Plans for the Season.

The various clubs and organizations which are using the school buildings of Plainfield as their meeting place have completed plans for the summer months. The Zephers are continuing to hold their meetings in the High School gym on Tuesday evenings. They are planning to give a play in the near future the proceeds of which are to further the work of the recreation committee. The Y. W. H. A. girls are planning to meet every other Tuesday in the High School instead of every week as in the winter. The Girls' Athletic Class is planning to hold an outdoor athletic meet at the end of the summer. The class will meet at the High School Gymnasium tonight to discuss arrangements.

The Washington Dramatic Club has decided to give a play early in the fall. Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth" and "Brown of Harvard" are both being considered. The municipal dances continues on Saturday evening at Washington School. The Dunbar dance will be conducted by the colored people as usual on Friday nights at the Washington School.

One of the most important summer activities under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee is the municipal music class. Piano instruction will be given at th eStillman School on Monday and Thursday mornings for the nominal fee of twenty-five cents. Splendid training is placed within reach of all. It is hoped that many will take advantage of this unusual opportunity. Those who apply first will be given preference.

On Wednesday afternoon a dancing class for children is being conducted at Stillman Schol Auditorium. The waltz, two step and one step are taught as well as folk dances.

MAN ARRESTED IN AMBOY FOR THE LOCAL POLICE

Arrested in Perth Amboy yesterday on a warrant sworn out by the local authorities charging him with a serious offense alleged to have been committed in Plainfield, Otto Fanniesenhauser was brought to Plainfield last night and will be arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court at 3 o'clock this afternoon. He is represented by Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Codington & Blatz.

The arrest of the Perth Amboy man culminates a week's hunt engaged in by Captain John J. Flynn and Lieut. Maurice Higgins. They have been watching the man's actions in backyards on West Front street and have received many complaints about him.

AUTHORIZE BOARD TO BORROW FUNDS

TO MAKE IMPROVEMENT

Only Fourteen Ballots Are Cast—Changes In Schools Will Be Made to Conform to the State Law—Work Now Underway.

The special election in North Plainfield school district last night, resulted in a unanimous vote authorizing the Board of Education to borrow on notes the $3,000 needed to complete work already started on the Somerset School, and to permit a slight expenditure for extras at the Harrison School, but only fourteen votes were cast. Either the threatening weather or a lack of interest in the election kept most of the people away. There was not a ballot cast against the proposition.

The ballots bore on their face in printed form two resolutions, and to vote on the proposition is was only necessary to deposit a ballot without any marks on it at all. Any one wishing to oppose the note issue had only to cancel the resolutions with pen or pencil before depositing the ballot.

Following are the two resolutions as they appeared on the ballots:

"Resolved, That for the purpose of securing the money needed to complete the re-modeling of the Somerset School building, the Board of Education be authorized to issue three notes of the district, in the corporate name of the district, in the denomination of one thousand dollars each.

"Resolved, That three notes of one thousand dollars each be issued, said notes shall be dated the first day of August, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and shall be payable as follows: One note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and sixteen, one note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and one note on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and eighteen."

The work on the Somerset School, for which the money is needed, was begun several days ago, contracts being signed, however, for amounts not exceeding $7,183.59, the sum of money in the hands of the Board. It was estimated that about $3,000 more would be needed to finish the work necessary to make the Somerset School conform in all respects with the provisions of the new school law. The extra expenditures on the Harrison School will be for grading, etc. It is expected that the Board of Education will now proceed to award minor contracts for the improvements on the Somerset School, such as painting, tinning and electric wiring. The notes will be drawn for one, two and three years, and will be discounted in a local bank, which has agreed to loan money to the North Plainfield Board of Education at the rate of five per cent.

Dr. Justus H. Cooley, president of the Board, presided at the election last night. Frank Rowley, clerk of the Board, was clerk of the election. The tellers were William P. Taylor and Warren Townley. The polls opened at a few minutes after 8 o'clock, and closed in just one hour, after it was apparent to the presiding officer that there was no one else desiring to vote.

It did not take long to count the fourteen votes nor to fill out the tally sheet and get it signed. The election was then declared adjourned.

WILL TAKE EXAMINATION FOR UNDERTAKER'S LICENSE

John F. Martin, secretary of the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, has announced that applicants for undertakers' licenses will be examined at the courthouse in Newark, tomorrow. The morning session will be taken up with the theoretical side of embalming and in the afternoon the candidates will visit a morgue where practical demonstrations of their knowledge will be given. Among the candidates from various parts of the State is William Headley, of this city.

BETHEL CHAPEL PRIVILEGE.

Arrangements have been made by Mayor Hetrick, of Asbury Park, for the delegation from the Bethel chapel which will go to the shore on the Presbyterian excursion from this city tomorrow, to enjoy the bathing at the foot of Wesley Lake, south of the Casino.

A Waist Free.

The Manhattan Dress and Waist Co., 178 East Front street, will give a beautiful 98-cent waist free to anyone that makes a purchase of two different priced waists. This offer is only good from July 15 to 25, inclusive.—Adv. ***

LAW FOR BOTTLERS IS NOW IN EFFECT

"Soft Drink" Establishments Must Comply With Pure Food Act.

In compliance with the law passed by the State Legislature last winter which became effective July 1, demanding that bottlers of non-alcoholic beverages, often referred to as "soft drinks," comply with the requirements of the pure food law the same as bottlers of alcoholic beverages, Health Officer James L. Oliff, of North Plainfield, visited the various bottling establishments in the borough yesterday.

Mr. Oliff carried with him a copy of the law and made its contents known to the proprietors of the three bottling establishments of this nature doing business in North Plainfield, at the same time examining the premises to discover in what ways they would have to alter their establishments in order to comply with the act.

His report will be sent to Trenton, and after a certain interval has elapsed another inspection will be made. If the changes required have not been made by that time the offenders will be liable to a fine of fifty dollars for the first offense; one hundred dollars for the second, and two hundred dollars for the third.

Mr. Oliff said that the North Plainfield bottlers will need to make very few changes in their buildings or the conduct of their business to meet all the requirements of the act. The principal fault found yesterday was the absence of screens in the buildings. The law specifies that such places must be screened from April 1 to October 1, and when the bottlers have complied with that provision, they will have made their establishments comply with the law in almost every particular.

ADJUST HITCH IN TRANSFER OF HOTEL KENSINGTON LEASE

When the Common Council holds its adjourned session next Tuesday night it is expected that the matter of transferring the liquor license held by the present management of the Kensington Hotel to John Sullivan, of New York, who recently made application for it, will be authorized. The application for such a transfer was made to the Council several weeks ago, but the hitch that developed in the transfer of the lease from William Kitchen, the present manager, to Mr. Sullivan, caused a delay.

The matter has now been satisfactorily adjusted between Harry Campbell, the owner of the North avenue hostelry, and the present lessee, and the road is now clear to complete the negotiation. Mr. Sullivan is awaiting the transfer before taking possession.

OUT OF WORK, HE STOLE LUMBER TO PATCH ROOF

Ray Lines, of South Second street, was arraigned in the city police court this morning, on a complaint sworn out by Theodore Zeller, who charges him with stealing a quantity of lumber from a house in the course of erection on South Second street. Lines admitted taking a part of the lumber and said he wanted it to patch up the holes in the roof of his chicken house.

He pleaded with Judge DeMeza for another chance, stating that he had been out of work for some time and that his family was in bad straits. The city judge took the matter under advisement until tomorrow morning, and in the meantime Lines was committed to a cell.

REFUSED TO ACCEPT FARE; LOCAL HACKMAN ARRESTED

Charged with refusing to accept a fare at the North Avenue station during the rainstorm last evening, John H. Barry, a cab driver, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, and upon his request to have the hearing postponed in order to allow him to get a witness, the matter was adjourned until Friday morning. Patrons of the hacking stand at the North Avenue station have made numerous complaints to Chief Kiely regarding the conduct of certain drivers recently but up to the present time the police department has not been able to get one of the complainants to press the charge.

Especially during rainstorms and busy times at the depot has the practice of refusing a single patron for a pair been noticeable recently at this point and many citizens have been caused no little amount of inconvenience and embarrassment.

BAR ASSOCIATION PLANS A REVIVAL

W. A. Coddington Elected President and Advocates a "Live" Policy.

WILL MEET MONTHLY

Quarterly Dinners to Be a Feature—Last Session Was Held in 1910—New Chairman Names Committees.

More enthusiasm was in evidence at the meeting of the Plainfield Bar Association in the District Court rooms this morning than has been shown at any previous business session since the association was incorporated in 1894. The rejuvenation of the body from a practically "dead" issue to one that will be the moving spirit of the community's legal affairs, was the keynote of the policy outlined by William A. Coddington, following his election to the presidency to succeed Samuel S. Swackhamer. Among other things Mr. Coddington declared that monthly meetings would hereafter be held and quarterly dinners would be a feature of the organization's work. Some idea of the inactivity of the Bar Association in recent years may be gained from the fact that the last regular meeting was held July 7, 1910, at which time the last set of officers was elected.

This morning the following officers were elected: President, William A. Coddington; vice-president, Walter L. Hetfield; secretary, V. W. Nash, Jr.; treasurer, Asa F. Randolph. Mr. Randolph was the only officer re-elected. Judge Coddington immediately assumed the presiding officer's chair, which up to this time had been occupied by Mr. Swackhammer. In his speech of thanks the new chairman urged that a spirit of fraternalism envelope the organization in the future and that all traces of existing jealously be cast aside. He pleaded with the members to stand together and to come to each other's rescue whenever called upon. The policy outlined by Mr. Coddington for the future of the body was one that will serve to inject new life and the twenty-two members present were enthusiastic over the proposition of entering upon active organized work.

President Coddington began this morning to effect a reorganization by appointing a committee to revise the by-laws which will consist of William G. DeMeza, Winfield S. Angleman and Harry C. Suydam. He will later name committees to look after the other interests, including dinners and the compiling of papers to be read at special functions. It is proposed to make the banquet of the legal profession in Plainfield instructive as well as a social gathering and among other things of interest the association will engage good speakers and have pertinent topics discussed.

A letter was received from Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who is a member of the association, thanking the body for its recent words of condolence at the time of the death of his father and for the floral remembrances.

Judge Walter L. Hetfield, who headed the Bar Association's committee to consult with the Public Library Board relative to having the library recently left to it by Craig A. Marsh, removed to the District Court building, reported that his committee had met with the library directors and that some action could be expected in the near future. The library board appointed William M. Stillman and Frank Holt to confer with the lawyers relative to the matter and these two bodies will get together in the course of the next few weeks. The association adjourned to meet the second Wednesday in September.

HIT BY AUTOMOBILE.

While attempting to cross the street at the Watchung avenue bridge, last night, to catch the 9:27 train, Phillip Ruchamkin, of 1762 Park place, Brooklyn, was run down by an automobile driven by William Ford, of Newark. The injured man was rushed to the hospital by Ford, where an examination showed that the man suffered from wounds about the chest. He was reported resting comfortably this morning.

OWNERSHIP OF RING DECIDED BY COURT

Mrs. Stephen Galloway Recovers Property Lost Many Years Ago.

Justice T. H. Snape, of North Plainfield, has just rendered a decision in an interesting case tried before him last month in which the ownership of a ring was involved. The justice found for the plaintiff and has already put her in possession of the ring, which was placed in his keeping on the day of the trial.

The parties are Mrs. Stephen Galloway, of Harmony street, the complainant, and Mrs. Robert J. Wood, of Washington avenue, the defendant. The ring in question was a gold one, set with four pearls and a ruby, of small money value, but dear to the original owner through its associations. Mrs. Galloway, in her testimony, declared that she had lost the ring several years ago and did not see it again until one day recently when Mrs. Wood, who is a friend of hers, visited her. Mrs. Galloway claimed that she saw her long lost ring upon Mrs. Wood's finger. A demand was made upon Mrs. Wood for the ring at that time. It was alleged in the trial of the case, but Mrs. Wood refused to give it up, claiming that her son, Roy Wood, had found it and given it to her. It was to settle the ownership of the ring after the lapse of so many years that the suit was brought.

At the trial, Mrs. Galloway claimed to identify the ring through two markings on it, one of which proved to be there when it was examined by the court. The other mark, a jeweler who looked it over said, might have been erased by time. Convinced that the ring was Mrs. Galloway's, Justice Snape decided the case yesterday in favor of the complainant.

TALK OF DISTRICT COURT IN BOROUGH

Movement for Such a Tribunal in North Plainfield Being Revived.

Talk of the establishment of a District Court in North Plainfield is being revived. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., is in favor of some arrangement by which litigants in the borough would not be compelled to go to Somerville to try their cases, and expressed himself this morning as willing to lend his influence to either of two plans by which a District Court could sit in the borough.

A plan was on foot some time ago to have the judge of the District Court at Somerville, visit North Plainfield for the trial of cases once every two weeks, but after much discussion of the plan from all sides it was quietly dropped. This plan would entail an additional expense on the borough of about $400, it was said. The judge would have to be paid an additional stipend and there would have to be a court clerk whose duties would be confined to cases brought into the North Plainfield court. It was declared that the fees paid into the court would not cover the cost of having the court sit there.

The plan being talked of now is one that could be carried out through a law passed by the State Legislature some time ago which would permit the borough recorder to try civil cases in which the sum involved did not amount to over $100. In this case the borough recorder would have to be a lawyer instead of a layman, as is allowable now, and his salary would be $500 a year instead of $200. He would act as his own clerk, and it is said by those fathering the movement that the fees paid into the court would amount to at least $300 a year, enough to meet the added cost, and that the saving of time to litigants would be of greater importance to the people.

Mayor Clark is taking no active part in the movement, but would like to see a District Court established in North Plainfield where residents of the borough and the surrounding country could come with their legal business.

USED BAD LANGUAGE.

The warm weather or too much strong drink caused two North Plainfield men to grow garrulous yesterday and as a result both were arrested and haled before Recorder Hand this morning, charged with using vile and abusive language. The prisoners were Richard Perrine, forty years, old, of Harmony street, and John Baetty, of 18 Regent street. Mrs. William Minerd, of 33 Harmony street, was the complainant in the first case, and Mrs. John Marcaciano, of 16 Regent street, in the second. Both prisoners were allowed to go with a reprimand.

BRITISH TROOPS HOLD TRENCHES

Germans Fail to Retake Positions Lost by Them Earlier in Month.

GAIN AT DARDANELLES

"In Belgium after the bombardment reported in the communique of last night, the Germans attacked the trenches taken by the British troops southwest of Pilken on the night of July 5 and 6, on the east bank of the canal. They were repulsed.

"In the region to north of Arras there occurred during the night only some fights with grenades from trench to trench. Arras and Soissons were bombarded with shells of large calibre.

"In the Argonne the German attacks concentrated between Marie Therese and Haute Chavauchee were definitely checked."

Another attempt by that part of the German forces led by the Crown Prince to break through the centre of the French line in the neighborhood of Verdun has been checked and hurled back on its original position.

On the remainder of the front from the sea to Switzerland there was little but artillery combats yesterday. The Germans, stopped with heavy loss at the "Labyrinth" north of Arras, confined their activities to a heavy bombardment in the course of which more damage was done in Arras itself. The Belgian- British positions in Flanders were also bombarded with gas bombs.

The Argonne battle was as fierce as any that has been fought in this section heretofore. A terrific rain of shells accompanied by asphyxiating bombs was first directed on the French position along the Binarville-Viennele-Chateau road. The Crown Prince and his generals then sent in a large force of infantry, who charged with such force that the French gave way. Immediate counter attacks caught the Germans before they had made good their foothold and the enemy was thrown back on his original position.

Off to the southeast, in the region between Fay-en-Haye and Le Pretre wood there were some slight gains made by the French in hand grenade encounters.

Mitylene, via Athens, July 14.—Two important heights on the Gallipolia Peninsula, dominating the Turkish positions at Krithia, have been captured by the Allies, according to reports received here. The British and French lines have now been joined, Krithia being under two fires.

"On Tuesday morning a flotilla of aeroplanes from a height of 600 metres bombarded a large Austrian encampment around Gorizia. Otherwise the situation is unchanged."

Zurich, July 14.—German troops are concentrating near Thorn and serious fighting is anticipated in northern Poland. The transfer of German troops to the western front is reported to have been practically completed.

London, July 14.—Under steady Russian pressure the Austrians under Archduke Joseph Ferdinand south of Lublin are flowing back into Galicia. In their retreat they have been pushed almost to the Wyznica River, according to despatches from Petrograd. The sole hope of the Austrians lies in Gen. von Mackensen's picked divisions, who are still undefeated, though halted, to the east of the receding Austrians.

According to Russian military critics it would be folly, to allow the Austrians to entice them back into Galicia while von Mackensen remains undisposed. At the present stage of operations, pending the rearrangement of the Teutonic line, the Russians will probably content themselves with reoccupying their old positions north of the Urzendowka River.

Washington, July 14.—Unwilling that the country should receive the impression that the international situation is not grave, President Wilson announces that he is giving the closest attention to the crisis with Germany and that the next step will be made public as soon as possible.

The President says that as soon as he and Secretary of State Lansing have consulted he will take up the matter with the Cabinet. Meanwhile

SEWER WORK IS WELL UNDERWAY

With the final half of the borough sewer work well under way and the sanitary sewer system an assured fact, local people have finally awakened from their lethargy and are growing inquisitive about the details of this, the largest and by far the most important project undertaken by this hustling borough. The total cost of the sewer as originally estimated is $140,000, of which $110,000 represents the portion of the system laid in the borough and known as the collecting system and the balance of $30,000 represents the borough's share of the joint or outfall sewer, being 7 per cent. of the total cost of said joint sewer.

Dunellen's share of the joint sewer, namely $30,000, is to be raised by bonds of which $20,000 bearing 4½ per cent. interest are now outstanding and the remaining $10,000 are about to be advertised for sale.

Of the estimated cost of $110,000 for the collecting system, $55,000 is covered by the proceeds realized from the sale of 5 per cent. bonds and the balance is to be paid by a direct assessment against the property.

It is impossible to state definitely until the sewer is finally completed the rate per frontage foot of the direct tax, the reason being that the direct assessment represents the difference between the $55,000 raised by the above sale of bonds and the total cost of the collecting system. And said total cost is not ascertainable until the work is completed.

While $110,000 was originally estimated as the cost of the collecting system it is now thought that the cost will not exceed $100,000 thus leaving $45,000 to be raised by direct assessment.

It is figured that although fourteen miles of sewer are to be laid in the borough there are but seven miles of frontage subject to direct assessment, the remaining seven miles representing the portion of corner lots which abut on side streets and the street junctions. Thus the seven assessable miles of frontage must be taxed at about sixty cents per foot in order to cover the balance of $45,000.

In addition to this direct assessment each property-owner must pay the cost of making the connection from the main sewer pipe in the center of the road to his curb line, a distance of about twenty feet at a charge of fifty-five cents a foot or $11 for the connection. Thus a person owning a lot with a frontage of fifty feet, whether on corner or not, must pay a direct assessment of sixty cents per foot or $30 and an additional assessment of $11, to cover the curb connection, making in all $41.

It is thought that five years will be given the property-owners in which to pay this assessment which will therefore be at the rate of $8 per year in addition to the regular taxes. Those taking advantage of this five-year option will, of course, be charged interest at the rate of 5 per cent. or 6 per cent. on their unpaid balance.

The property-owner will also be compelled to connect his house with the curb, but this is a matter with which the borough has no concern. It might be stated that local contractors are of the opinion that the price of fifty cents per foot quoted by the sewer contractors for running the pipe from the curb to the house is exherbitant.

The direct assessment will not be levied this year, but the tax rate will nevertheless jump at least fifty points due largely to the amount required to be raised for the payment of the interest on the outstanding bonds. The assessable valuation will probably remain about the same.

DR. HUSSEY GIVES TALK ON "SUFFRAGE"

The first meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Dunellen and New Market to be conducted since its organization meeting was held yesterday afternoon, at the home of Miss Grace D. Parker, the first vice president, on Second street. In spite of the weather the meeting was very well attended. Mrs. D. W. C. Ramsey, the president, presided. Enthusiasm over the cause which they are espousing and the progress made to date prevailed among the members throughout.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. Mary D. Hussey, of East Orange. Mrs. Hussey has been engaged in Woman Suffrage work for forty-eight years or almost since the commencing of the movement. Mrs. Hussey knows all of the leading women of the country connected with the movement. She has been working with Miss Jane Addams in connection with the Woman's Peace movement. Miss Addams just returned from visiting the rules of Europe in connection with that movement and she is one of the most prominent women in the public eye today.

Mrs. Hussey spoke on "The Pioneer Work of the Woman Suffrage Movement." In concluding her talk, which held the attention of the recruits, who were eager and thirsty for a history of the early days of the movement, which they have so lately swelled, riveted throughout. Mrs. Hussey asked for co-operation for the further progress of the movement, stating that co-operation is necessary even for the success of so worthy and noble a cause. Her final words to the members of the local league were: "The survival of the fittest is not the survival of the strong, democratic ideals rule."

The enrollment committee, of which Miss Grace D. Parker is chairman, announced a future canvass of Dunellen and New Market to find out the number of men voters of these municipalities who intend to vote for the Woman Suffrage amendment to the Constitution of this State on October 19. The members of this committee besides the chairman are Miss May Day, Miss Beatrice Cameron, Miss Luella Stryker, Mrs. Earl Westcott and Mrs. Arthur F. Conant.

The women of this committee will commence the canvass next week. They will carry yellow slips which they will present to each voter to sign. The committee will in their canvass also carry white slips which will be submitted to the women of the two municipalities for them to register whether they want the privilege of suffrage or not. The local league is positive that the majority of the women of Dunellen and New Market do and they want to say to the voters after the canvass there are so many of the women in these two municipalities who want the privilege of suffrage.

The outcome of the straw vote is being looked forward to with considerable interest. In votes of this kind in other places the majority of the men have registered neutral votes.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, was present at the meeting. Following the business of the afternoon a social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served.

The next meeting of the league will be held at the home of Mrs. Conant at 104 Washington avenue at 3 p. m. on Tuesday, July 20. A cordial invitation is extended to all women to attend. The "Proof of the Pudding," the mystery which is commencing to get the curiosity of the Dunellen and New Market voters aroused, will be put in what is called action at this meeting. That's the way it was told to a reporter at any rate—"put in action."

TAX RATE INCREASE.

The municipal improvements completed and underway in the borough will result in an increase of at least 52 points in the tax rate of this year, according to a statement made by Assessor John H. L. Peters to a reporter last evening. Last year the rate was $2.48 and this year it will be at least $3.00, Mr. Peters state. Asked whether the valuations would also go up Mr. Peters said, "That there would be no general increase."

PUMPING STATION.

Borough Engineer Churchill and force has staked out the pumping station of the borough's collecting sewerage system to be erected on the lot just east of Washington avenue and south of Sixth street, which this municipality recently purchased from Edward Maurer. The purchase price of the lot was $400.

Mrs. Anna Way, who has been ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eric Benson, since Saturday, is reported as improving.

Miss Jacinthia Frescoln, of New Market road, resumed her duties in the local library last evening after a visit since Friday in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Lewis D. Walker, of New Market road, is reported as getting along nicely following an operation in Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, Saturday, for an old complaint.

BACHELORS VS. BENEDICTS.

Scout Commissioner Edward J. Dusel is arranging a game of baseball to be played between the married and single men of the borough on Maurer Oval soon. The game will be played for the benefit of the Boy Scouts. The commissioner has succeeded in arousing considerable interest over the affair and the match is being looked forward to with much anticipation. The prospective lineups will be announced later. Mayor E. B. Latham will probably umpire the game.

Mrs. Lydia Vail, of Lincoln avenue, entertained Miss Gladys Richardson, of Mountville, Pa., and Miss Elsie Bell, of Hasbrouck Heights, over the week-end.

Albert Biernbrauer and family, of Lincoln avenue, will move to Hartford, Conn., on Saturday, where he has received a lucrative offer from a plant engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war.

Madison Vail, son of Mrs. Lydia Vail, of Lincoln avenue, leaves the latter part of the week for Mountville, Pa., where he will spend the remainder of the summer in visiting his uncle, George Richardson, who formerly resided here.

ANOTHER CYCLE STOLEN.

Thieves stole a 1914 model motorcycle belonging to Paul Meyers, of this place, sometime between Monday night and early yesterday morning. The machine was taken from its shed in the rear of Mr. Meyers' home. This makes the second motorcycle that has been stolen in this village inside of three months. On April 16 thieves broke into the basement of Robert Schworer's home and made away with his cycle. On the same night thieves also attempted to steal Walter Penrose's machine. They broke in Mr. Penrose's barn but could not make the machine work.

'Plains & Fanwood.

While walking through the woods just off LaGrande avenue, in the borough, Monday afternoon, Tony Golletto, a plumber in the employ of S. P. MacCauley, found a bicycle. It was an expensive model and was evidently new when left half covered with underbrush as the tires were not at all worn. The frame was somewhat rusted from the rain and the rear wheel broken where some woodman's cart or other vehicle had run over it unnoticed. He took it to Recorder Sheelen, who in turn notified the police of the surrounding towns. Nothing being learned as to the owner, Recorder Sheelen allowed Golletto to take the machine home yesterday afternoon to keep unless the owner should make his appearance later. The supposition is that some one stole the wheel and was later afraid of being found out and left it there.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen has notified three borough residents, who are the only remaining 1915 tax delinquents in the town limits, that they have three more weeks in which to settle up. In the sixteen years that he has held the office he has not had to hold a tax sale, but this year has been the hardest to keep his record of any preceding one, probably on account of the war. In the past month he has reduced the amount owed the borough in taxes by more than three quarters.

Work on School No. 2 in the Graceland section of the township has progressed so far that Tony Alberts, of the 'Plains, has been able to start on the carpenter work, his part of the general contract, and things are due to move along faster than heretofore with Tony connected with them. William H. Dennick, of Plainfield, who is the general contractor, must have the building completed by September 1 so as to give the Board of Education time to equip it for the opening of the school term.

Two baseball teams, composed of the boys of the 'Plains and borough, will meet on the Park avenue diamond Saturday afternoon in what will probably be the first of three games for the "championship" of the two places.

The members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church and their friends are planning for a picnic on Saturday unless bad weather intervenes. It will be held somewhere along the foot of the mountain, the place to be decided before Friday. The spot selected will be lighted for the evening and a committee is arranging for a general good time.

Mrs. George Palmer, of Grand street, is entertaining her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Schussler and husband, of Brooklyn.

Noel Morris, a brother of Mrs. Robert Thrane, is now engaged in fighting somewhere on the continent for England. Mr. Morris has been on several visits to his sister, who lives in the borough, and earlier in the spring joined Kitchener's army, being the last of three brothers that have enlisted. Nothing has been heard lately of Max Saunders, but from last reports he was serving as an officer on one of the King's battleships. He is the son of Captain and Mrs. S. B. Saunders, of "Wildwood," and previous to the war was chief engineer on one of the transatlantic liners.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rinehart, of Grand street, are spending their vacation at Lake Hopatcong. Mr. and Mrs. James Kaufman and daughter, of North avenue, have returned from a sojourn at that fresh water resort. The up-State watering place continues to be a favorite with the majority of the local people, who go away during the summer, the same as last year.

Mrs. James O'Keefe, of Westfield avenue, has returned from a vacation spent at South Beach.

Mrs. C. I. Hall and daughter, of South avenue, are spending several days at the seashore.

It is expected that within the next week or ten days that the borough street department will start work on the macadamizing of Farley avenue from where the present macadam ends to the borough line, a distance of some twenty-five hundred feet. When completed it will mark nearly a mile of macadam that has been added to borough streets in a year.

The Mt. Pleasant Social Club will present a three-act play at the Baptist church tomorrow evening. This play, entitled, "Too Many Husbands," has been given in several places by the club.

The Baptist Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove will go on July 29. Buses will leave the church.

Frederick Teeple, who has been detained from his work for the past few weeks owing to an attack of malaria, resumed his duties at Spicer's last evening.

On account of increased business and an overrush of work the Spicer Manufacturing Company has been obliged to put on an extra force of drop forgers, helpers and press hands at night. This means that there are between 50 and 75 extra men working in the plant since last week, and at least 25 new men living in the town. Spicer's are also erecting two large additions on the side of the plant and at present things look very prosperous and booming for South Plainfield.

John McDonough, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Galligan, who had his thumb on the right hand very badly cut about two weeks ago, reports that his thumb is rapidly healing and he expects to resume his work in Spicer's in a few weeks. Mr. McDonough is still under the care of Dr. Pittis, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ritter are entertaining friends from Mauch Chunk for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Horan and children, Rose and Elizabeth, have returned from a few days' visit with Mr. Horan's father, John Horan, of Highland Park.

Mrs. William Waldron and children, of Stelton, have returned from a visit with friends here.

Miss Marjorie Voorhees, of Asbury Park, is spending the summer months with her aunt, Miss Emma Manning.

The monthly meeting of the United Association of Drop Forgers, Dye Sinkers and Trimmer Makers, of this place, will be held in Washington Hall tonight.

MANY ATTEND HEARING

cities in the East to have an improvement made in. The fact that the citizens fail to look far enough into the future to see the good that will eventually come is a disgrace to the municipality. The general impression among those whose properties are affected by the widening is that they are going to be robbed of land. In the past twenty years every official in charge of Plainfield's government has been delinquent in his duties as far as attending to street widenings is concerned. Plainfield has not done much for North Plainfield in opening streets, but the borough has done a lot for this city. It was due almost entirely to administrations on the other side of the brook that Madison avenue and Watchung avenue were improved."

Mr. Newcorn, who represented numerous prominent business men, presented a petition singling out three reasons why the street should not be widened. They were: (1), that it is unnecessary; (2), that it would be a waste of public money; (3), that it will not result in any benefits. He presented figures to show that the total assessed valuation of properties owned by those individuals opposing the improvement amounted to $1,356,550.

The congestion at this point, according to Mr. Newcorn, is due entirely to the fact that the Public Service Corporation is using it for a trolley terminal. Referring to Mr. Smalley's remarks he said that they came from one having merely an individual interest and one who did not have to dig down into his pocket for funds to finance it. Continuing he said: "All public improvements should be created when there is a popular demand for them, but the prominence of the men who oppose the present agitation indicates that the present movement is far from popular. By actual measurement Park avenue is twenty-seven feet six inches in width; Front street at the juncture of Somerset is forty feet wide, and Somerset street is thirty-four feet wide on this side of the brook. On the North Plainfield side, where it has been widened, the thoroughfare is thirty-seven feet eight inches in width, or only a difference of three feet eight inches. Ten feet more would mean a width of fourty-four feet or one that would be four feet wider than Front street, a thoroughfare that is recognized as the busiest in Plainfield. The old objection to the widening was that there was a saloon on the corner. There has been no saloon there for the past three years, but just as many people congregate at the juncture and will continue to congregate there until the Public Service finds another place for its terminal. The trolley company has two transfer stations at the present time and it is reasonable to believe that one would fill the need.

"The remedy for doing away with the congestion at this point comes not in widening the street, but in doing away with the P. S. C. terminal. The thoroughfare in its present condition is wide enough to handle all traffic that goes through it but the bulk of the traffic will continue to use Watchung and Madison avenues as long as the trolleys transfer here."

Herman Schwed, one of the property-owners affected said: "There never was any business on Somerset street and there never will be any. I have been here for thirty years and there isn't as much business on this street today as there was before it was widened."

In rebuttal Mayor Smalley took objection to Mr. Newcorn's remarks classing his interest as a personal one and to explode the theory he offered to be one of the twenty men last night to finance the whole undertaking. His offer went unchallenged. He declared:

"What I think, I say; what I say, I believe; and no set of men can sway me from my honest convictions. Whether or not you widen the street the cars will continue to use it and at some future time it may be expected that the lines will be running more than one car along the thoroughfare."

Included in the long list of objectors to the proposition were the following: George Finger, Herman Schwed, Christian Gloekler, Emanuel and William Schloss, Edward Laing, Leo Slonim, Harry Dreier, Morris Abrams, Jacob Fass, Samuel Rothberg, S. S. Kresge, James C. Hansen, Kalman Rothberg, Theodore Mantz, Hyman Adelberg, William H. Abbott, George Voehl, Peter Hodge, City National Bank, Dime Savings Bank, estate of Joseph Coward, Andrew Love, William Schorb, Lamar VanSyckle, Boice, Runyon Company and H. P. Greenwood.

FREEHOLDERS' ASS'N TO MEET AT ATLANTIC CITY

State House, Trenton, July 14.—The State Association of Boards of Freeholders met at the State House, Monday, and decided to hold its annual convention in Atlantic City on Saturday, September 4. Efforts will be made at the convention to strengthen the association and make it a power in the State in connection with Freeholder matters. The attendance Monday was small. Joseph R. Thatcher, of Warren county, is president, and was in charge Monday. Freeholder P. H. Meisel, of Union county, was present.

SALOONLESS NATION AND PEACE IN EUROPE URGED

Chicago, July 14—Resolutions demanding that all church workers unite to procure a saloonless United States of America and also peace in Europe were adopted by the world's Christian Endeavor convention at its final session here Sunday night.

Representatives of fourteen foreign countries, including delegates from five of the warring world powers, expounded Christianity and world peace from the same platform.

"Jerusalem" was sung Sunday evening by a chorus of more than one thousand voices.

Memorial services for deceased members of the board of trustees and field workers and the closing message by Daniel A. Poling, acting president, completed the 1915 convention.

Yesterday's program opened with an immense consecration meeting in the Coliseum, with Vice-President Rev. Howard B. Grose presiding. Various phases of Christian Endeavor activity were discussed at the sessions yesterday morning. John T. Sproull, of New Jersey, spoke upon "Our Veterans."

The New Jersey delegates will start leaving for home today. Those who are making the trip by boat will leave tomorrow.

WANTS BOARD INDICTED, INCLUDING LOCAL DOCTOR

The New Jersey State Osteopathic Association, of which Dr. Andrew Victory, of Trenton, is president, expects to ask Prosecutor Devlin, of Mercer county, to take steps for the indictment of the State Board of Medical Examiners. Dr. Frederick W. Collins, of Newark, president of the State association, alleges discrimination against members of his organization who have applied for licenses. He characterizes the American Osteopathic Society as the "Osteopathic Trust," and asserts that it is opposing any but its own members from procuring licenses.

The State Board of Medical Examiners comprises ten leading physicians of the State. Dr. F. William Cornwell, of this city, is a member. Dr. Henry G. Norton, of Trenton, the secretary, declared yesterday that there were a number of osteopaths who had sought licenses and had not yet received them. Questioned particularly about the New Jersey College of Osteopathy, graduates of which comprise the State Osteopathic Association, Dr. Norton said he did not believe any of its graduates had received licenses.

The Board is investigating, he said, whether or not the alleged graduates got their diplomas by personal attention at the school or purchased them. The Board must also ascertain, he said, if they were residents of New Jersey for a year prior to 1913.

TYPHOID FEVER IS PREVENTABLE

Improved Sanitary Conditions Have Lessened Spread of Disease.

PLAN OF EDUCATION

Timely Hints Are Given by the United States Public Health Service—Vaccination and Other Precautionary Measures Are Urged.

Four hundred thousand persons incapacitated, and thirty thousand lives lost—this is the heavy toll exacted in the United States each year by the scourge of typhoid fever. And typhoid fever is a preventable disease!

A recent bulletin of the United States Public Health Service entitled, "Typhoid Fever—Its Causation and Prevention," states that within the past ten years few of our communities having as many as two thousand persons have remained free from this disease for any peroid of twelve consecutive months. In recent times the rate of its prevalence for the United States as a whole has been from two to five times as high as in some of the countries of Europe. In these European countries the typhoid rate was formerly higher than the present figures for the United States. Their great reductions in the ravages of the disease have been brought about by improvements in sanitary conditions.

In many American cities there has occurred within the last twenty years a considerable reduction of typhoid fever. Due in a large part to improved sanitary conditions in the cities the typhoid rate for some entire States has shown a material decrease. For the country as a whole, according to available figures, the rate has been reduced about fifty per cent. in the past forty years. But the present rate is about the same as that which prevailed in some of the other advanced nations of the world thirty years ago. In other words the United States is a generation behind the times, in respect to the reduction of its typhoid rate.

Practical and efficient measures for the prevention of typhoid fever are definitely known, but the efforts to get the people of the average self-governing community to carry out these measures to a reasonable extent are oftentimes decidedly experimental in character. In many instances the cost of modern sanitary improvements has been an obstacle in the way of typhoid prevention. It is often difficult to convince the governing authorities that money expended in the protection of the public health yields large dividends.

In rural communities and small municipalities another factor—the instruction and co-operation of the individual property owner—enters into the problem. Here every home must have its own method of sewage disposal, and in most cases its own water supply. The Public Health Service bulletin above referred to deals in a comprehensive way with the construction of wells and outhouses.

In recent years a specific method for increasing individual resistance to typhoid germs has been employed. This is known as anti-typhoid inoculation or "vaccination." This method has been used extensively in military organization of the United States, and from the results obtained it appears that inoculated persons are, upon equal exposure to typhoid infection, less than one-fourth as likely to develop the disease as those who have not been inoculated and who have previously had the disease. The average duration of protection given by inoculation has not been determined, but is supposed to be about two years.

It is pointed out, however, that the protection given by anti-typhoid inoculation is relative, not absolute, and that such inoculation is not to be regarded as a substitute for sanitation.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Patrons of Proctor's will recall George Beban, when he appeared in person in his own play about a year ago and the wonderful portrayal of the Italian in the legitimate performance has made him inimitable in that character. Those who were not so fortunate to see him in real life are offered an opportunity to view him in reel life in the five-part production of the "Italian," which will be thrown on the screen tomorrow afternoon and night. Mr. Beban is supported by an excellent cast, Miss Clara Williams taking the leading feminine role.

There are few stories which present in so fascinating and thrilling a manner some of the vital problems which women are sometimes called upon to solve, as "Should a Mother Tell?" as picturized by William Fox and which will be shown at Proctor's, Friday afternoon, featuring Betty Nansen in the leading role. The mother in the story is a woman in an ordinary station of life, the parent of a beautiful girl. She is suddenly thrust into a situation where action is demanded and where such action must either blight her daughter's life and honor or her own good name, conscience and her duty to God.

The story itself, by Rex Ingram, is one of exceptional power and presents a problem that calls for dramatic action of such intensity as could be portrayed by perhaps no other actress than Betty Nansen. As the mother, torn between an almost fanatical sense of justice and a desire for the happiness of her daughter, Miss Nansen has the opportunities to display her wonderful emotional powers exceptionally. Miss Nansen is supported by Stuart Holmes, who plays the part of the machinating husband. Mr. Holmes is perhaps the most magnetic and versatile of artists playing heavy roles today.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Sunshine Molly," featuring Lois Weber and Philips Smalley, a powerful story of the oil fields, full of dramatic action with a vein of comedy running throughout and staged with a close attention to detail, will be the feature dramatic film of an extraordinary program at the U. S. Astor Theatre this afternoon and tonight. This subject is the second big photo-drama of the week at the popular West Front street theatre, and is said to be every bit as interesting and exciting as "The Sins of the Mothers," shown Monday and Tuesday.

Some remarkable scenes are shown in "Sunshine Molly," among them a magnificent fire scene which depicts the burning of an immense oil field. It was found necessary to purchase property at considerable expense in order to get the wonderful effects. It is a tale of the oil fields, in which sunshine and happiness are radiated from "Sunshine Molly," who enters the oil town in search of work. Her first good deed is to help Old Pete, whom she had met on the road, to carry his heavy bundle. And from this juncture events move swiftly.

Miss Weber, the authoress of "Sunshine Molly," will play the title role and Philips Smalley will appear as "Bull" Morrest. They will be ably supported by a cast of notable screen artists.

The comic element of today's meritorious program will be supplied by Charles Chaplin, the inimitable pantomimist, in his latest Essanay production, "The Woman." In this big feature Mr. Chaplin has lots of opportunity to put into effect all his Chaplinisms and, according to advance reports, the film is the best in which he has appeared in a long time. Unlike previous pictures in which the funny little artist has appeared, "The Woman" tells a story of potent interest.

A few dimes may "turn the tide" for you if you invest them in a "Situation Wanted" ad.

NEW PASSENGER AGENT OF LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD

New York, July 14—Announcement is made by the Lehigh Valley Railroad of the appointment of George H. Lee to be general passenger agent of the line, succeeding George W. Hay, who has resigned, the change taking effect August 1. Mr. Lee is a newcomer to the Lehigh Valley. He has been general passenger agent of the third district of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific with headquarters in St. Louis. Mr. Lee's railroad experience has been in the West, although he is a native of New York State, having been born in Mount Morris. He was educated at Hamilton College at Clinton.

JULY 14TH IN HISTORY.

1776—Washington refused to receive a letter from Lord Howe addressed "George Washington, Esq." The letter was later accepted when it was addressed to the American leader in his official capacity.

1819—Aubaine, a right of French kings whereby they claimed the property of strangers who died in France, was finally annulled.

1853—Commodore Perry landed at Japan and delivered to the imperial commissioners a letter from the American president.

BRINGING PRODUCER AND CONSUMER TOGETHER.

It is too bad that in this season of plenty there should be people in the large cities, and even in the rural communities, to whom fresh berries, fruits and vegetables are almost unknown. The bumper crops being raised are no positive indication that produce will be so very cheap this summer, for there is a price for each commodity, below which it is never sold, because when that price is reached there is no profit for the producer. He will not trouble himself to harvest his crops.

What a boon it would be if a way could be found to readjust conditions so that the very poor could take advantage of the harvest of plenty. On one side of the picture is the farmer, disappointed, pessimistic, because his abundant crops will not bring in enough to pay him for the labor of picking and crating them, and so he lets them rot on the ground or dry on the vines. On the other side is the poor family, longing for just what is allowed to go to waste, but separated from it by distance and circumstances.

This was so in Cumberland county last month where prices for strawberries were so low that the growers would not pick and crate them. Unless some arrangement is made to get them to the consumers, the 1915 bumper crop of potatoes will, like the big cotton crop of the South last year, become a glut on the market. Growers can expect little over $1.50 a barrel for their potatoes, it is said, which is less than half what they received per barrel in the big season four years ago. If some way to get the potatoes directly from the fields to the consumers at this price could be devised and still allow the farmer a reasonable profit, it would be a boon to humanity.

Senator Martine's secretary, in a communication printed in another column today defends the action of the Plainfielder in using his frank to send out anti-suffrage literature. No defense was necessary. The use of the franking privilege for all sorts of things not germaine to Congressional work has become such a common practice, and has been so generally taken advantage of for campaign purposes, that the Senator is not subject to any more criticism than any other Congressman. The raising of the issue by the suffragists, in whose cause we are sincere believers, merely shows that they are not familiar with the most common campaign methods of the male politicians. No doubt if the suffragists had thought of it in time they could have persuaded some Senator or Representative favoring their cause to flood New Jersey with suffrage literature. It looks supiciously as if the antis had stolen a march this time.

More than 63,400 automobiles were registered in New Jersey during the first six months of the year. Add to these the thousands that come into the state under the bogus "reciprocity" law, and no further explanation is required of the condition of our roads and the inability of some of the counties to keep them in repair. We agree with the Trenton Times that the 1912 supplement to the automobile law should be repealed, and non-residents put upon the same footing as our own citizens, who probably make no greater use of our improved roads than is made by the thousands of visitors who come into the state rather than be held up by a toll-gate keeper every few miles in their own state.

The hearing last night on the question of the widening of Somerset street certainly developed a preponderance of opinion against the proposed improvement. Perhaps the advocates of the change form a thinking majority, but they certainly did not make themselves heard, and this was one of the cases where silence was not golden for the persons who favored the widening. In spite of the opposition to the movement it certainly seems as if the time must come when it will be regretted that the work had not been done, as is now the case with Park avenue.

We are glad to learn from another local paper that the work of the post office has been developed to a high state of efficiency during the year. If such is the case it must have been in a super-high state prior to that time. There have been more kicks about mail service in the last twelve months than there were in years before that, and kicking does not seem to bring any satisfaction.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Hazelwood Keller, of Sandford avenue, left Monday on a trip by automobile to Atlantic City. They made a stop at Barnegat enroute and enjoyed a sail as the guests of Captain Campbell, of that place.

Mrs. A. J. King and daughters, of Watchung avenue, are spending the summer at Atlantic Highlands. Mr. King will go there for the week-ends.

Miss Marie Heidloff, of Westervelt avenue, is spending some time visiting in Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Hippolyte Texier, of Watchung, have returned after spending two weeks at Gloversville, N. Y.

"Please say that from the moment of the arrival of the official text of the German note I have given the matter the closest attention, keeping constantly in touch with the Secretary of State and with every source that would throw light on the situation; that so soon as the Secretary of State and I have both maturely considered the situation I shall go to Washington to get into personal conference with him and with the Cabinet, that there will be as prompt an announcement as possible of the purposes of the Government."

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Thursday night Bible class will meet at the association tomorrow night at 6:30. All are requested to bring their suppers, which will be eaten in the gardens at the residence of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, on East Front street. Miss Harriet Mattison will lead the class this week. All are invited.

Miss Lena Jackson, assistant secretary of the association, will return to her duties Monday morning after enjoying a month's vacation. The larger portion of her vacation was spent in New Foundland, N. J.

TO CONSIDER PLANS.

Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, will meet with the publicity committee of the Plainfield Business Men's Association tonight in Coward's Hall. The board of directors of the association will also be in attendance at the meeting to discuss ways and means of developing the work of the local organization. Plans for a program for the fall and winter months will be prepared.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Club Women and the Vote.

Nothing indicates more strongly the changed attitude of the club woman toward the question of suffrage than the recent debate and its results in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Julia Ward Howe, who in her last years felt it her duty to toil up the State House steps and lay her own and her fellow-women's claims to citizenship before the Bay State legislators, never saw the day during her long life-time when it seemed to her prudent to allow suffrage to be brought before women's clubs. To-day it is impossible to prevent its demand for recognition before these clubs.

Equally significant is the comment of the Boston press on the action of the State Federation:

(From the Boston Herald.)

The two-to-one vote of the State Federation of Women's Clubs put something of a crimp into the claim that "eighty per cent of the women do not want the ballot."

(From the Boston Journal.)

The decision of the Massachusett Federation of Women's Clubs to take a stand on the suffrage question was in itself a victory for the suffrage cause, even had an adverse vote resulted. The 203 to 99 declaration in favor of suffrage makes the victory a big entry on the credit side of the suffrage books.

Suffrage, as a topic for study and discussion by women's organizations has claims that amount to obligations. Suffrage is being advanced for and by women; to leave it on the door-sill is an act almost of intellectual treachery.

That period when the suffrage cause was shunned as "politics" and its supporters were distinguished as radicals is some distance in the past. Today clubs dare talk suffrage and federations dare include it in their resolutions. They know it is a problem of life, in no sense held within the narrow limits of political gaming.

(From the Boston Traveler.)

The lure of "politics" has not yet made the suffragist women quite forego their domestic accomplishments, as was shown by the manner in which they "swept" things before them at Marion yesterday, where the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs voted 203 to 99 for suffrage. The two hours' debate on the resolution was full of fire, but was orderly and dignified. Indeed, the splendid manner in which many women publicly argued that members of their sex should keep out of public life is conclusive proof that they are fitted for just such careers.

(From the Boston Evening Record.)

Suffrage won the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs by a vote of 203 to 99 delegates. The bitterness of the discussion and the talk of disruption will, we believe, quiet down, as it should. The minority should not advertise themselves poor losers. This matter had been under discussion and consideration among club women, as among all women, for a long time. The plea that the issue was "sprung" on the Federation, and that the suffragists had been working secretly and quietly to pack the convention with pro-suffrage delegates and cram the vote through, is not well spoken. The anti-suffragists are well organized and aggressive in their campaign in this State. We do not so belittle them as to suppose that they were unfamiliar with the situation or that they failed to foresee exactly what contest was to come before the gathering yesterday. As there is hardly a subject more widely discussed than suffrage in this country today, it is futile to suppose that any one could have gone to Marion yesterday, or that any women's club could have sent delegates thither, without full realization of the issue that was to be raised and settled. What happened was smiply the formal vote of women's club delegates on an issue which had been entirely understood to be uppermost among those who went to, and were represented at, the convention.

In Idaho Where Women Vote.

(N. Y. Sun, Sunday, July 11, 1915.)

A POWERFUL WOMAN OFFICIAL.

Miss Bernice McCoy is said to have the widest official powers of any woman in this country. Miss McCoy has just been elected State Superintendent of Instruction of Idaho and a member of the State land board. This latter position gives the State superintendent a greater power than that held by any similar officeholder in any other State.

By reason of this Miss McCoy practically controls nearly two million acres of land, school property. When Idaho was admitted to the Union the National Government gave certain sections of land amounting to more than two millions of acres for school endowment purposes. This land is being sold at the rate of 15,600 acres a year at a minimum of $10 an acre. The money from the sales goes into the irreducible school endowment fund, only the interest being used. The management of this great sum of money is in Miss McCoy's hands. At present it is said to amount to nearly five millions.

This position of State Superintendent of Schools has been held by women ever since Idaho passed the equal suffrage bill in 1896. Only once has a man tried to get the office. He was so badly beaten that nobody now recalls his name. During the nineteen years that the women have held this office they have made irrigation contracts that amounted to three hundred million dollars. They have leased and released these school lands to the amount of five million dollars and never lost a dollar.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

I have just received a copy of your paper of the 6th instant containing an article "Senator's Franking Privilege Questioned." Mrs. E. F. Feickert is 'On the Trail' of James E. Martine.

The use of the Senator's frank in sending through the mails an address on woman suffrage needs no defense. It may be well that you have for your information, however, a few figures on this subject.

The address of Miss Annie Bock opposed to woman suffrage was printed as a public document by the Senate. It was sent out under Senator Martine's frank. There were less than five thousand. The address now going out under Senator Martine's frank will not total 50,000.

On the other hand I find there have been and are now being sent out by the pro-suffrage people approximately 800,000 speeches or addresses. One Representative alone (Mondell, of Wyoming) permitting the use of his frank to the extent of 500,000. Representative Kent, of California, has up to date allowed the use of 107,000 franks. I think the balance of the 800,000 is divided between Representatives Abercromble, of Alabama, and Mott, of New York.

I trust this information be of some service to you.

E. JOS. ARONOFF,
Secretary to Senator Martine.

As usual after a heavy rain the streets in front of my place of business was flooded for a distance of 500 feet during the rain last night. Not only during the rain but for an hour after people who wanted to trade at my store had to wade through water one foot deep in some places or else go up or down the street for two or more hundred feet before they could get across dry-footed.

I am a taxpayer and think the city authorities should see to it that this state of affairs should not go on indefintely. Winter is coming on and every time it thaws after a snowstorm people cannot cross the street unless they have on rubber boots. All this is the condition of the main street in the city of Plainfield at the point where Washington street intersects with East Front street. All this could be overcome by very small expense to the city by making the culvert that crosses East Front street at the head of Elm place three times the capacity and the opening at the north corner of where Elm place intersects with East Front street, five times as large as the present opening. Water that falls on parts of Sanford avenue, Westervelt avenue, East Front street and Washington street empties into Elm place at this point and only two openings for all the water that falls on the above streets to flow through. Something should be done. This condition is nothing new. It has been the same since Plainfield became a city. Improvements have been made in other parts of the town while this remains the same. No one likes to kick but something should be done. If the street committee of the Common Council will look the matter over they can readily see it can all be overcome by very little expense.

By giving this communication space in your paper you will confer a great favor to this neighborhood.

WILLIAM J. FIRSTBROOK,

ST. MARY'S SOCIAL CLUB GIVES BIRTHDAY PARTY

The second of a series of birthday socials given each month by the St. Mary's Social Club was held in the T. A. B. Hall, last night, a large number of the members and their friends attending. Four young women, members of the club, whose natal days occur during the month of July, were the guests of honor and each was the recipient of a handsome and useful gift from the club. The Misses Mary Lappin, Hazel Hogan, Betty Mara and Sophie Wicht were the young women honored.

Dancing and games were enjoyed by those present. Miss Jennie Higgins furnished the music. The committee in charge of the event last night was composed of the Misses Mary Donnelly, chairman; Mary Murray, Catherine McCauley, Nora Regan, Agnes Mahoney and Marion Harrington. The club plans to hold a lawn party and dance on Tuesday night, July 20, on the spacious lawn in front of the hall on West Fourth street.

BOY WHO BROKE $30 PLATE GLASS WINDOW NOW IN JAIL

Because he threw a stone that broke a $30 plate glass window, thirteen-year-old Phillip Jeromisky is occupying a cell in the police station today and will be brought before Judge DeMeza tomorrow morning. Arraigned before the police court magistrate this morning the youth attempted to convince the court that he was not the guilty party and had two youthful companions "lined up" to testify in his behalf.

The juvenile defendant comes of poor parents and inasmuch as Samuel Kline, the owner of the West Third street window that was demolished, demands payment for the glass, the City Judge has been given food for thought in disposing of the charges against the boy.

RAIN PREVENTS CASTLE INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

An installation of officers of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, scheduled for last night, had to be postponed on acount of the storm. The district deputy and his staff were to have come over from New Brunswick to conduct the installation, but were unable to make the trip because of the weather. Just when the installation will take place now will depend upon word from the district deputy, but it is likely that it will be next Tuesday night.

A delegation from Freedom Castle will go to New Brunswick tonight on a fraternal visit to New Brunswick Castle. The trip will be made by auto bus. The grand officers will be there and a good time is anticipated.

STORM PLAYED HAVOC WITH TROLLEY SERVICE

The heavy downpour of rain late yesterday afternoon resulted in considerable damage in places adjacent to Plainfield, beside over-working the local sewers and flooding the streets. Previous to and during the storm it became as dark as night and street and store lights were necessary.

The trolley service was put out of commission for nearly two hours, no a Main Line car going west during that time. This, it was explained, was caused by a flooded condition of Sinclair place, Westfield, where three cars were stalled. It was necessary to employ horses and carriages to transfer passengers. Many complaints were heard in this city over the failure of the company to operate extra cars over the Main Line to care for traffic here.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS ENJOY LONG DAY'S OUTING

Fourteen boys of the Y. M. C. A. Indian League Club enjoyed a day's outing yesterday in the company of their physical director, Robert I. Meermans. Leaving the association building at 9 o'clock, they "hiked" to Holly's Park and spent the entire day there, getting home about 8 o'clock in the evening. The boys had an abundance of provisions along and ate luncheon and supper at the Park. A huge watermelon played an important part in the "feed."

Besides the delightful swims both morning and afternoon, in the pond, the boys chose sides and engaged in games of prisoners' base, baseball and "guard the flag." In this last game the prize was two big pies, and the seven boys who made up the winning team in this contest divided the pies so that each one got a little over a quarter of one. The prizes in the other events were sticks of candy. The Indian League boys will enjoy another like the last of the month.

IDEAL WEATHER PROMISED FOR TOMORROW'S OUTING

Just the mere thought of the big tumbling, green ocean makes one feel cool and contented and when one is at the shore and knows that it is only a matter of a few minutes (for the donning of the smart bathing suit) and then the jolly splash in the waters, there is a decided sense of satisfaction. The popular bathing hour is generally conceded from eleven to twelve, and that is just about an hour after the arrival of the local excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow. Take the trip and realize the dip that you have been anticipating all summer.

The Sunday-schools included in the excursion tomorrow are of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Grace Episcopal, Holy Cross, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's, SeventhDay Baptist, New Market Baptist and Dunellen Presbyterian churches and Bethel chapel.

The first section leaves Dunellen 8:04, Clinton Avenue 8:06, Grant Avenue 8:09, Plainfield 8.15. Second sections follows immediately, stopping at Plainfield and Netherwood. Arains will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 p. m.

If you have not advertised for a position, you are not competing with those who do advertise.

BROKE HIS PROMISE; NABBED BY THE POLICE

William Rains, the Plainfield colored man who was arrested in North Plainfield Saturday night for drunkenness and who broke the promise given to Chief Marshal Weiss to appear in court Monday morning after the chief had taken pity on him and let him out of the lock-up Sunday, was up before Recorder Hand this morning. The police were not willing to forget Rains and his offense and found out where he worked.

He was brought into court and talked so convincingly of the need for every minute of his services on the dairy farm where he is employed, giving that as the reason for his failure to visit the court Monday, that the recorder suspended sentence. Rains seemed deeply grateful for the leniency displayed towards him.

MANY MOURNERS ATTEND FUNERAL OF F. J. WALSH

Friends and relatives in large numbers attended the funeral of the late Francis J. Walsh, whose death occurred Sunday, which was held this morning from his home, 684 West Third street, and at 10 o'clock from St. Mary's church where a solemn requiem mass was said. The last rites were impressive though simple, the burial service being conducted by his brother, Rev. Michael A. Walsh, of Yonkers, as celebrant; Rev. Edward J. Doyle, of Yonkers, as deacon, and Rev. Vincent Sciolla as sub-deacon.

The high esteem in which the late man was held was evident from the magnificent floral tributes that were sent by friends, relatives and co-workers. The casket was banked with numerous pieces of great beauty. Mr. Walsh made a great many friends wherever he went and won a warm place in the hearts of all who learned to know him.

Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, relatives acting as pall bearers. At the grave Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, conducted a short service.

COURT DIRECTS ANOTHER ACCOUNTING IN WILL CASE

Elizabeth, July 14—Judge James C. Connolly in the Orphans' Court, has directed that a new accounting be made by the executors in the Gahagen will case, not being satisfied with the one submitted recently. This case has been in the courts for the past three years. The executors, Walter Gorman, Edward Gahagan and Elizabeth Gahagan, are represented by J. B. Irwin and Robert Carey, of Jersey City.

Exceptions to the accounting were taken by five heirs, Mrs. Clarence Hetfield, of Plainfield; Mrs. Augustus Sheelen, of Fanwood; James Wright, Edward Homan and Edward F. Gahagen, of Jersey City, who are represented by William R. Wilson and Clarence Kelsey.

Judge Connolly also ruled that Walter Gorman must also include in the accounting the money he has paid to Mrs. Elizabeth Gahagan, the widow, during the past three years. The court will now await the presentation of another accounting of the estate before making a decision of the case.

DECLARES THAT MEN WERE TREATED FAIRLY

Superintendent John Coyle, of the Sevgar Structural Iron Works, at Dunellen, requests the Plainfield Daily Press to say that the trouble arising over the fact that the company refused to take back seventeen men who quit their jobs on Saturday, was not due to a question of paying overtime wages. He says that a notice was posted at the works that the men would work until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Some of the men did not want to stay and these and several others, making seventeen in all, remained out.

Mr. Coyle says that he told the men that if they did not work Saturday afternoon they need not report at the works Monday morning, that their jobs would be declared vacant so far as they were concerned. This was done, the superintendent says.

In further discussing the matter, Mr. Coyle said that a force of about 200 men is employed and at present there is work on hand which requires full time and some night work. It was for the purpose of rushing this work and getting it out on time that all the men were requested to remain until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and he claims that no injustice was done the men. They were not willing to comply with the request of the company, he says, and consequently were dropped from the pay-roll.

The combined purchase for our two stores reached 3,300 dresses.

Such dresses as women who can afford to spend hundreds of dollars on their finest gowns wear in the country and at the seashore. They have a very smart simplicity. And they fill the need of the little odd dresses which were never so much needed as in this stay-at-home season.

There are

Twenty-three Styles at This Price

—all from a manufacturer with whom we do business largely and constantly, and who appreciates the fact when clearing time comes. He is also an expert in materials; if he buys a printed crepe the colors in it are artistic; his tissues and voiles and crepes are dainty and fine. In fact, the experienced shopper seldom or never finds materials of this high quality for any such price, even among reduced dresses. And each style shows the fine little touches which stamp it of freshest fashion.

3 PONY CONTEST—100 VOTES WITH EVERY TICKET

A classified advertisement is a "peace-scout," and will report to you promptly what are your opportunities for work, or for selling.

It's hard to be an optimist on the day your tenant leaves. But prompt recourse to classified advertising will soon set things to rights again.

BIG BROADSIDES of advertising are necessary only for big business operations and enterprises. For the small affairs of business and daily life, the classified advertisements are not only available but highly effective.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Prior to a game at Dunellen Saturday afternoon one of the twirlers selected for duty burnt his fingers while fooling with powder. While it is always better to get burnt before a game than during one we have our suspicions concerning the hurler's object in maiming himself. The contest ended in a scrap in the tenth frame. Wonderful foresight this juvenile Christy Mathewson had.

They tell us the umpiring in the City League was a trifle off-color Saturday afternoon. Thereby giving us further cause to believe that the local organization is assuming the proportions of a real circuit.

It's too bad those Baptists can't get next to a win. If there's anything that will discourage a team it's dropping one verdict after another. Saturday's attempt was a mighty close call, but the old adage that a "miss is as good as a mile" came to the fore once again.

Another Saurer man has been put on the shelf as the result of injuries. The factory outfit is weak in the average column but it certainly shows up some strong in the hospital list.

Monday night's session of the City League was a decided contrast to the one of a week before. All was peace and quiet during the session and about the only matter that aroused any keen discussion was the work of the arbitraters. It is only natural that the "umps" should be made the goats when there's nothing else to talk about.

Plainfield stock has popped up again in that Westfield night tennis tourney. Whatever championship this Mt. Ararat meet is due to decide it is getting its share of attention from the crack racquet wielders hereabouts.

"Bill" Sullivan is coaching a team of long distance swimmers belonging to the local Second Night Club. "Bill" has had his proteges out for frequent trials at Sewaren and several of them have already equalled his water record. (Three gulps and all hands around).

Agitation is rife around this burg for an athletic meet of the feminine variety. If the result of the one indulged in by Dunellen competitors Saturday afternoon is an indication of the way girl athletes take to running and jumping we have every reason to believe that the new feature will boom around here. Boost it along, it's a good thing and deserves the support of all interested.

Speaking of athletic meets, however, it might be well to caution the agitators right here that the work of rounding up a feature of this kind generally simmers down to a couple of real laborers before the affair is staged. If it's going to be a success all will have to pitch in and do their part.

Plainfield fans seem to have taken to the City League idea like ducks take to water. Twenty-two perfectly good simoleans were tossed into the Hope Chapel athletic treasury Saturday afternoon following that tilt with the Abstainers. All clubs report good attendances.

SPORTING NOTES

The triple contest between Chicago, Boston and Detroit for leadership of the American League is the big interest in baseball.

A New York sprinter, with one leg and a crutch, went over the 100-yard course in 18 seconds. The one-legged phenom is "Happy Al" Frankl.

Jack Barry, of Athletic fame, is relied on by the Red Sox to hold down the second sack on the way to the pennant. He has made a good start.

The chances are said to be good for a twenty-round bout between Jess Willard and Al Reich, to be pulled off at Denver on Labor Day.

The decathlon championship will be pulled off at 'Frisco on August 9 and 10, five events on each day.

One hundred and seventeen motorcycle riders will take part in the coast-to-coast run which will take place next week, beginning at New York. The course to 'Frisco has been divided into 39 sections, and there will be three riders to a section, to prevent delay through accident.

The international swimming championships will begin at the San Francisco Fair on Friday. A two-day indoor meet is scheduled, in which women will race. The following week the outdoor championships will be held.

Francis Quimet and Charles Evans, Jr., the Western title holder, have promised to compete in the Sleepy Hollow invitation golf tournament which has its opening round tomorrow.

The Braves continue to run in tough luck. In one game the toll of injured included Johnny Evans, as usual, besides Rudolph, Moran, Hank Gowdy and Schmidt.

With big entry lists, the Grand Circuit is grooming for the opening day of the Cleveland meet, next Monday. The best of harness racing is promised.

King George, of England, has furnished a trophy for the Panama-Pacific regatta. It is in the form of a gold vase standing more than two feet high.

BATTING AROUND THE MINOR BALL ROUTE

Like the renowned Alexander, "Sid" Butler, the Laurel A. C. hurler, has come within a stone's throw of pitching a no-hit game this season. In fact, the only difference between the feats of the two is the fact that Butler already has unearthed a hitless encounter while "Aleck" has not.

Cohen, who handles the slants of both Plainfield Juniors and Queen City hurlers, is becoming a star, although in the melee on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday, he let four balls slip by.

We may see the Newark Meadowbrooks on Parker Field in the near future if the plans of a local baseball "magnate" work out. The Meadowbrooks are engaged at present in contending with the Ironsides for the championship of Newark.

The Saurer roster has certainly undergone some changes. However, every new move seems to add a little more "pep" to the combine. Tommy Mullin and Warry McLaughlin are members now.

That St. Joseph aggregation showed up splendid Saturday. It would seem that Conshay's wing is still in good working order.

The Plainfield A. A. is going to buck up against a day's work when it travels to Manville to trounce the representative team of that burg. Pfister, a no-hit artist, has been picked to oppose the local boys.

The Queen City B. B. C. is willing to meet all comers. Managers should address S. Houston, 438 Orchard place.

MATHEY DEFEATED.

San Francisco, July 14.—G. M. Church, of Princeton University, intercollegiate champion, met defeat yesterday at the hands of Clarence Griffin, of San Francisco, doubles champion of the Pacific Northwest, in the Panama-Pacific Exposition tennis championships here. Griffin took the match in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0. John R. Strachan, of San Francisco, California singles champion, defeated Dean Mathey, of Princeton University, in hard-fought straight sets, 6-4, 6-3. Numerous double faults by Mathey caused his defeat.

PRATT SIGNED.

Buffalo, July 14.—Manager McKechnie, of Newark, announced that he had signed Leslie Pratt, the catcher who was recently released by the Brooklyn Federals.

TEAMS SETTLE DIFFERENCES; WILL NOW PLAY A SERIES

A settlement has been reached in the Plainfield Junior-Dunellen Boy Scout baseball controversy. Although the locals declared that they were treated unfairly in last Saturday's match, they have decided to overlook the affair. Consequently a three-game series between the two teams has been arranged, the first game to take place on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday. Dates for the other two games have not been set, but it is understood that all games will be played in Dunellen.

"Cannon Ball" Butler and Cohen will form the local battery, while the Dunellen battery will likely consist of Maskell, Lewis and Eder.

ONE POOL ABOLISHED.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 14.—After being hounded by the police of several cities, and after several of its agents were placed under arrest, The Baseball World, a weekly publication which conducted one of the largest baseball pools of the country, yesterday suspended publication, and will not make any further effort to do business this year.

FAVORITE FISHING PLACES NEAR HERE

Plainfielders remark that there are no good places to fish around this section, but they are mistaken when they make an assertion of this kind. As a matter of fact there are a great many small ponds and streams around Plainfield and vicinity to which access is not at all hard. A short trolley ride or an inexpensive railroad trip will land one at several beautiful spots where there are cool streams that abound with bass and trout.

Bass may be caught in large numbers in the Passaic River, near Millington and around Berkeley Heights. These places are easily reached by motor bus. The Millstone River from Blackwell's Mills to that point where it joins the Raritan River, abounds in good bass and pickerel. Small-mouth bass may be found in the Raritan from South Branch and Clinton to the Head Gates.

Below Far Hills the streams are productive of many fine fish while the ponds back of Scotch Plains always attract a good crowd of local anglers. Echo Lake in Westfield is also a good fishing centre, but the large-mouth bass which inhabit this section are hard to catch. At present all the streams in this vicinity are well stocked.

MANAGER JONES HAS SOME GOOD GAMES UP HIS SLEEVE

This city may be the scene of several fast semi-pro conflicts before the season is over if the plans of Manager Jones, of the Plainfield A. A., work out. Jones is at present carrying on negotiations with the manager of the Newark Whirlwinds relative to bringing that team here for a contest. He is also corresponding with the management of the Newark Stars team, which is one of the best in Essex county.

This team plays the Ironsides Sunday morning, being one of the "big three" contending for the Newark city championship. The Ironsides and the Meadowbrooks are the other two.

Manager Jones intends securing McFadden, of Bound Brook, to do the hurling in the event that he can arrange to bring any one of the teams mentioned to this city. The rest of the line-up will be picked accordingly.

ADDITIONAL HOURS FOR BOYS AT SWIMMING POOL

Additional hours for boys are announced at the High School swimming pool beginning today. Up to this time the boys have been confined to the mornings, but from now on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 4 o'clock will be added.

Friday morning at 10:30 a 100-yard race for boys will be held, also a 20-yard race for boys weighing not more than 100 pounds.

It is planned to have one or two races every Friday morning provided sufficient interest is shown.

Tickets of admission to the pool will be given the winners.

On Saturday at 9 o'clock Miss Wean will hold a meet for girls. There will be swimming for form and speed, diving and plunge for distance.

BATTING AVERAGES FOR TRINITY TEAM ARE LOW

The Trinity church baseball team, while a good fielding aggregation, is a very poor hitting clan. Despite the fact that it has opposed pitchers that are not rated as wonders, it has failed to clout the pill as heavily as it ought to. However, the season is still young and as it ages may perhaps, boost the averages of several of the lowly ones.

The Kirch brothers are both hitting .333, and are tied for second place batting honors, the heaviest hitter being Oscar Dilts, who is clouting the ball at a .400 clip. Harvey and Bob Dawe are hitting around .290, while Schneider, the Leal catcher, is rated in the .250 class along with Larison, the second sacker. The rest of the players are hitting below .200, so far below in fact, that when the averages are collected, the batting rate for the team as a whole is only .189.

Dilts has pitched all games for the team and has been touched for fifteen hits during the time he was on the mound.

PLAY GOLF TO KEEP HEALTHY; SAYS UNCLE SAM IN BULLETIN

One way to keep healthy and live long is to play golf, says a bulletin issued by the United States Public Health Service. If you cannot be on the golf links two hours a day, then you must wheel a baby carriage or make a garden to keep your physique from degenerating. The bulletin says:

"The death rate after the age of 40 is increasing in spite of the more sanitary modes of living and greater protection against communicable diseases. The expectation of life after 40 is less than it was thirty years ago. This is due largely to increased prevalence of the diseases of degeneration. The muscles, arteries and other organs of those who as a result of sedentary occupation or indolence, take too little exercise, degenerate. Heart disease, kidney disease and others ills follow."

QUEEN CITY A. C. AND WHITE SOX MEET AGAIN

The Queen City A. C. and the White Sox will clash Sunday in the third game of a five-game series. Two games have already been annexed by the Queen city clan and if it can repeat these performances on Sunday there will be no necessity of continuing the five-part argument.

The Queen City outfit will be as follows: Joe Paritz, 3b; Lou Paritz, cf; V. Mullin, 2b; F. Mullin, ss; Cohen, c; Houston, p; Good, 1b; Smith, rf, and Randolph, lf. The White Sox lineup has not been announced, but it will not be the same as it was last Sunday. Either Harry Stites or Gleason will twirl for the boys of the white hose.

McLOUGHLIN ENTERS.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the California Comet, has declared his entry for the national lawn tennis championship singles. This information as to the famous wielder of the racquet was received in a telegram from Watson M. Washburn, delegate at large of the National Association, who is playing as a member of the Eastern States team in San Francisco.

SPORT BRIEFS

Manager Stallings, of the Boston Braves, released Outfielders Cather and Gilbert to the Toronto Internationals and announced the suspension of Pitcher Strand.

Beekman and Throckmorton, boy champions, defeated by Larned and Inman in the Westchester Country Club's invitation tennis tournament.

R. Norris Williams, 2d, only Eastern survivor in the singles tennis championship of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Bike races at Sheepshead Bay Velodrome had to be postponed last night until Saturday night on account of the inclement weather.

Gaelic football championship of the East to be decided at Celtic Park next Sunday.

ATHLETIC MEET.

The Michelin A. A., of New Brunswick, will hold an athletic meet on Labor Day, when all the crack athletes will be back from the coast. Last year at a meet held by this club, Kenneth Curtis, the N. Y. A. C. pole vaulter who made it impossible for Ralph Runyon to go to the coast, established a record for the year in that event, vaulting 12 feet 8 inches. It is expected that as many athletes as competed in the recent Independence Day meet will be on hand on Labor Day.

HABERMAN IMPROVING.

Haberman, the Saurer center fielder, who was injured Saturday, is improving rapidly and may be able to play again in a few weeks, although his name has been erased from the roster of the City League team.

DUAL ATHLETIC MEET IS PLANNED

Girls and Boys to Engage in Sports on Parker Field Labor Day.

THE LIST OF EVENTS

Miss Lillian Lamson, Supervisor of Recreation Work, Will Be Assisted by George W. Wriston in Planning the Details.

Plans have been completed and the use of the Parker Athletic Field secured for use on Labor Day afternoon by the Public Recreation Committee, for a dual athletic meet, in which the girls and boys of Plainfield and North Plainfield will take part. Final plans, the list of events, and further details will be announced and discussed at a meeting of the committee in the Plainfield High School gymnasium tonight.

The plan will be an innovation in Plainfield sportdom and those who have talked over the idea are highly enthusiastic about the affair and have pledged their hearty support. The local public, at this time, will have a chance to view the number of prominent athletes within the city border, as it never did before. Girls and boys prominently identified in the city and borough school activities will be brought together, as well as individuals and those sporting the colors of various organizations in the city. A large number have already signified their intention of entering and indications point to the fact that some close competition will figure in the various events. A long list of handsome prizes will be announced very shortly.

The entire meet is in charge of Miss Lillian Lamson, supervisor of the Plainfield recreation center, and George W. Wriston, who has charge of the playground.

The list of events they have scheduled thus far includes the following: 100-yard dash, (boys and girls); high, jump, broad jump, (boys and girls); pole vault, (boys); 220-yard dash, (boys); 440-yard dash (boys); one mile run, (boys); one mile relay race, (boys); obstacle races, (boys and girls); baseball throwing, (girls); basketball throwing, (girls); Beside these a number of other events are being planned. A feature of the meet will be an open-air basketball game between the "Plainfield Five" feminine girls' team and another picked team. Many local people will recall this aggregation when they appeared in a weekly court game in the Columbus Club last winter. Beside defeating the State champions, Trenton Y. W. C. A., they defeated the city scholastic maidens. The team is composed of former Plainfield and North Plainfield High School girls, who won laurels on other teams.

In speaking with a leading member of the committee this morning, announcement was made of the fact that undoubtedly a baseball game would be a feature of the afternoon. A game between the city and borough Council members seems to be the popular choice for the day and, undoubtedly these two teams will be asked to appear on the Parker Field diamond.

Any local girl over sixteen years of age is allowed to enter her name in the meet and those who wish to do so will have the opportunity offered them tonight.

Among the clubs, schools and institutions that will have representatives, are North Plainfeldd High School, Plainfield High School, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Scottish Clans, T. A. B. Society, "Plainfield Five," Y. W. H. A., Y. M. H. A.

The Mercer A. C played its first game in the Parker Field Junior League, yesterday, and defeated the Eagles by the close score of 12 to 11. Maiden adorned the mound for the losers and was hit heavily while Royal Banks twirled for the winners, allowing nine hits.

Maiden's main fault seemed to be his readiness to issue passes and his inability to strike out a goodly supply of his opponents.

Two-baggers by Joe Clerk and Pompeio were the batting features of the day.

EVENTS IN BASEBALL.

Salaries first were paid to ball players in 1868 by the Cincinnati club.

Richard J. (Dickey) Pierce is credited with introducing the bunt hit in the summer of 1876.

The first 1—0 game on record was played by the Chicago and St. Louis teams in 1875, the former winning the contest.

O. Nicholson holds the record for the greatest number of stolen bases in a season. When with the Frankfort team of the Blue Grass league in 1912 he pilfered 111 sacks in 123 games.

In 1913 the Meridian team of the Cotton States league was defeated in twenty-six consecutive games, the record.

The first no hit game, no player reaching first base, in the history of baseball took place in 1876. James Galvin of the St. Louis Reds was the record making twirler, and he pitched against the Cass club of Detroit. The battle took place at Iona, Mich., on Aug. 17. The feat was repeated twice in 1879 by J. L. Richmond of the Worcester National league outfit on June 2 against Chicago, and on July 28 against Springfield. Again, on June 12, 1880, Richmond performed the same stunt against Cleveland, and in the same year, on June 17, John M. Ward, twirling for Providence, beat Buffalo in this kind of a contest.

No additions were made to these names until May 5, 1904, twenty-four years later, when D. T. ("Cy") Young of the Boston American league team defeated the Athletics in a no hit, no player reaching first, game, and A. Joss similarly beat the White Sox when he twirled for the Cleveland American league club on Oct. 2, 1908.

ROYALS VS. ALL STARS.

The Royal Giants and the All Stars will probably stage the second section of their three-game series Saturday on Parker Field. The first game was won by the Stars, although the Royal pitcher allowed only three hits.

PACKERS COMPLAIN.

Washington, July 14—Representations to Great Britain will be made by the State Department on behalf of the American meat packers whose cargoes consigned to Scandinavian ports have been detained for months by the British authorities. Numerous efforts to settle this difficulty without formal representations have failed through the tardiness of action of the British Prize Court.

FEDS INCORPORATE.

Trenton, July 14.—The Newark Federal League Baseball Club was incorporated today with an authorized capital of $100,000 and shares at $100 par. Patrick T. Powers, of Jersey City, is agent in charge with offices in Newark. Harry F. Sinclair and Oscar M. Gerstung, both of Oklahoma, are other incorporators.

ADMINISTRATION RIGHT.

Letters of administration were granted to Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of this city, yesterday afternoon, by Surrogate Parrot, for the estate of his father, Nelson Runyon, who died June 28, at his home here. Carroll T. Runyon, another son, is the only other heir mentioned in the application.

GOING TO CONEY ISLAND.

Employes of the trolley in the Plainfield division and their families will enjoy next Monday at Coney Island. Special trolley cars will take the party to Elizabethport where connection will be made with a boat for the island.

THAW JURY OUT.

New York, July 14.—The jury in the Thaw case went out at 3:01 this afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Rudolph Worgler, 742 Webster place.

MACK HOTFOOT AFTER PLAYERS

THINKS WELL OF CROWELL.

Brown University Crack, According to Connie, Should Develop Into a Crackerjack—He Also Thinks Well of Malone—Likes Chicago's Chances.

Connie Mack is not picking this year's pennant winner. He considers that much too hazardous an undertaking because of the fact that he looks for a tight race in the American league.

"I'd naturally say that the Chicago White Sox have a cracking chance," said he the other day. "That's because they have what looks to be a very comfortable lead at present and are playing great ball. But you can't figure Boston or Detroit out of it, and I will go further and say that the Washington team may cut much more of a figure than was expected now that it seems to have struck its stride. I look for it to be a great race. My team, of course, does not figure, and yet I think it will be troublesome to those who have pennant ambitions. In one respect I am sure we will break all records, and that is in the number of bases on balls my pitchers can give. There never was anything like it, and I am not familiar with just what the records are in this respect."

"What efforts will you make to strengthen your team?" was asked.

"Well, I am going to get a whole lot of ball players. Any kid who looks good to me I will carry along for a couple of years in the hope of his developing. I am not in competition with any of the other clubs.

"As soon as I find that some other club is dickering with a player that I want I let him alone. When I went up to sign Crowell at Brown university the first thing I asked him was whether any other club had made a proposition or communicated with him. He replied in the negative, so I told him I would talk business to him. Crowell gives every indication of making a great pitcher.

"Yes, I'll have a whole army of young players this fall and next spring, and I hope to find enough good material among them to bolster up my team. Malone, whom I obtained from Mount St. Joseph's college, is going to make a great ball player in time. I have several other good youngsters, among them Haas, a left handed college chap, who gives every indication of knowing how to pitch."

In speaking of Davies, the former Amherst player, who has proved himself a very good hitter and fast runner since joining the Mackmen, Mack said: "I don't know yet just where Davies belongs. He pitched a splendid game of ball for us in Detroit, but later I had to take him out in the first inning at Cleveland. So I don't know how good a pitcher he is. But I have put it up to him to decide where he thinks he should be played and wherever that may be I will give him a trial."

Fisher, Warhop and Keating as first string men and McHale, Shawkey, Pieh and Cottrell playing the relief role, the Yankees are surely well protected in this department.

SERVES LIKE A MAN.

A serve that is almost as terrific as that used by Maurice McLoughlin made Miss Molla Bjurstedt, a Norwegian girl now living in New York, the national woman champion tennis player.

Miss Bjurstedt serves like a man. Critics who have seen all the best women players say she serves harder than any woman this country has seen for years.

Rent one of your rooms and reduce your own rent materially. It's a simple and sensible plan—and it works.

WILL DISTRIBUTE TICKETS TO SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN

Progress in the sale of tickets for the euchre to be held in the auditorium Friday night and the plans for the annual excursion on Tuesday, August 10, was reported at Knights of Columbus last night. Tickets for the latter will be distributed to the members and the Sunday-school children this Sunday.

The club also decided to run an automobile excursion to Morristown and through Hunterdon county on Sunday, July 25. Members of the organization owning machines have donated the use of them for the day.

COURSE OF LESSONS IN GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN

The committee having charge of the work of the Women's Bible class of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, announced that Dr. Wilbert W. White, president of the Bible Teachers' Training School, of New York city, will give a course of lessons on the Gospel of St. John, beginning November 7 and continuing for seven Sundays, up to and including December 19. These lessons will be given immediately after the regular morning church service and an invitation is extended to the men of the congregation, as well as the women, to remain for them. This course will be followed later in the winter by a course with Miss Palmer.

MAN VISITING HERE GETS ENGLISH WAR LOAN VOUCHER

G. Y. Tickle, justice of the peace in Liverpool England, who is visiting J. W. Harrison, of this city, this morning received one of the 4½ per cent. war loan scrip vouchers for the issue of June. The voucher provides a space for the name and address of the English subject and calls for five shillings. Should it be properly filled out and endorsed the recipient will become one of the thousands of subscribers to the fund that is paying five per cent. interest on all loans.

The total subscription to the fund to date is close to $3,000,000,000 and the total number of subscribers through the Bank of England is 550,000. This is the largest amount ever subscribed for this purpose in the history of the world.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the 'For Sale" ads.

RECEIVER'S SALE.

In pursuance of an order of the Court of Chancery made and dated on the 29th day of June, 1915, in a cause therein pending, wherein Edward S. Green is complainant, and the Inter-State Telephone and Telegraph Company of New Jersey is defendant, I, James Kerney, the Receiver, heretofore appointed by the said Court in said cause, for the said Inter-State Telephone and Telegraph Company of New Jersey, will expose for sale, at public vendue, on Thursday, the fifth day of August, 1915, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the office of the defendant company, No. 18 South Stockton Street, in the City of Trenton, County of Mercer and State of New Jersey.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments For Street Improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Andrew J. Gavett, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., and Frederic E. Mygatt, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the thirtieth day of April, 1915, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz:

under the ordinance of said city entitled, "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits." Approved July 6th, 1914, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled: "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real state benefited thereby," approved July 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the 30th day of July, 1915, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

CHAPTER III.

A Forester's Secret.

THE trail, hardly more than a wood road, grew wilder and lonelier as they climbed. Cattle fed on the hillsides in scattered bands like elk. Here and there a small cabin stood on the bank of a stream, but for the most part the trail mounted the high slopes in perfect solitude.

The girl talked easily and leisurely, reading the brands of the ranchers, revealing the number of cattle they owned, quite as a young farmer would have done. She seemed not to be embarrassed in the slightest degree by the fact that she was guiding a strange man over a lonely road and gave no outward sign of special interest in him till she suddenly turned to ask, "What kind of a slicker—I mean a raincoat—did you bring?"

He looked blank. "I don't believe I brought any. I've a leather shooting jacket, however."

She shrugged her shoulders and looked up at the sky. "We're in for a storm. You'd ought 'o have a slicker, no fancy 'raincoat,' but a real old fashioned cow puncher's oilskin. They make a business of shedding rain."

She rode on for a few minutes in silence, as if disgusted with his folly, but she was really worrying about him. "Poor chap!" she said to herself. "He can't stand a chill. I ought to have thought of his slicker myself. He's helpless as a baby."

They were climbing fast now, winding upward along the bank of a stream, and the sky had grown suddenly gray, and the woodland path was dark and chill. The mountains were not less beautiful, but they were decidedly less amiable, and the youth shivered, casting an apprehensive eye at the thickening clouds.

Berea perceived something of his dismay and, drawing rein, dismounted. Behind her saddle was a tightly-rolled bundle which, being untied and shaken out, proved to be a horseman's, rainproof oilskin coat. "Put this on!" she commanded.

"Yes you can! You must! Don't you worry about me. I'm used to weather. Put this on over your jacket and all. You'll need it. Rain won't hurt me, but it will just about finish you."

The worst of this lay in its truth, and Norcross lost all his pride of sex for the moment. A wetting would not dim this girl's splendid color nor reduce her vitality one degree, while to him it might be a death warrant. "You could throw me over my own horse," he admitted in a kind of bitter admiration and slipped the coat on, shivering with cold as he did so.

"You think me a poor excuse for a trailer, don't you?" he said ruefully as the thunder began to roll.

"You've got to be all made over new," she replied tolerantly. "Stay here a year and you'll be able to stand anything."

Remounting, she again led the way with cheery cry. The rain came dashing down in fitful, misty streams, but she merely pulled the rim of her sombrero closer over her eyes and rode steadily on, while he followed, plunged in gloom as cold and gray as the storm.

"These mountain showers don't last long," the girl called back, her face shining like a rose. "We'll get the sun in a few minutes."

And so it turned out. In less than an hour they rode into the warm light again, and in spite of himself Norcross returned her smile, though he said: "I feel like a selfish fool. You are soaked."

"I never take cold," she returned. "I'm used to all kinds of weather. Don't you bother about me."

Topping a low divide, the youth caught a glimpse of the range to the southeast, which took his breath. "Isn't that superb?" he exclaimed. "It's like the shining roof of the world!"

"Yes, that's the Continental divide," she confirmed casually, but the lyrical note which he struck again reached her heart. The men she knew had so few words for the beautiful in life. She wondered whether this man's illness had given him this refinement or whether it was native to his kind.

"I'm glad he took my coat," was her thought.

She pushed on down the slope, riding hard, but it was nearly 2 o'clock when they drew up at Meeker's house, which was a long, low, stone structure built along the north side of the road. The place was distinguished not merely by its masonry, but also by its picket fence, which had once been whitewashed. Farm wagons of various degrees of decay stood by the gate, and in the barnyard plows and harrows—deeply buried by the weeds—were rusting forlornly away. A little farther up the stream the tall pipe of a sawmill rose above the firs.

A pack of dogs of all sizes and signs came clamoring to the fence, followed by a big, slovenly dressed, red bearded man of sixty or thereabouts.

"Hello, Uncle Joe!" called the girl in offhand boyish fashion. "How are you today?"

Meeker's face lightened. "I reckon you're Mr. Norcross? I'm glad to see ye. Light off and make yourself to home. Turn your horses into the corral. The boys will feed 'em."

Without ceremony Meeker led his guests directly into the dining-room, a long and rather narrow room, wherein a woman and six or seven roughly dressed young men were sitting at a rudely appointed table.

"Earth and seas!" exclaimed Mrs. Meeker. "Here's Berrie, and I'll bet that's Sutler's friend, our boarder."

"Hist along there, boys, and give the company a chance," she commanded sharply. "Our dinner's turrible late today."

The boys—they were in reality full grown cubs of eighteen or twenty—did as they were bid with much noise, chaffing Berrie with blunt humor.

Meeker read Sutler's letter, which Norcross had handed him, and, after deliberation, remarked: "All right, we'll do the best we can for you, Mr. Norcross, but we haven't any fancy accommodations."

"He don't expect any," replied Berrie. "What he needs is a little roughing it."

"There's plenty of that to be had," said one of the herders, who sat below the salt. "'Tis the soft life I'm nadin'."

One of the lads, Frank Meeker, a dark, intense youth of about twenty, was Berea's full cousin. The others were merely hired hands, but they all eyed the new comer with disfavor. The fact that Berrie had brought him and that she seemed interested in him added to the effect of the smart riding suit which he wore. "I'd like to roll him in the creek," muttered one of them to his neighbor.

This dislike Berrie perceived in some degree, and to Frank she privately said: "Now, you fellows have got to treat Mr. Norcross right. He's been very sick."

"Now, Frank," she warned, "if you try any of your tricks on him you'll hear from me."

"Why all this worry on your part?" he asked keenly. "How long since you found him?"

The girl herself did not understand the vital and almost painful interest which this young man had roused in her. He was both child and poet to her, and as she watched him trying to make friends with the men, her indignation rose against their clownish offishness.

"I don't feel right in leaving you here," she said at last, "but I must be ridin'." And while Meeker ordered her horse brought out she walked to the gate with Norcross at her side.

"I'm tremendously obliged to you," he said, and his voice was vibrant. "You have been most kind. How can I repay you?"

"Oh, that's all right," she replied, in true western fashion. "I wanted to see the folks up here, anyhow. This is no jaunt at all for me." And, looking at her powerful figure and feeling the fraplike grip of her cinch hand, he knew she spoke the truth.

And so she rode away, leaving her ward to adjust himself to his new and strange surroundings as best he could, and with her going the whole valley darkened for the convalescent.

It was soon apparent to the eastern observer that the entire male population for thirty miles around not only knew McFarlane's girl, but that every unmarried man—and some who were both husbands and fathers—kept a deeply interested eye upon her daily motion, and certain shameless ones openly boasted among their fellows of their intention to win her favor, while the shy ones reveled in secret exultation over every chance meeting with her. She was the topic of every lumber camp and the shining lure of every dance to which the ranch hands often rode over long and lonely trails.

Part of this intense interest was due, naturally, to the scarcity of desirable women, but a larger part was called out by Berea's frank freedom of manner. Her ready camaraderie was taken for carelessness, and the candid grip of her hand was often misunderstood, and yet most of the men respected her, and some feared her. After her avowed choice of Clifford Belden they all kept aloof, for he was hot tempered and formidably swift to avenge an insult.

At the end of a week Norcross found himself restless and discontented with the Meekers. He was tired of fishing, tired of the old man's endless arguments and tired of the vulgar cowhands. The men around the mill did not interest him, and their Saturday night spree at the saloon disgusted him. The one person who piqued his curiosity was Landon, the ranger, who was stationed not far away and who could be seen occasionally riding by on a handsome black horse. There was something in his bearing, in his neat and serviceable drab uniform, which attracted the convalescent, and on Sunday morning he decided to venture a call, although Frank Meeker had said the ranger was a "grouch."

His cabin, a neat log structure, stood just above the road on a huge natural terrace of grassy bowlders, and the flag which fluttered from a tall staff before it could be seen for several miles, the bright sign of federal control, the symbol of law and order, just as the saloon and the mill were signs of lawless vice and destructive greed. Around the door flowers bloomed and kittens played.

The cabin's interior pleased Wayland almost as much as the garden. It was built of pine logs neatly matched and hewed on one side.

The ranger, spurred and belted, with his cuffs turned back, was pounding the typewriter when Wayland appeared at the open door, but he rose with grave courtesy. "Come in," he said and his voice had a pleasant inflection. "I'm interrupting."

"Nothing serious; just a letter. There's no hurry. I'm always glad of an excuse to rest from this job." He was at once keenly interested in his visitor, for he perceived in him the gentleman and, of course, the alien.

Wayland, with something of the feeling of a civilian reporting to an officer, explained his presence in the neighborhood.

"I've heard of you," responded the ranger, "and I've been hoping you'd look in on me. The supervisor's daughter has just written me to look after you. She said you were not very well."

Again Wayland protested that he was not a consumptive, only a student who needed mountain air, but he added, "It is very kind of Miss McFarlane to think of me."

Something in the music of this speech, and something in the look of the ranger's eyes, caused Wayland to wonder if here were not still another of Berrie's subjects. He became certain of it as the young officer went on, with pleasing frankness, and it was not long before he had conveyed to Wayland his cause for sadness. "She's engaged to a man that is not her equal. In a certain sense no man is her equal, but Belden is a pretty hard type, and I believe, although I can't prove it, that he is part owner of the saloon over there."

"How does that saloon happen to be here?"

"It's on patented land—a so called 'placer claim'—experts have reported against it. McFarlane has protested against it, but nothing is done. The mill is also on deeded land, and together they are a pingue spot. I'm their enemy, and they know it, and they've threatened to burn me out. Of course they won't do that, but they're ready to play any kind of trick on me."

"I can well believe that, for I am getting my share of practical jokes at Meeker's."

"They're not a bad lot over there—only just rowdy. I suppose they're initiating you," said Landon.

"I didn't come out here to be a cowboy," responded Norcross, "but Frank Meeker seems to be anxious to show me all the good old cowboy courtesies. On Monday he slipped a burr under my horse's saddle, and I came near to having my neck broken. Then he or some one else concealed a frog in my bed and fouled my hair brushes. In fact, I go to sleep each night in expectation of some new attack, but the air and the riding are doing me a great deal of good, and so I stay."

Thereafter Wayland spent nearly every day with the ranger, either in his cabin or riding the trail, and during these hours confidence grew until at last Landon confessed that his unrest arose from his rejection by Berrie.

"She was not to blame. She's so kind and free with every one I thought I had a chance. I was conceited enough to feel sorry for the other fellows, and now I can't even feel sorry for myself. I'm just dazed and hanging to the ropes. She was mighty gentle about it. You know how sunny her face is. Well, she just got grave and kind o' faint voiced and said— Oh, you know what she said! She let me know there was another man. I didn't ask her who, and when I found out I lost my grip entirely. At first I though I'd resign and get out of the country, but I couldn't do it. I can't yet. The chance of seeing her—of hearing from her once in awhile—she never writes except on business for her father, but—you'll laugh—I can't see her signature without a tremor." He smiled, but his eyes were desperately sad. "Oh, I'm crazy! I admit it. I didn't know such a thing could happen to me, but it has."

As Wayland listened to this outpouring he wondered at the intensity of the forester's passion. He marveled, too, at Berrie's choice, for there was something fine and high in Landon's worship. A college man with a mining engineer's training, he should go high in the service. "He made the mistake of being too precipitate as a lover," concluded Wayland. "His forthright courtship repelled her."

Of Interest to Women and the Home

"Oh, heigh-ho" says the jolly old sun.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Why the Sun Goes to Bed at Night.

"THE sun goes to bed at night just like a tired kiddy," said daddy. "At least let us pretend that he does. Of course he really doesn't at all. He smiles upon the Chinese children during the night in our own land. But just for the story we'll pretend that the jolly old sun goes to bed at night like a weary kiddy who has played too hard.

"So we'll imagine that the old sun gets up in the morning. Does he need an alarm clock, you ask? Oh, my, no, Jack! You see, he's been used to getting up at that particular hour for so many years and years that it's grown to be on his mind.

"'Oh, heigh-ho!' says the jolly old sun, with a prodigious yawn. 'I must be getting up this summer day, for there is so much to be done. There are all those little kiddies to be warmed, and they love my light so well to play in. Oh, heigh-ho! I mustn't sleep any longer. I must be getting up and about my work. Oh, heigh-ho, heigh-ho!'

"So the jolly old sun rises and washes his face with a few raindrops out of some convenient cloud and eats his breakfast of sweet morning breeze sprinkled with dew, and then he turns his red eye down at the waking world as he starts his journey toward the west. For he has some busy hours ahead of him.

"Now, the jolly old sun sees many strange and stirring sights during his trip away up in the blue sky, but I think he loves the kiddies best of all. And when he looks down and sees the kiddies trooping out of their homes during the glad vacation time he is so happy that he smiles a very jolly and crimson smile. His smile is so bright that you can't look at him right in the face. He is a very happy old sun because he is doing good.

"So he smiles upon the children at their play and makes them warm, and sometimes he smiles all the more when he makes them almost too warm, so that they have to wipe their little streaming faces with their handkerchiefs.

"And he notices the green growing things and the flowers and the leaves of the trees, and he says to himself, 'They need me, and so I will help them to grow.'

"So he does all the good he can and makes the world happier during the day. Sometimes a shower comes, but he keeps right on shining till he drives the clouds away.

"Then comes the night. 'Oh, hum!' says the sun. 'I'm tired. I think I've earned a night's rest.'

"So in the west there's a rosy bank of clouds waiting for him, and, tired with the long day, he lies down and sleeps, just like a tired kiddy."

SIMPLE AND SMART VACATION DRESS.

No. 8922-8827.

The making of vacation frocks is always a delight because of good times it foreshadows. The best part of the summer is yet before us and it is now an excellent time to start work on these garments—now when you are assured that the styles you select will be correct. A dress that will appeal to many young ladies for its smartness and simplicity is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8922-8827. The new convertible waists have many novel pocket arrangements as in No. 8922, where applied vest sections are stitched to form deep pockets. Skirt No. 8827 is a six-gored model with godets. Pattern No. 9822 cuts in sizes 32 to 46 inches bust measure, requiring in size 36, 2¼ yards 36-inch material. No. 8827 cuts in sizes 22 to 36 inches waist measure, requiring in size 24, 3 3-8 yards 36-inch material.

OFFICERS HEAR GOOD NEWS.

Washington, July 14.—That the dreaded 90-mile horseback ride instituted by President Roosevelt for army officers, to keep them in good physical trim, may be abondoned, is the good news that is circulating in this city. It is said that Major General Scott, chief of staff of the army, is considering the abolition of the strenuous test, and to substitute a monthly 20 mile ride or ten-mile walk. The Naval and Marine Corps officers now take the ten-mile walk each month, and the army men are hopeful that this method of compulsory exercise will be adopted.

WANT CROSSING ABOLISHED.

Somerville, July 14—A petition prepared by Borough Attorney A. M. Beekman in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Somerville Borough Council has been sent to the Board of Public Utility Commissioners with the object of having the grade crossing of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Bridge street eliminated. The crossing is considered one of the most dangerous along the line of the Central Railroad.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD.

Dick wrote:

"Dear Mother: I understand you are an heiress, and being your son I come in for a share of the plunder.

"Come down, you and father, and let's talk the situation over. It's been months since we have seen you. The baby has grown past all recognition and we want you to see what a robust little fellow he's got to be.

"Tell us when to meet you, and let it be soon.

"Lovingly, DICK."

So it happened that the following Saturday the old couple alighted on the platform in front of the dingy red depot.

"I can't see but that you look natural. Your wealth hasn't changed you," laughed Dick.

"It would take more than a few coppers from Europe to turn my head. Come on; I want to see Nell and the baby," and she moved away.

Dick gripped his father's hand; there never was need of words between them.

"Nell would have come to meet you if it had not been so blustery," he said as they followed his mother.

"This weather is not fit to bring a baby out in." She was striding up the snowy walk with nervous haste.

"Oh, mother, what do you think of the legacy?" Nell had hardly waited to greet her mother-in-law before beginning on the subject uppermost in her mind.

"I haven't thought much about it, to tell the truth. There's enough work on a farm, even in winter, to keep one from dwelling in castles in the air."

Nell looked disappointed. "Wouldn't you have been excited if there had been a chance of your being rich when you were young?" she asked.

"Perhaps, but there never was, and I had too much to do to imagine things, and have yet for that matter. I suppose it is rather upsetting," she added kindly, for Nell dropped her eyes, "but you take my advice and forget all about this airy promise of wealth. It's time enough to figure how to spend money when you have your hands on it. That seems to be the hardest thing to learn nowadays."

While they sat about the ruddy fire of the baseburner, after supper was cleared away and baby sound asleep, Dick said:

"My father's brother," began Mrs. Morton, "had an only son who was a bachelor. He lived alone on a large holding; large at least according to Swedish standards. He never visited or wrote to any of the family in America. It is this cousin who has recently died. As he was the only member of the family living there, the property came to the relatives in this country."

"Dick said they had a position at court," said Nell, a wicked twinkle in her eye.

"I believe some of the women did dawdle away their time as ladies in waiting, and long ago some of the men were 'Gentlemen of the Chamber,'" said Mrs. Morton with a scornful toss of her head, "but that foolishness is long past."

"Father, what would you like to do with this fortune if it comes?" asked Nell, drawing her rocker close to him and leaning against his knee.

"I do with it?" he answered, stroking her hair. "I'd get a little lady I know something she wanted very much. Can you tell me what that would be?"

"Oh, I want so many things I could hardly decide on one." She smiled up into his face.

"I thought you were a contented little person."

"I was, but——"

"I hope this money, if we get it, will not destroy the pleasure in honest, homely ways of thrift and comfort. May it sink into the bottom of the sea first," said Mrs. Morton solemnly.

"Here's a happy home; you have all you need for your comfort——"

"We could eliminate the debt I owe the doctor and add considerably to my comfort," interrupted Dick.

"True, debt is a poor bedfellow. Get rid of him by all means. As for the rest, you're well enough off. I hope the money will not swamp your good sense." Nell was silent.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Sweet Pickled Strawberries—Prepare two quarts berries as for canning. Add two cups sugar and slowly heat mixture to boiling point. Add half pint vinegar and continue boiling ten minutes. Then keep the berries over a slow fire, but below the boiling point, for one hour. Place berries in jars and boil sirup until it thickens. Fill jars to overflowing with the sirup and seal at once.

When Canning Cherries, if you should like the flavor of raspberries, take one-fifth as many berries as cherries; you will find that they make a much richer pie than cherries or berries alone and are not nearly so full of little seeds as when the berries are used alone.

Sweet Pickles—One gallon good vinegar, ten cents' worth saccharine sugar, one cup salt, two ounces ground cinnamon, two ounces ground mustard, two ounces ground cloves, two ounces ground alspice, one ounce ground alum, four ounces ground horseradish. Stir everything together. (This will make three gallons of pickles.) Pour over pickles, let stand two days, pour off, let come to boil, let cool, pour back on, cover with grape leaves and weight. They will keep for a year.

New Way to Label Fruit Jars—Cut out pictures to represent the different kinds of fruits and vegetables from seed catalogs and magazines. If there are not enough pictures for every kind, copies may be cut from white paper and tinted with water colors. This method of labeling is especially nice for home-canned vegetables. Another thing is that it gives employment to the children. They will enjoy cutting out pictures and making duplicates from a pattern with their paints.

Carrot Conserve—Dice carrots very small and cook very tender, cooking the water out of them. When cooked, allow one quart carrots, one-and one-half coffee cups sugar and grated rind and juice of a good-sized lemon. Cook again until thick. It has a very rich flavor and the order of quince or orange marmalades.

DELICIOUS DESSERTS.

New Strawberry Dish—Now that strawberries are at their best, don't fail to try the following: Crush the strawberries and mix with sugar (as you would for shortcake), and serve on BUTTERED TOAST. Proves equally delightful as breakfast, lunch or dinner dish.

Berry Sherbet—Crush one pound berries, add them to one quart water, one lemon sliced and one teaspoon orange flavor (if you have it). Let these ingredients stand in an earthen bowl for three hours; then strain, squeezing all the juice out of the fruit. Dissolve one pound of powdered sugar in it, strain again, and put on ice until ready to serve.

Cheese Tarts, which my family think very good; especially nice for picnics and at this time of year might be of help to those who wish variety in providing a picnic lunch. Line muffin tins with a rich pie crust and put into them the following mixture; two-thirds cup dried currants, half cup sugar, one tablespoon melted butter, yolks of two eggs beaten well, one cup milk, a little salt. Flavor with vanilla. Put in oven and bake about half hour, or until custard is thick. Take from oven and spread on top a frosting made of the whites of the two eggs beaten stiff and four tablespoons granulated sugar. Place in oven and brown. This will make one dozen tarts.

Currant Pie—Two eggs, one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, two tablespoons water, one cup mashed currants, two tablespoons granulated sugar. Fill pieplate lined with crust with the following mixture: beat the egg yolks with the sugar and add the flour, water and currants (which have been washed, stemmed and mashed). Mix thoroughly and bake until done. When cool cover with a meringue made by beating the whites of the eggs very stiff, adding gradually with the egg beater, the sugar. Put in moderate oven about eight minutes.

SUFFRAGISTS SEEK FRANKING PRIVILEGE

Want Same Rights Enjoyed by United States Senator Martine.

A resolution requesting United States Senator James E. Martine either to cease using his Senatorial frank for the circulation of anti-suffrage literature or to grant its use to the Suffragists for a similar purpose was passed by the Women's Political Union of New Jersey at the meeting of the executive board held at the headquarters, 79 Halsey street, Newark, Monday.

The following is the resolution:

"Whereas, United States Senator James Martine is circulating anti-suffrage literature under his Senatorial frank through New Jersey; and

"Whereas, The benefit of this Senatorial frank, if granted to either party, should be granted to Suffragists as well as Anti-Suffragists; be it

"Resolved, by the Women's Political Union of New Jersey that Senator Martine be requested either to cease to frank anti-suffrage literature in New Jersey or to grant us the use of his frank for New Jersey for the circulation of suffrage literature."

The Hudson County Woman Suffrage League, heretofore an independent organization, joined the Political Union. The league, which is three months old, has 240 members. Its president is Mrs. Mary F. McCormick, of Jersey City.

There was a large representation of presidents of branches from all over the State. The visitors were guests of the local organization at luncheon in the headquarters.

The State president, Mrs. Abraham VanWinkle, presided.

FUNERAL OF INFANT.

The funeral of Gilbert V. Cartwright, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cartwright, who died on Sunday, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents on West Sixth street. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church, officiated. The interment was made this morning in Hillside cemetery and was private.

Most men realize their responsibilities. They know that those whom they support in life must be supported when they are dead, and so they insure their lives. But in many cases they fail to provide for the investing and safeguarding of this insurance fund, with the result that it is often squandered or dissipated.

If you appoint The Plainfield Trust Company as Trustee under your will your insurance money will be invested according to law and your dependent ones will receive an assured income. We consider this matter so important that we have issued a booklet on the subject which will be sent you on request.

BORO MAN FOR AMERICAN SHIPS

OUTLINES HIS PLANS

Does Not Approve of Government Ownership and Operation of Merchant Vessels as Suggested in Proposed Seaman's Act.

Development of the Panama Steamship Line, as an experiment in the operation of merchant vessels owned by the government is a suggestion which is being given attention by a number of men interested in exporting and in shipping matters generally.

This suggestion has its leading champion in William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield. Mr. Saunders, who is president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, is chairman of the board of directors of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, and is identified as either president or director with many other important manufacturing concerns. For some years he has studied shipping problems, and has held the position of chairman of the merchant marine committee of the Foreign State Council. He is chairman of the Nicaragua committee of the new International High Commission, and is a member of the Board of Commerce and Navigation of the State of New Jersey.

Mr. Saunders, in common with many other New York business men representing manufacturing and shipping interests, is opposed to the seamen's act, considering it not only impractical, but certain to reduce the number of American ships in foreign trade. "The seamen's act," he said, "adds to the cost, now almost prohibitive, of operating ships under the United States flag. But," he went on to remark, "the repeal of the seamen's act, or essential changes in the act, will serve only to remove new restrictions. We must look ahead, and see what can be done in a positive way, before we can hope for a renaissance of America's merchant marine."

Subsidies, as a measure to help the merchant marine, are not favored by Mr. Saunders. "However," he stated, "help must come through some agency. I do not approve of government ownership and operation of merchant vessels in the way outlined in the ship purchase bill which failed to become law. I do, however, approve of trying, on a comparatively small scale, the experiment of practically government-controlled ships. I think the experiment would work out successfully, and moreover, that it would not hamper but actually encourage the development of privately owned steamship lines in the field under consideration.

"The experiment can be made with the Panama Steamship Line. This line is controlled by the Panama Railroad Company, which is owned by the United States Government. The business of the Panama Railroad Company was to build the Panama Canal. The company, now operating under a limited charter, framed to enable it to handle affairs at the Isthmus, could have its charter extended so that ships might operate between the United States and the east coast of Central and South America.

"The company is headed by General Goethals, in whom all America has confidence. It has ships, and could get more. Its assets include a substantial cash sum, amounting to several million dollars. It may be looked upon as ready to take up the work of expanding America's merchant marine.

"Its rates for Central and South American trade would be fair—this both for exporters and steamship competitors. No other arrangement, indeed, would be favored. The result, in my opinion, would be such an opening for the United States in the Central and South American trade as never has existed before. The effect on South American exports to this country also would be good. With trading stimulated I do not think there would be a holding to any one line; all lines would benefit by the stimulation. And, of course, if we found that the government-owned line were not operating well, it would be a simple matter to put an end to it.

"I firmly believe in the development of South American trade, and I feel that every reasonable effort should be made to develop it. I regard the Panama Steamship Line as an instrument ready for use."

Mr. Saunders voted with the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce in the recent referendum on the American merchant marine, taken at the instance of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Writing, in connection with the referendum, to M. A. Beeman, secretary of the New Jersey Chamber, Mr. Saunders ex-

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TAKE THRONG TO THE SHORE

Fifteen hundred excursionists, fourteen hundred and ninety-nine of whom had been up since the sun first poked its face through the eastern horizon, appeared at the eastbound General Railroad station around the hour of 8 this morning. About the same number that crept from between the sheets with the chickens were armed with lunch boxes of a formidable appearance and, strange to relate, all appeared to be talking seashore. Intermingled with the picnickers were a few stray commuters but by the time that the first section of a special train pulled into the depot at 8:40 the throng was one thinking wholly of recreation. The occasion for the early morning assemblage was the annual excursion of the Presbyterian Sunday-schools and chapels to Asbury Park and the prospects of having Old Sol's company for the day probably served to induce a number of outsiders to accompany the churchgoers of this denomination to "the town without a frown."

It took two sections of fifteen cars each to convey the mob to the seaside resort and the trip was made without incident, the excursionists being greeted by ideal weather conditions as they stepped from the trains shortly after 10 o'clock. The delayed start was due to the necessity of allowing commuters' trains to get through and it was not until after the 8:30 local had pulled out that the first special steamed in.

No excursion will go from Plainfield next Thursday and many evidently foresaw this fact for the number was the largest of the two recorded for excursions here this summer. Ocean bathing at Asbury Park today was at its best and the weather conditions left nothing wanting.

Around the hour of 9 o'clock tonight the same fifteen hundred Plainfielders, less a very few stay-overs, will get off the same trains at the westbound side of the North Avenue depot, sun-burned, tired and glad to get back to the Queen City.

TRIED TO STICK SPEAR INTO NEIGHBOR'S HEART

Admitting that she attempted to stick a formidable looking three-pronged steel spear through John Hurley's heart, Mrs. Delia Rasmussen, of 731 East Sixth street, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, to face a complaint in which she and her husband, Martin C. Rasmussen, were charged with disorderly conduct by Hurley, who is a neighbor. After hearing much testimony on both sides, and the pleas of Robert Newton Crane for the Rasmussens, and John P. Owens, for Hurley, Judge DeMeza ordered the contesting parties to shake hands and forget past differences, at the same time admonishing Mrs. Rasmussen to keep better control over her temper in the future.

Th defendant alleged in court that Hurley had called her vile names and this she gave as her reason for attempting to pierce his vital organ.

ST. MARY'S SOCIAL CLUB PLAN "MIDDY" RECEPTION

Another social event that promises to equal all its former entertainments will be given by the St. Mary's Social Club, Tuesday night, in T. A. B. Hall on West Fourth street. The affair will be in the form of a "Middy Reception" and lawn party and the latter will be held on the spacious lawn fronting the hall. Beside many new features the committe has in store for all attendants, dancing will be an attraction, music being furnished by a four-piece orchestra.

The young women having charge of the arrangements are the Misses Anna Howe, chairman; Nora Meaney, Mary Lappin, Catherine Deady, Nellie Higgins, Henrietta Graniery and Hazel Hogan.

FUNERAL IN PLAINFIELD.

The funeral service of Rev. Charles E. Dunn, whose death occurred at his summer home in Spring Lake, Sunday, will be held from the Tioga Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, today. Mr. Dunn was pastor of the latter church until his death. Burial will be made in Hillside cemetery this afternoon upon the arrival of the 5:43 train from Philadelphia, with the body.

SWALM IMPROVING.

"Shorty" Swalm, of Watchung avenue, who broke a leg sliding into second base in a baseball game between Westfield and Watchung, Saturday, is doing nicely. He is under the care of Dr. Endicott.

BOOM FRED BENNETT FOR A STATE OFFICE

Knights of the Gloden Eagle held a visitation meeting in New Brunswick last night, at Odd Fellows' Hall, where Knights from near and far gathered to partake of the hospitality of the New Brunswick Castle, No. 71. It was the greatest gathering of this kind ever held in that city. Many of the State officers were in attendance and spoke of fraternity, dwelling principally on the principles of the order.

Freedom Castle, of this city, was represented by a large delegation, the commandery wearing their showy uniforms. They made the trip in a large auto bus. Among the speeches delivered by the visiting officers were those by Past Grand Chief Kinney, Past Grand Chief Dey, Captain Dr. Pratt and Past Chief Becker, of this city.

During the discussion a boom was started for Fred Bennett, of this city, for grand keeper of exchequer, the election to be held at the annual convention of the Knights of the Golden Eagle at Trenton, Monday, September 20. The New Brunswick Knights endorsed Mr. Bennett for the State office.

GROCERS MAY HAVE WEEKLY HALF-HOLIDAY IN AUGUST

The annual agitation to have the local storekeepers close up one day a week during the hot month of August has sprung up and with this point in view a committee of self-appointed grocers is consulting with store-owners. It is proposed to have the grocers of the city close Thursday afternoons and it may be possible to get men in other lines of trade to fall in with the idea.

It has been customary for some merchants to give their clerks the much-needed mid-week half-holiday during August in the past, but there has always been that outstanding few who refuse to follow the custom. One dry goods man said this afternoon that several of the store-owners in his line of business would accord their clerks special privileges, such as taking one day off during August, but that he knew of no movement to close down for one half day.

MISS BORNMANN INJURED.

Miss Elizabeth Bornmann, of Warrenville, was injured yesterday afternoon, while trying to put a cow in a stable on her farm. The cow became frightened and started to run away. Miss Bornmann was thrown, being cut and bruised. It was only through the efforts of Miss Bornmann's twelve-year-old nephew that more serious injury did not result. He grabbed the rope and by plucikly holding fast was able to stop the cow within a short distance.

MAKE AN APPEAL.

The officers of the Salvation Army make an appeal to the public on behalf of the two hundred poor children of Plainfield to secure sufficient funds to entertain them on a day's outing Wednesday, July 21, and they ask that all who are able to do so may contribute to a charitable cause worthy of their support. The adjutant will appreciate and acknowledge any donation sent in her care.

BOROUGH TAX SALE.

George F. Brown, tax collector of North Plainfield, is busy preparing a list of property holders who have not paid their taxes for the year 1914, and the list will be advertised next Wednesday for the first time. After being advertised for five weeks, the properties will be offered for sale. This tax sale will probably be held sometime the latter part of August or the fore part of September.

FAINTED ON THE STREET.

Mrs. Theodore Gray, of West Front street, had a fainting spell on West Front street, this morning, and fell, bruising her head slightly. She was helped into a near-by store, from which her son-in-law, Dr. Arthur H Dundon, of Somerset street, later removed her to her home in his automobile.

150,000 MEN IDLE.

London, July 15—Virtually all collieries in South Wales are idle today as a result of the miners demand for additional wages. It is estimated that 150,000 men are out of work. The Government is trying to settle the dispute and expect to end the trouble tonight.

DIED AWAY FROM HOME.

Mrs. Carrie Ludwig, a resident of Philadelphia, died in North Plainfield, yesterday, where she had gone for treatment. The remains were sent to Philadelphia for interment today. Mrs. Ludwig came to North Plainfield from Asbury Park.

A. J. Hamley Gets Mill for $6,500 and H. R. Hall Secures Coal and Grain Property for $3,700—New Company May Be Formed.

The property of the defunct New Market Roller Mills was sold at auction yesterday afternoon by Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick, the receiver. The sale attracted a large number of interested people. Arthur J. Hamley, cashier of the First National Bank, Dunellen, who held a mortgage for $6,500, purchased the mill property for $6,000. When interest and insurance are paid the difference of $500 will probably be reduced to $100 and in consequence creditors are disappointed.

The coal and grain property was sold to Harry R. Hall, vice president of the defunct company, for $3,700. This will satisfy a mortgage of $3,000 held by J. Y. Rupell, of New Market, and after the payment of interest and insurance there will be left about $500 for the creditors.

The creditors' claims, it is said, will aggregate fully $75,000, according to a statement made last night, by Mr. Hall to a reporter for the Plainfield Daily Press. The largest creditors are the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company with a claim of $18,000, and T. A. Pierce, Sr., with a claim of $20,000. The New Market Roller Mills Company was incorporated on September 17, 1913, with a capital stock of $50,000. The officers chosen at a meeting of stockholders were: President, Herbert L. Pierce; vice president, H. R. Hall; treasurer, E. A. Torbert; secretary, Joseph San, the last two named being of New York city.

Up to the time of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Herbert L. Pierce and E. A. Torbert on February 6 last, it was generally supposed that the concern was in a prosperous condition. New and modern machinery was installed in the mill and the building was painted. The general appearance of the property indicated prosperity.

So far as known nothing has been heard from Pierce since he left New Market. Mr. Hall said last night that as far as he knew no one in New Market had received any word from him, neither do they know of his whereabouts. Mr. Hall added that he as well as many farmers in the vicinity who received Pierce's notes in exchange for cash would like to know where the missing man is located.

It was brought to Mr. Hall's attention that Eva Fay upon her last visit to Proctor's Theatre, this city, in answer to a question, said that Pierce was in California, whereupon he replied: "I wished I knew for a fact that he was there."

When questioned as to what he proposed doing with the coal and grain property which he purchased, Mr. Hall said that the property would probably be purchased from him by a new company, of which he would be the head and the business resumed. It is understood that Mr. Hamley acquired the mill property for speculative purposes. It is the opinion of many that Mr. Hamley secured the property for at least half of its real value.

SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATION IS FORMED

Elizabeth, July 15.—C. Edward Schumacker, of Plainfield, who spent some time in the county jail, formed a social and religious organization there for special Sunday services, and it has attracted the attention of outsiders. Sheriff Otto received a communication yesterday from Mrs. Rita Koelsch, of the Brooklyn Auxiliary of the Little Mothers' Aid Association, asking if religious brochures would be accepted for the prisoners' use, and he replied in the affirmative.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

Elizabeth, July 15.—Among several parcels of land disposed of at sheriff's sale at the courthouse yesterday afternoon, was a plot in Arlington avenue, Plainfield, 151 feet from a stone which marks the intersection of Arlington avenue and Union street. It was purchased by the complainant, Carolyn Vail Cutler, administratrix of the estate of Anthony C. Vail, from Etta H. Evans, defendant, for $2,000.

MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR EUCHRE PARTY

Novelties Will Feature Reception to Be Given in the Columbus Club.

What promises to be an evening of pleasant entertainment featured by many novel presentations will be given in the Columbus Club, Friday, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. While the affair has been styled as a euchre the many side features will make the event an attractive one for other amusement seekers besides card players.

David B. Doyle is the chairman in charge of the arrangements and he has selected a corps of able assistants to work with him Friday evening. They include M. T. Moynihan, Joseph F. O'Keefe, Arthur A. Cannon, Paul R. Burns, Robert McCormack, T. J. Meaney, John J. Hines, M. D. O'Keefe, John J. Varley, Anthony Martell, George J. Tobin, Daniel J. Couraine, Joseph McCarthy, Thomas F. Carty, John J. Carty, James Hurley, John M. Doyle, James Strappe, George Howe, Daniel McCormack, William G. Messler and Michael Griffin. Members of the Second Night Club will also work as a committee for the entertainment.

The card games will include pinochle, "500" and euchre and twenty-five awards will be distributed. "Al" Squires' orchestra will furnish the music for a shirtwaist dance which will follow the card playing. Shadow dances will be a feature of this latter number. One of the most prominent added attractions will be the scenic presentation of one of Charlie Chaplin's latest film hits, entitled, "A Hair Comb," in two parts, or "Reel Life."

MRS. PEARSON UNDERGOES A DELICATE OPERATION

Frank Vermeule, of East Sixth street, received a telegram this morning informing him of the illness of his sister, Mrs. Margaret Pearson, wife of Lieut. Samuel B. Pearson, at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming. Mrs. Pearson underwent an operation yesterday for abcess on the appendix, a specialist from Denver performing the operation. The telegram stated that at the time it was sent Mrs. Pearson was doing well.

Mrs. Pearson has not been well for some time and the death of her mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Vermuele, which occurred at her home last week following a long illness, was a shock to her. Mrs. Vermeule was buried at the military post at Fort D. A. Russell. The family is well-known in this city where they lived for many years. Lieut. Pearson was also a former Plainfielder. He has been in the United States army for a number of years.

PLAINFIELDERS GIVEN HIGH K. OF P. HONORS

William J. Trembath, George Keen and H. Victorson, all members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of Plainfield, were signally honored yesterday at the national convention of the order in session at Asbury Park. All three are past chancellors of Perseverance, and they were admitted to the grand lodge of the State. The exercises took place in the Asbury Park Casino, on the board walk, where sessions of the convention were held.

In addition to having the degree conferred upon him, Mr. Trembath assisted in initiating a class of eighteen, while John G. Bicknell, also of Perseverance lodge, acted as vice-chancellor. In this initiation the famous Rathbone Bible, used by the order for over half a century, was used.

FREEHOLDERS MEET WITH STATE ROAD COMMISSION

In order to learn the probable sum of money the county will receive from the State for the repair of highways, Freeholders Henry Krouse and S. P. T. Wilbur, of the road committee, and County Engineer Bauer consulted with the State road commissioner in Trenton yesterday afternoon. The money received by the State for motor vehicle licenses is annually apportioned among the various counties. The information as to the sum to be expected by this county is desired prior to making up the budget so the Board will be better able to estimate how much to appropriate for county roads.

U. S. ASTOR MANAGER.

W. H. Smith, of Elizabeth, has been appointed manager of the Astor Theatre in this city. The present manager has been assigned to a theatre of the concern in East Orange.

MIANTONOMO TRIBE ADOPTS PALE FACES

Membership List Swelled and Chiefs Raised at Meeting Last Night.

Eight candidates were taken into Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., at a class adoption and installation of chiefs last night. There was a large attendance, at least a hundred being gathered in the council chamber. Delegations from Somerville, Westfield and Cranford were present.

The adoption work was done by the Miantonomo team. After the degree work the raising of chiefs took place. This was in charge of Deputy Great Sachem Joseph Sitzga, of Somerville, members of his tribe assisting him and acting as his staff.

Following are the chiefs installed: Prophet, Lewis K. Clarke; Sachem, Charles Meyer, Jr.; senior sagamore, Peter Lund; junior sagamore, Elmer Bailey; chief of records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, Charles L. Holstein, Jr.; first sannat, D. W. Mundy; second sannat, T. Parsons; guard of wigwam, Edward Perry; guard of forest, Samuel Montross; warriors, Peter Sheridan, John Hardgrove, Michael Klinek and John Warosky; braves, M. Kunzman, Harry Vogel, Edward Yannato and Edward Julliard.

Following the installation there were talks by the various great chiefs present. During the evening Chief of Records Charles L. Holstein presented Past Deputy Great Sachem Charles Schultz, of Cranford, with a past sachem's regalia on behalf of the tribes in District No. 47, in which Miantonomo is located. A feast of "corn and venison" closed the evening.

The next district adoption will take place Thursday evening, September 2, in the council chamber of Tonoluka Tribe, at Cranford.

BOY ARRESTED FOR ROBBING GAS METER

Charged with breaking open a gas meter in the cellar of the residence of Mr. Jimmerson, 233 Somerset street, and extracting its contents, Clarence Lacours, twelve years old, who lives quite near the Jimmerson home on the same street, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the North Plainfield police department, this morning. He is alleged to have admitted his guilt, and is being held for a hearing before Recorder Hand.

The police say that Lacours is an old offender and that while young has been before the police court several times. The gas meter was one of the kind known as "quarter meters," and Lacours declared that it held only fifty cents.

The robbery was discovered this morning and the case reported to the police. Chief Weiss had his suspicions directed to Lacours, and soon had him in custody.

JUDGE HETFIELD DISMISSES SUIT FOR DAMAGES TO WHEEL

Claiming that Daniel Sylvester, of Garwood, had negligently run into his wheel with a motorcycle on West Front street, smashing it and badly injuring him, George Bujaninski, of this city, brought action in the Plainfield District Court yesterday, for $500 damages. The case failed to convince Judge Hetfield that there was sufficient cause for action, however, and the suit was accordingly dismissed in Sylvester's favor. The local law firm of DeMeza & Crane represented Sylvester, while J. Milton Preger, of New Brunswick, was attorney for the complainant.

The defense showed that the plaintiff caused the accident by running into the motorcycle from the rear, through his own negligence, the Garwood man's motorcycle having passed and given the bicycle rider the signal to slow down for the street crossing ahead. This defense took the plaintiff's lawyer completely by surprise.

GERMANS ATTACK ALLIES' POSITIONS

TWO HILLS CAPTURED

London, July 15.—A despatch from the correspondent of the Central News in northern France says that action on a tremendous scale is developing in the region of Ypres, where the Germans, following an intense bombardment with shells filled with asphyxiating gases, have attacked the British positions. The British troops repulsed the German attack and inflicted severe losses upon the Kaiser's forces. There were counter attacks by the British, who gained some advantage. The action spread along a largely extended front.

The Allies' troops at the Dardanelles captured two hills dominating the town of Krithia on July 12 and took 4,000 Turks prisoners, according to a Mitylene despatch.

From other sources it is learned that the Turks recently have made many futile attacks on the Allies' positions, which cost them dearly in lives. The Daily Chronicle says the arrival of Enver Pasha on the Gallipoli front was the signal for a prodigal waste of men. It is confirmed by this paper that it was Enver Pasha who issued a general order that the Allies must be driven into the sea, although the other Turkish commanders were inclined to defensive tactics.

Many attacks have been made in mass formation, but have gained the Turks no footing on the ground already conquered by the Allies.

London, July 15—A despatch from Berlin says that the statement given out at German army headquarters today announced the capture by the Germans of Przasnysz, a town of Russian Poland, fifty miles north of Warsaw.

Constantinople, via Amsterdam, July 15.—The following official statement was made public last night by the war office:

"Near Avi Burnu on Monday the enemy, after a heavy artillery fire, attempted to advance against our right wing, simultaneously throwing bombs. The attack failed. The enemy then retired.

"An attack on our right wing was easily repulsed and the enemy fled. We captured a quantity of munitions, arms and other material.

"Near Sedd-el-Bahr, the enemy, supported by a portion of the fleet, after a heavy artillery fire attacked our right and left wings at that point. The attack was repeated three times and was repulsed each time with big losses.

"The struggle on the left wing has assumed the character of trench fighting without result. We captured two machine guns there. Although the enemy has fired about 60,000 shells and has suffered severe losses he has gained no advantage."

Paris, July 15.—The French war statement follows:

"There was considerable activity during the night in the region to the north of Arras. To the south of the Chateau De Carleul we captured a line of German trenches. Around Neuville St. Vaast and the labyrinth last night's conflicts were with grenades. In the Argonne the conflict was limited to the region situated to the west of the Argonne forest where we made progress yesterday. To the north of the road from Servon, after a series of counter attacks, the Germans succeeded in regaining a foothold in the forest of Beaurein. In the rest of that sector the situation has undergone no modification. Between Fey En Hays and Le Pretre forest the enemy, making an attempt to sortie from his position, was immediately checked by our curtains of fire and the fire of our infantry."

Amsterdam, July 15.—The German Admiralty has proclaimed a state of siege at Kiel in anticipation of an attack by British airships and submarines upon the great naval base, according to advices from Berlin.

Turin, July 15.—The great battle which has been in progress around Gorizia for the last two days continues. The Italians are throwing men forward against the Austrian positions in terrific assaults and are meeting a fierce resistance which yields ground only in inconsiderable areas.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the "For Sale" ads.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MISS HETFIELD HELD

Many Mourners Attend Obsequies Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral of Miss Anna Hetfield, who died early Sunday morning at her home, 459 High street, Newark, from heart trouble, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of W. R. Hetfield, 371 North avenue, this borough. The funeral was largely attended by friends and relatives of the departed from Waldron, N. Y., Newark, Plainfield, Bound Brook, New Market and this place. Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated, and he spoke in the highest of terms of the deceased, making fitting reference to her Christian life.

The floral tributes were beautiful There was a large piece of pink carnations and greens from the teachers of the Fifteenth Avenue School at Newark, where Miss Hetfield taught, and a set piece of sweet peas, roses and greens from a guild at Newark in which she was an active member. Friends in Newark sent a beautiful piece made of white lilies, and there was a pillar made of sweet peas, roses and carnations from the sisters. In addition there were five other pieces.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Frank H. Fuller, who sang "Abide With Me" and "Safe In the Arms of Jesus," Miss Laura Todd, pianist, accompanied.

The burial was at the Hillside cemetery, Plainfield. The pall-bearers were: Fred Melick, of Alton; George M. Miller, of Plainfield; Le Roy Miller, of Waldron, N. Y.; Charles Debele, of Plainfield; Firman H. Gise and W. R. Hetfield.

BOROUGH HEALTH BOARD IS ACTIVE THESE DAYS

Printed cards being distributed about town by the Board of Health certify the prevailing belief that that organization is very much on the job. If the following sanitary rules printed upon these cards are faithfully observed by the populace Dunellen will shortly be as sanitary as it is possible for any municipality to be:

Cleanup day—Cleanup day was a gigantic success. Why not keep up the enthusiasm by completing the work and for all time maintain the standard of ideal sanitation.

Swat the fly—Don't permit them in the house; don't permit them near articles of food; don't buy foodstuffs where flies are tolerated; don't eat where flies have access to the food; eliminate the breeding places of flies, including pig-pens, manure pits and dirty chicken-yards.

Exterminate the mosquito—Fill in all stagnant pools of water or thoroughly drain them. Pour a gallon of kerosene oil in each cesspool or water-closet vault. Keep all grass weeds and underbrush mowed short at all times.

Polluting streams—Avoid the polluting of all streams in the borough, whether it be sewage or other foreign matter.

Cesspools—Cesspools must be cleaned out at such intervals as to keep them from overflowing. The sewage plant will not be in operation for several months.

Complaints solicited—The Board of Health earnestly invites complaints from all citizens, which petitions will be treated confidentially and will be acted upon promptly. Co-operate with and support your Health Board at all times.

MAYOR LATHAM SUFFERS ATTACK OF HEART TROUBLE

Mayor E. B. Latham has been suffering a slight attack of heart trouble, which fact has only been known to the members of the Mayor's family and a few of his intimate friends. The family was greatly concerned at first, but their fears were later alleviated to a great extent by the family physician, who said that the trouble was merely caused by overwork and that a complete rest would remedy the trouble. The Mayor accordingly spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Lebanon in complete relaxation and as his physician said would be the case, he returned to the borough feeling much better and he has been able to resume commuting regularly to his business in New York.

The Mayor is head of the firm of E. B. Latham & Company, a large electrical supply concern with two houses, one on Murray street, New York, and the other in Philadelphia. The business of the concern has been rapidly expanding during the past several years and the firm is at present engaged in taking over the business of another electrical concern located on Forty-second street, New York. The work entailed upon the Mayor by this new venture, coupled with the increasing adminstrative duties of the firm's other houses, has been a great tax upon him.

WILLARD N. APGAR WANTS TO BE BORO POSTMASTER

Willard N. Apgar, who announced his candidacy for the postmastership of the borough, early this year, has commenced the circulation of a petition for the appointment. From the number of signers which Mr. Apgar has succeeded in obtaining in the short time which he has been circulating his petition his appointment would undoubtedly be a very popular one. As the time, the first of the year, for the appointment of the postmaster to succeed Henry S. Garretson, the present incumbent of the office, approaches interest in the appointment correspondingly increases.

The candidates for the appointment are: Willard N. Apgar, Assessor J. H. L. Peters, former Mayor William Wyckoff, G. Sumner Smith and Charles E. Tinsman. The names of George W. Day and Michael T. Moyniban have been mentioned from time to time as the names of those who are working quietly for the position.

All of those who have announced that they are candidates have their friends who are working strenuously for them and the contest promises to be a tight and heated one. It sometimes happens that when a contest is as close as this one promises to be that a black sheep slips in.

Mrs. Della Blackford, of New Market road, has gone to Brooklyn to spend a few weeks with friends.

Mrs. Thomas Beck, of Jackson avenue, has returned from the Brookside Sanitarium, at Plainfield, where she underwent an operation three weeks ago. The operation appears to have been successful.

Corporation Notice

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., July 6, 1915.

AN ORDINANCE

A Supplement to An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance For the Assessment of Taxes For the Year 1915," Approved June 7th, 1915.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this school district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district for the ensuing school year, beginning July 1st, 1915, and ending June 30th, 1916, exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools, to wit: The sum of One Hundred Fourteen Thousand Three Hundred and Fifty ($114,350) Dollars, and has made two certificates of said amount signed by four members of said Board, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district and the other to the Common Council of said City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19th, 1903, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the sum of One Hundred Fourteen Thousand Three Hundred and Fifty ($114,350) Dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year nineteen hundred and fifteen in the same manner as money appropriated for other purposes in this City are required to be assessed, levied and collected.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

In keeping with their policy that the best is none too good for their patrons, the management of Proctor's Theatre has secured William Fox's five-part film production of "Should a Mother Tell," to be shown at the theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. Betty Nansen, the world's most eminent tragedienne, answers the question, playing the title role of the mother. Miss Nansen believes that in its plot there is unfolded a story that surpasses in interest anything in which she has demonstrated her marvelous artistry and wonderful dramatic genius.

Should a mother eat her heart out in silence, to protect those near and dear to her when, by betraying her inmost secret, she could save herself? On witnessing this picture one is confronted with this problem that seems, at first, to be unanswerable. It seems almost unjust for frail woman to be called upon to face such a question. Probably there has never been so powerful a story written as this by Rex Ingram. Undoubtedly never has there been portrayed, either upon the screen or upon the legitimate stage, such a delineation of the strength of mother love as is given by Betty Nansen, the queen of emotional acting. In "Should a Mother Tell," William Fox has furnished her with a vehicle that brings out such emotional stress as to leave the audience spellbound—almost stunned. Ably supporting Miss Nansen are Stuart Holmes, Jean Sothern and an eminent cast of the Fox calibre. No man, woman or child should miss seeing this wonderful picture that teaches a lesson to all.

Saturday's program of pictures will include the wonderful drama of men and women in the five-reel production staged by D. W. Griffith, "The Battle of the Sexes" or "The Single Standard." The story depicts the great conflict in modern society. It is the war of opinion over the question of the single standard of moral responsibility for men and women. This powerful and systematic photo-drama demonstrates the utter degradation of any theory justifying the husband in conduct contrary to the marriage vow. "The Battle of the Sexes" is a drama of real New York life among the people of wealth and refinement. The characters are typical of Fifth avenue, the famous restaurants and the exculsive The Dansants. All the action transpires in an apartment house of the most expensive sort, and the gowns of the women are an added attraction worthy of mention.

The next reel of travel pictures will be shown, also the succeeding episode of "The Goddess."

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"The Reward," a play of extraordinary dramatic appeal, and Charles Chaplin, will share topline honors at the U. S. Astor Theatre today, when a bill of unusually high quality will be presented. "The Reward," as a photoplay, should prove extremely popular, for it has a theme which has stood the test of time and its appeal today is as strong as it has ever been. The direction and photogrphy are of an unusual standard of excellence.

"The Woman," affords Charlie Chaplin plenty of opportunity to put new Chaplinisms into effect. In the film Chaplin takes a stroll in a park where he sees a man, his wife and daughter seated on a bench. The husband sees a pretty girl passing and smiles at her. She smiles back and he makes an excuse to his wife to get away and follows her. The girl inveigles him into playing a game of blind man's buff and when he is securely blindfolded robs him of his pocketbook.

Chaplin offers to lead the man back to his wife, but instead takes him to the sea and pushes him in. He then introduces himself to the wife and daughter and they take him home with them. When the husband gets back he is introduced to the new found friend. He recognizes Chaplin's voice and a fight is started. Chaplin, after losing part of his wearing apparel, escapes by running upstairs.

Presently he appears minus mustache, dressed in the daughter's clothing. The flirtatious husband then tries to make up to Chaplin and stirs his wife's jealousy. Another battle is started and the wife discovers that Chaplin is not a woman. He finally is hurled out into the street and wends his sad way homeward.

CAMPERS COME AND GO.

Fifteen of the twenty-two Plainfield Y. M. C. A. boys who went to Camp Wawayanda two weeks ago returned yesterday, leaving seven of their number to remain another two weeks. These seven were joined by three new boys yesterday morning, who made up the second section from this city to go for a fortnight's outing. The trip was made by auto bus.

"ON WINGS OF JOY."

"On Wings of Joy" is a new composition for the piano composed by Ludwig Thoms, the blind musician of this city. The piece has been placed on the market and is meeting with a good sale. Mr. Thoms wrote the composition after being stricken with blindness.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS.

A man of sixty-two who retired from business at fifty-six recently wrote to a metropolitan newspaper to say that his past six years have been the happiest of his life and to advise others to seek "golden leisure" while still able to enjoy, instead of "chasing a superfluity of dollars in selfish concern and perhaps only to be dissipated by those who inherit."

The advice is good if the leisure proposed involves change from an exacting ocupation to a lighter one that interests while it does not heavily burden, but the advice is bad if the leisure recommended is to consist merely in seeking amusement that must soon become wearisome when made a daily business. Globe-trotting and local entertainment of various kinds may serve for a season, but no man of the right sort who keeps his health can find contentment without an occupation that holds his attention and keeps his mind alert. Many men continue in business or the professions until late in life not so much for the pecuniary return as for the greater reward furnished by the consciousness of achievement and for the daily entertainment which their work supplies.

Perhaps a man of fifty-six was old enough to retire a half century or more ago. Certainly the portraits of the celebrities of that era convey the impression that men of fifty to sixty were tending rapidly toward old age. In that period even men in the forties are known to have called themselves "old," and, judging from their portraits, looked it as often as not. Now men in the forties not only look comparatively young but are capable of unremitting toil, and men in the fifties, though they need to work less hard, are usually in the prime of their intellectual powers. In consequence this has been called an age of "old young men."

The man of fifty-six and more should indeed take time to invite soul and to "play" in season, but he should still have something to give to a busy world in need of all its capable workers, and he should beware of the fatal error of permitting the clock of a previously active mind to run down. Most of the prominent men of our time have retained their best faculties long after fifty-six and exercised them fruitfully, some continuing to do so even until arrival at four score years.

It was intimated during the discussion over spending the entire appropriation for the new Plainfield postoffice, that a city of this size was fortunate in getting the building now under construction, and that probably were the effort just begun the city would be refused the opportunity. That this was more than "hot air" is now demonstrated by the fact that the Treasury Department, which has charge of construction, has decided to use its own discretion in such matters, and even if Congress does appropriate the money, the department may prevent it being spent. In the past there have been cases where expensive postoffices have been built in towns where the postal receipts were insufficient to sustain them. Here in Plainfield a business of $94,000 a year is done, and we are to have a building costing, with the land, about $120,000. On the gross business done there are mighty few business men who would invest that much in a building, so perhaps we are fortunate in securing so fine a structure. Postoffices are now to be classed, and the sites acquired will be graded according to class, which is to be determined by the receipts.

Borough people realize that Mayor Clark has been a careful, painstaking and efficient mayor during the two terms that he has held the office. His advocacy of consolidation, terminating in a successful election in favor of that move demonstrated more than any other thing that he had the best interests of the place at heart, and it can truthfully be said that the borough has never had a chief executive more attentive to the duties of the office. Hence the announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election will be received with regret by hundreds of his admirers over the brook. What an ideal community this would be were the city and borough to be united, placed under commission government, with a commission made up of such men as Mayor Clark to carry on its affairs!

The popularity of the High School swimming pool, since it has been thrown open to the use of the public is attested by the fact that it has been necessary to add extra hours for the boys in order to accommodate the large number who wish to use it.

These are the days when people are wishing for an excursion to Asbury Park every day in the week. To-day will be the last chance for two weeks, the schedule for the year having been made up somehow or other so as to omit Thursday, July 22.

The "Made in U. S. A. League," which has been formed, nationally is a fine thing. Now it is up to the local housewives to form a "Bought in Plainfield" organization, and the merchants' joy will be complete.

Now that the sewer work is well underway in North Plainfield the residents of that borough have a splendid opportunity of seeing the way in which their money is being sunk. And that's no better way to sink it.

What better argument can there be in favor of a jitney bus line on Front street than the fact that for an hour and a half on Tuesday night not a Main Line car went west.

President Wilson has had to keep his ear close to the ground during political campaigns, but up in New Hampshire he is keeping it close to the telephone.

Jitney movies have cut to half price the thrill that the small boy used to get out of a dime novel.

THE FORUM

I am a regular reader of your valuable newspaper and have perused with interest the many and varied views expressed on women in politics. May I infringe upon your space to give you the views of a man who is an agriculturist by profession and training and who believes in maintaining the form of government which has made this republic the greatest nation of the world?

Why should women vote? That is the question that is ringing from ocean to ocean and reverberating from the Canadian boundary to the Mexican border.

In studying this all-absorbing economic question, it is indeed gratifying to note that it is not the farmer's wife who is clamoring for the ballot. She is too busy making happier homes, moulding the minds of the future citizens and sharing with her husband the cares of life to indulge in political gossip. The ballot will give her no relief from her present duties, give no assistance in clothing the children or bringing to the home additional comforts, conveniences or opportunities in life. It is, as a rule, the city woman, promoted to luxury and idleness by prosperity, who is leading the suffrage movement.

From many standpoints perhaps a woman should vote as much as a man, but the prerogative of the ballot is not a right. This has been decided by that final authority, the United States Supreme Court. She has as much right to plow as a man; she has as much right to work in a factory as a man; she has as much right to shoulder a musket as a man, but we would rather she would not do so from choice and we regret that oftimes necessity compels her to earn her own living by engaging in some gainful occupation. We do not consider misfortune a qualification for the ballot or business accident as a reason for granting the franchise. We are opposed to women in the field, in the factory and in the army for the self-same reasons. We had rather see her plant flowers than sow wheat; gather bouquets than to pick cotton; and rear children than to raise political issues, although she may have as much right to do one as the other.

Sex qualification for suffrage may have its apparent inconsistencies. No general rule adjusts itself to all conditions. While culture and refinement, and even morality are desirable virtues, they are not the only qualifications for the franchise.

The primary, inherent and inseparable fitness for suffrage is supporting a family. The plow handle, the forge, the struggle for bread afford experience necessary to mark the ballot properly. Government is a great big business and civilization from the beginning has assigned woman to the home and man to the business affairs of life.

There has been much freakish legislation enacted in the last decade which no doubt appeals to women's love for the ridiculous, but to undertake to unsex the human race by law is the height of legislative folly and a tragedy to mankind.

We are opposed to the equal rights of women—we want her to ever remain our superior. We consider women's desire to seek man's level the "yellow peril" of the twentieth century.

Woman is the medium through which the angels whisper their messages to mankind; it is her hand that plants thought in the intellectual vineyard; it is through her heart that hope, love and sympathy overflow and bless mankind.

Christ—the liberator of womankind—was satisfied to teach the lessons of life and He was a man. He chose to rule over the human heart and refused worldly power and men followed Him; women washed His feet; little children climbed upon His knees and the Ruler of the Universe said that in Him He was well pleased.

Can women find a higher calling than this?

FAVORS AMERICAN SHIPS

"I have a plan which differs from any of the plans proposed. I refer to the proposition to utilize the Panama Steamship Line to meet the present shipping emergency and to test the question of government direction or control. This Panama Steamship Line has a limited charter so that it would be necessary to change the charter and give it broader powers, but what appeals to me about the proposition is that here is an organization that, while it is owned and controlled by the government, is separate and distinct in that its president and officers have had experience in the shipping business. The president is General George W. Goethals, whose knowledge of shipping in South and Central America and conditions that obtain there would be valuable and who would inspire confidence as an executive fit to handle this great work.

"The organization over which General Goethals has presided for several years has accumulated about twenty million dollars' worth of assets, consisting of ships, coal, etc.; it has about three million dollars' worth of cash on hand, and is a going concern. It might increase its capital, purchase more ships and handle the shipping interests of Central and South America, thus developing our business in the Americas."

In a second letter to Mr. Beeman, Mr. Saunders wrote that he should like to have the suggestion embodied in his former letter recorded in transmitting the referendum to the National Chamber. He continued:

"This plan (the Panama Steamship Line suggestion) is based fundamentally upon the thought that a change so radical as a departure from private to government ownership should be made by a moderate first step rather than a sudden large move. It should first be tried in a modest and practical way.

"Another point is that there is a difference between the Panama Steamship Line controlled by a board of directors over which General Goethals presides and with a complete organization of shipping men, and government ownership directly through the officials of the United States Government. I think this distinction holds notwithstanding the fact that all of the stock of the Panama line is owned by the government.

"Another point is that the need of ships being apparent, and the establishment of our merchant marine being urgent and difficult, our first duty is to the Americas, especially while Europe is at war."

THERE WILL BE NO DECREASE IN FARES

Jitneys, However, Are Giving Public Service Corporation Much Concern.

Jitneys may flit about, pick up passengers and nickels and make themselves generally useful to the community, but they will not be permitted to ride over the long-established five-cent trolley fare and cut it in two. The Public Service Corporation, from its headquarters in Newark, has given out the statement that there would be no reduction in the fares on any of its lines.

It had been intimated that the serious hitch in Hoboken between the jitney men and the trolley company would result in the establishing of a three-cent fare on all lines in Hoboken and vicinity, but the denial is absolute. Owners of a now defunct bus line in Hoboken made the statement that the business was discontinued because of delay by Public Service men in recharging storage batteries on buses used on the line. It was said in the Public Service office that there was no truth in the report. The charge made by the bus owners said that the Public Service was the only concern in Hoboken that could recharge the storage batteries in the cars, and that it took advantage of this by delays and overcharges.

In Newark the regulation of the jitney traffic is continuing to cause trouble, and the Jitney Service Association has appointed a committee to confer with Mayor Raymond concerning it. Thus far Plainfield has escaped controversy a la jitney, for there are few of the "pick-you-up-for-a-nickel" cars.

NEGRO BAPTIST MEET TODAY AT PRINCETON

Negro Baptists of five counties of the State will be represented at a district meeting that opened today at Princeton. The churches of Mercer, Hunterdon, Somerset, Middlesex and Union counties are united in what is known as the Middlesex Central Baptist District Association. Rev. Arthur D. Jones, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, of Elizabeth, is moderator, and he and other representatives of the Shiloh and Union churches will attend.

The association meets annually for a three days' session. This year's meeting is being held in the Bright Hope Baptist church, Princeton, of which Rev. Thomas J. Jones is pastor. Effort was made to secure the presence of pastors and lay delegates from every part of the district.

The program today was in charge of the Woman's Auxiliaries and tomorrow and Saturday business sessions of the association will be held.

POLITICAL NOTES.

With the Democratic banquet safely past, all energies of the Union county Democracy are now directed toward the next event, the annual excursion to Witzel's Point View Grove on Wednesday, August 25. Asked if there would be the usual Democratic outing this year in view of the troublous times, Fred Zior, publicity man unexcelled of the Democratic party, said: "War or no war, good weather or bad weather, harmony or no harmony, grape juice or champagne, the Democratic outing goes on just the same; and, furthermore, don't forget the date—August 25." Tickets were placed on sale this week for the excursion. The steamer Sirius has been chartered, and George L. Keimig's band of twenty-five pieces has been engaged. It will be the twentieth annual excursion, and a number of the State leaders are expected to attend. The faithful have been advised that the tickets cost the same as heretofore, and will be accepted at the gangplank of the boat if paid for in advance.

2,400 MEN INVOLVED IN PROVIDENCE, R. I., STRIKE

Providence, R. I., July 15—Not a street car was running here this morning as a result of the declaration of a strike at midnight last. Jitneys did a rushing business. Twenty-four hundred men are involved. The directors met at 10 o'clock to take steps to meet the situation. The action of the men followed a mass meeting of union employes at which it was voted to support the union committee, which had notified the company unless arbitrators selected by the union were acepted a strike would be ordered.

J. T. COSGROVE'S RESIGNATION MAKES SPIRITED CONTEST

A number of candidates have entered the race for the position of business agent for the Union County Building Trades Council, recently made vacant by the resignation of John T. Cosgrove, and it is expected that a spirited contest will take place at the election tomorrow night at the union's headquarters in Elizabeth.

One of the most active candidates is William Bedlington, member of Carpenters' Union, Local No. 167, of Elizabeth, who has been endorsed by his organization. He has been acting business agent since Mr. Cosgrove resigned. Charles W. McCrann, also of that city, is a candidate for the place. It is said that the up-county delegates will throw their strength to a Plainfield unionist.

PREDICT WET SEASON IF IT RAINS TODAY

Today is St. Swithin's Day, and woe to humanity if it rains, for there will be a continuance of the wet weather we have been experiencing for forty days more.

The superstitious in England look for the weather indications for the next forty days today. The venerable St. Swithin, who was bishop of Winchester, requested that he be buried under the cathedral eaves. After his remains had lain there for a hundred years pious indignation demanded that they be removed to a higher place of honor. On the day appointed for the removal a heavy rain commenced to fall and the monks engaged in the task took this as a warning not to remove what was left of the bishop. Tradition has it that this rainstorm continued for forty days hence the significance attributed to rain on the anniversary of the day designated as "St. Swithin's Day."

DISCUSS PLANS TO PUT "PLAINFIELD ON THE MAP"

The publicity committee of the Plainfield Business Men's Association held an enthusiastic and interesting conference with Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, in the parlors of the Queen City Hotel, last night. The purpose was to discuss ways and means for arousing even greater interest in the association and to adopt some method as one member expressed it to put "Plainfield on the map."

The committee decided to make an extra effort to enroll all local business men as members of the association and those who have not been secured as members by August 1 will be interviewed by Mr. Salter, who will come to this city for that purpose. Mr. Salter explained methods followed by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and a majority of them seemed to meet with the approval of the publicity committee.

WILL HOLD THAW IN $40,000 BAIL

State Attorneys to Make That Request if Freedom is Granted by Court.

Provided Justice Hendrick signs the order that will give Harry K. Thaw his freedom, the attorneys for the State, it was stated today, will ask that Thaw be held in $40,000 bail pending decision on an appeal which the State will file.

Thaw's lawyers have made arrangements to furnish any necessary bail. Thaw said today that he was confident that he would be a free man within twenty-four hours.

It is not believed that the final decision as to Thaw's freedom will be made by Justice Hendricks before tomorrow. John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Thaw, yesterday, after the verdict of the jury, moved that Justice Hendricks vacate the original commitment of Justice Dowling sending Thaw to Matteawan and release the prisoner from custody. The justice announced that he would receive the formal order and consult with counsel in his chambers today.

It was said today at the Hotel Willard, where Deputy Attorney-Generals Cooks and Becker have put up, that the two attorneys had gone to their homes in Geneseo. This was taken to mean that today's consultation in Justice Hendrick's chambers had reference only to the Matteawan commitment order.

It was understood that even if the justice should vacate the commitment today he would not announce it but would forward the order to Attorney-General Woodbury, and that Mr. Woodbury would give it out and at the same time file the State's appeal.

The appeal papers, it was said, were all ready yesterday in case Justice Hendrick gave a decision from the bench agreeing with the jury. They would then have been served and would have acted as a stay, forcing Thaw to give bail before he could be set free.

It is understood the State still contends that a jury trial in Thaw's case was illegal, the contention in this regard being pending before the Court of Appeals on appeal from the Appellate Court decision which permitted the trial to proceed without passing finally on the merits of the case.

THOSE SAUSAGE-DOG RAISERS ARE NOW WANTED BY POLICE

Have you a little doggie in your home? Has that little doggie been licensed? This is the all-important question to the police department today, when several dozens of subpoenas are being distributed, instructing certain citizens to appear before Judge DeMeza in the city court to tell why they have not taken out the licenses.

Two months' grace has been allowed the dog-owner to take out the necessary permit and unless he has complied with the law he may expect to have his pet taken in charge of the dog catcher and reduced to sausage meat. The city has several likely candidates for the dog-catching job in view and in each instance a healthy appetite for sausage is a prominent qualification.

This year gives promise of being a particularly strenuous one for the doggies as sausage meat is scarce and all the canines that can be rounded up will find the grinding machine awaiting their carcasses. If you have a doggie and don't think enough about it to protect it from the dog-catcher who will be summoned before Judge DeMeza anyway, to tell why you neglected to comply with the law in not taking out a license at the first of the year.

GERMANY WILL COMPENSATE AMERICANS FOR DAMAGES

Washington, July 15.—The American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed by a German submarine. The German Foreign Office after an investigation notified Ambassador Gerard of this fact and he promptly cabled a memorandum to the State Department. The German government expressed regret at the occurrence to the government of the United States and declared its readiness to make compensation for the damage sustained by American citizens when the vessel was struck.

MAN WAS UNBALANCED.

A Galley o' Fun!

THE FACE IN THE CAR.

He stood on the platform of the crowded trolley-car. Through the glass doors and a long line of humanity he saw her face. It was just visible over the shoulder of a stevedore and under the broad black hat of a German frau. He felt vaguely that he had seen her before.

It was a rarely attractive face, with a sad sweetness about it that went through his fiery heart. He had seen more beautiful women, but there was something winning in the direct, frank, but impersonal manner in which she returned his admiring, interested gaze. He hoped that she did not think him rude in staring. For a moment he looked away, then looked hastily back again, fearing to lose her eyes. Was she laughing at him? Was she flirting with him? He was sure that there was at least a hint of amusement in her faint smile.

The conviction that he had seen her, had met her, became stronger. She was merely waiting for him to remember who she was. She read his thoughts. Heavens! Who was she? How could he have met such a girl and forgotten her name?

On an impulse, he winked. Immediately he was confused with shame. Her glance had changed to one of reproof, of pained surprise, even of scorn.

The car had carried him beyond his destination and out into the suburbs. Still he stood and looked at the girl. Suddenly he realized that the croud of standees had thinned out till a scant dozen were left. He could now easily reach her.

He mustered his courage up to the point of throwing open the door and striding down the aisle. She did not flee. Her smile was now welcoming. But where was the rest of her?

She was only a face—the artist hadn't drawn any more. Above her wavy hair and dancing eyes were the words: "She Uses Circassian Talcum Powder." ERNEST DOUGLAS.

Mr. Short's Way of Doing It.

A NATURAL DESIRE.

His hair was long—a shaggy mane,
His biceps' action one could see,
He talked of "downs" and "yards to gain,"
A football hero—such was he.
He was a giant as to size,
Of rough-and-ready speech to boot;
And on an eve, to my surprise,
Sweet Phyllis thought him rather "cute."

And one was small and slight and pale,
His arms were thin, his legs were spare—
I think an ordinary gale
Might well have blown him anywhere.
We met him at a tea at four,
He talked of art to beat the band,
Of highbrow speech he had a store—
And Phyllis thought the fellow "grand."

And so I sit and think alway
Of what fair Phyllis said of these;
I ponder, ponder—night or day—
The thought will give me little ease.
I am not jealous—'twere in vain,
For that, I'm sure, I need not be!
But, though I'm half afraid, I fain
Would know what Phyllis thinks of me!

PRESIDENT WILL RETURN TO WASHINGTON TUESDAY

Washington, July 15.—President Wilson, it was learned at the White House today, will probably return to Washington from Cornish, N. H., in time to attend the Cabinet meeting at the White House next Tuesday morning. No formal announcement, however, has been made that a Cabinet meeting will be held on that day.

SCULL NAMED DEPUTY

New York, July 15—Arthur Woods, police commissioner, announced today the appointment of Guy H. Scull, his secretary, to the fifth deputy commissionership, recently created by the Legislature.

FIVE MEN INJURED.

New York, July 15—An explosion occurred in the West Shore Grain elevator No. 7, about half a mile from the Weehawken station, this morning. Five men were injured and taken to Roosevelt Hospital. The elevator did not take fire. The explosion was caused by dust and probably was due to spontaneous combustion. The damage was not extensive.

MARYE WILL NOT RESIGN.

Washington, July 15.—It was officially denied both at the State Department and the White House today that Ambassador Marye at Petrograd intends to resign.

Corporation Notice

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

A Further Supplement to An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance For the Assessment of Taxes For the Year, 1915," Approved June 7, 1915.

WHEREAS, the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union, did decide that it is necessary to raise money for the purchase of lands for school purposes in the public school district comprising said City, and did fix and determine the amount of money estimated to be necessary for such purpose to be the sum of Six Thousand Dollars, and pursuant to such determination did prepare and deliver to each member of the Board of Estimate of said City a statement of said determination and did call a meeting of the said Board of School Estimate to vote upon a resolution fixing and determining the amount necessary for said purpose and certifying the same to the aforesaid Board of Education and to the Common Council of said City as required by law;

AND, WHEREAS, on the 29th day of June, A. D. 1915, the said Board of School Estimate did accordingly meet and vote and did make its two certificates in writing signed by each member of said Board of School Estimate, one whereof was duly delivered to said Board of Education and the other whereof was delivered to the said Common Council and received by it on the sixth day of July, 1915, and which said certificates are substantially as follows, to wit:

"The Board of School Estimate of the City School District of Plainfield, N. J., hereby certifies that it has this day fixed and determined and hereby fixes and determines the sum of $6,000.00 as the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the purchase of lands for school purposes in the City School District of Plainfield, N. J., and hereby makes two certificates of said amount signed by at least three members of said Board of School Estimate; of which certificates one shall be delivered to the Board of Education of the City School District of Plainfield, N. J., and the other to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J."

AND, WHEREAS, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield hath determined and doth hereby determine that it is for the best interests of all concerned rather than to issue bonds therefor to appropriate the said sum for such purpose in the same manner as other appropriations are made by it, and that said sum of Six Thousand Dollars be raised, assessed, levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner as other moneys appropriated for other purposes in said City of Plainfield are raised, assessed, levied and collected; Now, therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19th, 1903, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the sum of Six Thousand Dollars (additional to any sum or sums heretofore appropriated or provided for pursuant to said acts) be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose aforesaid, viz: For the purchase of lands for school purposes in the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, as other appropriations are made by this Common Council and that said amount shall be raised, assessed, levied and collected for the year Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen in the same manner as moneys appropriated for other purposes in this City are raised, assessed, levied and collected.

BASKETBALL CHAMPS AFTER OTHER TITLES

Plainfield Five Organizes Into An Athletic Club—The Officers.

At a meeting held in the Plainfield High School gymnasium, last night, the Plainfield Five, a prominent local feminine basketball team, re-organized into an athletic club. Those present at the gathering were the Misses Clara Smith, Mildred McAuliffe, Elsie Debele, Helen Brynairski, Helen Hummel, Ida Hummel, Theresa McCullough and Marion Mair. Additional members will be admitted to the club from time to time. At present the entire membership includes girls who have won laurels on the basketball court during the last few years as well as in other lines of sports.

Plans were laid for a regular schedule of events the club will take up during the coming year. They will be voted on at the next meeting, which will be held in the gymnasium Wednesday night, August 4.

The officers appointed are: President, Miss Clara Smith; vice president, Miss Helen Brynairski; secretary, Miss Helen Hummel; treasurer, Miss Elsie Debele. Miss Clara Smith was appointed manager for next year's basketball team and she will begin her duties as soon as school opens in September to arrange a formidable list of teams on the winter schedule for the aggregation.

KNOCKS AND BOOSTS FOR CITY LEAGUERS

Carlton Dunham will be seen in a Baptist uniform soon. The P. H. S. boy should prove a very valuable addition to the lowly combination, which, by the way, improves with every encounter. The breaks are against the Firsts but their luck is bound to turn.

People have asked us why some local team does not book good out-of-town teams to appear on Parker Field. We are informed that Managers Jones, of the Plainfield A. A., and Kline, of the Royals, intend introducing this feature soon.

"Herb" Pennoyer, the Clintonian third sacker, is a fast little fielder and a reliable clouter. In Saturday's contest he guarded the difficult station in a manner pleasing to all. However, "Wren" Townley is sure to give him a run for the title of best third baseman in the league.

Henry, the "Avenue" team's first baseman, is a good fielder and a heavy hitter, but he hasn't wielded the willow very successfully in any of the league contests.

Eddie Conshay's wing is still valuable. That this is a fact was proven Saturday, when he held the Trinity Church boys to three bingles. And he struck eight of the youths out, too.

The New York Senators were "meat" for the Tabs, Sunday, although the local boys couldn't see the metropolitan pitcher. It is to be lamented that the Abstainers are not a heavier hitting nine. If they were, Hope Chapel would have real cause to worry. At that, we pick the Tabs to put up a good fight.

The City League has the finest stable of hurlers in this vicinity. A team with Dick Schott, Tone Denny, Patterson, Gleason and Clark on its pitching staff would make short work of all opposition in sight.

The Laurels and the Red Stars opened up the Senior League race the other day, a double bill doing the trick. Every year there is keen rivalry between these two teams, the Laurels generally coming out on top. However, this year there seems to be a lack of opponents for these star juvenile ballists and Supervisor George W. Wriston, of Parker Field, desires to hear from managers of teams whose strength measures up well with that of the Laurels and the Red Stars.

Every day seems to bring a new team to the top in the Junior League race. The teams in this league are very evenly matched and an unusually close race is anticipated.

"RUS" FORD "CANNED."

Buffalo, N. Y., July 15—Russell Ford, former Yank twirler, inventor of the "emery ball" and last season the foremost pitcher in the Federal League, has been given his unconditional release by the Buffeds. Inability to make good without the emery ball which was put under the ban by the Federal League at the close of last season occasioned his release. Ford has won only two games so far this season. Last year he won 21 games out of 27.

PLAINFIELD JUNIORS ARE LOOKING FOR OPPONENTS

Owing to the fact that they will be unable to secure Maurer Oval for Saturday, the Dunellen Boy Scouts have cancelled their engagement with the Plainfield Juniors. The match will probably take place the following Saturday.

As a result of the postponement the Juniors are without a game for Saturday and are anxious to hear from the managers of the Farmer A. C., Highlanders, Interhavens or Watchungs relative to securing games for this date and for others that they have open during the present season. Sam Semer, of 940 West Third street, is the Junior manager.

KRAMER A FRAME-UP VICTIM; BUT SHOWS UP ALF GOULLET

Proving once more in a conclusive manner that he is the master of Alfred Goullet as a cycle match race rider, Frank Kramer dashed away from the Australian in two straight heats of a two-thirds mile match at the Newark Velodrome last night, before some 7,000 fans, the biggest night crowd of the season, who went wild with joy and excitement when the American crossed the line a winner. While Kramer demonstrated his superiority in the match affair he was not able to cope with the teaming tactics employed by the Australians and Marcel Dupuy, the Frenchman, in the one-mile open for the professionals, which was captured by Goullet. Kramer letting up on the last lap and not exerting himself as he rode to the finish line.

Dupuy was suspended indefinitely for his part in the affair, which consisted of a long sprint with two laps to go and then letting up on the last lap and not making any attempt whatsoever to obtain a place. In Dupuy's mad dash to the front Goullet was on his wheel and it was a cinch for the blond Australian to go out and win. Kramer, who tried to get to the front a lap and a half from home, was kept down by Bob Spears, who rode above him and had the "champer" pocketed.

MAGEE A WHITE HOPE.

Baltimore, Md., July 15—The ill feeling between the Terrapins and the Brookfeds was brought to a head in the second game yesterday, when Manager Lee Magee, of the visiting team, got into a fist fight with Umpire Spike Shannon, of Minneapolis. Catcher Owens, formerly of Brooklyn, separated the two belligerents. The trouble occurred in the fourth inning when Magee was caught at the plate on a close play. Magee struck at Umpire Shannon and was about to follow up his advantage when Owens interfered.

NEWARK "PEPS" INCORPORATE.

Trenton, July 15—Articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State, yesterday, by the Newark Federal League ball club. According to the incorporation papers the existence of the club will be perpetual. Patrick T. Powers, of Jersey City, is the agent for the corporation, which has an authorized capital stock of $100,000, with shares at $100 par.

NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME.

Providence, R. I., July 15—Joe Oeschger, the former Philadelphia National pitcher, who was obtained from Manager Moran on an optional agreement, pitched a no-hit, no-run game for Providence against Toronto in the International League series yesterday.

CAN WALSH "COME BACK?"

Chicago, July 15—Big Ed Walsh, the veteran star of the Chicago Americans, who has not been started in a game for more than a year, will try to make his "come-back" appearance tomorrow, it was announced yesterday.

SPORT BRIEFS

Pitcher Harry Hoch, of the St. Louis Americans, sold to the Louisville club of the American Association.

Young Brown, of New York, knocked out Tommy Houck, of Philadelphia, in six rounds, at Providence, R. I. last night.

Ralph Gruman, of California, defeated Joe Azevedo in ten rounds at the St. Nicholas A. C., New York, last night.

Thomas Anderson, of Montclair, won the Pennsylvania State open golf championship when he defeated E. W. Loos in nineteen holes in playing off a tie.

CARLTON MOORE PLAYED WITH CHAMPION BALLISTS

Carlton Moore, formerly of West Fifth street, and formerly a pupil in the local public schools, is a member of the Ashland Grammar School baseball team, champions of East Orange.

He performed as catcher for the outfit, which lost no games during the season. Carlton was the fourth heaviest hitter on the team, his average for the season being .347. The biggest sticker on the team clouted the pill at a .478 clip.

TO ENJOY FIELD DAY.

Plans are complete for the field meet to be held Saturday afternoon at the New Brunswick Farms under the auspices of the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement. Members and their friends who desire to attend will leave Plainfield on the 1.30 p. m. trolley. An interesting afternoon is promised all who attend.

Keep posted on building news. See Saturday's Press.

All civilians as well as members of the organized militia, the naval militia, army, navy, marine corps, cadets of the United States Military and Naval academies and educational institutions may compete in all the individual matches that are open to everybody provided they are eligible under the conditions of the match.

BRUGGY EXPECTED HOME FROM BINGHAMTON TODAY

Frank L. Bruggy, the Elizabeth lad, who was injured in a ball game at Binghamton, Sunday, is expected home tomorrow. It was first thought that a bone was broken in his right ankle, but it has been learned that the fractured bone, which is a small one, is located just below the knee.

Bruggy will be able to amble about on crutches while home, but it will be several weeks before he will be able to grace the diamond again.

LOCAL BALLISTS WILL INVADE MANVILLE SUNDAY

The Plainfield A. A. will take a trip to Manville, Sunday, to try conclusions with the Manville B. B. C. The locals expect to register a win, but have great respect for the strength of the home team.

On August 15 the Plainfielders will cross bats with the Tabs on Avon Oval. The batteries for Sunday's encounter will be Rosenson and Hamilton and Moulton, for the locals, and Pfister will twirl for Manville.

YOUNG TOM ANDERSON WINS PENN. GOLF TITLE

Tom Anderson, of Montclair, won the Pennsylvania Golf Association open championship at the Shawnee Country Club yesterday. Gil Nichols, the Metropolitan open champion, got a poor start and made a disappointing showing.

Eugene McCarthy, of Jacksonville, Fla., a former Plainfielder, and until recently professional at the Somerville Country Club, competed and registered scores of 86 and 80, totaling 166. The winner's total was 149.

MOYNIHAN WANTS TO GET A WHACK AT ELIZABETH TABS

Jimmy Moynihan, manager of the local "Tabs," is angling for a game with the Elizabeth "Tabs" on the Elizabethport diamond. While it is hardly probable that his efforts will meet with success, a game between the Abstainers of the two Union county cities would be an interesting tilt, although according to dope it should be an easy victory for the County Seaters.

However, with Tone Denny working well, Burns' boys would have to go some to win at that. Whether a game of this sort would draw well or not, is the all-important question.

SAW GIANTS PERFORM.

Tommy Mullin and Henry Betzenberger, two local diamond artists, saw the Giants and Cubs divide a double bill at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

YALE AND PRINCETON WON SHORT GAMES

A big double bill was enacted at Parker Field this morning, two five inning contests being played. In the first game which was won by old Eli, by the score of 2 to 6, Joe Newell allowed only one bingle, while his mates bombarded Barton and Martenis getting eleven wallops.

In the second tilt the Tigers defeated the Mercers in a well played fiv einning game, the score of which was 5 to 4.

NIGHT TENNIS STARS ENTER SECOND ROUND

Three Matches Played Last Night and Schedule Will Continue This Evening.

Three matches were played in the Westfield Golf Club's night tennis tournament for the male tennis singles championship last night, none of the three remaining local teams getting into action. Two of the matches, the fifth and sixth of the tourney schedule, were played in the first round competition, and the seventh opened the second round.

In the fifth match Lindsley Dunham and H. Mck. Glazebrook, of the Ederan Outing Club, Rahway, defeated A. W. Donaldson and D. Donaldson, of the Westfield Tennis Club, by scores of 6-1, 6-0. In the sixth match Irving Throckmorton and Harry Balch, of the South Orange Tennis Club, defeated Oliver Hall and W. O. Titus, of the Westfield Tennis Club, 6-1, 6-3.

The victors in the last two sets played in the first round come together in the opening match of the second round last night, Dunham and Glazebrook eliminating Throckmorton and Balch by scores of 6-1, 6-2. The matches were all spirited and despite the fact that the courts were slightly off color, owing to the heavy rainstorm of the previous night, the players got in some good work. The following games are scheduled to be played in the second round of competition tonight, but owing to the postponements caused by rain it is likely that several shifts will have to be made by the officials:

Victor Underwood and W. M. Lambert, Westfield Tennis Club, vs. George Throckmorton and P. Ernst, Scwaren Tennis Club; Russel Brown and W. H. Brown, Clifton Tennis Club, vs. R. M. Kirkland and Phil VanDeventer, Elizabeth own and Country Club; L. E. Meyer and A. G. Deane, Westfield Country Club, vs. F. C. Clarkson and E. C. Rowland, Metuchen Tennis Club.

JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS PLAN MONSTER OUTING

What promises to be the largest gathering of the summer of members of the Jewish organizations in this city is planned for Sunday at Chimney Rock, where a picnic will be held under the auspices of several local Hebrew organizations for the purpose of giving their people an enjoyable time. The proceeds of the affair will be turned over to the maintainance of the local Hebrew school, which has a staff of capable teachers. A large number of tickets have already been sold for the event.

A committee of twenty has been appointed and it has made all arrangements for an interesting program, consisting of games, races and various other features, including a concert by Proctor's orchestra.

Many have signified their intention of making the trip by auto. Special arrangements have been made for an auto bus to meet Bound Brook cars every fiftten minutes.

DAILY PRESS TOURISTS HAVING ENJOYABLE TRIP

In communications received this morning from members of the Daily Press Panama-Pacific Exposition contest party, friends learned that the entire party was well and happy and enjoying all the beauties of the western States. At the time of writing the young women were in San Francisco and were leaving last Friday night for Los Angeles. Aside from the fact that all were delighted with their trip nothing further was contained in the letter.

Among the New Jersey visitors registered during the week at the New Jersey Building at San Francisco were the following from this city: Miss J. C. Van Vliet, Miss Jessie M. Pruden, John Sanderson and Miss Adelaide Dietrich.

U. S. ENVOY TO RUSSIA PRESENTS RESIGNATION

Washington, July 15—That George T. Marye has offered his resignation as ambassador to Petrograd was confirmed at the State Department today.

Though it was said he offered no explanation the belief was that the war had made living conditions at the Russian capital so different from what they would otherwise have been that the ambassador found his work uncongenial.

The department had not yet found time today to consider the choice of his successor."

DOG TRAINS PRIZEFIGHTER.

Soldier Bartfield, New York welterweight, who recently was awarded a decision by some newspapers over Mike Gibbons in a ten round bout, has a new system for rendering his jaw knockout proof.

A monster dog helps Bartfield toughen his jaw. The soldier puts one end of a strap between his teeth and the other end in the dog's mouth.

They then have a tug of war that strengthens Bartfield's jaw muscles until he claims no blow on the jaw can do more than jar him.

Bartfield admits Gibbons jarred him several times, but says his jaws are so thoroughly muscled he had no trouble shaking off Mike's punches.

OLDEST BASEBALL INSURED.

Fire and Burglary Policies For $1,000 Protect Ancient Sphere.

The oldest baseball in existence is owned by the president of the East End Church Baseball league of Pittsburgh. The ball is nearly fifty-three years old. It was used first in a championship game between the Eclipse team of Kingston, N. Y., and the Hudson team of Newburg, N. Y. The game was played on June 20, 1862, and ended 49 to 18 in favor of the Kingston team.

The ball is made of one piece of horsehide, sewed in the center. When it was used underhand pitching alone was permissible. Curves were unknown.

The ball carries $500 burglary insurance and $500 fire insurance. It was given to its present owner by John Miller, who played first base on the Eclipse team. Miller is 100 years old now and lives in Cornwall-on-the-Hudson.

LOOK AHEAD TO ATHLETICS.

Plans Are Being Made at Newark For A. A. U. Meet In 1916.

Fred W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic union and expert on drawing up athletic track and field plans, is now at work on the layout for the proposed new athletic plant to be installed within the old Waverly trotting park, Newark, N. J.

The athletic committee on the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Newark, which will be celebrated next year, expects to give some big athletic features.

In order to give the track time to settle work on the construction of it will be commenced early in the fall.

KILLIFER SOME BACKSTOP.

Phillies' Receiver Classes With the Best Holding Position.

Though not as well press agented as some of the men playing the same position in the big league, Bill Killifer, catcher of Pat Moran's Phillies, is nevertheless a star of the first water. There is no faster backstop in either league, and at holding up pitchers he

He holds the distinction of being the best "sacrificer" in his league, and there are few more dangerous batters in the pinches. Killifer is a worthy successor of Charley Dooin, ex-manager of the Phillies, and it is no doubt largely due to Dooin's teachings that Killifer is today one of the very few really great "mitt men" in the game.

In "the Game of Life" generally, as well as in want advertising, persistence wins in nine cases out of ten.

YOUNG GOLFERS NOW IN LEAD

Age Gives Way as In Other Branches of Sport.

TRAVIS IS AN EXCEPTION.

Veteran Was Thirty-eight When He First Won American Title—Hilton Was Forty-two—Jerome D. Travers Was the Youngest—Ouimet Is Next.

That old maxim "Youth must be served" was never more true than when applied to golf. Golf and old age are not incompatible, but when it comes to a test of a national championship the youngster is the one who captures the title.

Our earliest national champions were older men than those we find nowadays winning stellar honors on the links, but no youngster then thought of playing the game. Run over the list of most of our recent national champions and you will find that nearly all of them were in their teens or early twenties when they won the championship.

Louis James, who won in 1902 and then never appeared again in the golfing limelight, was an undergraduate at Princeton; Chandler Egan was attending Harvard. Travers had just reached twenty, Gardner was one of the best pole vaulters at Yale, and Ouimet had not yet attained the voting age.

Travis Is an Exception.

Travis was thirty-eight when he first won the American title, and Hilton, the only foreigner who ever captured it, was forty-two. With the exception of these two men none of those who have won the amateur championships of this country was past the thirty year mark. The general public likes to refer to golf as an old man's game, and one of the favorite jokes of the nongolfers is when they are asked why they do not take up the game to reply that they will when they have reached old age.

But while golf can be played by older men it is the youngsters who carry away the honors, just as they do in baseball, football, tennis, rowing, track athletics and every other form of outdoor athletics. You can play golf when you can't play baseball or run a 100 yard dash, but the youngsters will play the better game. Travis recently gave a wonderful exhibition of his ability when he won the metropolitan championship from a field of some of the best younger players in the country, but there never was any one just like him and perhaps never will be again.

Ten years ago it was next to impossible to get the boys and the younger men interested in golf. With the capturing of the national championship by Jerome Travers in 1907 the younger men gradually came to take an interest in the game, so youthful golfers in our numerous country clubs began to figure not more than a decade ago.

Gowdy Catches Without Shin Guards.

TRAVIS READY TO QUIT.

Walter J. Travis has decided not to enter another amateur championship. He said the other day he does not intend to compete at Detroit this year, and if he feels that the grind of a week, with thirty-six holes a day, is too much for him now it is a sure thing that another year will not give him any more strength. Travis felt after his victory at Apawamis that he had won his last important championship on the links.

DANIELS TO NAME NEW BOARD TODAY

Announcement Expected Following Secretary's Conference With Edison.

Washington, July 15.—Secretary Daniels' announcement of the full personnel of his new naval board of invention and development was expected today to follow the conference he is scheduled to have with the already chosen head of the board, Thomas A. Edison, at the latter's home in West Orange, N. J.

It was agreed by Navy Department officials who have discussed the plan with Daniels that Orville Wright and Henry Ford unquestionably will be members of the board if they will accept, as Wright has already signified he will do.

Most of the other names suggested it was said, were guesses of outsiders, though it was admitted that several of them were good ones.

While the scheme suggested by Secretary Daniels met with general approval among experts, certain pertinent questions were being asked among them today.

Suppose, it was suggested, the board does evolve valuable ideas, as an organization, including such men as Edison, Wright and Ford undoubtedly will, can it get the navy bureaucracy to make any use of them?

Even if the department is acquiescent, will Congress appropriate funds to carry out the propositions advanced by the inventors and publicity experts?

Of the two—the navy bureaucracy and Congress—the critics of the Daniels plan were more doubtful of the former. Departmental red tape will have been eliminated, or not much will be accomplished even by Edison, Wright and Ford, it was asserted by men familiar with the situation.

It was pointed out that the two things Daniels is most anxious to develope, the submarine and the aeroplane, are primarily American inventions, and yet the Secretary is compelled to resort to extraordinary means, the creation of his invention and development board, to bring the navy's undersea and aerial organization up to the standard of other nations which simply borrowed American ideas.

FLYNN ARRESTS MAN IN NEWARK ON LOCAL CHARGE

On a warrant issued by City Judge William G. DeMeza charging him with embezzlement, William Grantzow, transportation clerk for the New York Telephone Company, was arrested at 478 South Seventeenth street, Newark, this afternoon by Captain John J. Flynn, of this city, and Officer E. J. Donovan, of the Newark force.

The charge against the prisoner is that of getting money under false pretenses, one of the specific allegations charging him with embezzling $110. It is alleged that he put in a bill of expense to his firm for the hire of forty-one teams of horses from the Central Livery Company, of this city, from September 14, to September 30, 1915, whereas the original bill issued by the local firm was for the hire of bout twenty-three teams. He was brought to Plainfield by Flynn this afternoon.

METHODIST FORWARD MOVEMENT FIELD DAYS

Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, superintendent of the Elizabeth District Newark conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, has arranged for four great field days. The first will be held at the Califon Methodist church on July 21; the second will be held at the Kingwood church July 25; the third at the Woods church, Stanton, July 27, and the fourth at Norton, July 29. There will be three services held, mornings, afternoons and evenings at each place. Besides the superintendent there will be present to speak, Rev. Dr. Frank MacDaniel, headmaster at Pennington Seminary; Rev. C. S. Gillespie, of Grace church, Plainfield. Rev. Jesse L. Peck, of Neshanic, will lead the music with a cornet.

Pastors of all surrounding churches have been invited to bring their congregations with them to each of these places. Some are planning to spend the entire day, each party to bring their own basket lunches. Coffee and other refreshments being served by the local church.

The aim of the Methodist Forward Movement is to mobilize all of the forces of Methodism for the winning of 250,000 new members this year. 500,000 will be enrolled in the Time Legion, and as many more in a Prayer League. Methodist preachers of the Elizabeth District as well as Methodist laymen are manifesting a decided interest in the matter and the superintendent is doing everything in his power to organize and inspire the forces of which he is the head.

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

CHAPTER IV.

A Warning.

MEANWHILE his own troubles increased. Frank's dislike had grown to an impish vindictiveness, and if the old man Meeker had any knowledge of his son's devilries he gave no sign.

"I don't know why I stay," Wayland wrote to Berea. "I'm disgusted with the men up here—they're all fire some except Landon—but I hate to slink away, and, besides, the country is glorious. I'd like to come down and see you this week. May I do so? Please send word that I may."

She did not reply, and, wondering whether she had received his letter or not, he mounted his horse one beautiful morning and rode away up the trail with a sense of elation, of eager joy, with intent to call upon her at the ranch as he went by.

Hardly had he vanished among the pines when Clifford Belden rode in from his ranch on Hat creek and called at Meeker's for his mail.

Frank Meeker was in the office, and as he both feared and disliked this big contemptuous young cattleman he set to work to make him jealous.

"You want to watch this one lung boarder of ours," he warned, with a grin. "He's been writing to Berrie and he's just gone down to see her. His highfalutin ways and his fine white hands have put her on the slant."

"I'm not worrying," retorted Belden.

"You'd better be. I was down there the other day, and it 'peared like she couldn't talk of anything else but Mr. Norcross, Mr. Norcross, till I was sick of his name."

An hour later Belden left the mill and set off up the trail behind Norcross, his face fallen into stern lines. Frank writhed in delight. "There goes Cliff, hot under the collar, chasing Norcross. If he finds out that Berrie is interested in him he'll just about wring that dude's neck."

"I've been wondering about you," she said.

Meanwhile Wayland was riding through the pass with lightening heart, his thought dwelling on the girl at the end of his journey.

As he reached the McFarlane ranch it seemed deserted of men, but a faint column of smoke rising from the roof of the kitchen gave evidence of a cook, and at his knock Berrie came to the door with a boyish word of frank surprise and pleasure. She was dressed in a blue and white calico gown, with the collar turned in and the sleeves rolled up, but she seemed quite unembarrassed, and her pleasure in his coming quite repaid him for his long and tiresome ride.

"I've been wondering about you," she said. "I'm mighty glad to see you. How do you stand it?"

"You got my letter?"

"I did, and I was going to write and tell you to come down, but I've had some special work to do at the office."

She took the horse's rein from him, and together they started toward the stables.

This action of stabling the horses, a perfectly innocent and natural one for her, led one of the hands, a coarse minded sneak, to watch them from a corral. "I wonder how Cliff would like that?" he evilly remarked.

Berea was frankly pleased to see Wayland and spoke of the improvement which had taken place in him. "You're looking fine," she said as they were returning to the house. "But how do you get on with the boys?"

"Not very well," he admitted. "They seem to have it in for me. It's a constant fight."

Her face grew grave. "I reckon you got started wrong," she said at last. "They'll like you better when you get browned up and your clothes get dirty. You're a little too fancy for them just now."

"I don't believe I want any more of their company. What's the use? As you say, I've started wrong with them, and I don't see any prospect of getting right; and, besides, I like the rangers better. Landon thinks I might work into the service. I wonder if I could? It would give me something to do."

She considered a moment. "We'll think about that. Come into the kitchen. I'm cook today. Mother's gone to town."

The kitchen was clean and ample, and the delicious odor of new made bread filled it with cheer. As the girl resumed her apron Wayland settled into a chair with a sigh of content. "I like this," he said aloud. "There's nothing cowgirl about you now; you're the Anglo-Saxon housewife. You might be a Michigan or Connecticut girl at this moment."

Her cheeks were ruddy with the heat and her eyes intent on her work, but she caught enough of his meaning to be pleased with it. "Oh, I have to take a hand at the pots and pans now and then. I can't give all my time to the service, but I'd like to."

He boldly announced his errand. "I wish you'd take me to board. I'm sure your cooking would build up my shattered system a good deal quicker than your aunt's."

She laughed, but shook her head. "You ought to be on the hills riding hard every day. What you need is the high country and the air of the pines."

She had read that victims of the white plague always talk in this cheerful way about themselves, and she worked on without replying.

"If I were here—in the valley—you and I could ride together now and then, and you could show me all the trails. Why not let me come here and board? I'm going to ask your mother if I may not do so."

"Of course you can come here," she said when she saw he was in earnest. "Mother will be glad to have you, although our ranch isn't a bit pretty. Perhaps father will send you out with one of the rangers as a fireguard. I'll ask him tonight."

"I wish you would. I like these foresters—what I've seen of them. I wouldn't mind serving under a man like Landon. He's fine."

Upon this pleasant conference Cliff Belden unexpectedly burst. Pushing the door open with a slam, he confronted Berry with dark and angry face.

"Why, Cliff, where did you come from?" she asked, rising in some confusion. "I didn't hear you ride up."

"Apparently not," he sneeringly answered. "I reckon you were too much occupied."

She tried to laugh away his black mood. "That's right, I was. I'm chief cook today. Come in and sit down. Mother's gone to town, and I'm playing her part," she explained, ignoring his sullen displeasure. "Cliff, this is Mr. Norcross, who is visiting Uncle Joe. Mr. Norcross, shake hands with Mr. Belden." She made this introduction with some awkwardness, for her lover's failure to even say "Howdy" informed her that his jealous heart was aflame, and she went on quickly, "Mr. Norcross dropped in on his way to the postoffice, and I'm collecting a snack for him."

Recognizing Belden's claims upon the girl, Wayland rose. "I must be going. It's a long ride over the hill."

"Come again soon," urged Berrie. "Father wants to see you."

"Thank you. I will look in very shortly," he replied and went out with such dignity as he could command, feeling, however, very much like a dog that has been kicked over the threshold.

Closing the door behind him, Belden turned upon the girl. "What's that consumptive 'dogie' doing here? He 'peared to be very much at home with you—too dern much at home!"

She was prepared for his displeasure, but not for words like these. She answered quietly: "He just dropped in on his way to town, and he's not a dogie!" She resented his tone as well as his words.

"I've heard about you taking him over to Meeker's and lending him your only slicker," he went on, "but I didn't expect to find him sittin' here like he owned you and the place. You're taking altogether too much pains with him. Can't he put his own horse out? Do you have to go to the stable with him? You never did have any sense about your actions with men. You've all along been too free of your reputation, and now I'm going to take care of it for you. I won't have you nursin' this runt any longer!"

She perceived now the full measure of his base rage, and her face grew pale and set. "You're making a perfect fool of yourself, Cliff," she said, with portentous calmness.

"Am I?" he asked.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

San Francisco—The most refreshing visitor at the big Exposition last week was Donna Sara de Meldenez, the "first lady in the land" of Salvador. Beautiful and attractive, she swept down on the social life of the Exposition with a charm and cheerfulness that gave her great popularity. She is the first prominent visitor to declare that her home people are not affected by the great European war. Life in Salvador is idyllic, she declares. The war talk has not changed the gallantry of the men folk, who consider it their duty to amuse and entertain the ladies. And, she adds, there is no suffrage or other agitation among the women. President Molendez's wife is accompanied by her father, Rafael Masa, and her beautiful sister, Ester Masa. Donna de Quinonez, wife of the Salvador vice-president, is also in the party.

Minneapolis, Minn.—A prize play depicting the boyhood of Shakespeare will be presented by boys and girls at the settlement houses here next fall. It is from the pen of Miss Irene P. McKeehan, a teacher and writer, and won the prize of the Minneapolis branch of the Drama League of America over a number of excellent plays written by men. The prize was offered by Mrs. Alfred F. Pillsbury and Mrs. Edmund Pennington. The play is entitled "Statford Miracles," and will be entered in the national competition of the Drama League.

New York—While Hon. David A. Thomas, the British government envoy, is in America completing arrangements for war supplies, his daughter, the talented Lady Mackworth, is handling his huge business affairs. She is directing head of the famous Cambrian coal combine and other leading collieries in Wales, and a million men are said to be employed by her father. Lady Mackworth was Miss Margaret Thomas. She married Captain Humphrey Mackworth of the Royal Monmouth Regiment.

Venice, Cal.—The beach colony here is still talking about the innovation introduced by Miss Esther Adargo, of Milwaukee, who drove a team of pigs for a mile along the ocean front while attired in a scanty bathing suit. Miss Adargo trained the lowly swine to the harness, and set society by the ears by appearing mounted on a unique chariot driving her unique team along the shore.

New York—A "Good Manners Club" is the next reform organization in New York. The Suffragists after completing their campaign in November, are planning to work for the improvement of manners in the city. Miss Mary Garrett Hay, head of the woman suffrage party, has come out strong for the reform, and she will have the aid of many prominent clubwomen when the campaign begins. She maintains that much of the bad manners in the shops is caused by persons who should know better. That the shoppers should use a higher degree of courtesy and patience is one of her strongest arguments.

State College, Pa.—Miss Honora Whalen, the first girl to be graduated from the School of Agriculture at the State College, is preparing to undertake the management of her father's ranch in South Dakota. She completed the four years' course in agriculture, after first mastering the subjects of home economics. She spent her early life on the Western ranch which she will superintend. She plans to raise beef cattle for the Eastern markets, shipping them to a farm she will acquire in Northeastern Pennsylvania, where they will be fattened for the markets.

Springfield, O.—The 30th birthday of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association will be celebrated here on Saturday. All State officers will attend, with officers of the national organization.

San Francisco—The romance of Gertrude Boyle, sculptress and war of the late Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, and her Japanese philosopher husband, has come to an end in the divorce court here. The romantic meeting, courtship and marriage of the gifted California girl to Takeshi Kanno, which began at the Miller home, and culminated in their marriage in Seattle in 1907, brought the couple into prominence. Because of their artistic temperaments, it was believed that the racial misalliance would be buried by happiness. The rude awakening came last March, when the sculptress was arrested on charges of insanity brought by her sister. Freed from this charge, Mrs. Kanno sought a divorce, but this was refused. Then came the second divorce suit which was heard in private two weeks ago.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Little Boy Who Climbed The Mast.

He Stood Away on Top of the Mast.

"THERE is an old poem," said daddy, "which tells one of the most thrilling stories I think I ever heard. I will tell it to you children in my own words, and I think you will like it very much.

"The story is about Little Hal, the son of a famous sea captain, and it is claimed that it is a true story. This captain commanded one of the most noted of the old war frigates of our country. This was the Constitution, and they called her 'Old Ironsides.'

"Little Hal was a boy of about seven or eight years who was the pride of his captain daddy's heart and was the pet of all the crew. But that youngster was in mischief all the time and had them all worried.

"You see, his daddy thought so much of him that he took him around on all his cruises with him, so this little fellow saw many foreign ports, and when he was eight years old he had seen far more of the world than many a grown man sees in a lifetime.

"At last one day when 'Old Ironsides' was lying at anchor in one of those foreign ports Little Hal started out to see what he could see. It was a lovely summer day. The ocean was almost as smooth as a pond, and a light breeze ruffled the waters.

"Nobody was watching Little Hal that day, and what do you think that youngster did? Why, he climbed up the rigging which led up the main mast of 'Old Ironsides,' and he climbed up and up and up until finally he stood away up at the top of that mast, many, many feet above the deck.

"Now, just think of the dangerous position that little boy was in. He wasn't one bit afraid. If he had been, even for an instant, he would have fallen to the deck and been killed.

"A sailor saw him first, and how frightened he was! He didn't dare to call to Hal, for if he did he was afraid he would startle him and cause him to fall. So he called some of the other sailors, and they just looked up at that little boy, who was laughing so far above their heads, and they were badly frightened.

"Then the captain daddy came on deck. And what do you suppose he did? He caught up a musket near at hand and pointed it at his little son and cried, 'Jump far out into the sea or I'll shoot!'

"And the little boy jumped away out into the water, as he was told, and one of the sailors leaped out for him, and they brought him safely to the deck. Of course the father wouldn't have fired. The only way to save the little boy was to make him jump away out into the water. But Hal was more careful after that."

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"When we get our inheritance," said Nell with an air, "we'll build a house, if we stay here, and have all the modern conveniences."

"If we stay here!" echoed Dick.

"Had you planned to have me retire and live on the interest of the money? Oh, Nell, that's a good one."

"Well of course that would depend on how much we got." Nell looked embarrassed.

"That would make no difference to me. I love my work and should never think of leaving it; besides, I've no idea the sum will be large."

"I suppose you would have no objection to owning a pretty, modern home." Nell eyed him keenly.

"Certainly not; but how could we have modern conveniences in a town that has no water works, no sewer, no electric plant?"

"That's easy," said Nell in a lofty tone. "Have your own lighting plant and a big cistern with a force pump in the cellar."

"I think for a little woman who prides herself on being economical, you are laying out an expensive program, don't you? My plan would be to put the money out at interest and have something to fall back on in case of sickness or reverses of any kind."

"Well, a lovely home would be an asset, I should think, and it would be something to enjoy every day as we lived along. That's what I believe in. Besides, there's the saving on rent."

"You forget the interest on the money invested. That would pay the rent and more, if you build such a house as you plan." Dick puffed his cigar with the air of one who has taken high ground and proposes to maintain it.

"Do you mean to say you would put the money out at interest and keep on living as we've been doing?" Nell's tone was aggrieved.

"Pretty much the same. The interest would be added to our income and that would mean some luxuries we can't afford now." Dick blew a series of smoke rings into the air.

"What's the use of getting money if you bury it out of sight and get no enjoyment out of it?" Nell jabbed the dustcloth between the rounds of the chairs spitefully.

"Well, I never was much for splurge and dash. Plain, homely comforts, debts all paid, and a decent competency in the bank to ward off worry—that's my idea of happiness. Remember, we've got the boy to educate."

"Anyone would think you did not expect to be able to support your family unaided," said Nell spitefully.

"Just what do you mean by that?" Dick sat up and looked squarely at his wife.

"If you hadn't heard of this money you would have paid your debts and educated your son, it is to be hoped. This is a windfall; why not enjoy it, not tuck it away and live as if it had never come." Nell flourished her dustcloth in an oratorical manner.

"I propose to enjoy it; the question is simply how. Your answer would be by spending it. Mine would be in having a sense of security. I don't suppose you realize the load of responsibility I carry. If I feel a bit unfit I shudder to think what would come if I dropped out and left you to face the world alone with the baby."

"There's the insurance," suggested Nell.

"The insurance! What would $5,000 be? About $300 a year. What would a pittance like that amount to? Women never know what loads their husbands carry; loads so heavy when business cares press hardest that they can scarcely sleep. Can't you see what a sense of security a little sum to the good would be?"

"Perhaps you are right, but I am horribly sick of retrenching, of squeezing every dollar till the eagle screams." Nell sat down on the arm of Dick's chair.

He laughed and said: "We'll patch up a compromise when we find out how much it is that is coming to us."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Colored garments should always be hung in the shade to dry; the sun will fade them quicker than careless washing. Vinegar is useful in reviving color; add one teaspoon vinegar to each quart water, rinse, wring tight, dry quickly. To wash brown Holland dresses, use bran (no soap). Boil two handfuls of bran in one quart water, cool, wash and rinse in bran water.

When crocheting around a doily, instead of punching holes in the goods with a crocheting needle, make a tiny hem around and have it machine hemstitched, then crochet in the hemstitched holes. The hem will make the edge raised a little and it will be much more even than if made with the needle.

When baking Boston baked beans, to prevent that brown, hard substance from forming on the lid and sides of baking dish—before putting in beans, rub sides and lid well with lard; what does adhere can be removed without soaking and scrapping, and still be as clean as new.

THE TABLE

Pot Roast—Take a piece of suet the size of your fist (if you are a woman; but if you are a man take only half that) and cut in small pieces into your kettle, which for best results must be iron. Add to this a small onion sliced—let this brown and when the kettle is smoking hot add your roast. Let it brown thoroughly on both sides, then add one pint of tomato, either canned or fresh. Let simmer slowly, adding small quantities of water as the tomato cooks down. At the last let it fry in the fat until lightly brown; remove to platter, make gravy and serve.

Delicious German Cheese Cakes—Beat yolks of four eggs with one pound cottage cheese or schmierkase, eight tablespoons flour and eight tablespoons sugar. Add a little salt and pinch of ground mace or nutmeg; lastly add whites of four eggs beaten very stiff. Add enough milk to make a batter about the consistency of griddle cake batter. Line baking tin with sheet of buttered paper, spread mixture uniformly thick, sprinkle some ground cinnamon and few currants over top and bake.

POULTRY RULES

Have good dry houses, well ventilated, but void of drafts.

Keep henhouses clean and floor covered with ashes. Whitewash inside monthly from March 1 to October 1.

Feed chickens regularly, but never overfeed. Cease feeding when fowls cease to run for it.

Scatter the food on the ground when the weather will permit. Feed mixed grain or alternate, as: corn one day, oats next, wheat next, etc.

Allow adult fowls freedom as early in the morning as they desire.

Keep hens with chicks in small coops (well covered and dry) until chicks are three weeks old. Put them on the cowlot, where the cows have been, and they will not get the gapes.

Grease the hens well under the wings, breast and fluff feathers, as soon as the chicks are taken off, with ointment made of lard and carbolic acid: one tablespoon lard to ten drops acid.

CARE OF FOOD IN THE SUMMER

Place green vegetables in porcelain receptacle, select a cloth large enough to cover vegetables tightly. Wet enough so water will be dripping from it, place covered pan in ice chest. If you have no ice chest practically the same results can be obtained by setting the pan in the cellar or in a shady place outdoors where the air circulates.

Lemonade or any fruit drink can be cooled in a pitcher by wrapping it in a wet cloth.

Butter can be kept sweet with the same treatment.

Cream and milk are also preserved in this way; both should be covered tightly.

Unpeeled fruits and canned fruits that have been opened may be kept longer in this way.

Meat should not come in direct contact with cloth; place it in a covered dish around which wet cloth is folded.

REAL BABIES!

Oh, a dream-baby smiles in a whimsical way,
But a real baby gurgles and screams
And rollicks about in a lustier play
Than the babies we know in our dreams.

A dream-baby's breath is as cool as the snow
And its loving is pale as the moon,
But a real-baby's breath is like lilies that grow
In the warm-hearted sweetness of June.

A wan little cloud-crested seal—
But a real-baby's kisses rekindle our faith—
For a real-baby's kisses are real!

Jane Burr (New York Times.)

Denver.

A children's "peace" movement has been started in Denver that is meant to become as world-wide as the Woman's Peace League. The movement is being introduced into the public schools as well as in every Sunday-school in the city. The children are asked to promise to add what they can to the happiness of the world by refusing to harbor hatred; to love nature; to live at peace with their neighbors, themselves and their maker; to love animals and to be brave enough to stand the taunts of the ignorant.

What Mothers Give Themselves.

In Child-Welfare Magazine, Roberta Ford points out the "happy medium" between the old tyrannical type of mother who forced a son into the ministry and compelled a daughter to give up matrimony to give a helping hand in the home; and the later type of mother who devoted her whole life to the child and obeyed its every whim. "Mothers," she writes, "owe themselves good health, sound teeth, good figures, alert mentalities, new books, lectures, concerts, plays, new ideas; their share of the money for conveniences in the home—their portion of new clothes and recreations. They owe themselves the confidence, respect and companionship of their husbands, the abiding trust and obedience of their children and some interests outside their home. We want women to broaden as well as to lengthen their lives and to be well, instead of miserable."

To Teach Courtesy.

Treat all children with courtesy, and speak always in quiet, gentle voice to them. "It is not so much what you say as the manner in which you say it."

Nature's Food for Baby.

It is very important that the baby be nursed regularly because the act of suckling causes the milk to come to the breasts, and increases the supply. The following things also influence the supply: Peace of mind is necessary for the mother; she must not worry; she should not get overtired; she should eat freely and the total quantity of fluid taken should not be less than two quarts—in hot weather more. Stuffing, however, should be avoided.

Recreation.

The parents is and always must be the chief educator of the children and lacking the influence of their fathers our boys and girls will grow up having missed that part of their education which is most lasting and most vital. It is one of the father's chief duties to supply his children with pleasure, not at all an easy duty, for he can only vaguely guess what entertainments will give real pleasure, satisfying and not vicious to themselves nor tending to drift into vice. The father who is really willing to render his children's lives as happy as possible will not be long before he forms a rough guess as to what kinds of amusement give the children real pleasure, and be those pleasures what they may, a little patting here and pulling there will foster them and lead them in the right direction.

Will-Power.

One thing every parent should grasp is that the centre for attack in the training of children in the will. All that happens in the home and all that is done for the child must yield him a dividend of will-power. One simply must not ignore this. Duty to children is not fulfilled in giving children a good time or doing for them. Discipline, guidance, influence must play upon the will or the child's life problem becomes an unsolved enigma. To beget and train a strong will there must be over him a reasonable authority. No one can acquire will-power who has not learned obedience. But much depends on the basis of this authority. It cannot rest long on mere physical prowess for the time comes when the child becomes stronger and such authority vanishes. It cannot rest on assumed infallibility of knowledge, for learning grows and the child of today may become wiser than father or mother. It must not be a tyranny, for tyranny breeds fear, and fear dwarfs the soul. It must be rather such an authority as awakens loyalty—fidelity that is saturated with love. A will that is molded by such an authority will be strong.

INSURANCE THAT INSURES

Most men realize their responsibilities. They know that those whom they support in life must be supported when they are dead, and so they insure their lives. But in many cases they fail to provide for the investing and safeguarding of this insurance fund, with the result that it is often squandered or dissipated.

If you appoint The Plainfield Trust Company as Trustee under your will your insurance money will be invested according to law and your dependent ones will receive an assured income. We consider this matter so important that we have issued a booklet on the subject which will be sent you on request.

MANY MEN DON'T

Read advertisements, many who do, don't believe them.

Because one store can say as much as another, whereas what really counts is what a store does.

Omitting all glittering generalities, therefore, we want you men to come in and see a collection of summer shoes—unlike any others in town—for all around value.

At the mountains, by the seaside, on the golf links, on the tennis court, or on the summer streets in town. They are indispensable for comfort's as well as fashion's sake.

EXCELL IN ATHLETICS

Delegation of Y. M. C. A. Boys Return After a Delightful Two Weeks' Vacation in Camp—Results of Contests Announced.

Browned and sunburned, sixteen Y. M. C. A. boys are exhibiting themselves to their friends today as living recommendations of Camp Wawayanda. The sixteen, with former Y. M. C. A. Boys' Secretary Edwin Glaentzer, returned to Plainfield yesterday afternoon after two of the best weeks they have ever spent. Each of the sixteen boys envied the seven of their number who remained behind to form a part of the second section, which went to camp yesterday.

As an innovation this year, the plan of conveying the boys by motor bus was tried, and proved a success, although it was not possible to make the entire trip from Plainfield to the camp that way. Beyond Greenwood Lake the roads are in very bad condition, and the bridges are not considered by the Y. M. C. A. officials strong enough to rick going over with a heavy motor bus, so on the return trip yesterday the boys were conveyed by wagon from the camp to the lake, and took the bus to that point. The new boys who went to camp yesterday, walked from the terminus of the motor bus route to the camp, so eager were they to get there. Through the use of the motor bus a saving of $1.30 a head is effected, besides a saving in time of three or four hours.

The boys who returned from camp in yesterday's party were: Duncan Taylor, L. Bohl, H. V. Neilson, C. P. Estes, Benjamin Doane, H. V. Condict, Charles Alexander, John Elliott, Harold Whitford, Arthur Krausse, Edward Boyle, Wallace Weglau, Gustave Weglau, Edward Smith, Donald Henwood and Louis F. Zeek. The party left camp at 3 o'clock and reached home at 5:30 o'clock.

Mr. Glaentzer was gratified at the good showing the Plainfield boys made in every department of camp work and play. The five members of the Plainfield Boy Leaders' Corps who were at the camp led the "setting-up" exercises every morning, which was considered quite an honor. In the athletic contest for a handsome cup, which is to run through all four sections, the Plainfield Association left camp with a lead of over 400 points. They made more than 1,400 points to the thousand or so of their nearest opponent association. In the aquatic contest, for which a cup is also offered, no scores had been given out at the time the boys left, but Mr. Glaentzer thinks that the Plainfield delegation stood as high in that as in the other.

In the quoit pitching championship contest Donald Henwood was in the finals, but lost out. Duncan Taylor and Gustav Weglau passed their examinations for admission to the U. S Volunteer Life Saving Corps. This examination was both mental and physical. In the "Want to Know It" Club two boys were admitted to membership. This club is composed of boys who, after a course of instruction in field and woods, can successfully describe 100 natural objects. The value of this training can scarcely be imagined.

Roy Estes and John Hammann, of this city, and Albert Coddington, of Bound Brook, were the three boys who left for camp yesterday. So far, eight boys have signified their intention of going with the third section, and five with the fourth or last section. F. O. Dunning, Jr., remained at camp for the second section.

HEARING TOMORROW.

James Ross, an Italian bootblack, with a place of business on West Front street, and Emma Backer, of 230 West Second street, were arrested by Patrolman Roland McIntyre at 8 o'clock this morning on a complaint sworn out by the girl's mother, charging the two with disorderly conduct. They were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, and in default of $100 bail each, were remanded to a cell to remain until tomorrow morning.

ADMINISTRATION PAPERS.

Elizabeth, July 16.—Mrs. Nettie M. Murray, of Plainfield, daughter of Augustus P. Hetfield, who died in Plainfield in June, was granted papers of administration for his estate by Surrogate Parrot yesterday. Mrs. Isabelle H. Hetfield is also an heir. She is the widow of Mr. Hetfield.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 72 degrees; 11 a. m., 76 degrees; 1 p. m., 78 degrees.

CONGRATULATED ON THEIR WEDDING DAY

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Sr., Complete Fifty-nine Years of Married Life.

Although they are at their summer home, "Burnbrae," Wolfboro, N. H., friends throughout the city and borough are sending congratulatory messages to Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Sr., who have today completed fifty-nine years of wedded life. Throughout the day the couple have been the recipients of scores of telegrams, letters and verbal well-wishes. Although no formal clebration will mark the event, a small family gathering will be held tonight at the cottage, during which time a musical treat will be offered. Friends and neighbors from nearby cottages and camps have dropped in "Burnbrae" throughout the day to wish the couple many happy returns of the day.

Nine years ago Mr. and Mrs. Murray observed their golden wedding anniversary at Wolfboro, at which time seventy-five guests attended the celebration. Each year the couple spend their summer months at the latter place, where they have made a large number of friends and acquaintances. In this city and the borough their friends are legion.

Mr. Murray is a veteran insurance man, and until a few years ago, when he retired, was actively engaged in the business. Their Plainfield address is 804 Central avenue.

ACCOUNTING OF NEAL WILL IS DEMANDED

Daughter Granted Ruling by Court Concerning Disposition of $32,000.

Appearing before Judge James C. Connolly in the Orphans' Court, Elizabeth, this morning, Mrs. Arthur J. Williams, of West Front street, through her attorney, William A. Coddington, asked the court to grant a ruling to compel Frank Neal and Edward Neal, her brothers, and Mrs. Harriet A. Neal, her mother, to give an accounting of her father's estate. Mrs. Williams, who before her marriage was Miss Florence Neal, recently became of age and, according to her attorney, she was named by her father as a beneficiary in his will. Her mother and two brothers were the administrators and, according to the petitioner, they have refused to give a satisfactory accounting to show what has become of the bulk of the estate. Frank Neal lives in this city and Edward Neal lives in St. Papl, Minn.

The late Frank Neal left among other things in his will, a valuable piece of property located at West Front street and Central avenue. According to Mrs. Williams this property was sold for the sum of $32,000 and she has demanded the accounting primarily for the purpose of ascertaining what has become of this money.

Judge Connolly set next Friday as the date for the hearing in the matter. Isaac P. Runion represents the administrators. The testator died in this city five years ago.

EAST END STORE ENTERED AND GROCERIES ARE STOLEN

One of the doors of Cashin's grocery store at 706 South avenue was found open by a patrolman shortly after midnight this morning, and investigation led to the discovery that the following articles were missing. One bag of flour, two bottles of vinegar, a quantity of ice cream and candy, ten pounds of tea, a lot of canned goods and three checks made payable to the proprietor's wife.

It is the opinion of the police that the place was entered by juvenile thieves and an investigation is underway. Several boys in that neighborhood are suspected and will be questioned today.

JACK CARMICHAEL SURPRISED.

Twenty-five friends gathered at the home of Jack Carmichael, at 220 Prescott place, last night, to tender him a surprise party. The affair was arranged by Lewis Beatty and was a complete surprise to the guest of honor. The home was prettily decorated for the event, and dancing, games, singing and instrumental selections were features of the evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

CHICAGO TROLLEYMEN's RAISE.

Chicago, July 16.—A raise of three cents an hour has been awarded to the employes of the local traction lines. The increase will cost the companies about $1,170,000 a year.

LECOURS HELD FOR JUVENILE COURT

Clarence Lecours, of Somerset street, the boy who was apprehended yesterday by Chief Marshal Weiss, of North Plainfield, charged with breaking open a gas meter in the residence of Mr. Jimmerson, 233 Somerset street, was arraigned before Justice T. H. Snape in North Plainfield police headquarters this morning, and held for the Juvenile Court, which will meet at Somerville, July 30.

The Public Service Corporation was the complainant in the case. The boy was paroled yesterday in the custod. of his father, Emile Lecours, who produced him in court today. It was with the approbation of the father that Justice Snape held the boy for the Juvenile Court.

Before Justice Snape the boy confesed to many offenses, from breaking windows and stealing a couple of caps to running away with bicycles and stealing a gold watch valued at over $200, the offenses extending over a period of two or three years. As the boy gave his age as only ten and one-half years, the police declared that he had begun his career of crime very young. The father said that the instances enumerated were not half the offenses of which the boy had been guilty, and expressed the wish that the justice would hold the boy for the Juvenile Court. It was stated in court that Clarence was in the habit of running away repeatedly, staying away from home for days at a time, and that he was incorrigible.

LOCAL PEOPLE LEASE LAKESIDE COTTAGES

Many Plainfielders Spending Their Summer Vacations at Lake Hopatcong.

Lake Hopatcong is becoming one of the most popular resorts for Plainfield vacationists, and a large number have visited this summering place during the past fortnight from this city. Each Sunday a representative delegation takes the Central Railroad's day's trip to the lake, and frequently during the week days automobilists visit the place.

Among those who have recently selected it as a vacation resort are: Mrs. Charles Dunham, of Central avenue, and Mrs. William Mosher, of New street, who have opened a bungalow on Halsey Island for two weeks; Mrs. J. H. Brown, of Watchung avenue, has leased West View Cottage, located on one of the prettiest spots on Raccoon Island, for the remainder of the summer. It is now being occupied by her daughter, Miss Agnes Brown, who has for her guest for the next two weeks Mrs. William N Runyon, East Ninth street. Charles H. Russell and family, of Union street, have leased the Henrick Cottage, on Halsey island, and will occupy it for the remainder of the season, beginning July 25. Edmund Waldorf, of Crescent avenue, is spending the summer at Camp Ram's Horn. Mrs. Leslie Crane, formerly Miss Cora Gano, of this city, but now of Elizabeth, will return home tomorrow after a two weeks' stay at Camp Shady Rock, Castle Rock Park, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Mathews, of West Fifth street, this city. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mundy, of Jefferson avenue, are spending the summer at Camp Plainfield, Castle Rock Park.

Recent visitors at Camp Ram's Horn, which is conducted by Thomas M Muir, of this city, were: Assemblyman William N. Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth street; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Johnston, of Grant avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Herman De Vallier, of West Front street, and Recorder Philip S. Jahn, of Scotch Plains.

MRS. DALE NOT MEMBER.

Taking the information from several metropolitan papers, it was stated in the Daily Press of Tuesday that Mrs. Orton G. Dale, of this city, had been made a director of the National Made in U. S. A. League. Mrs. Dale has advised the Daily Press that her name had been used by the organization without her consent, and that she had no knowledge of such an organization before reading of it in the Press, and requested that announcement be made that although the movement may be a most commendable one, she has had no part in its organization.

GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK AT 'PLAINS

Elaborate Arrangements Being Made for "Community Picnic" on August 11.

AN ALL-DAY AFFAIR

Committee of Which Rev. Dr. J. Madison Hare is Chairman, is Completing Details for the Big Open-Air Gathering.

Rev. Dr. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, who is also chairman of the committee on the "community picnic" to be held at the 'Plains on Wednesday, August 11, returned last night from Sea Girt, where he interviewed Governor Fielder and made the final arrangements for his appearance at the picnic. The Governor will make the principal addres at the exercises to be held in the afternoon, and there will be many other features to interest those attending.

This is the first time that Scotch Plains has undertaken a picnic of this character and judging by the enthusiasm of the people there as well as in Fanwood there is no question as to its success. A large committee has been named to look after all of the important details. The affair will afford the people in that section to get together for the advancement of the interest of the twin municipalities and much good is expected to result from the gathering. It will be an all-day picnic and the committee has arranged to have something doing every minute of the time from early in the morning until late in the evening. The program will include athletic events of all sorts and a baseball game, in addition to the address by Governor Fielder.

There will also be a band concert to enliven the occasion and in completing the arrangements the committee had in mind the oldest inhabitant as well as the youngest with a view to providing entertainment for everyone. Just what will be the evening program has not yet been announced, but those planning to attend can rest assured that it will be attractive.

For the purpose of making the picnic strictly a "community" affair, the general committee has enlisted the aid and support of the various churches, societies and other organizations at the 'Plains and all are most enthusiastic in their efforts to make the event one not soon to be forgotten.

Dr. Hare, in addition to securing Governor Fielder's consent to be present and speak, has also invited a number of other prominent persons from various parts of the State whose presence will surely add interest to the gathering. The general committee is now holding frequent meetings to complete all of the details at as early a date as possible.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN COMEDY AT COLUMBUS CLUB EUCHRE

Through the courtesy of the management of the U. S. Astor Theatre the committee in charge of the euchre and reception to be given in the auditorium of the Columbus Club tonight has been able to secure one of Charlie Chaplin's latest film hits, "The Woman," for presentation on the screen during the evening. A special apparatus has been rigged up for the occasion, and the production, which consists of two reels, will be shown during a dance intermission.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for tonight's function, which promises to be one of the largest ever held in the local club. Cards, consisting of "500," euchre and pinochle, will be played, and twenty-five prizes will be distributed among the players showing the best ability. Refreshments will be served by the committee and dancing will be a feature, music for which will be furnished by "Al" Squires' orchestra.

SWIMMING POOL IS RAIDED BY POLICE

Twenty Boys Haled to Borough Court for Not Wearing Bathing Suits.

The heat yesterday did not excuse a score of boys, from little fellows all the way up to fourteen and fifteen years of age, going in swimming in Green brook minus any clothing, as Office Pope, of the North Plainfield police force, demonstrated to them when he raided the swimming pool in the rear of Cyrus T. Small's residence on Myrtle avenue, and rounded up twenty bathers. They were held in police headquarters long enough to frighten them well, then permitted to go.

Complaints from Mr. Small's family to the effect that boys were making a practice of bathing in the brook in the rear of their residence, many of them without going through the formality of donning bathing suits, made Chief Marshal Weiss instruct Officer Pope to keep an eye on the pool. The latter concluded yesterday afternoon that it would be a fruitful time to strike, but he did not anticipate such a big catch. The boys followed him obediently to the police station, however, although he was relieved when he had turned the bunch over to Chief Weiss.

All excepting one boy behaved well when brought before the Chief, but the exception, a big boy, yelled so fiercely that the Chief kept him in a cell most of the afternoon as punishment. When finally released, the boy was in a docile mood and readily promised never to go swimming in the pool again without a bathing suit.

WORKING HARD FOR STREET WIDENING

Many Have Gathered Wrong Impression About Improvement Petitioned for.

That a number of people have gathered wrong impressions concerning the proposition advocating the widening of Somerset street, from Front street to the Greenbrook bridge, is the opinion of those fostering the movement and all possible effort to correct the erroneous impression is being made. A self-appointed committee went the rounds this morning and conversed with a number of property holders who have been holding out against the movement and it is hoped to convince many of the expediency of the widening.

"Nothing definite concerning the progress the councilmanic street committee has made in reviewing the proposition could be learned by the Plainfield Daily Press this morning, owing to the fact that Chairman Francis J. Blatz is out of the city on a fishing trip.

The plans call for a five foot widening on each side of the thoroughfare and the only buildings that will be affected are the frame ones, those constructed of brick all being a sufficient distance from the curb to allow for the necessary leeway. The bootblack stand at the juncture of Front and Somerset streets will have to be torn away as will also small portions of several frame structures, some of which are more than a hundred years old.

The petitioners point out the fact that it is probable that unless the widening is done now it will never be done, inasmuch as Christian Gloekler is erecting a brick building at the juncture of the streets.

DONATIONS WANTED.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will be grateful for donations of flowers, fruit, vegetables, delicacies and food suitable for the sick. Donations may be sent to the W. C. T. U., 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building, Monday afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock, and Tuesday morning, from 9 to 10:30 o'clock. Those having no way to send donations may notify Joseph M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, 'phone 758-W, and boys will be sent for same Tuesday morning. Donations in money may be sent to Mrs. Winter, Lenox avenue and Randolph road, treasurer of the guild.

RESUME WORK MONDAY.

Work will be resumed on the new postoffice building Monday, S. H. Nealy, the government inspector, having passed on another shipment of brick to take the place of the one condemned a week ago.

COMMISSIONERS FILE SEWER ASSESSMENTS

According to a report filed with County Clerk A. G. Anderson, at Somerville, Commissioners Thomas Richards, of Somerville; Harry B. McDonald, of North Plainfield, and J. V. D. Field, of Bound Brook, who were appointed to assess the lands to be seized for joint sewer purposes, the properties are valued at $16,748.25. There are fourteen different owners to be paid, and the ground to be taken over is situated in North Plainfield township. The expense is to be borne jointly by the city of Plainfield, the borough of North Plainfield and the borough of Dunellen.

Following are the names of the owners of the land seized, the number of feet taken, and the valuation assessed by the commissioners. Edwin J. Hughes, 135, $270; David S. Stiles, 210, $240; Joseph Tetlow, 150, $300; John B. Buckalew, 205, $205; Wenzel Kroha, 305, $579.50; Henry G. Tuttle, 1,435, $2,296; Lillian F. Feickert, 695, $1,251; S. L. Smith, 515, $927; Mary Elizabeth Harris, 765, $1,415.25; Thomas H. Hawkins, 525, $945; John Henderson, et al, 2,118, $3,177; Constantine Cramer, 950, $2,612.50; Herman Trust, 1,000, $2,000, and John W. Beetham, 350, $350.

SEVERE PENALTY FOR THE NEXT OFFENDER

Judge DeMeza Intends to Revoke Licenses of Those Who Violate Law.

Found guilty of a violation of the city hacking ordinance, John H. Barry, a taxicab driver, was severely scored by Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning and a fine of $10 was suspended over his head, to be enforced upon the next appearance, with the option of spending forty days in the county jail. The offense constituted the frequent practice of cab drivers at the North Avenue station in refusing to accept a single passenger when two or more are in sight. The ordinance provides that the first customer shall be served and it was shown in court that Barry turned one man down and drove away a minute later with three in his machine. In passing sentence Judge DeMeza said:

"The police department has had frequent complaints concerning the conduct of hackmen, but this is the first one that has been pressed. I am determined to break up the practice that you men are following at the depot in refusing fares and the next one who comes before me and is found guilty of this offense will be fined and his hacking license will be revoked for good."

This is the sixth time that Barry has been arrested for offenses committed at the depot and family circumstances were taken into consideration by the judge in passing sentence.

CONTRACTORS STILL PUMPING WATER FROM EXCAVATION

The contractors who are in charge of the work of installing a pumping station near the West End avenue bridge, in the borough, are still pumping water from the deep excavation while building a concrete base and walls. As fast as the water is pumped out the excavation fills up, it being fed from springs and the brook.

Warren engine, of the borough, was used for a time to pump water, but this was abandoned for the reason that the water contained so much sand that it put the engine out of commission. Arthur E. Smith, the contractor, then furnished a pump and engine to do the work. Judging by the present progress on the job it will be well along into midsummer before it is completed. The pump is run almost continuously day and night.

FRENCH TROOPS RETAKE HILL 285

Stratgetic Position Which Was Lost to Crown Prince Is in Turn Lost by Him.

U-51 REPORTED SUNK

Paris, July 16.—The French war statement issued today says that hill No. 285, one of the dominant positions in the Vosges recently won by the army of the German Crown Prince, has been recaptured by the French. This hill formed the key to French positions in the region of Vosges.

The following is the statement:

"In the region to the north of Arras, the enemy atempted to sally from his trenches to the south of the Chateau de Carleul and was immediately checked by our infantry and artillery fire.

"In the Argonne our curtains of fire prevented every tentative attack of the enemy.

"Between the Meuse and Moselle the night witnessed activity, but without action on the part of the infantry. There was a bombardment at the Ravine of Souvaux, bomb throwing in the Forest of Ailly, and cannonading to the north of Flirey.

"In Lorraine the Germans attacked on a front extending three kilometres the positions which they had lost near Leintrey. They at the same time bombarded all our line from the forest of Champenoux as far as the Vzouse River, delivering some attacks partly with infantry. They were everywhere repulsed. Near Leintrey, after having gained foothold in an element of the trenches, they were immediately rejected by a counter attack.

"In the region southeast of the forest of Parroy assaulting troops which had reached our wire entanglements were dispersed by our fire and left prisoners in our hands. The losses of the enemy appeared considerable."

Berlin, July 16.—The German war statement issued today says:

"Western theatre—We lost a French section south of the Souchez cemetery. Repeated attempts of the French to wrest from us the positions we have captured in the Argonne failed and the positions were firmly held by us. All French attacks delivered on the 14th and 15th to the west of the Argonne failed in the face of the brave defense of the North German Landwehr regiments that inflicted extremely sanguinary losses on the enemy in bitter hand to hand fighting and captured 462 prisoners.

"Eastern theatre—Our troops have crossed the Windau north of Kokeljany and advanced in an easterly direction. Southeast of Kolno and south of Przasnysz we have made further progres fighting virtoriously against the Russians who tried to stem our advance.

"Southwestern theatre—Situation unchanged."

Athens, July 16.—Germany's largest submarine, the U-51, is reported to have been sunk by Russian warships in the Black Sea.

The submarine U-51 gained fame by eluding the British blockade and passing through the Strait of Gibraltar. It left Wilhelmshaven, the great German base, to operate against the Allied fleet in the Dardanelles and was reported to have been successful in its mission. The U-51 has been credited with sinking several vessels belonging to the Allies, including the British battleship Majestic.

The British blockading fleet off Gibraltar was reported to have been warned of the approach of the U-51, but failed to catch the under water craft, which went from Gibraltar to the Dardanelles where she did much to prevent the Allies' warships from co-operating with the land forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Later the U-51 passed through the Sea of Marmora and reported to the German commander at Constantinople. If the report of her destruction in the Black Sea is true, she evidently went from the Turkish capital through the Bosphorus, probably to operate against the Russian Black Sea fleet.

Washington, July 16.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred today with Secretary of State Lansing in an effort to help adjust the seeming irreconcilliable points of difference in the controversy between Germany and the United States.

Rome, July 16.—A detachment of Italian infantry has succeeded in scaling the slopes of a ravine heretofore considered inaccessible, and

DUNELLEN

ANOTHER BICYCLE THEFT REPORTED AT DUNELLEN

Another cycle theft has been reported by the constabulary of this place. This time it was not a motorcycle but a bicycle. The wheel belonged to James Bays, and was stolen from his home several nights ago. The wheel was of a standard make and had only been purchased last summer.

James Bays resides with his parents, and making their home in the same house with the Bays is the Dutcher family. Lester Dutcher used to own a motorcycle, and it is supposed that the thieves, members of the so-called motorcycle gang which has been very active of late, went to Bays' place with the intention of stealing the motorcycle, and not finding the machine, which had been sold, contented themselves with taking the bicycle.

FURNISHED STREET GRADE.

Borough Engineer Churchill and force furnished sidewalk line and grade yesterday afternoon to A. H. Burdick, who is erecting a new house on the southeast corner of Washington avenue and Walnut street. The house faces on Washington avenue and fifty feet of walk will be laid along its front. On Walnut street the walk will extend for a distance of 150 feet. J. S. Hawkyard has been awarded the contract of laying the walk.

ENTERTAINS CLUB.

Mrs. A. F. Samson, of New Market road, entertained the Afternoon Card Club on the lawn of her home yesterday afternoon.

Benjamin C. Carpenter is repainting his home on Prospect avenue during his leisure hours.

MANY DUNELLEN PEOPLE ENJOY TRIP TO SHORE

So many people were taken out of the borough yesterday by the annual excursion of the Presbyterian Sunday school to Asbury Park that the place reminded one of the "Deserted Village." It was said last evening upon the excursion's return that it was the largest that had ever left this place.

The weather at the shore for the outing was ideal and couldn't have been any better if it had been especially ordered for the occasion. While those inshore were sweltering from the humid heat those at the shore were enjoying a nice sea breeze. The temperature of the ocean was 72, which is considered ideal for bathing, and Dunellen was well represented in the throng which enjoyed the surf throughout the day.

No accidents marred the outing, and the excursionists arrived back in the borough shortly before 9 o'clock, happy although tired.

GOT OFF EASY.

In such a condition through the too free use of alcoholic liquors that he couldn't give his name, John Crawford, of Piscataway, was arrested Wednesday by Marshal Isaac V. Smalley, while lying on the Bound Brook road, near Sanford avenue. When arraigned before Judge David S. Campbell in police headquarters yesterday morning, Crawford was given a severe reprimand and let go with the warning not to repeat his disgraceful feat.

Thurman Ayers and sons, Everett and Arthur, of Centre street, leave tomorrow for a two weeks' visit at Holmdel, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crawford, parents of Mr. Ayers' late wife.

DUNELLENITES REACH SHORE BEFORE EXCURSIONISTS

Mr. and Mrs. C. Lester Rule and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Ryno and Mrs. Harriett Fleming were among the excursionists to Asbury Park yesterday. They didn't go on the Sunday-school excursion train, however. They motored to the Park in Mr. Rule's new touring car.

They left the borough about the same time that the excursion train did and arrived at the Park shortly after half past ten. The excursion train didn't arrive at the Park until nearly 11 o'clock. At noon the party dined with Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Day and family, Miss Alice Pierce and Stanley Pierce, who had come to the Park on the excursion.

The household effects of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, who recently sold their home, the former Walter Vliet house on Front street to John P. Fenner, who in turn sold the place to Theodore W. Day, will be removed to their new home on Duer street, North Plainfield.

CONTRACT COMPLETED.

The contract of removing the bridge located for a good many years on Grove street across the stream, which seperates the municipalities of Plainfield and North Plainfield, to Somerville, is about completed. It has taken four days to complete the job. The side frames of the bridge were moved intact and the sixty-foot steel extensions separately.

Henry Ward, an old friend of Edward Pennock, of North avenue, dropped into town on Wednesday and paid the latter a visit.

J. Russell Garretson and Jeremiah Flaherty have returned from their trip to Niagara Falls.

Frank Day, of Grove street, has severed his connection with the park gang of the Central Railroad in order to accept a position on the carpentry force of that road.

ENJOYED STRAW RIDE.

A party composed of about thirty young people, mostly from this place, enjoyed a straw ride to Stony Hill, Wednesday night. The party was arranged by C. Lou Wahl, of Washington avenue. The trip was made in Martin's auto truck, from Plainfield. The party remained in Stony Hill, where they enjoyed a dance until a late hour.

Judge David is Campbel, iz assisting Michael T. Moynihan in his coal and grain business during the illness of the office manager, Miss Mary Moynihan.

Dewey Vroom, who recently resigned his position as manager of the Park Hotel stables, has accepted a lucrative position at the aeroplane works at Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Scandell, of Brooklyn, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Scandell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Barto, of Front street.

PROSTRATED WITH HEAT.

Mrs. Oscar Runyon, of Dunellen avenue, was prostrated by the heat while attending the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Swackhamer, at Camden, Wednesday morning. Mrs. Runyon was placed under a doctor's care, and she was not able to come home until yesterday afternoon.

'Plains & Fanwood.

After a layoff of a week's meeting, the members of the Rifle Club will resume their shooting on the Westfield avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon.

The baseball game between the young men of the 'Plains and borough is due to start at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the Park avenue grounds.

Wallace York and Arthur Kyte left yesterday to join their ship at Newport News on the return trip to France, after spending several days with the Misses Kyte, of Martine avenue.

Mrs. William Reynolds, of Newark, has been spending several weeks with her grandfather, William Hull, of Westfield avenue.

The children's and athletic committees of the "community picnic" held meetings last night and yesterday afternoon to formulate their part of the program. The other committee will hold meetings before Monday night, and on that date the day's program, with the time for the various events will be made out at the meeting of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association in the Baptist church.

A. J. Conway, of the township, could not resist the temptation of not trying the new golf course at the Westfield Golf Club for long and on Tuesday took a shot at his mark established on the old links, which is the professional record of the club, and hung up a 79 score for the eighteen holes. On the first nine holes he returned a score of 39 and on the second time around made it in 40. The best amateur record turned in on the new course so far is an 86 by William Townley, of Westfield, who made it in 42 and 44. A. I. Nichol, of North avenue, has not tried his luck on the course yet, but will have the old mark to shoot at. He held the amateur championship on the old course with a card of 72 and after going over the new one both laurels will probably still be in Fanwood.

Work on the O'Halloren residence on Russell road will be finished in another ten days, while Contractor Alberts will have the Sheelen residence on North avenue ready for occupancy in another month. Work on the new dwelling for James Miniszek on Russell road is also being rushed as the contractor will probably start on others for Mr. Miniszek before cold weather.

A meeting of the Sunshine Weavers was held last night at the home of Mrs. John Z. Hatfield, of Stout avenue. The usual profitable evening of sewing was spent and later refreshments were served.

Suffering a nervous attack from the severe thunderstorm of Wednesday, Mrs. Ryan, who makes her home with her sister, Mrs. Charles Sternhiem, of South avenue, is now ill following a stroke of apoplexy. Her condition is serious.

Among local people registered at Ocean Grove are Mrs. John Lyndall and Mrs. James Parks, both of Front street.

The members of the Epworth League, of the Methodist church, will enjoy a picnic tomorrow afternoon and evening.

John Russell, of King street, has nearly recovered from the burns received about his head on the Fourth of July. It was at first thought his sight would be effected. Walter Montross, of Farley avenue, has also recovered from burns received on the same day.

German Valley. and Chester

After an illness of three months, Mrs. James Anthony is now able to be about her home.

Mrs. Margaret C. Miller entertained the Progressive Whist Club Wednesday night.

Supervising Principal John A. Parker has closed negotiations for the sale of his farm to a Brooklyn resident. He will move from Flocktown to Schooley's Mountain.

Mrs. Le Gray is entertaining Miss Kate Connely, of High Bridge.

John C. Welsh has returned from a short visit at Plainfield.

George B. Hiller and Mrs. Hiller, of Hartwick, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Harry A. Coursen. Mrs. Hiller was formerly Miss Lydia Dufford and resided here for a number of years.

The annual fair of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held July 28.

Instead of giving a fair this year the Presbyterian church will hold a sale.

Work on the Bartley road, of Chester township, is nearly finished. The road will be given a top dressing of crushed stone.

During the heavy electrical storm last Tuesday, the house of J. Augustus Drake was set on fire by lightning, which entered on electric light wires. The damage was slight.

South Plainfield.

The Mt. Pleasant Social Club gave the play, "Too Many Husbands," at the Baptist church last night, under the auspices of the church. The affair was a success.

Mrs. Samuel Clauson and son, John, have returned after spending several weeks in New York.

POLITICAL NOTES.

According to reports from Roselle Park there is a strong sentiment in favor of Councilman William Shaw, Democrat, for the Mayoralty nomination to succeed Harwood Fish, whose term expires this year.

Councilman Richard A. Claybrook and Juan A. Babcock have both expressed their intention to retire from office at the expiration of their terms this year.

The next political event of interest to the "faithful ones" of Union county will be the Republican outing in August. Chairman William Newcorn, of the county committee, has already started plans for the affair.

Lawyer Robert Newton Crane has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the City Council from the First ward, but it is doubtful whether he would enter the contest with the idea of losing a State job which he now holds. However, Mr. Crane would undoubtedly make a good representative for his ward.

There is no doubt but that City Judge William G. DeMeza will seek a re-nomination for office next fall. No one can deny but that he has made a good record and his many friends believe that he would have no trouble in getting a nomination and being re-elected.

SPREAD OF DISEASE CAUSED BY RODENTS

United States Public Health Service Gives Some Convincing Facts.

That the migratory habits of rodents have a bearing upon the spread of disease is not generally known, but the United States Public Health Service, as a result of experiments conducted in plague epidemic work at New Orleans, asserts that such is the case. This is but another illustration that the field of preventive medicine is especially broad, and investigators therein must be thoroughly familiar with the life history and habits of flies, mosquitoes, ticks, and even rodents.

Several hundred captured rats were marked for purposes of identification by having their ears punched, care being taken not to render them conspicuous, as fellow rodents wage relentless warfare upon those which appear different from their kind. They were then released in the heart of the city, and allowed to shift for themselves. Trapping was carried on in all sections, and each rat was labeled as to the locality caught. Fully one-quarter of the rats made widespread excursions, that is they were recaptured at points from one to four miles from where they were liberated. In one instance, a rat traveled nineteen blocks, crossing one of the widest and busiest streets in the city, where there was no subterranean passage, and was retaken within sixty hours from the time of its liberation. From the experiments it is concluded that the semi-domesticated rat has migratory habits similar to wild animals, and that these habits are influenced by abundance or scarcity of food, facility for harborage, or the presence of natural enemies. It is also believed that certain inexplicable instincts tend to make the rat a wanderer. That in this instance the "homing" instinct was not responsible for the migration was clearly proven.

This migratory habit of rodents explains many facts connected with the dissemination of plague; it will also doubtless prove enlightening to those who have attempted to exterminate rats for economic reasons. The Indian Plague Commission was of the opinion that rats seldom journeyed from one section of the city to another, but the conclusion of the Public Health officials is quite the opposite. As a measure of the success of trapping operations, it is interesting to note that over one-half of the rodents liberated were recaptured within a month.

TWO GOOD REASONS.
Tourist (in Kentucky)—I wonder why this shabby little hamlet is called Dell Delight?
Colonel Nosepaint—Because, in the fuhst place, it is in a dell; and, secondly, because we have fo' apple-jack distilluhries within a stone's-throw of each othuh, suh!

SERIOUS.
"Dear me!" exclaimed the fond father, anxiously. "Whatever can be the matter with the baby?—it isn't crying!"

DIPLOMACY.
College Football Captain—Now fellows, I want you all to go out for basketball this winter and do your worst. Eat 'em alive! If we want football here next fall, we've got to show the faculty that it's safer than basketball.

IN OLDEN DAYS.

Belshazzar saw the writing on the wall.
"It's only another reassuring statement from the Government," he cried.

NO DISAPPOINTMENT.
Cityman—I see you have the largest part of your garden devoted to onions.
Suburban—Yes. Mary and I don't care for onions!

THE SIMPLEST EVER.
Shade of Henry VIII.—I'll tell you what to do with those Suffragettes, old man. Treat 'em the way I used to treat my women-folks.

A LITTLE TOKEN OF ESTEEM.
Moriarity—Th' boys want to buy a lovin' cup for Assemblyman Flannigan.
Jeweler—Here is something very choice for ten dollars.
Moriarity—I don't think Flannigan would go so high as that—but we'll ask him!

FACTS ABOUT WINTER.
It is the coldest part of the year—also the longest part.
It is the season of the snowshoe, the ski, and the skate—also the hot-drink and the coal bill.
The treacherous icy sidewalk, veiled with a quarter inch of snow, now lurks on every corner for its unsuspecting victim.
A policeman rapping on the front door is a sure sign that the walks are about to be cleaned.
The first warm trolley-car has been discovered in New York and is now on exhibition.
The snow-shovel will find the boundary line between two lots more accurately than the best surveyor.
The kind neighbor with a horse and snowplow stands nearest to Heaven's gate.
The hardest thing to find in the winter is the lee side of the ash-barrel.
The furnace that runs like a top and behaves like a Sunday-school maiden while you are in the basement watching it is always the one which is either too hot or too cold as soon as you begin reading in the library.
It has been noted on blizzardly mornings that the boss is always on hand in time to listen to the excuses of his belated staff.
The man who is at the office earliest and stays latest frequently rooms in a cold place.
Plenty of fellows are still alive who remember that big blizzard of '36.

INTAXICATED.
Wife—I think that chauffer was under the influence of liquor?
Husband—I know he was. He gave me back the right change?

SO MANY NUMBERS.
Friend (in 1925)—So next year's cars are going to be fifty feet wide?
Auto Agent—Yes. You see we must have room for the number on the back.

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP.
The cake she made looked fine enough
To justify her pride,
But when we came to eat the stuff
We pretty nearly died!
She said she could not comprehend
What trouble there could be,
She'd followed closely to the end
The cook-book recipe.

It certainly seemed strange the cake
Should turn out such a mess,
Unless she made some sad mistake
Despite her carefulness.
The book proved such the truth to be Beyond the slightest doubt,
For from the simple recipe
Six pages were torn out!

"O, THAT IS ONLY ONE OF JACK GAFFNEY'S JOKES"

When he was questioned today concerning a report published yesterday in another local newspaper that he was being considered as a candidate for mayor of the borough on the Democratic ticket, Herman Schwed, of the clothing firm of Schwed Brothers, declared: "O, that is only one of Jack Gaffney's jokes."

"Why," said Mr. Schwed, "I have not even given a thought to such a thing and you can say for me that there is absolutely nothing in the report. I am not seeking political honors of any kind."

POLISH MAN AN ENIGMA TO SOUTH PLAINFIELD POLICE

Detective William Everhardt and the South Plainfield police are harboring a human enigma in a jail cell who is being kept under careful surveillance for fear that he will commit suicide. The prisoner is a man of about thirty-five years of age and is thought to be Polish. His queer actions about South Plainfield yesterday afternoon caused complaints from mothers of girls he had chased and when arrested he was found digging in a pool of mud.

Several times since his apprehension he has made attempts to beat out his brains against the side of the steel cell and efforts will be made this afternoon to have him committed to the State Asylum. All attempts to learn his name and address have proven futile.

COMMITTEE SELECTED FOR ANNUAL SPICER EXCURSION

The committee in charge of the annual outing of the employes of the Spicer Manufacturing Company has been selected as follows: Chairman Theodore LaRue, Rufus LaRue, James Scott, William O'Loughlin and Thomas Farrell. The event will be held Saturday, August 7, a special train having been chartered to convey the excursionists from this city to the Atlantic Highlands, where the day will be spent.

Plans are underway for an enjoyable program of entertainment for the employes and their guests and it is expected that this year's event will be a far greater success than the one of last year which went to the same place. Bathing, fishing and boating is at its best at this popular resort just now and a varied program will be provided.

EXCURSIONISTS RETURN TIRED, BUT VERY HAPPY

Fifteen hundred tired but happy excursionists arrived in this city at 9 o'clock last night, following an ideal day spent at "the town without a frown." When the train rolled into Asbury Park in the morning hundreds of visitors making their vacation at the shore resort were at the station to greet the arrivals and conduct them to the beach. Those who wanted to get their first coat of sunburn, went in the surf, while a large majority took a dip in the indoor pools. Everyone of the excursionists had something to occupy his or her attention—there were the piers, the surf, the shops, the hotels, the boats, and an amazing array of amusements.

Elders who accompanied youngsters were offered never ending pleasure in watching the crowds, and taking in the latest in everything from bathing suits to bloomers and from canes to candy, while their youthful charges were digging holes in the sand and uttering shrieks of delight every time the cool ocean water rolled around their feet.

Plainfielders who were not fortunate enough to be among the pleasure seekers yesterday will not have an opportunity to take a day trip to the shore until Thursday, July 29, when the annual Baptist excursion will be run to that place.

PERSONAL.

HELD IN $200 BAIL FOR HEARING HERE JULY 28

George W. Grantzow, transportation clerk of the New York Telephone Company, who was arrested in Newark yesterday by Acting-Chief John J. Flynn, of the local force, was arraigned at that place and held in $200 bail for a hearing here on July 28. He gave the necessary bond and was released.

As told in yesterday's issue of the Daily Press, Grantzow is charged with putting in an expense account for the hiring of forty-one teams of horses from the Central Livery Company for the telephone company when in reality he hired but twenty-three teams. He is alleged to have embezzled $110.

JERSEY MAYORS THOUGHT THEY KNEW THE WAY

The State Water Commission of New Jersey invited the Mayors and officials of fifteen municipalities in the State to visit the watersheds yesterday at Wanaque, so that they would be better able to describe what had been done for their constituents. The guests were to travel by automobiles and meet in front of the City Hall in Paterson at 1 o'clock. Several Mayors said they knew the way to the State watersheds at Wanaque blindfolded, and as a result the automobiles went different routes and half of them never arrived at their destination.

At a late hour last night three of the cars were still touring blindly up and down the hills in Sussex county, which all look alike to strangers. Mayor John J. Daly, of Harrison, wandered into New York State somehow; Frank Sigler, the Mayor of Passaic, drifted out to Greenwood Lake, and R. E. Torrance, the Mayor of Kearny, found himself in New Foundland, at the other end of the State. Mountain guides went out last night with lanterns looking for the Mayor of Nutley, it was said.

MUNICIPAL DANCES GROW IN POPULARITY

The regular weekly neighborhood dance given in the auditorium of the Washington School every Saturday night will be held tomorrow evening and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. The committee in charge assures every one a good time. Excellent music is provided by a three-piece orchestra. Refreshments are served and the admission is a nominal fee, which barely covers the expenses.

Tonight, the auditorium will be turned over to the Dunbar Club, who are having a dance and entertainment.

The Washington Dramatic Club will meet in the kindergarten room of the school tomorrow night, at which time two plays will be read to the members. A vote will be taken on which of the two the clubs will produce in the fall. "The Cricket on the Hearth" and "Brown of Harvard" are the two plays which will be discussed.

SUFFRAGISTS AMUSED AT NUGENT CAMPAIGN

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Suffrage Association, and Mrs. Van Winkle, president of the Woman's Political Union of New Jersey, were asked yesterday if they thought the Nugent campaign against woman suffrage would lead many votes away from their cause. They both regarded Mr. Nugent's referring to Mr. Root for backing as somewhat amusing.

"A campaign of a politician like Mr. Nugent is much less to be feared in the open than if it were carried on under cover," said Mrs. Feickert. "His opposition is bringing many New Jersey voters to our side. One can't help but be amused to find that he must go out of the State to get support. Mr. Nugent prides himself upon being leader of the New Jersey Democrats. Why must he go to Mr. Root, a Republican, outside of his own State, to secure support? Politics produce strange bedfellows. Mr. Root takes great pride in standing where he stood twenty years ago. The rest of us have moved on, and New Jersey is moving fast."

ALLEGED PAL OF "ICE WAGON" CONNORS HELD

The police have learned that William Meyers, pal of Charles, alias "Ice Wagon" Connors, who has kept pretty much in the public eyes during the last year by his attempts at jail-breaking, is also under arrest in Indianapolis, Ind. The charge against him is loitering, and he has been a prisoner in that city since May.

Meyers has at least a dozen aliases and is a professional porch climber, burglar and pickpocket. He is a notorious criminal, and is considered one of the most desperate porch climbers in the United States. He would not hesitate to shoot an officer if he was detected in the act of committing a crime, according to the police. He has a long police record and has been convicted of more than a dozen crimes. He was believed to have been a member of the gang which killed Detective Gaffney, in Newark, several years ago.

His former companion, Connors, is now serving a sentence in the State prison, Trenton, for robbing the home of former Senator Ackerman, in Plainfield in 1914.

MRS. MAYO, MOTHER OF SURGEON, DIES AT 90

Rochester, Minn., July 16.—Mrs. W. W. Mayo, aged ninety years, wife of the late Dr. W. W. Mayo, founder of the Mayo Clinic and Surgical Institute, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. N. Berkman. She was married in 1851 to Dr. W. W. Mayo, and endured the hardships of the early pioneering days with the famous Rochester surgeon. Besides the daughter the sons, Dr. W. J. Mayo and Dr. C. H. Mayo, survive her.

STATE TAX POSTPONED.

State Comptroller Edwards has issued a statement on the financial condition of the State, in which he conveys the gratifying news that the threatened deficiency of nearly $1,500,000, at the close of the present fiscal year has been averted, and that because of the great increases in the State's revenue over the estimates made earlier in the year the present estimated deficiency is but $543,000.

This he proposes to meet by holding up the appropriations for certain improvements to the amount of more than $523,000. The Trenton Times points out that the balance will no doubt be more than offset by the lapse of appropriations, and it means that there is at present no danger of a direct State tax.

As showing the improvement in the financial condition of the treasury, Comptroller Edwards quotes the figures for July 2, 1915, and those of the same date a year ago. There is a "total cash excess" of $1,316,864.93. But, this is partly due to the fact that appropriations have been suspended and partly to the operations of the new requisition system.

Of course at some time in the future at least some of the improvements that are being delayed must be made. The effort has been to avoid or keep down a deficit by going on the pay-as-you-go plan, or not spending money or incurring obligations unless the money was on hand.

One statement made by the Comptroller is significant: "There has never been any pretense that the balance left in the treasury on October 31, as reported by the Comptroller in the past, was any other than a cash balance. The outstanding obligations of the State which had not been presented up to that date had to be met out of that balance, whatever it might be." In other words the reported balances were for political effect only.

SKULL FRACTURES AND DRUNKS.

The ordinary "drunk" found on the street in an unconscious condition, is thrown into a patrol wagon, allowed to achieve sobriety on the hard planks of a "lockup" bed, and usually gets but little pity on his appearance before the police court judge. The victim of a not too evident skull fracture who is found semi-conscious and refused admission to several hospitals because of a hasty diagnosis of alcoholism, often—to use a well-known bull—wakes up dead in his police cell in the morning. The small town or village where the "town drunkard" forms an object lesson to all the growing youngsters is, of course, little concerned with this problem. In large cities where from two to ten such cases may occur in a single day the problem is an important one. In Chicago recently, a woman was struck by a street car, and taken at once to a local hospital. The receiving physician, acting on the hospital's rule against alcoholics, refused her admission because there was evidence that she had been drinking. The patient was then carried several miles to a police cell and a day later, following the appearance of severe symptoms, to a police hospital, in which she died. The post-mortem showed the presence of a skull fracture. The coroner's jury which considered the case recommended the installation of an observation ward in the hospital where physicians might carefully examine, with roentgenography and other methods, all cases of the character described. The need of such facilities, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, is obvious from a simple relation of the facts in this single case. Such an observation ward should not be considered a refinement of science but an absolute necessity for the saving of lives.

Announcement that Thomas A. Edison, Orville Wright, and other well known scientists of this country are ready to aid the government in preparing for the national defense has been hailed with delight by the people of the whole country. The records of such men in investigation and invention are such that they cannot fail to aid the government materially in whatever they undertake. Wars of the past have had their share of science in a crude form, but that science of a higher grade will be very much needed in wars of the future has been proven by the struggle abroad.

Every one believes that the future is the period of science. We are going to live more scientifically, do our fighting more scientifically, and kill each other more scientifically. We shall be just as dead under the hand of science as the old way, probably mussed up as bad or worse, but there will be less time wasted in putting each other off the earth.

With all the countries of Europe putting their scientists to work directly in the military service there is no reason why the United States should not at least limber up her mental joints and think about the same thing. We may never need Edison and the others, but if we do, we shall need them mighty bad, and quickly.

Clifford A. Braider, who has given much time to the work of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, will tell something about the work being done there in the contributed editorial tomorrow. The Home has the active support of a large number of Plainfielders, and it is a pleasure to be able to tell something of the splendid work being done there.

THE FORUM

Within the past three months two valuable motorcycles have been stolen from their owners in New Market, and an attempt made to take a third one, and the crime of burglary was actually committed, and all that prevented the theft was the inability of the thieves to start the machine. A third motorcycle was stolen from the Bound Brook section, possibly from Somerset county, but under circumstances similar to the first theft in New Market. The property loss approaches the $1,000 mark, as only the best machines are selected, and from amateur detective work it would seem that an organized gang of thieves is operating in this northern section of Middlesex county. I say amateur detective work, because so far the county authorities have evidently done nothing except to take information given them at their desks, and possibly send out cards to various police heads, but no one has seen any evidence of any activity, and no detectives have sought more information, although some clues were suggested which might have brought results if followed up at once by a real active detective.

It is quite evident that some one very familiar with this section, at least, locates the machines and where they are kept, in advance, and it is not only possible, but quite probable, that every one of these motorcycles were headed towards the county seat. We have had too much of this "watchful waiting policy" in these matters, if the term watchful may be so used.

Several months ago two horses were burned in a cruel and fiendish manner, but this mystery is unsolved under similar inaction. The attitude seems to be to find the thief or criminal yourself, and then you may get help in getting more evidence for prosecution. Under such conditions crime flourishes and criminals grow bolder, and that they may become too bold seems to be our only hope, at present, of getting the gang.

Doubtless, to get protection we need our share of representation. Not only politicians, but, also, many others realize that this end of the county should be fully represented in the county and State. Possibly we may obtain this in the near future. If we fail, what then? Although some office holders "howl" against the proposed new county idea, it would bring us near the county seat, and that alone brings improvements and protection, which more remote sections do not get unless well represented.

It is not my purpose here to advocate a new county, but to suggest it as one method of getting better police protection. That we must have.

BIBLE SCHOOL CLASS ENJOYS ALL-DAY PICNIC

Members of Class No. 2 of the Trinity Reformed Bible School enjoyed an all-day picnic at Wayside Park, Dunellen, yesterday. Games, races, and various other sports were features of the outing, and a most enjoyable time was had by all. Harold Messler and George Noe won first and second prizes, respectively, in the different events.

The entire outing was in charge of Mrs. Charles Mehlenbeck, who was capably assisted by various other members of the church.

UNITY LODGE CONFERS DEGREE AND INSTALLS

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., installed officers last night, worked the first degree on one candidate and the second degree on another, and enjoyed a fraternal evening. Next week the first degree will be worked on one candidate and the second on two. Unity will join with Perseverance Lodge tonight, when the two lodges will combine in working the third degree on a class.

Following are the officers installed at Unity last night: Chancellor commander, Harry Werner; vice-chancellor commander, W. A. Bauersachs; master of the work, Leon M. Livingston; master-at-arms, Alfred Drew; inside guard, Nelson I. Wiley, and outside guard, the Rev. George Dean.

FOUR-LEGGED PREY SOUGHT BY COPPERS

Beware of the Bluecoats! They Are Scouting Around for Unlicensed Dogs.

Because they failed to take out dog licenses this year, thirty-five Plainfielders were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, the excuses offered for their delinquency being many and varied. At the instance of Mayor Calkins, Acting-Chief John J. Flynn yesterday ordered the patrolmen on duty to make a house-to-house canvass for the purpose of taking a "dog census" and the many subpoenas resulted. An even larger number will probably be summoned to appear in court tomorrow morning and if the offenders persist in giving the police department further trouble Judge DeMeza has announced that fines will be inflicted on the guilty parties. Dog licenses are long past due and the fact that the city clerk has issued 300 this year, as against twice that number in 1914, indicates that some have either neglected or forgotten to make application for renewals, inasmuch as the dog population appears to be about normal.

Included in the assemblage that answered this morning's roll-call were men, women and children of all colors, nationalities and standing in the community. It was a notable fact that a majority of the defendants this morning were of the poorer class, many of whom could not afford to pay the necessary $2.50 for a license, but who would rather sacrifice something else than lose their pets.

One man who presented an ill-kept appearance admitted that he had two unlicensed canines, but said that he expected that the animals would come in handy at some future date for the manufacture of winter sausage, and accordingly promised to liquidate the necessary $5. When it was suggested to a man who heads a large family that it might be better for him to spend the money required to license four dogs on food, he declared he couldn't agree with the court, and gave those present to understand that the pets formed a part of his family, in fact, probably the most thought-of part.

Although Judge DeMeza connned his decisions this morning exclusively to reprimanding the delinquents, he threatens to rule with "an iron hand" if the same number appear before him tomorrow morning, so it behooves dog owners who have not yet done so to visit the city clerk's office.

FIFTEEN MORE TRAFFIC POSTS ARE NEEDED HERE

Mayor Leighton Calkins and Chief of Police Kiely, and Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett have completed their round of inspection with a view to checking up important street crossings in Plainfield and the result has been the finding of fifteen corners where traffic posts are needed.

Guide posts similar to the ones in use on Park avenue at the intersection of North avenue, Front street and Second street, have been ordered and will be installed as soon as received. This is done with a view to regulating traffic and diminish the possibility of accidents.

THREATENED TO BLOW UP FACTORY NEAR SAMPTOWN

Threatening to blow up the factory, Frank Smith, of the Bronx, caused a near riot in the factory of the Harris, Silver, Baker Steel Company at Sampton, yesterday afternoon, before his arrest by Detective Everhardt, of the South Plainfield police force. Making a demand for his wages and being paid what he claimed was an insufficient amount Smith started a rumpus and pushed over much of his day's work. He was a steel worker engaged in erecting at the Samptown plant.

According to the police the man was under the influence of liquor and he will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Kaine this afternoon.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF REV. CHAS. E. DUNN

The funeral service of Rev. Charles E. Dunn, late pastor of the Tioga Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, who died suddenly at his summer home in Spring Lake on Sunday, was held at that church yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, this city, and a close personal friend of Mr. Dunn, officiated. There was a large representation of one thousand members of the church at the service and there were many beautiful flowers.

The body was brought to this city on the 5:43 o'clock train last night, accompanied by relatives and friends, and a delegation of ten men representing the session and trustees of the Tioga church. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and Dr. Herring had charge of the service there.

DISTRICT DEPUTY INSTALLS OFFICERS

Mrs. Anna Whirskey and Staff, of Elizabeth, Visit Iona Council.

Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., held an interesting meeting last night, at which the newly-elected officers were installed. The work was done by the district deputy, Miss Anna Whriskey, of Elizabeth, and staff.

Following the installation exercises there was a social season, with refreshments, for the good of the order, at which time the outgoing prophetess, Miss Helen Parsons, was presented with a past officer's regalia by Iona Council, the presentation being made by Mrs. Charles L. Holstein, keeper of records. On behalf of the council, Mrs. Holstein also presented the district deputy with a handsome basket of flowers.

The following officers were raised: Prophetess, Miss Carrie Forbes; Pocohontas, Mrs. Corine Doyle; Winona, Mrs. Millie Dunn, and Pohatan, Louis K. Clarke.

Appointed by Pocohontas last night were the following: Scouts, Mrs. Marie Claassen and Miss Helen Parsons; runners, Mrs. Lena Parsons and Mrs. Jennie Schrofer; warriors, Miss Viola Mundy, Miss Anna West, Mrs. Clara Meyers and Mrs. Margaret Krietling; counsellors, Miss Carrie Hofferd and Mrs. Margaret Klineck; guard of the forest, Mrs. Lena Meyers, and guard of the tepee, Miss Ella Sebring.

HARRY K. THAW IS LEGALLY RELEASED

Justice Hendrick Concurs With Jury and Approves $35,000 Bond.

New York, July 16.—Justice Hendrick, in the Supreme Court this morning, adopted the verdict of the trial jury and found Harry K. Thaw sane. Pending a possible appeal by the State, arrangments were made at once to secure Thaw's release, and Justice Hendrick fixed bail in the case at $35,000.

Thaw has been legally released by Justice Hendrick, of the Supreme Court. The bond of $35,000 has been approved by the justice, and at 1:01 Thaw, accompanied by two deputies and two friends, left the courthouse at Chambers street and Broadway in an automobile, turning into Broadway, thence in a southerly direction. It was thought that he was going to 42 Broadway to obtain securities and a grip.

The National Surety Company furnished the $35,000 bail for Thaw. A crowd estimated at 10,000 saw Thaw leave court for his old home in Pittsburg.

A demonstration which marked the announcement of the decision was promptly checked, but scores of men and women, most of whom Thaw had never seen before, insisted upon pushing their way forward to congratulate him.

Lawyers who have followed the case do not believe that Thaw will ever be bothered with any further proceedings instituted by the New York State authorities.

"This winds up the Thaw case," was the general comment.

Thaw himself declared that, pending his departure from the city, he wants to "disappear" for about three hours. It was learned on good authority that he purposes drawing a new will as soon as his sanity is a matter of court record. In this new testament he will cut off from all participation in the Thaw millions his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and the boy, Russell, who Mrs. Thaw contends is his son.

In his old will which, because of the remarkable codicil, has figured prominently in the case just concluded, Thaw left his wife about $50,000. His purpose now is said to be to leave her nothing and to expressly stipulate that he has no heir by her. This action would raise the possibility of a fight eventually for dower rights by Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, but it is said to Thaw's intention to start a divorce action very soon.

LITERARY

HOW TO BE SAFE FROM LIGHTNING.

In the August Woman's Home Companion, Rollin Lynde Hartt writes an intensely interesting page entitled "Let's Talk About the Weather." He tells what the signs of rain are, and he also describes some of the phenomena of thunder and lightning. He says that lightning hits cows oftener than people, barns oftener than houses, country dwellings oftener than city dwellings, trees at the edge of a wood oftener than those in the thick of it, oaks oftener than maples, and human beings outdoors oftener than human beings indoors.

He then gives the following advice as to what to do in case of lightning:

"Run for a house—not a barn. * * Once inside a house, stay there. By actual count, it is fourteen times as safe as outdoors.

"Outdoors, it is another tale, for there you may be crazy enough to seek shelter under trees. Don't misunderstand me when I tell which trees are most dangerous—all are dangerous, none safe—and my only object is to drop a hint to people who are about to pitch a tent in the woods and who, consequently, risk being caught out at night and unable to run for their lives. With the proportion of hits indicated, the list follows:

"Oaks, 54; poplars, 24; elms, 14; walnuts, 11; firs, 10; willows, 7; pines, 6; ashes, 6; pears, 4; cherries, 4; apples, 2; birches, 1."

ROD AND REEL

Leslie C. Bond, of East Front street, won the prize offered by John Doughty, to the local angler who caught the largest trout during the season just closed. Mr. Bond made the catch on Decoration Day in Chimney Rock brook. The trout, which was of the rainbow variety, was seventeen and a half inches long and weighed two pounds and two ounces.

Charles Doeringer and his partner in the firm of Van Zandt and Doeringer suspended operations for a day and went fishing in Raritan Bay, where they caught 33 weakfish.

The "Big Five," Blair, Thorn, Langhorne, Hall and McVoy, are at Great Kills weakfishing.

"Doc" Whelan, Councilman Francis J. Blatz and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield are fishing for weaks at Barnegat.

Patrolman Roland McIntyre, David C. Huston and son and Patrolman Joseph Dunlap returned last night with eighteen big weakfish, the result of a day's angling off the Staten Island coast.

Raritan Bay is alive with live bait, such as whitebait and menhaden, and this, with the unsettled weather, is holding back the large catches of weakfish such as should be made at this time of the year. As the food moves out the fish have to hunt for it, and then the angler gets in his fine work.

WILL GO TO WESTFIELD.

The Farmer A. C., of this city, will take a trip to Westfield tomorrow to try conclusions with the Westfield A. A.

VONBERNSTORFF AND SEC. LANSING CONFER

Gravity of Situation Between Germany and United States Said to Have Lessened.

Washington, July 16.—Officials here consider there is some possibility that the conference between Secretary of State Lansing and Ambassador von Bernstorff today will tend to lessen the gravity of the situation between the United States and Germany.

While the conference was arranged by Secretary Lansing primarily to consider the question of compensation for the damage done the Nebraskan, it was thought unlikely the two men would get together for a talk without bringing up the subject of America's rights as a neutral.

Talk has been emanating from quarters close to the Ambassador of late to the effect that he is anxious to emphasize the importance of mediation by this government betwen Germany and Great Britain for the purpose of arriving at an understanding as to freedom of the seas which would improve conditions all around.

"Had Mr. von Bernstorff written the recent German reply," said a friend of the Ambassador today, "that feature of it would have been put in red letters."

The evident desire of Germany, or at least of the Ambassador, is for mediation on the subject of freedom o' the seas, and there is a strong undercurrent of speculation whether, if this is seriously attempted, with the concurrence of Berlin and London, it may not prove the prelude to the ending of the European war and general peace. Nevertheless, it is idle to attempt to conceal the fact that there are difficulties in the way of an adjustment.

MISS SUSAN ENGLE NEGUS DIES AT ATLANTIC CITY

Word was received here this afternoon of the death of Miss Susan Engle Negus, an aunt of Mrs. Edward V. French, of Watchung avenue, who passed away at Galen Hall, Atlantic City, this morning. The announcement of the funeral services will be made later. The interment will be in Philadelphia. Miss Negus was the daughter of the late James Engle and Isabella Negus. She is survived only by Mrs. French and a nephew, Horatio Negus, of Bound Brook.

ANKLE WAS FRACTURED WHEN HORSE RAN AWAY

When a horse he was driving on Clinton avenue Wednesday afternoon, became frightened at a passing automobile, William Willis, of West Fifth street, suffered injuries that will necessitate his confinement to the house for several weeks. The wagon to which the horse was attached was drawn over Willis' feet at the ankle, badly fracturing that joint. The fracture was placed in a plaster cast by Dr. Albert H. Pittis this morning.

The horse was one which Mr. Willis has had but two weeks and was a spirited animal.

AMERICAN SHOT FOR TREASON IN SILESIA

London, July 16.—Franz Berka, a laborer who claimed American citizenship, who shot for high treason at Mahrsich-Ostrau, in Austrian Silesia, June 14, according to the Daily Chronicle, which says it gets its information from a copy of the official journal of the province of Silesia.

Berka, who was forty-six years old, says the Daily Chronicle, was tried before the military court charged with using two traitorous expressions in an inn at Gross Helendorf. The expressions were alleged to be calculated to disturb the peace of the neighborhood. The court sentenced the man to be hanged, but the sentence was changed to shooting, and was carried out two hours after its pronouncement.

WAR NEWS

ocupied by a surprise attack the summit of Falzarego Pass, on the night of July 13 and 14, according to the official war statement today.

Calais, July 16.—The French trawler Nieport was blown up by a mine in the English Channel today. Ten of her crew were drowned.

"The enemy having received reinforcements in the region of Riga and Shavli began on July 14 an advance from Masenpol and on Goldingen, and the sector Shrunden and Popeliary. Our cavalry outposts are holding the enemy in check at the crossings of the Windau and Venta Rivers as well as elsewhere. On right bank of the Pissa and on both banks of Skwa there is no change."

ATTEMPT DISCOVERED TO WRECK PENNSY LIMITED

Altoona, Pa., July 16.—Pennsylvania railroad detectives today were searching the country east of here for a clue that would lead to the attempted to wreck the Broadway attmepted to wreck the Broadway Limited, the nineteen-hour train between New York and Chicago.

According to the report received here, Robert Westbrook, a brakeman, found an iron pipe filled with twenty pounds of dynamite, fastened to a rail of the track over which the fast train was scheduled to pass in a few minutes. Westbrook took the bomb to the nearest tower and turned it over to the operator who notified division police headquarters here.

THE MARKING OF BILLS.

One of the Secret Service Methods Is the Use of Pin Holes.

In their surveillance and apprehension of suspected persons government secret service officers often find it necessary to "mark the money" handled by such persons. There are various methods of so marking the national currency, one of the most novel of which is the pinprick.

The note to be marked is, say, the five dollar silver certificate bearing the vignette of an Indian chief in his full regalia of feathers and trappings and presenting a full face view. With the aid of a pin the secret service man makes two punctures in the bill directly in the pupils of the Indian's eyes. To the casual and sometimes even critical inspector of the note these pinpricks are invisible. If raised to the light, however, the bill will distinctly reveal them.

The markings are complicated by the following process: The pin point is applied in the twist of the large figure 5 at the two upper corners of the note. These tiny twists do not appear in the "necks" of the two figures 5 that are at both ends of the bottom of the note. The note is now pierced again, this time in the ends of the scrolls on each side of the word five in the lower center of the bill. The marking is now complete. In secret it is exhibited to one or more persons for purposes of identification and is then placed in the till or money drawer to which the suspected person has access.

It is said that the pinpricks will remain perfect for some time. When such bills are produced in court and their marking is explained under oath conviction is practically certain.—Every Week.

MELODY DEAFNESS.

To Those Who Are Afflicted With It Music Is Simply Noise.

Every one has heard of color blindness, but few people are aware that there is such a malady as tune deafness. It prevents those affected from appreciating music, which to the melody deaf is nothing but noise.

The most intelligent people often suffer in this way. Empress Catherine of Russia used to declare that for her music was a nerve trying din, and Napoleon I. hated any form of melody. Victor Hugo had to be coaxed by the composer who put his famous lines to music. "Are not my verses," he used to say, "sufficiently harmonious to stand without the assistance of disagreeable noises?"

Doctors say that the power to appreciate music depends upon a perfect combination of the nerves and brain. Some people's nerves readily carry musical sounds to the mind, while in others nerves impede their passage to the brain cells.

Good musicians are more often born than made. Nature has provided them with nerves which instinctively carry musical chords to the brain. That is why a good musician can memorize a tune after hearing it played over once. Every note has begn clearly recorded in his brain.

Those with less sensitive musical nerves receive a dull impression of any music they may hear, and thus they are unable to remember it unless it is drummed into their brain by repeated playing.—Pearson's Weekly.

Ingenious Air Bombs.

Bombs thrown from the air are usually exploded by contact. With the Martin Hale bomb, designed specially to be dropped from aeroplanes, there is a "safety pin" which renders the bomb harmless until it has been withdrawn and until a fall of about 200 feet through the air has caused the [illegible] ler to rotate and release the firing mechanism. All destructive explosives cause damage by the actual shock of the explosion—that is, by the disturbance in the air created by the expansion of the contents of the shell, by the fragments of the shell or the bullets which it contains flying in all directions, by the fumes which may be given off on explosion and which may have a stupefying or fatal effect on people in the vicinity and by the falling of bricks and mortar displaced by the bombs.—London Mail.

English as She Is Spoke.

The professor who in his address on the correct pronunciation of English said he preferred "of'n" to "often" is on the winning side. No "pronouncing dictionary" with a reputation to lose ever sounds the "t" in the middle of such words as Christmas, mistletoe, ostler, often or chestnut. Good actors, whose duty it is to speak "trippingly on the tongue," can cite authority to support their pronunciation of hank'erchief and We'n'sday. And no one who knows his way about in the elocutionary field pays any regard to the spelling of such words as "extraordinary."—London Chronicle.

DON'T BUY "JUST GAS"

STANDARD Motor Gasoline is so much better than "just gas" that it is worth while to be particular when you are having your tank filled.

"Just gas" makes trouble in the form of constant carburetor adjustments necessitated by varying grades of fuel. "Just gas" makes further trouble in the form of cylinder carbon. Much of the carbon trouble that comes to the repair man is caused by the use of an inferior and varying gasoline.

Standard Motor Gasoline is a straight-distilled, homogeneous product—every drop like every other drop. It is absolutely uniform wherever you buy it, and it is cheaper because there are more miles in a gallon.

Use Polarine, the Standard Oil for Motors. Obtainable wherever you see the "Standard Motor Gasoline Service Station" sign.

EXPOSITION GREETS FAMOUS LIBERTY BELL

San Francisco, July 16—With roar of guns and ringing of bells mingling with the cheers and songs of an immense multitude, the famous Liberty Bell will be welcomed to town tonight. City and State have joined hands with the Exposition in giving the famous relic of Independence Day a royal reception, and around the weather-worn and cracked old bell, a million people will pay homage during the five days it will be at the Exposition.

Guarded, protected and watched over, the ancient relic of American liberty will complete its transcontinental trip at 9:30 tonight, when it sweeps into town on its own private car. After one long round of speech-making from Philadelphia to this city, Governors, Mayors and citizens greeting the bell from State to State and from town to town, the climax of the wonderful trip will be reached tomorrow.

The final mile of its trip to the Exposition will be a spectacular parade, which will form tomorrow morning to escort the Bell into the Exposition. School children by the thousands will act as escorts, and a living American flag of girls and boys will sing the national anthem as it passes. Forty-eight horses will draw the float with its priceless cargo in the parade.

At the Fair Grounds a reviewing stand has been erected, at which the formal patriotic exercises in honor of the Liberty Bell will be held. Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, will review the parade and deliver the principal oration. Governor Johnson and Mayor Rolph will also speak.

The parade will be one of the most spectacular ever seen in this city. Girls will strew flowers in the bell's pathway, and the forty-eight horses drawing the float will represent each of the States of the Union. Never before has such a welcome been accorded to a visitor here, and the visit of the Liberty Bell will be a memorable event in the history of the Pacific Coast.

After the exercises in honor of the bell, the relic will be given a place of honor in the Pennsylvania building. There it will rest until July 27, the center of interest for all visitors at the Fair.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The capacity audiences that attended the afternoon performances of the five-part photo-drama, "Should a Mother Tell," at Proctor's Theatre, today, were unanimous in the decision that it was the best seen at the playhouse for a long time. Betty Nansen, who plays the leading role, solves an agonizing problem affecting a woman's sacred secret in a way that reveal her emotional ability as never before. "Should a Mother Tell" will be repeated tonight, and all those who have missed the matinee show should not fail to see the picture tonight.

Tomorrow afternoon and night the management has secured the famous drama of men and women staged by D. W. Griffith, the peer of directors, entitled, "The Battle of the Sexes." The film is in five parts and typifies modern society and its greatest conflict. The story opens with Frank Andrews, a successful business man—a man who has always found pride and joy in the company of his loving wife and daughter—suddenly finds himself enthralled by the advances of a gay young woman—a siren, who lives in the same apartment house. So great an influence does she have over him that at last he forgets his home ties, neglects his family and goes the way of many other men. The story advances through many scenes enacted with the accompany notes of New York life at night, and the denouement comes when the faithful wife discovers her husband's infidelity. The mother's mind nearly loses balance. Jane, his beautiful daughter, crazed by the grief of her mother, determines to take part in the tragedy. With revolver in hand, she steals up to the apartment of the woman, but in her frail nature is overcome by the temperamental anger of the woman and her mission fails. However, the errand is not a failure, for the father, coming in at this moment, finds his daughter being made love to by the sweetheart of the young woman, and realizes the road upon which he has travelled. When he confronts his daughter, and says, "You, my daughter—what are you doing here?"—the daughter answers, "My father, what are you doing here?" The realization is brought home to the father's mind that the law of moral ethics that governs a woman's life necessarily governs that of a man as well. Reformation comes in his character. He takes his daughter away with him and together they go back to their home of happiness and content.

Included in the program tomorrow will be the next episode of "The Goddess," also the Paramount Travel pictures and several one-reel comedies.

KIDNAPPERS ARE FREED.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 16.—The three strikes kidnappers who were convicted of taking Theodore Sjogren, a mine leader, in an automobile and putting him aboard a train at Brainerd, Minn., bound for Duluth, during a miners' strike at Crosby and Deerwood, Minn., are to be freed today, by order of the pardon board. Two of the men have served six months and one has served only two months. The original sentences were for an indeterminate term of from five to forty years. The kidnappers are William J. Sullivan, owner of a garage in Brainerd; Peter L. Newman, formerly a deputy sheriff, and George C. Payne, a concrete contractor. Newman and Payne have been confined since January 16, but Sullivan escaped through a reprieve until May 16, when he was forced to go to the St. Cloud penitentiary.

Mrs. A. R. Tranchard and family, of North avenue, are spending a month at Ocean Grove.

Miss Louise Slattery, of Red Bank, is the guest of Mrs. L. D. Collins, of Netherwood avenue, for a few weeks.

CITY LEAGUE STANDING.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Hopes	4	1	.800
Tabs	3	1	.750
Netherwood	3	2	.600
Saurer	2	3	.400
Clinton Avenue	2	3	.400
First Baptist	0	4	.000

Games Tomorrow

Saurer at Netherwood.
Baptist at Hope.
Tabs at Clinton Avenue (West End Field).

Games Next Saturday.

Hope at Clinton Avenue.
Netherwood at T. A. B.
Baptist at Saurer.

The Hope Chapel team has its work cut out for it tomorrow, when it clashes with the First Baptist aggregation. The Baptist team, while still resting in last place, has been greatly strengthened by the addition of several new players, and both the new and the old players are resolved to do away with the goose eggs for the rest of the league season. The resolution goes into effect tomorrow. The Tabs will mingle with the Clintonians on West End Field, and are confident of winning, although they realize that Brown's boys are a very fast combine. Britt Martin's Saurer crowd will be in evidence at Highland Park, where a conflict with Coughlin's Orients is to be staged. Both these teams have improved vastly during the past two weeks, and a good go is anticipated. The infusion of new blood into both teams has worked wonders. Should the Hopes lose and the Tabs and the Netherwoods win, the Chapelites would be in a bad way, being dethroned from the highest place and tied for the second station honors.

The Saurer and Clintonians may spring into the .500 class if they get away with their encounters on the morrow.

There should be a great pitcher's duel at the Hope-Baptist game, when Dick Schott and Patterson face each other. Schott, of course, is acknowledged to be the league's best hurler, but "Pat" is some flinger, too. Tone Denny and Benny Rosenson will meet in the T. A. B.-Clinton affair, and the statistics favor Tone. Gleason, the youthful Hercules, is slated to oppose Clark in the East End attraction. Gleason is a "find" discovered by the league scouts, while Clark is a star, whose place in the constellation was earned two weeks ago when he hung one on the "Apgarites."

Scattered Sport Gleanings

What appears in the eyes of the true American sportsman as one of the most degrading and disgraceful bits of "frame-up" work is being perpetrated twice a week at the Newark Veledrome. Because they know that an American is their suprior in the racing game and can beat them fairly and squarely at all middle distances a couple of foreign bike stars are "teaming up" to divest him of his fifteenth crown as professional cycling champion. Frank Kramer, of East Orange, who is without a doubt one of the most brilliant stars the pedal pushing game has ever known, is the victim of these disgraceful tactics and that the management of the park controlling the races should tolerate it is a mystery to the fair-minded bike fan. Time and again he has been forced to "ride high" by his crookd opponents and although the officials have on several occasions seen fit to take a position away from a rival for the foul riding those who control the races flatly refuse to suspend the offenders. Two men have "teamed up" to send the veteran down to defeat and the fact that he has been able to come through the melee with colors flying despite the handicap speaks wonders for his ability.

'Pears to us as though those feminine athletes who style themselves the Plainfield Five would have to change that name. Enthusiasm in evidence at the reorganization session in the High School Monday night indicated that there will be some clamoring for membership in the near future. The number on the roster at present belies the title.

Judging from the number of Parker Field League baseball scores that find their way into this office, the Randolph road rendezvous has become a center of activity for the summer months. Giving the returns the "O. O." we also note that there are some Christy Mathewsons and Ty Cobbs in the organization.

'Smatter with that Spicer Athletic Association this year? The fact that this faction has failed to enter a team in the City League indicates that there has been some sort of a let-up in athletic activities.

This is the time of the year when the real contender for the big league contenders comes to the for. The close bunching in both of the "O. B." circuits this year indicates that the final spurt for the gonfalons is going to be a spirited one and the recent increase in attendance figures at various parks recently indicates that fandom is warming up for the last bound. All clubs are now entering upon their homeward stretch and the usual explosion of early season predictions made by wiseacres are to be expected.

That Plainfield fans as a whole are admirers of "Muggsy" McGraw and his Gotham ballists was demonstrated during the last few days when large numbers of Queen City followers of the National pastime took an afternoon off and sought a seat below Coogan's Bluff. It is encouraging to note that the Giantlets are apparently getting into a championship stride and the Plainfielders were fully rewarded for their trip to the ball park.

If we don't have another one of those thunder storms there'll be plenty of baseball around this city tomorrow. The City League schedule for the week end looks pretty good on paper and some of the managers have risen to remark that there'll surely be a shift in the ratings.

Those anglers who have been "crying" about the scarcity of fish are getting all of the finny tribe that they can take home nowadays. Scores of Plainfield rod and line devotees have visited nearby waters and captured big messes of the salt and fresh water variety.

The men tearing down the Grove street bridge have run across a nifty assortment of love notes tucked away in cozy corners. Wonder if they've happened to locate that ball Willie Keeler is purported to have bunted from Crescent Oval to the brook when he played the outgarden around here.

Speaking of long distance stunts, one of the City League teams claims to have lost a ball that was knocked into a passing coal train during a game on the Soccer Field lot a couple of weeks ago. It may be so, but the believing portion fails to measure up to a majority.

FEDS ARE TO MOVE.

Chicago, July 16.—Headquarters of the Federal League are to be transferred from this city to New York within two weeks. Announcement to this effect was made Wednesday night by President James A. Gilmore. The change, according to the announcement, is so that the league officials will be right on hand to conduct the proposed invasion of New York next year.

TODAY'S SPORT SCHEDULE.

Horse—Race meets at Empire City track, Yonkers, N. Y.; Winnipeg, Man.; Windsor, Ont., and Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Tennis — Northwestern Pennsylvania championship at New Castle, Pa.; North Jersey Coast championship, at Spring Lake, N. J.; Panama-Pacific championships, at San Francisco.

Rowing—Regatta on Lake Washington, Seattle, Wash.

Swimming — International meet opens at San Francisco Fair.

FEDS HAVE A MILLION.

Kansas City, July 16.—The Federal League, at its recent meeting in New York, formed a war fund of $1,000,000 to force its fight against organized baseball, according to a statement made here today by Harry Sinclair, owner of the Newark club.

TROUT SEASON CLOSES; HAS BEEN REMARKABLE ONE

The trout season in this State, which closes today, has been unusual in several respects. For one thing, it has given Jersey anglers their first real opportunity to test the stocking of the streams with rainbow trout. Again, it has shown by available records of catches that there is, apparently, a remarkable scarcity of brook trout. And still another point is the promise of this season that next year will furnish the finest trout fishing the State has known for many years, for, aside from the heavy stocking, weather conditions in April and May were not conducive to successful angling, and on the opening of the pickerel season a great many anglers put away their trout rods. It is safe to say, therefore, that only a very small proportion of the fish put out by the State this year and last year were brought to net.

BEES TO PLAY PARKS.

The Park Avenue Baptist baseball team will stack up against the Bees, of Bound Brook, on Y. M. A. Oval, tomorrow. This is the third and last game of a series. The two other games were annexed by the Bees. Bowlby and McFadden will be the opposing moundsmen.

INTERESTING FIRST PLACE DEADLOCK AT BOROUGH CLUB

Play for the president's trophy at the Park Golf Club will be continued tomorrow, Harold E. Blazier and W. P. Taylor now holding the top-notch honors in the standing with scores of ten each. By winning third place last Saturday, Taylor gained a point and tied Blazier. The standing to date follows:

	Points.
Harold E. Blazier	10

LIPSCOMB LEADING THE RACE FOR P. C. C. TITLE

With C. E. Lipscomb leading the standing to date the play for the golf committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club will be continued tomorrow afternoon, several interesting and importnt matches being on the schedule. Lipscomb is topping a spirited race with a single point's advantage over L. G. Carman, and it is not unlikely that some shifts will be recorded.

	Points:
C. E. Lipscomb	13 1-2
L. G. Carman	12 1-2
J. W. Baker	10 1-3

Pfeister, the no-hit pitcher, is going to tackle Jones' local team Sunday. Pfeister handed the Tiger A. C., of Bound Brook, a trimming and expects to administer a like beating to the local "barnstormers."

Lou Dixon is a regular "Jack Coombs" when it comes to doing the "come-back" stunt. Louis, besides fielding splendidly, drove in the winning run in Saturday's Clinton-Saurer debate. His clout, a single, was wisely placed. It needed to be, too, for Henry, the Clintonian, who patrols first, gets the ball if it is in sight, as a rule.

Joe Newell is rounding into a fine juvenile hurler, his latest performance being a shutout victory against the Hartfords. In this encounter, he allowed his opponents only one bingle. Butler and Newell seem to be the foremost twirlers in the Parker Field League this season.

They tell us that the Tab Seconds are going to bombard a picked team of K. of C. ballists. "Tax" Keefe and Jim Cullen are the promoters of the idea, which is sure to bring about an intense rivalry between the two fraternal factions.

Bill Reasoner, the Princeton catcher, is clouting the pill fiercely this season. Bill is a natural hitter, but his batting eye sometimes grows dim when a clout is most needed.

The City League certainly possesses a useful band of backstops. Apgar, Kyle, Moran, Smalley and "Heinie" Alberts can parade with the best of them, too.

If the local Tabs should succeed in arragning a match with the Elizabeth Abstainers, there ought to be a big crowd on hand. The drawing ability of a team is what counts with Joe Burns.

Tommy Mullin is doing a lot of advertising for his home town. The local lad is clouting and fielding in a manner vastly superior to that of some of his associates.

RUNYON PRIMED TO COME OUT FIRST IN BIG MEET

The junior metropolitan track and field championships will be decided at Schenectady, N. Y., tomorrow, under the auspices of the General Electric A. A.

Ralph Runyon, the local athlete, is scheduled to compete in the pole vaulting events as are several other crack vaulters of various New York clubs. None but athletic clubs of the Metropolitan Association are allowed to register entrants, the N. Y. A. C. leading at present in the number of men entered.

Runyon will leave tonight on the 5:30 boat from New York. He will be one of a party of 200 to go on the trip.

TENNIS

The Westfield G. C. tennis team will meet the El Mora Country Club team tomorrow, at the latter place.

Parker Field attracts almost as many tennis enthusiasts now as it does baseball fans. The sets played on the playground courts are fast and the resulting scores close. Love sets are scarce, due to the fact that the players are evenly matched.

Night tennis at the Westfield G. C. is becoming a popular feature. Several lively sets have been played there and others, bound to be just as lively, are carded to take place soon.

Maurice McLoughlin, it is said, is in a fair way to losing both his popularity and his ability, if he persists in writing accounts for the newspapers. McLoughlin has already made several enemies in this way.

Something speedy will be put over at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected that the finals in the city and borough title tourney will be run off. The speediest tennis talent available is matched.

"VIV" NICKALLS GOES TO WAR.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 16.—Vivian Nickalls has resigned as the coach of the University of Pennsylvania crews to join the English army. He will accept a commission in either the Third or Fourth Hussars, and will sail on August 18. The Penn rowing committee asked Nickalls to remain at least another year, but he waved aside all entreaties.

SPORT BRIEFS

Twelve of the twenty Eastern star athletes who are to compete in the Amateur Athletic Union championship games at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, left for the coast yesterday.

Vivian Nickalls, coach of the University of Pennsylvania rowing crews, resigned yesterday in order to join the British army.

Night auto racing will be introduced in Newark on July 24 at the Olympic Park course.

John Bassler was recently released by Cleveland Americans to sign a contract to catch for the Los Angeles Club of the Pacific Coast League.

ATHLETES OFF FOR THE FAIR.

Eight of the leading athletes of the country left New York yesterday for SanFrancisco to compete in the national track and field championships on August 7 at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The party, in charge of Lawson Robertson, coach of the Irish-American A. C., included Ted Meredith, intercollegiate quarter and half-mile champion; Pat Ryan, of the Irish Club, world's record holder with the 16-pound hammer; Abel Kiviat, national mile champion; Eddie Renz, of the Mohawk A. C., the leading walker of the United States; George Bronder, javelin champion; Hannes Kolehmainen, the greatest long-distance runner in the world; Mike Fahey, the Irish-American jumper, and Pat O'Connor, unattached, who will compete in the all-around championship.

AUTO RACES IN NEWARK.

Night automobile races will be introduced for the first time in Newark on July 24, when races will be held in the afternoon and night at Olympic Park. The half-mile track will be oiled and rolled for the meet, and the big electric lighting plant used at the Brighton Beach meet will be installed for the night events. A score of the leading dirt track drivers will compete for the various events, for which cash prizes aggregating $7,000 will be hung up.

TRINITY VS. WATCHUNG.

The Trinity Church baseball nine is scheduled to try conclusions with the Watchung A. C. at Hyde Oval tomorrow. Dilts and Schneider will be in the points for the churchmen while Stahl or Conshay and Campbell will likely compose Smalley's battery. The Trinity team possesses one victory over the mountaineers and is out to duplicate that feat tomorrow.

MISS WILDEY BOWS TO NATIONAL CHAMP

Miss Molla Bjurstedt Puts Local Player Out of the Running.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, of Norway, who is the national women's lawn tennis champion, was defeated at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., yesterday, in the women's doubles event at the Thousand Island Country Club. However, directly after her defeat in the doubles event, Miss Bjurstedt demonstrated that she is at her best in singles, defeating Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, 6-2, 6-1.

In the women's doubles, Mrs. D. F. Briggs and Miss Edna Wildey, both of this city, defeated Miss Post and Miss Pomeroy, 6-2, 6-4. Later in the same event they defeated Mrs. A. G. Mills and Miss Florence Brown. The scores of this match were 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. In the mixed doubles Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Briggs defeated Miss Abbie Morrison and Charles M. Bull, Jr., 6-4, 7-5.

WILL CONTINUE TITLE PLAY ON P. C. C. COURTS

On the Plainfield Country Club courts tomorrow, competition in the city championship tennis tournament will be continued. The second, third and fourth rounds were completed last Saturday, Albert D. Beers and Tom Day, of the Plainfield Country Club, and Jack Cornwall and Stanley Bellows, of the Netherwood Tennis Club, being the stars of the day.

If the manner in which they performed last week can be taken as a criterion each of these four is bound to make a good try for honors tomorrow.

LOCAL BEAGLE FANCIERS WILL ATTEND BANQUET

The New Jersey Beagle Club, organized at Roseland, N. J., for the purpose of maintaining the standard of the Beagle breed of dogs, will hold a dinner for members, their wives and guests on August 15. The president of the club, which is composed of sixty members from all parts of the State, is Dr. J. H. Teed, a well-known dog fancier and exhibitor.

On October 25 the club will hold its field trials on the 1,500 acre preserve which it owns. The local members are Grover Schuck, William L. Smalley and George G. Hooley.

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

"You sure are, and you'll see it yourself by and by. You've no call to get wire edged about Mr. Norcross. He's not very strong. He's just getting well of a long sickness. I knew a chill would finish him, that's why I gave him my slicker. It didn't hurt me, and maybe it saved his life. I'd do it again if necessary."

"Since when did you start a hospital for eastern tenderfeet?" he sneered, then his tone changed to one of downright command. "You want to cut this all out, I tell you! I won't have any more of it! The boys up at the mill are all talkin' about your interest in this little whelp, and I'm getting the branding iron from every one I meet. Sam saw you go into the barn with that dude, and that would have been all over the country tomorrow, if I hadn't told him I'd sew his mouth up if he said a word about it. Of course I don't think you mean anything by this coddlin'."

"Oh, thank you," she interrupted, with flaming, quick, indignant fury. "That's mighy nice of you. I went to the barn to show Mr. Norcross where to stall his horse. I didn't know Sam was here."

He sneered: "No, I bet you didn't."

She fired at this. "Come now! Something nasty is in your mind. Go on! What have I done? What makes you so hot?"

He began to weaken. "I don't accuse you of anything. I—but I"—

"Yes, you do—in your heart you distrust me—you just as much as said so!"

He was losing his high air of command. "Never mind what I said, Berrie. I"—

She was blazing now. "But I do mind—I mind a whole lot—I didn't think it of you," she added as she realized his cheapness, his courseness. "I didn't suppose you could even think such things of me. I don't like it," she repeated, and her tone hardened, "and I guess you'd better pull out of here—for good. If you've no more faith in me than that I want you to go and never come back."

"You don't mean that!"

"Yes, I do! You've shown this yellow streak before, and I'm tired of it. This is the limit. I'm done with you."

She stood between tears and benumbing anger now, and he was scared. "Don't say that, Berrie!" he pleaded, trying to put his arm about her.

"Keep away from me!" She dashed his hands aside. "I hate you. I never want to see you again!" She ran into her own room and slammed the door behind her.

Belden stood for a long time with his back against the wall, the heat of his resentment utterly gone, an empty, aching place in his heart. He called her twice, but she made no answer, and so at last he mounted his horse and rode away.

Young Norcross, much as he admired Berrie, was not seeking to exchange her favor for her lover's enmity, and he rode away with an uneasy feeling of having innocently made trouble for himself as well as for a fine, true hearted girl.

"What a good friendly talk we were having," he said regretfully. "And to think she is to marry that big, scowling brute! How could she turn Landon down for a savage like that?"

He was just leaving the outer gate when Belden came clattering up and reined his horse across the path and called out: "See here, you young skunk! You're a poor, white livered tenderfoot, and I can't bust you as I would a full grown man, but I reckon you better not ride this trail any more."

"Why not?" inquired Wayland.

Belden glared. "Because I tell you so. Your sympathy hunting game has just about run into the ground. You've worked this baby dodge about long enough. You're not so almighty sick as you put up to be, and you'd better hunt some other cure for lonesomeness or I'll just about cave your chest in."

All this was shockingly plain talk for a slender young scholar to listen to, but Norcross remained calm. "I think you're unnecessarily excited," he remarked. "I have no desire to make trouble. I'm considering Miss Berea, who is too fine to be worried by us."

His tone was conciliating, and the cowman, in spite of himself, responded to it. "That's why I advise you to go. She was all right till you came. Colorado's a big place, and there are plenty other fine ranges for men of your complaint. Why not try Routt county? This is certain, you can't stay in the same valley with my girl. I serve notice of that."

"You think so, do you? Well, I'll make a jack rabbit out of you if I find you on this ranch again. You've worked on my girl in some way till she's just about quit me. I don't see how you did it, you measly little pup, but you surely have turned her against me!" His rage burst into flame as he thought of her last words. "If you were so much as half a man I'd break you in two pieces right now, but you're not. You're nothing but a dead on the hoof lunger, and there's nothing to do but run you out. So take this as your final notice. You straddle a horse and head east and keep a-ridin', and if I catch you with my girl again I'll deal you a whole hatful of misery. Now, that's right!"

Thereupon, with a final glance of hate in his face, he whirled his horse and galloped away, leaving Norcross dumb with resentment, intermingled with wonder.

"Truly the west is a dramatic country! Here I am involved in a lover's wrath and under sentence of banishment all within a month! Well, I suppose there's nothing to do but carry out Belden's orders. He's the boss," he said as he rode on. "I wonder just what happened after I left? Something stormy evidently. She must have given him a sharp rebuff or he wouldn't have been so furious with me. Perhaps she even broke her engagement with him. I sincerely hope she did. She's too good for him."

And so from point to point he progressed till, with fine indignation, he reached a resolution to stay and meet whatever came. "I certainly would be a timorous animal if I let myself be scared into flight by that big bonehead," he said at last.

Nevertheless he felt very weak and very much depressed as he rode up the street of the little town and dismounted at the forest service building.

CHAPTER V.

The Supervisor of the Forest.

NASH, who was alone in the government office, looked up from his work. "Come in," he called heartily. "Come in and report."

"Thank you. I'd like to do so. And may I use your desk? I have a letter to write."

"Make yourself at home. Take any desk you like. The men are all out on duty."

"You're very kind," replied Wayland, gratefully. There was something reassuring in this greeting and in the many signs of skill and scientific reading which the place displayed. It was like a bit of Washington in the midst of a careless, slovenly, lawless mountain town, and Norcross took his seat and wrote his letter with a sense of proprietorship.

"I'm getting up an enthusiasm for the service just from hearing Alec Belden rave against it," he said a few minutes later, as he looked up from his letter.

Nash grinned. "How did you like Meeker?"

"He's a good man, but he has his peculiarities. Belden is your real enemy. He is blue with malignity—so are most of the cowmen I met up there. I wish I could do something for the service. I'm a thoroughly up to date analytical chemist and a passable mining engineer, and my doctor says that for a year at least I must work in the open air. Is there anything in this forest service for a weakling like me?"

Nash considered. "I think we can employ you, but you'll have to go on as fire guard or something like that for the first year. You see, the work is getting to be more and more technical each year. As a matter of fact"—here he lowered his voice a little—"McFarlane is one of the old guard and will have to give way. He don't know a thing about forestry and is too old to learn. His girl knows more about it than he does. She helps him out on office work too."

Wayland wondered a little at the freedom of expression on the part of Nash, but said, "If he runs his office as he runs his ranch he surely is condemned to go."

"Well, you get Berrie to take up your case and you're all right. She has the say about who goes on the force in this forest."

It was late in the afternoon before Wayland started back to Meeker's with intent to repack his belongings and leave the ranch for good. He had decided not to call at McFarlane's, a decision which came not so much from fear of Clifford Belden as from a desire to shield Berea from further trouble, but as he was passing the gate the girl rose from behind a clump of willows and called to him: "Oh, Mr. Norcross! Wait a moment!"

He drew rein and, slipping from his horse, approached her. "What is it, Miss Berrie?" he asked, with wondering politeness.

She confronted him with gravity. "It's too late for you to cross the ridge.

"I told him I wouldn't stand for his coarse ways, and I won't!"

It'll be dark long before you reach the cut-off. You'd better not try to make it."

"I think I can find my way," he answered, touched by her consideration. "I'm not so helpless as I was when I came."

"Just the same you mustn't go on," she insisted. "Father told me to ask you to come in and stay all night. He wants to meet you. I was afraid you might ride by after what happened today, and so I came up here to head you off." She took his horse by the rein and flashed a smiling glance up at him. "Come, now, do as the supervisor tells you."

"Wait a moment," he pleaded. "On second thought I don't believe it's a good thing for me to go home with you. It will only make further trouble for—for us both."

"I know what you mean. I saw Cliff follow you. He jumped you, didn't he?"

"He overtook me, yes."

"What did he say?"

He hesitated. "He was pretty hot and said things he'll be sorry for when he cools off."

"He told you not to come here any more—advised you to hit the outgoing trail—didn't he?"

He flushed with returning shame of it all, but quietly answered, "Yes, he said something about riding east."

"Are you going to do it?"

"Not today, but I guess I'd better keep away from here."

She looked at him steadily. "Why?"

"Because you've been very kind to me, and I wouldn't for the world do anything to hurt or embarrass you."

"Don't you mind about me," she responded bluntly. "What happened this morning wasn't your fault nor mine. Come; father will be looking for you."

With a feeling that he was involving both the girl and himself in still darker storms, the young fellow yielded to her command, and together they walked along the weed bordered path, while she continued:

"This isn't the first time Cliff has started in to discipline me, but it's obliged to be the last. He's the kind that think they own a girl just as soon as they get her to wear an engagement ring. But Cliff don't own me. I told him I wouldn't stand for his coarse ways, and I won't!"

Wayland tried to bring her back to humor. "You're a kind of 'new woman.'"

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Busy Gnat And What It Was Hunting For.

He Told His Troubles to the Owl.

"KIDDIES, how do you spell gnat?" asked daddy, and there was a merry twinkle in his eye.

"Oh, I know!" cried Evelyn, who was a better speller than Jack was. "G-n-a-t, gnat." "Right, little daughter," said daddy.

"What use is the 'g,' daddy?" inquired Jack.

"I'll tell you the story," replied daddy. "A gnat, you know—well, he comes in different sizes, but the one I have particularly in mind was a little speck of a fellow that floated and flew about in the summer sunshine. And he was hunting for something all the time.

"This little gnat, which had wings so small you couldn't have seen them scarcely without the aid of a strong glass, flew about aimlessly in the sunshine and never stopped to rest. He was so little that most of the creatures of the open which chanced to pass him never saw him at all, but a few of them did.

"A bird that was flying by looked down and saw the gnat flying about, and the bird sat on a twig and looked at the gnat awhile, and then it twittered:

"'Why are you flying about so restlessly?'

"'I am hunting for something,' replied the gnat.

"'What are you hunting for?' asked the bird.

"'I am hunting for the reason why that strange creature man put a "g" at the head of my name,' replied the gnat. 'I tell you, Mr. Bird, I don't need it. It's too heavy a name for me to carry. Look at how little I am. I'd sound just the same if I were spelled "n-a-t," wouldn't I?'

"'Yes, guess you would,' replied the bird thoughtfully, 'but really I can't be bothered. It's nothing I can help. You must do the best you can. Goodby.'

"So the gnat told his troubles to every creature that day that would stop to hear. He talked with the cat and was very much grieved because pussy, though so much larger, got along with a letter less in her name than he had in his. And it was the same with the dog. That gnat felt very much abused.

"At last, toward evening, the gnat was caught in a breeze and carried a little way into the edge of a wood, where he saw an owl sitting on the limb of a tree. And he had heard the owl was wiser than all birds, so he told his troubles to him.

"'Well,' said the owl, 'I wouldn't worry any more about that if I were you. There's a curious animal in Africa with four legs that has an extra letter in his name, and he doesn't mind. He's the gnu.'

"So the gnat felt better after that and carried that extra 'g' more cheerfully."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Why didn't you tell me you were out of money? I never have refused to give you money when I had it." Dick's tone was hard.

"I knew I had no business to get the dress, situated as we are, in debt to the doctor—but—Jo Parsons was sending for one and before I had time to fight the temptation I had yielded and sent in my order. I think I must have been demoralized by the knowledge that you have inherited money and it would make it right." Nell was very apologetic, but Dick gave a snort.

"I am tired of asking for every cent I spend for things I have——"

"Why, Nell," interrupted Dick, "what I objected to was being plunged deeper in debt without my knowledge or consent."

"Please let me finish," continued Nell. "Olive said when she was here that she thought it unbusinesslike for me to have no allowance. I told her I could see no especial benefit to come from having one, as every cent is carefully spent, but I have changed my mind. I want to have some money that is my own. Then if I am extravagant I alone will suffer. I would have to do without something as a result of my lack of judgment."

"As it is, we discuss every important purchase and it is a matter of our combined judgment, and I like the method." Dick leaned back in his chair and thrust his hands in his pockets.

"You did not consult me before buying the baby carriage and you——"

"That was intended as a pleasant surprise, but——"

"And you never consult me about your clothes," continued Nell, ignoring the interruption, "but I have to explain what clothes I want and why and when, and then you sit in judgment on the matter and decide whether I can have the things or not. Such a state of things is humiliating to say the least."

"My dear, I can't see why. I want you to have everything I can possibly afford to get you. It isn't as if I were stingy and refused you anything I could get."

"Perhaps not, but it would amount to the same thing if you would decide just what you could afford to let me have to dress myself and the baby with, and then turn it over without my asking for it."

"You don't spend regularly so much a week and if you did not need it, why should it not be used for other things that are needed? It isn't sane or sensible to hand you $5 to tuck away in a stocking while I in the meantime am unable to get the full amount of a debt together."

Nell looked irritated. "It isn't that; it's because you think I'll shipwreck our finances by being wasteful; because I do not consult you. You want to be consulting engineer and you may as well confess it."

"Well, there is something in that," Dick admitted, "but I take a great deal of pride in seeing you look well, and this is absolutely the first purchase of yours I ever objected to."

"It's the very first purchase larger than a spool of thread that I have made without your advice and consent," said Nell with some bitterness.

"If my memory serves me right, I believe there was a gale of words over the purchase of the baby carriage, that you thought expensive. How is that?" asked Dick.

"The whole crux of the matter is, each of us should have a certain part of the money to spend and not feel that an account is to be rendered. If that arrangement had been made I would have had no right to object to your buying a baby carriage, and you could not have been disgusted over my getting a dress." Nell was very earnest about the matter.

"Well," capitulated Dick, "you submit plans and specifications as to what you think you will need and we'll have another meeting of the committee on finance," and Dick smiled into her earnest face.

Household Hints

SALADS.

Picnic Salad—Lettuce leaves washed and chilled can be tied in a linen napkin and placed in a tin pail with a close cover. This will keep them crisp for forty-eight hours. A fine grade of canned flaked crabs is now in use. The flakes are mixed with mayonnaise and placed on lettuce leaves, on top of which thin shreds of Mexican red pimento are interlaced.

Dressed Lettuce—Wash and dry lettuce. Garnish with radishes cut to represent tulips. Serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Cheese Salad—To one cup finely cut celery add half cup cheese cut in small cubes, and half cup pecans. Serve on lettuce leaf with mayonnaise dressing.

Cream Cheese and Currant Jelly Salad—Arrange lettuce leaves on large round plate. On it pile lightly Dutch or cream cheese forced through a potato ricer, leaving the lettuce to form a wreath around the edge. In the center put half a glass of currant jelly. Serve with French dressing.

Cadillac Cucumber Salad—Pare cucumber and remove a thick slice from each end. With a sharp, pointed knife make eight grooves at equal distances lengthwise of cucumber; then cut in thin slices crosswise, keeping in original shape. Arange on lettuce leaves and serve with following dressing: Parisian French Dressing—Into a pint glass jar put half cup salad oil, five tablespoons vinegar, half teaspoon powdered sugar, one tablespoon finely chopped onion, two tablespoons finely chopped parsley, four red peppers, eight green peppers, one teaspoon salt. Let stand one hour, then shake until well blended. The red and green peppers are the small ones found in pepper sauce.

Fruit Salad—Cut marshmallows in thin strips (there should be one and three-quarter cups), add two cups pineapple cut in small cubes, four plums which have been peeled and quartered, half cup nut meats, and a few grains of salt. Arrange on lettuce leaves and serve with following dressing: Cream Dressing—Mix two tablespoons flour, one tablespoon each of salt, sugar and mustard, and a few grains of cayenne. Add two slightly beaten eggs, one and one-half cups scalded milk, and half cup vinegar, very slowly. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Add four tablespoons butter, strain and, when mixture cools, add an equal quantity of whipped cream.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Absorbent Cotton for Dress Shields—During the summer, keeping up a supply of dress shields is quite a problem. An inexpensive and very satisfactory way of solving this problem is to buy a package of absorbent cotton and lightly stitch a thin layer in the armhole of each garment. This cotton will last for three or four wearings, and can be ripped out and renewed. This is white and dainty and absorbs perspiration readily and without odor.

To Keep Flies Out of Sick Room—Put some oil of lavender in a saucer and pour hot water over it. Place it in bedroom and it will keep room clear of flies and such pests as warm weather brings us.

A Fine Varnish Remover—Two parts denatured alcohol, one part turpentine; this does the work perfectly and is much cheaper than prepared varnish removers.

Chloride of Lime, as a bleaching agent, is not destructive to a fabric if it is quickly followed by a rinse water in which ammonia has been added. This counteracts the chloride of lime and the results are harmless.

If you have several lemons and do not use them right away, a very good way to keep them is by placing each lemon under a glass.

HOME-MADE DUSTER

To make a "dustless dust cloth" place a cloth in a strong, hot suds of pure soap, to which add a few drops of turpentine; let set for two hours; then wring out dry. Cloths treated in this way will hold the dust and at the same time give a brilliant polish to furniture. Treat the cloths in this manner every two weeks.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

With Edythe Wynne Mathison in "The Governor's Lady," and Charles Chaplin in "The Woman" for the last time, today's program at the U. S. Astor Theatre is one of exceptional appeal, being both rich in comedy and drama of high quality.

"The Governor's Lady," is a photo-drama of tender appeal and is bound to interest even the most blase audience. This big feature was seen by record-breaking crowds in the Strand Theatre, New York, two weeks ago, when it was acclaimed one of the best dramatic films of the year.

Miss Mathison, the star, is known throughout the country as an actress of high distinction and in "The Governor's Lady" she has full opportunity to play a role which suits her perfectly. Miss Mathison has a host of admirers in Plainfield who enjoyed her work at the New Theatre. In this film she has a part which is very like several roles she created in New Theatre successes.

Charles Chaplin will be seen in his latest comedy success, "The Woman," for the last time in Plainfield at the Astor Theatre tonight. Capacity audiences have been the rule during the engagement of the inimitable pantomimist and it is plain that his popularity has not begun to wane.

Most men realize their responsibilities. They know that those whom they support in life must be supported when they are dead, and so they insure their lives. But in many cases they fail to provide for the investing and safeguarding of this insurance fund, with the result that it is often squandered or dissipated.

If you appoint The Plainfield Trust Company as Trustee under your will your insurance money will be invested according to law and your dependent ones will receive an assured income. We consider this matter so important that we have issued a booklet on the subject which will be sent you on request.

MANY MEN DON'T

Read advertisements, many who do, don't believe them.

Because one store can say as much as another, whereas what really counts is what a store does.

Omitting all glittering generalities, therefore, we want you men to come in and see a collection of summer shoes—unlike any others in town—for all around value.

At the mountains, by the seaside, on the golf links, on the tennis court, or on the summer streets in town. They are indispensable for comfort's as well as fashion's sake.

UNITED STATES TO STAND FIRM

Se. Martine Does Not Fa.r the "Peace at Any Price" Policy.

WILL SUPPORT WILSON

Opposed to Shipments of Munitions to Belligerents—Believes It May Be Necessary to "Spank" Mexico and Make Her Behave.

While inclined to view with optimism the proposed plan of mediation between the United States and Germany over certain matters now engaging the attention of the two countries, United States Senator James E. Martine declared today that there was every reason to believe that the Administration at Washington intends to hold the position as outlined in President Wilson's last note to the Kaiser.

"We are not going to have war with Germany," continued Senator Martine, "but at the same time we are not going to sacrifice our principles. I am not in favor of the 'peace at any price' policy, for I do believe that it is the duty of this country to stand firm and insist upon its every right."

When questioned as to whether he was in favor of shipments of munitions from this country to the belligerents, Senator Martine declared that he opposed this strongly, recalling that he voted against the practice on two different occasions in Congress. It was the opinion of the Senator that if such shipments were prohibited it would go a long way toward bringing about peace among the warring nations abroad. In no uncertain words, the Senator expressed his deep regret over what he termed the awful slaughter now going on abroad.

It was the opinion of Mr. Martine that there would be no extra session of Congress and he said that he did not believe that the Representatives would be called together much before the last of September or the first of October. He could see no present possible reason for meeting earlier than that date.

Asked for his views concerning the situation in Mexico, the Senator said that while it might become necessary for the army and navy to "spank" that country the same as a mother chastises an unruly son, he did not believe that this country would become involved in war. "We may have to send soldiers and sailors to Mexico to help straighten out the present tangle," said Mr. Martine, "but as for occupying that country with a view to increasing our possessions I do not believe there is the slightest possibility of such a thing."

Senator Martine, although spending much of his time at his home in this city, keeps in close touch with Administration affairs even though he is thoroughly enjoying "farm life" which is his delight, he does not allow his keen interest in his country's affairs to relax even the slightest degree.

MISS SUSAN E. NEGUS TO BE BURIED IN PHILADELPHIA

The funeral service of Miss Susan Engle Negus, of Greenville, Miss., who died at Galen Hall, Atlantic City, Thursday morning, will be held in the Woodland cemetery, Philadelphia, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this city, will conduct the service.

Miss Negus was a resident of this city for many years, and many will recall the deceased as a member of the Crescent Avenue church, where she was a faithful member while living here. She was in her seventy-fifth year. The only surviving relatives are Mrs. Edward V. French, of Watchung avenue, a niece, and Horatio Negus, of Bound Brook, a nephew.

SPECIAL SESSION BORO COUNCIL.

The North Plainfield Common Council will meet in special session next Friday night to receive bids for the construction of a sewer in Summit avenue. This action in regard to the sewer was taken as the result of a petition signed by many property-owners along that avenue requesting that a line of sewer be laid.

MRS. MINNIE GILES SEEKS A DIVORCE

Jealousy and cruelty charges are included in the bill of complaint in which Mrs. Minnie Giles is seeking a divorce from her husband, Arthur S. Giles, a plumber of West Fifth street. Through her counsel, Frederick A. Pope, of Somerville, a bill for maintenance has been presented to Chancellor Walker.

The complainant is now said to be living with her mother at Dunellen. She charges cruelty for a period of more than ten years previous to 1912 and alleges that she was threatened with bodily harm. Mrs. Giles claims that on one occasion when she refused to sign a deed, her husband threw a basket of peaches at her.

It is also alleged that Mr. Giles compelled his wife to leave her home on August 29, 1914, at which time she went to live with her mother at Dunellen. The bill for maintenance sets forth that Mr. Giles is the owner of a house on West Fifth street, this city, worth $7,500 and two or three other houses valued at from $3,000 to $5,000, and that he has other property held in trust for him by friends so that it would not be necessary for him to have deeds signed by his wife.

The Giles were married in Dunellen in 1894, where they lived until 1900. They have one son, Elroy Giles, who resides in this city. Mrs. Giles in her petition says that her husband has an income of $5,000 a year and she asks the court to allow her an amount sufficient for her support.

GIRLS PERFORM IN HIGH SCHOOL TANK

Miss Josephine Smith Stars by Covering Eighty Yards in Sixty-one Seconds.

Another one of the keenly contested aquatic meets for feminine exponents of the swimming art was held in the Plainfield High School pool this morning, individual laurels being divided between Miss Josephine Smith and Miss Marion VanZandt, with Miss Helen Carr a close second.

Excellent times were established by the contenders in the various events and the swimming form was of high calibre. In the twenty-yard dash Miss Helen Carr came out ahead with a record of twenty-five seconds. Miss Marion VanZandt won the plunge for time, keeping her head under water for ten seconds. Miss Josephine Smith took first award in the eighty-yard swim, covering the distance in one minute and one second. This latter feat is a remarkable one for a girl swimmer, the time recorded being unusually fast for the distance and worthy of many a man aquatic star.

Miss Marion VanZandt and Miss Josephine Smith tied in the swim for form number, both doing this stunt in such fine style that the judges could not determine a winner. Miss Marion VanZandt won the dive for form.

ASK POLICE TO AID IN SEARCH OF BOYS

Believing that her two boys, Frank, aged nineteen, and John, aged fifteen, have met with foul play or are being detained against their will, Mrs. Donati, of 315 Bergen street, North Plainfield, last night appealed to Captain John J. Flynn at the local police headquarters to aid her in the search for them. John has been absent from home for three weeks and Frank left one week ago.

Nothing has been heard from either son since he left home and the parents have no idea concerning their present whereabouts.

DARING ROBBERS GET $700 'HAUL'

Edward Laing's Store, in the Heart of Business Section, Burglarized.

LEAVE NO CLUE BEHIND

Police Believe Deed Was Committed by Experienced Thieves—Entrance Gained Through Cellar Window—Selected Best Stock in Store.

Merchandise valued at between $600 and $700 was stolen from the stationery store of Edward Laing on West Front street sometime between 8:30 o'clock last night and 7:30 o'clock this morning, thieves entering the place through a cellar window. Reports of the burglary have been filed with the local police and the meager clues available are being run down today.

The robbery was discovered by one of Mr. Laing's clerks when he opened the store this morning, the condition of the stock in the front part of the store indicating that the place had been ransacked. That the deed was committed by experienced crooks is the opinion of the police and Mr. Laing, who says that the goods taken were of the best in the store and would probably only be selected by someone well versed in the art.

Entrance was gained from a cellar window on the alley-side of the store, the thieves working their way up to the second floor and "jimmying" a double lock on the door that led into the store. Several of the best leather suitcases and satchels in the store were missing this morning and it is the opinion of Mr. Laing that the burglars loaded their loot in these receptacles and took it away. It is also possible that one man worked on the inside while a second took charge of a horse and wagon or automobile in which the stolen articles were carried away. The stolen articles included valuable fountain pens, cameras, leather goods, Ingersoll watches, and many other like pieces of stock carried in a store of this kind.

It is practically certain that more than one person worked on the "job" and it is probable that the intruders left through the West Second street side of the alley. That the burglary was carefully planned was evidenced by the thorough search the robbers made.

In speaking with a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Laing said that the store had been securely locked when it was closed at 8:30 last night, and marks about the panels of the door indicate that the thieves had a hard time gaining entrance through the entrance into the main store.

LICENSE COLLECTIONS BEHIND IN BOROUGH

North Plainfield officials have discovered that the borough is about one hundred behind on their dog tax money this year. As against $597 collected in dog taxes last year to date, the borough has taken in only $498. Chief Marshal Weiss has a long list of delinquents, however, who may expect a visit from a police officer any day and a summons to appear before Recorder Hand.

Search is being made for a dog catcher, but so far no one willing to assume the duties has been found. The remuneration is seventy-five cents a canine, and the field for work includes the entire borough. Any dog, whether licensed or not, found running at large in the streets is liable to be taken up, the police say. Therefore the only assurance of safety is for dog owners to be sure that their pets do not get out of yards unless the dogs are attached to a chain or strap and attended by a person over fourteen years of age. Even a muzzle does not protect them.

"HIKE" POSTPONED.

Owing to the inclement weather conditions yesterday the "hike" planned by the Camp Fire girls of the First Presbyterian church was abandoned. A large number of the members, however, gathered at the Y. W. C. A. and enjoyed an afternoon of games and refreshments.

MACHINISTS PICNIC SATURDAY.

The seventh annual family picnic and outing of the International Association of Machinists of District No. 47, will be held in the Colosseum Park and Hall, Newark, next Saturday. Many members of the Plainfield local union will attend.

President W. H. S. Demarest, of Rutgers College, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow and preach at both morning and evening services.

ASSESSORS FILE SEWER REPORTS

Allowances to Middlesex Co. Land Owners Made Public Last Night.

NINETEEN PAYMENTS

Will Have Ten Days to Appeal—Fix Ratings According to Number of Feet—Somerset County Report Also Returned to Commission.

Members of the Joint Sewerage Commission met in the Common Council chambers last night for the purpose of receiving the reports of the assessors appointed to fix the values on lands in Middlesex county to be seized for joint sewer purposes, the following being presented:

Carl Neidorf, $10 for 125 feet; Ludwig Wilde, $356.25 for 285 feet; John Wilde, $1,006.25 for 575 feet; Ludwig Wilde, $757.50 for 505 feet; John Sebring, $580 for 580 feet. The reports of the Somerset county assessors were also filed with the following items: Edwin J. Hughes, $270 for 135 feet; David S. Stiles, $240 for 210 feet; Joseph Tetlow, $300 for 150 feet; John B. Buckalew, $205 for 205 feet; Wenzel Kroja, $579.50 for 305 feet; Henry G. Tuttle, $2,296 for 1,435 feet; Lillian F. Feickert, $1,251 for 695 feet; S. L. Smith, $927 for 515 feet; Mary Elizabeth Harris, $1,415.25 for 765 feet; Thomas H. Hawkins, $945 for 525 feet; John Henderson et al., $3,137 for 2,118 feet; Constantine Cramer, $2,612.50 for 950 feet; Herman Trust, $2,000 for 1,000 feet, and John W. Beetham, $350 for 350 feet.

The expense of satisfying these claims is to be borne jointly by the city of Plainfield, borough of North Plainfield and borough of Dunellen. Nineteen claims will have to be paid; the majority of which lie in North Plainfield township where property valued at $16,748.25 is affected.

J. Edward Ashmead, representing the law firm of Lindabury, Depue & Faulkes, counsel for the Joint Sewerage Commission, was present at last night's meeting and gave official notice that any exceptions to the assessments would have to be taken in the form of an appeal within ten days. In the event of an appeal to the courts the costs of court and jury will have to be borne by the property-owner if the assessment is reduced and by the joint municipalities if the assessment is increased.

POLISH PEOPLE TO HOLD MASS MEETING

A mass meeting of the Polish people of this city and vicinity will be held in St. Mary's Social Hall, on Liberty street, Sunday afternoon, July 25, at which time help for the destitute relatives and friends in Poland will be sought. The gathering is planned under the auspices of the local society of Falcons, and the day set for the meeting is a day observed throughout the entire United States, when Polish people assemble to donate funds to be sent to the national headquarters, in Switzerland, headed by Henry Sienkiewicza, the noted poet and writer.

The committee in charge of the affair has secured several noted speakers from other cities who will appear here Sunday to speak in the interests of the sick and needy in the war zone. A list of all the contributions will be published in several Polish newspapers throughout the country and the names of donators will be printed in a book which will be deposited in the Polish Museum in Rappelswile, Switzerland.

MUSIC AND GAMES ARE FEATURES OF LAWN PARTY

Seventy-five young people enjoyed the lawn party given Thursday night in honor of Miss Mildred Triner, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Debele, on Watchung avenue. The spacious veranda and lawn were fairylands of flowers and lights. Black-eyed susies and Japanese lanterns were used in the decorations mainly. The features of the evening were dancing, singing, playing games and instrumental selections rendered by the guests. Beside many guests from this city, there were friends present from Newark, New York, Elizabeth, and Dunellen.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR NEW CHAPEL

Work to Be Started at Once on Netherwood Reformed Edifice.

COST TO BE $13,000

B. F. Tallamy & Brother and Voehl & Waldron Successful Bidders—Main Building Will Be Constructed in Future.

Contracts for the erection of the new chapel of the Netherwood Reformed church were awarded at a meeting of the building committee last night, B. F. Tallamy & Brother being given the contract for the general contract and Voehl & Waldron the plumbing and heating. Only a part of the proposed building is to be erected at present. The cost of the work to be done will be somewhat over $13,000.

The building will be built of hollow tile and stucco. The chapel only will be built at this time, and it will be located on the rear end of the church property on Leland avenue, leaving plenty of room for the erection of the main auditorium later. The chapel will be a well arranged structure, and will contain classrooms to accommodate a Sunday-school of 300 members. The social work of the church will find accommodations in the basement, where there will also be room for a gymnasium. The work will be begun at once and pushed so that the chapel may be ready for use before cold weather.

The congregation of the Netherwood Reformed church is a growing one and the need of a larger and more pretentious house of worship than the existing one has long been felt. The present building is a portable affair, and has served its purpose during the past five years. For some time it has been used as a schoolroom for the younger children of the East End of the city, as well as for religious uses.

SECRETARY GLAENTZER LEAVES PLAINFIELD TODAY

Edwin Glaentzer, former boys' secretary of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., whose resignation took effect July 1, left for his home in Northern New Jersey today. Mr. Glaentzer, who is a mechanical engineer by profession, will enter upon that work, having two flattering offers under consideration. He accompanied the first boys' section of campers to Camp Wawayanda July 1, returning to Plainfield Thursday, and will leave for good today.

As a token of their appreciation of his work among them, the boys presented Mr. Glaentzer with a gold Y. M. C. A. watch fob about two weeks ago, as told in the Daily Press at the time. Mr. Glaentzer goes away carrying with him the good wishes of all who knew him. No definite plans looking toward his successor have been made.

PREPARING TO SELECT JURIES FOR FALL TERM

Preparations for the drawing of the grand and petit juries for the October term of court have been begun already by Sheriff Otto and Jury Commissioner Russ. Recently they sent out several thousand post cards addressed to names taken from the list of voters in the county. The cards contained questions to be answered by the recipients, tending to show their availability for jury service.

The returns are coming in and the sheriff and jury commissioner are now engaged in striking off the names of those who would be undesirable for jury duty. A number of those listed were found to have served terms in prisons for various offenses and their names were stricken off. Three hundred names will be placed in the grand jury wheel and five hundred in that for the petit jury.

MRS. WAHLER SURPRISED.

A delightful surprise was tendered Mrs. James Wahler, of Columbia avenue, last night, when thirty of her friends gathered at her home to spend the evening in a social way. Jesse Rogers, of Dunellen, entertained the attendants with sleight-of-hand tricks. Dancing, singing and playing games all came in for their share of the features of the evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour. The entire affair was gotten up by Miss Gladys Mead, and was a complete surprise to the guest of honor.

MANY GUESTS ENJOY CLUB'S HOSPITALITY

Card Party and Informal Reception Largely Attended and Proved a Success.

Guests numbering close to 400 were entertained in the Columbus Club auditorium, last night, at a card party and reception given under the auspices of the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus. Card games, consisting of pinochle, euchre and "500" occupied the attention of a large number of guests and an unusual program of novel numbers interspersed the competition for the twenty-five handsome prizes.

One of the prominent features of the evening was a Charlie Chaplin film entitled "The Woman," which was thrown on a screen in the auditorium. The picture, which included two long reels, provided much merriment for the large audience and added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening.

A shirtwaist dance, with music furnished by "Al" Squires' orchestra, was another brilliant portion of the evening's entertainment. This recreation was indulged in until a late hour by the more experienced skippers" present.

The committee in charge of the affair, headed by David B. Doyle, as chairman, included the following: M. T. Moynihan, Joseph F. O'Keefe, Arthur A. Cannon, Paul R. Burns, Robert McCormack, T. J. Meaney, John J. Hines, M. D. O'Keefe, John J. Varley, Anthony Martell, George J. Tobin, Daniel J. Courain, Joseph McCarthy, Thomas F. Carty, John J. Carty, James Hurley, John M. Doyle, James Strappe, George Howe, Daniel McCormack, William G. Messler and Michael Griffin. Members of the Second Night Club also assisted as a committee for the entertainment.

$11.20 CONTRIBUTED TO WORTHY CHARITY

Donations received at this office for the King's Daughters' Fund for the Day Nursery total $11.20 to date. The Junior Department of the First Baptist church has contributed $9.00 for the work of the Circle, while one little girl has donated $1 from the sale of lemonade. Three little girls have added $1.20 by the sale of lemonade.

Each year the Daily Press starts the fund for the splendid work done by the King's Daughters in buying milk and other nourishing food for the little children at the Day Nursery. The object is a most worthy one and further donations are earnestly solicited.

COPIES OF ORIGINAL DRAWINGS DISPLAYED

Two large cartoons which are copies of original drawings made by Lou Rogers, a New York cartoonist, are displayed in the window of suffrage headquarters, 110 Depot avenue, and are attracting considerable attention. They were made by a member of the league in the hope of winning the $5 prize offered for the best idea for the window.

The artist feels quite confident of winning the prize, but other competitors are to follow with their ideas and are equally sure of success.

PROVIDENCE STRIKE OFF.

Providence, July 17—The strike of 2,100 employes of the Rhode Island Company was definitely settled early today. Practically all of the trolley lines in the State had been tied up for two days. The trouble will be submitted to a board of arbitration, of which Mayor Joseph H. Gainer will be chairman.

LUSITNAIA UNARMED.

London, July 17—The Lusitania was unarmed and her loss was due to German submarines. This is the verdict contained in the judgment handed down today by the Board of Trade Inquiry Commission headed by Lord Mersey, which conducted the investigation into the loss of the liner.

BROOKLYNS GET OLSON.

New York, July 17.—President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn National League club, today announced the purchase of Infielder Olson from the Cincinnati club. The deal was consummated to guard against injuries to the Dodgers' infield.

BRITAIN ADVISED OF OUR POSITION

Foreign Office Notified That Every American Right Will Be Protected.

AGAIN DRIVE RUSSIANS

Mackensen and Hindenberg Will Try to Squeeze Czar's Troops Out of Warsaw—Russian Black Sea Fleet Creates Havoc.

Washington, July 17.—A note informing Great Britain that the United States intends to protect every right of its citizens engaged in prize court proceedings has been presented to the British foreign office by Ambassador Page Secretary of State Lansing announced today. A paraphrase of the note may be made public this afternoon.

London, July 17.—The Austro-German armies, which now appear to be working in perfect concert as the result of the German organization, are giving the Russians little rest or time to reorganize themselves after their retreat from Galicia.

Simultaneously with the German effort to reach Warsaw, of the Russians lines serving that fortress from the north, the Austrians have attacked along the Dniester and have succeeded in crossing that river at several points. General von Mackensen's army, which doubtless had been waiting for Field Marshal von Hindenburg to move in the north, has also come to life again and the fighting has been resumed in southern Poland. In fact, there is fighting of more or less severity all along the Russian front, except in central Poland, where the Russians are in such strong positions that in the opinion of military men it would be impossible to break through.

The Germans claim to have made further progress with their northern operations, but with the Russians retiring it is not likely that the main forces have clashed as yet.

The combined operations are the most gigantic yet undertaken, the aim being, according to military experts, to squeeze the Russians out of Warsaw and the great slice of country which they hold to the north, south and east of that city, and at the same time to attempt an invasion of Bessarabia.

So long as this effort to crush Russia or to break her power of offensive continues there is little possibility, military writers say, of the Germans attempting any important movement in the west, for it is believed that the Austro-Germans will for a long while require all their available troops in the east. Four German army corps, composed of Pomeranians and men from Schleswig, are said to have left Thorn to reinforce General von Hindenburg.

The Cologne Gazette, a copy of which has been received here, in commenting on the German government's plan to control the coal trade, warns the country that the government may be obliged to take a similar step with regard to the iron industry.

Sir Herbert, Postmaster General, has announced that apart from the 5 shilling and 1 pound vouchers, 24,000,000 pounds has now been subscribed to the British war loan. Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna announced in the House of Commons, on Tuesday, that the subscriptions through the post offices to last Saturday had amounted to 15,000,000 pounds and the subscriptions through the Bank of England 570,000,000 pounds.

Petrograd, July 17—The Russian official statement says:

"In the Black Sea our torpedo boats opened fire against Sanguldak. They destroyed steamers and several sailing craft laden with coal. The submarine Morj sank a loaded steamer at the entrance to the Bosporus, and also destroyed several sailing ships."

DEATH OF HANS PETERSON AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Hans Peterson, an inmate of the Plainfield Industrial Home, died in Muhlenberg Hospital early this morning from cancer in the face. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Mr. Peterson had been an inmate of the home for about eighteen months and was a quiet, respectable and well-behaved person. He had been afflicted with cancer for the past two years, and was removed to the hospital for treatment May 14. He was sixty-four years of age, and leaves no family except an adopted daughter, of whom he often spoke. He was a native of Denmark.

MARSHAL CHASES MYSTERIOUS PERSON

Stranger Had Been Loitering About Dunellen Several Days.

Darting between a parted freight train stalled on the Central Railroad, opposite Dewey Park, on Thursday, with Marshel Walter C. Sisty, of Middlesex Borough, in close pursuit, an unkempt man of small statue, who had been hanging around the vicinity for three days and acting in a suspicious manner, made his escape in a mysterious way. Marshal Sisty saw the man run between the cars and in a short time the marshal, who is some runner, sped through this same open space himself. The marshal was obliged to bring himself to an abrupt halt, however, as the object of his pursuit had disappeared entirely from view. Bushes lined the side of the railroad tracks upon which he had come out and the marshal lost no time in beating these, but his man was not there. Thinking that the fellow had hidden between two of the freight cars and had left his hiding place and doubled on his trail when he saw him searching the bushes the marshal hastily retraced his steps, but he never saw as much as a glimpse of his quest.

Upon his arrival back at his home Marshal Sistey called up the police of Dunellen and Bound Brook, giving them an accurate description of the object of his chase, but the efficient forces of these two places up to last night had not seen anybody answering to the marshal's descriptions.

Marshal Sistey could give a good description of this man because he had stopped at Wayside Park, of which Mr. Sisty is the proprietor, on Tuesday, and had asked him where Spring street was.

According to the marshal's description he was a man of small statue, who had kinky curly hair like a negro. The marshal thought that he was part Italian. The fellow wore a cap and was garbed in a drab suit.

The question, "Where is Spring street?" is the question which he had been asking every one he came across during his three days' stay in the vicinity of Wayside Park.

At 9 o'clock Thursday morning he presented himself at the home of Mrs. Charles Murphy in Dewey Park and asked Mrs. Murphy that question. Later he insulted her and refused to comply with her commands to leave her premises. Whereupon Mrs. Murphy hastened over to the home of Tom Reidy, adjoining, and Mrs. Reidy sent her daughter, Sivina, after Marshal Sistey.

Upon Sivina's return from her mission she hastened over to Mrs. Murphy's and told her that the marshal would be there immediately. Turning to the man, who had refused to move, Mrs. Murphy said, "This girl says the marshal is comning, and you had better go if you don't want to be arrested."

The fellow quite naturally looked around from the direction in which the girl had returned from her mission and espying the stalwart form of Marshal Sistey digging across the field he turned and sped away like a rabbit.

The authorities of Middlesex borough believe that the fellow is crazy and they would feel greatly relieved if they knew that he was not hiding within the borough limits.

TAKES A VACATION.

Frank Snyder, of Centre street, has been laying off from his duties as a member of the force which is erecting the plant of the Harris, Silver, Baker Company at South Plainfield, since Wednesday. Mr. Snyder intends to remain away from his duties until the spell of extreme hot and humid weather which is now being experienced has been broken. A year or two ago Mr. Snyder suffered an attack of sunstroke and fearing another one was coming on Wednesday he decided to take a rest.

John Campbell, of Dunellen avenue, who is employed in the Plainfield Trust Company, is enjoying his annual vacation.

Mrs. John Buckle and children, of Dunellen avenue, have returned from Califon, where they visited Mrs. Martha Tipling.

C. B. LAKE IMPROVED.

Charles B. Lake, of Jersey City, who is spending the summer here with his wife and son, stopping with relatives, returned on Wednesday from a several days' stay at Asbury Park. Mr. Lake has improved from his attack of laryngitis since he first arrived here and on Thursday he returned to his duties as head bookkeeper with Samuel Wild & Son in New York.

Mrs. C. D. Gooch and daughter, Miss Florence, of Fourth street, have returned from Centreville, Mass., where they spent a month.

Edgar Shively, of Lincoln avenue, has been suffering from an attack of rheumatism this week.

Mrs. Josephine Terry, of New Market road, has been entertaining her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Terry, of Brooklyn.

Contractor Frank Broshart has been awarded a contract of installing a bath in the residence of John Eick on Front street.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Borough Hall, Monday evening.

States R. Titsworth, of New Market road, is slow in ridding himself of the pangs of rheumatism.

Mrs. Frank Mohan, of North avenue, spent Thursday in Somerville visiting friends.

M. L. Frescoln, of New Market road, has been indisposed for the past four or five days and has remained away from his duties as foreman in the composing room of the New York Globe.

Samuel McGarity and sister, Miss Anna, of New York, are spending the week-end in the borough as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Frescoln.

Mrs. Samuel Kookogey, of New Market road, is down in the vicinity of Augustus, Me., enjoying a ten days' fishing trip.

FAVORS SUFFRAGE.

In speaking of his attitude, this morning, upon the question of equal suffrage, Rev. Dr. D. W. C. Ramsey, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, said: "I believe in equal suffrage and shall give my influence to the cause. The average women has as much intelligence as the average man, then why should she not be given the same rights as man? Women should have equal rights with man in making the laws that govern both.

ENJOYED A PICNIC.

The employes of the Montgomery street carhouse of the Public Service Railway Company and their families, trolleyed from Jersey City, Thursday, six hundred strong, and enjoyed their third annual outing at Wayside Park. The cars, which numbered six, with the picnickers arrived at the park about noon and the picnic lasted from that time until 5 o'clock. The afternoon was spent by some in dancing and others in witnessing or participating in an athletic meet. The music for the dancing was furnished by a brass band of 10 pieces.

The regular semi-annual meeting of the O. Z. T. Fraternity was held last evening at the home of C. T. Voorhees on Lincoln avenue.

G. E. C. CLUB ELECTS.

The G. B. C. met at the home of the Misses Maude and Dora Whitford, on New Market road, Wednesday afternoon. The regular order of business was transacted and plans for a picnic to be held at Smith's Grove next Thursday were discussed. At the close of the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Arraigned before Judge Rene P. F. von Minden in police headquarters, last evening, John Potts and Paul Smith, both of Elizabeth, were given sentences of thirty days apiece in the county jail on charges of train riding preferred against them by railroad detectives.

'Plains & Fanwood.

C. I. Ostlin, of Richmond Hill, N. Y., has removed to Cecelia place in order to be nearer his work. Mr. Ostlin has the contracts for a number of houses in the 'Plains and borough, including the general contract for the dwellings James Miniszek intends building on his borough property.

H. D. Bonnell, of Forest road, left today with his wife and son for a stay at the seashore.

At the Scotch Plains Baptist church tomorrow the 10:45 morning service will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. Madison Hare. At 9:30 the Bible school will meet with classes for all ages. Louis Lewis will be in charge of the young people's service in the church at 7:45, taking as his topic, "What Christianity Has Accomplished." A cordial invitation is extended to all services.

Unless the weather intervenes the members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church and their friends will enjoy a picnic on the grounds surrounding the church tonight. If it is stormy it will be held in the league rooms.

Rev. Oscar Stuart Michael will occupy the pulpit of the Episcopal church at the services tomorrow. At the 11 o'clock service Holy Communion will be administered.

A meeting of the executive board of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association and the various committees appointed to arrange for the "community picnic," will be held in the lecture room of the Baptist church on Monday night, when it is expected that the day's program will be made out. Besides Governor Fielder, Rev. J. Madison Hare expects to have several other able speakers present. Interest is increasing among local athletes over the meeting arranged for and entries are coming in fast. Bronze medals will be awarded to the winner in each event and a silver loving cup, donated by the Fanwood Lumber and Supply Company, will be given the individual point winner. It will be on exhibition in one of the 'Plains store windows as soon as it arrives. It is expected that a considerable amount will be realized toward the money for the prizes in the collections at the games between the young men of the 'Plains and borough to be held on the Park avenue diamond this afternoon.

George Wense, a resident of lower Terrill road for the past three years, removed with his family on Wednesday to Philadelphia, where they will make their home.

The "Spoms," a club of girls living in the Willow Grove section of the township, is planning for an apron and necktie social to be held on Thursday evening, July 22. As the club has only been organized a month, this is the girls' first social event and they are making elaborate plans.

A local Boy Scout troop has been organized in this place, this time in the Willow Grove section of the township. Cedric Ostrum, Scoutmaster of the Netherwood Boy Scouts, Patrol 15, has been instrumental in the forming of it and will assist the boys until someone is secured as Scoutmaster. The charter members are Fred Herbst, Charles Herbst, Arthur Atlee, Victor Atlee, Fred Atlee and Steven Sichora. Several more will join at next week's meeting. The troop will have the use of the Coriell place on Terrill road and extending through to Martine avenue. The boys are now helping to raise funds for the summer camp to be erected on the property. Until the building is finished the troop will meet at the Herbst home for weekly meetings and drills.

Arrangements are being made for the holding of the next dance at Stony Hill on July 28. These affairs are increasing in popularity and the hot weather does not seem to hold any terrors for the crowds that go to the monthly dances, which will continue all summer.

Rae Brick and Henry Alberts have become motorcyclists, both having purchased twin cylinder Indians.

Mrs. Newall and son, Ralph, left today to spend their vacation at Mt. Tabot.

Robert Hodge, Robert Howell, Russell Johnston and Howard Ward, all of the 'Plains, returned yesterday from a week's camping trip along the Passaic River. The outfit consisted of a dog tent, fishing poles and canned goods. During the storms they were allowed to sleep in a barn nearby. They had such a good time they may return for the coming week.

Westfield.

The Court of Chancery has ordered the sale of the Robert H. Mitchell property to close the estate. Charles N. Codding, as special master in Chancery, will conduct the sale.

An entertainment will follow the business of the meeting of the Clinks at Columbus Hall Tuesday night.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I tried seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's drug store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of my kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Gardner had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Dainty Teddy Sampson will be seen at the U. S. Astor Theatre this afternoon and tonight in the leading role in John Luther Long's thrilling four-act play in photo version entitled "The Fox Woman." You will be charmed with the splendid acting of the piquant little star and with the exquisite Japanese atmosphere of this gripping play. The cast includes Signe Auen, who plays the part of the "Fox Woman," and Elmer Clifton, who portrays the difficult role of the artist husband.

One of the biggest photo-dramatic features of the season will be presented at the Astor Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, when Viola Allen, who, with the possible exception of Maude Adams is the most noted actress in the United States, will make her screen debut in Plainfield in the film version of the powerful drama, "The White Sister," in which she will portray the title role.

This picture should prove extremely interesting for it has a theme which has stood the test of time and its appeal today is as strong as it ever has been. It has to do with the young girl who, believing her lover to be dead, enters a convent, only to find after she has taken her final vows that he still lives and loves her. Then follows the intense struggle between her love and her duty with the latter triumphant, until a friendly priest steps in and uses his influence to obtain dispensation releasing her from her vows.

The story is intensely dramatic. The direction and photography are of an unusual standard of excellence. Miss Allen, of course, will be seen to advantage in the leading role. The balance of the cast is composed of players of high calibre.

DISTRICT COURT TALK.

It is said by those who are interested in the establishment of a District Court in North Plainfield that the Common Council may soon take the necessary steps looking towards having the next borough recorder a lawyer instead of a layman and commissioned to try civil cases in which the amount involved is not over $100. This would do away with the necessity of taking every civil case, no matter how trivial a nature, to Somerville for trial.

Women's Summer Costumes—Few, But Very Choice—Monday at $18.75

125 of the daintiest afternoon dresses and dance frocks of net and lace and voile, with fine embroidery and borderings, such as we sold in June for $35 to $60—now $18.75!

An exquisite creation of crepe net and embroidered lace is a duplicate of one of our most-liked lingerie frocks which sold for $37.50—now $18.75.

All show the preferred fashion touches for midsummer wear—side-fluted tunics, butterfly tunics over under-dress of net and lace, ruffled organdie flounces bordered with satin ribbon and net, lace insertions, Vandyck pointed insertions of embroidered net, high satin girdles.

Pictures, all.

Fifteen styles; each one a joy; every frock beautifully finished.

The reason—The maker is a very large operator, can't avoid a surplus, clears his shelves each season, and because of our large, quick outlet, we get our choice.

And what a wonderful choice it is at $18.75.

Monday, Gray Salons, Second floor, Old Bldg.

Young Women's White Corduroy and Awning Striped Skirts

New!

White corduroy skirts of unusual quality and style, one has high shirred back, $3.50 and $4. Lengths 35 to 40 inches.

White Dresses Reduced

Snowy and fresh, but broken in size-range, so marked very much lower. Now $10 to $23.50, were $17.50 to $32.50. Voile, net, organdie and some charming novelty fabrics. Sizes 16 to 20 years.

Second floor, Old Building.

To Put Their Stocks in Order the Little French Shops Offer:

The Lingerie, $1.25 to $25 Were $1.50 to $45

Lovely Paris nightgowns, some with real lace, all rich with handwork and of fine materials, including many model garments which we have copied; were $5 to $45, now $3.85 to $25.

Chemises of exquisite simplicity and typically French lacy styles; were $1.75 to $25, now $1.50 to $15.

Drawers, elaborately embroidered or trimmed with fine laces; were $10.50 to $25, now $7.50 to $18.

Combinations of practical every day sorts, were $2.75 to $5, now $1.75 to $3.50.

Princess slips, one or two of a kind, and a group formerly $2.75, now $2.

Long skirts, hand-scalloped and embroidered, were $1.75 to $3.75, now $1.25 to $2.

The Blouses, $3.85 to $15 Were $5 to $25

Just the fascinatingly frivolous, and the contradictorily plain and sensible blouses which Paris knows so well how to create.

Here a mid-Victorian organdie in white or color (now 9.50). There a simple handkerchief linen embroidered (now $5). Or a little soft white mull embroidered (now $3.85). Or a blouse with scallops or tiny frill (now $7.50), and most luxurious double-frilled, lace-trimmed blouses at $12.

Nothing quite like them!

But please do not expect to find every size in each style. Third floor, Old Building.

Astoundingly Low Prices for Hand-Crocheted Lace Robes, Coats and Blouses

Out of fashion—but not hopelessly so, for the robes were made at the time full skirts were in fashion and can be remodeled.

The coats and coatees will make charming negligees. And the blouses can be cut over, too.

There is one coat—a superb affair of fine ground work and exquisitely worked motifs which, when such things were the fashion, was $250. We sold a duplicate in a sale at $75, and this coat is here now at $20.

Among the robes and blouses there are similar reductions.

64 Waists, $2.50, formerly $7.50 to $10
35 Coats and Coatees, $5 to $20, formerly $20 to $75
9 Robes, $12.50 to $25, formerly $35 to $65

The "former" prices quoted above are our former sale prices and not the very high original cost to land these beautiful real laces.

THE FRESH AIR HOME. THE OBJECT OF ITS EXISTENCE.

It is perfectly obvious that the threefold nature of humanity must have opportunity to develope if the best is to be obtained. Physical, mental and moral development can come to an all-roundness only when opportunities materialize, and connect so closely with life experiences that they vitally influence toward advancement. To make life strongest and best and noblest, there must be principles of honor, faithfulness, purity and truth as cornerstones. There is a glorification due to honest toilers in any field, who suffer for a higher good, who sacrifice that others may enjoy.

But there comes to be another shading of motive with multitudes of toilers whose efforts are as great, but who, by circumstances over which they have no control, are driven to their tasks. These see nothing in toil except a ceaseless striving, as a means to a meager wage, which can only bring scanty food and poorest shelter.

The reality of the contests about us emphasizes the case.

The child, born in the home of one of those whose sum total is scanty food and poor shelter and a poor wage is handicapped in its desperate struggle. It is sent to its school duties, often without having had any nourishing food, returns at the noon-hour to receive only another small ration, and after the close of school in the afternoon hurries home to play the part of "little mother," taking the younger sisters and brothers to play on the hot pavements of the city street.

The older child—the shop or factory worker hurries from her morning rest—takes bread and coffee, rushes to her work, toils strenuously until closing time, then goes to her home, or a poor rented room by herself, to as little supper as will possibly do—with the prospect of the same program every day of the week and every week of the year.

In a word, constant service brings weariness and depression. The every day duties, under the best circumstances, require for rightful enjoyment, some change in the trend of thought and activity. There is, then, an imperative call for relaxation to the seemingly most favored, and to those who bend every energy and who are practically required to "make bricks without straws."

Relaxation may be most satisfactory in one form, with a certain nature and set of circumstances, and in quite different forms with other natures and circumstances.

So it comes to pass that the Netherwood Fresh Air Home fulfills in one satisfactory form the nature and set of circumstances of those who bend every energy and are practically required to "make bricks without straws." It is to give these younger children of our great city a chance to develop the moral, mental and physical that the Netherwood Fresh Air Home throws open its doors for two months of the trying summer season.

The large measure of success with which this work has been blessed is largely due to Sara Curry, its founder. Miss Curry is an exceptional leader, possessing the best of all religious gifts to the world—the spirit of thought, care and service for others, the constant willingness to serve and sacrifice for those who have no stronger clami on her than that they are her sisters and brothers.

Are we not, therefore, truly about the Father's business when we make definite provision for the betterment of these less fortunate children. The child's religious train, pastimes and games at this Home are as valuable a drill in the principles of righteousness and citizenship as will rarely be found in many of our fresh air homes. The object of the Home is not that we shall reduce life to its lowest terms, but rather carry it up into the highest terms possible.

The though expressed in the words "Save the Kiddies" is rapidly assuming a religious character, for we are learning that we must cease saying: "Our Father," unless with equal conviction and fervor we begin to say our brother. "That word, Father, must be brought over from our very large and splendidly null assortment of 'vain repetitions,' and be put to plain, practical service in every day thinking and living."

The day has arrived when we must take to ourselves the ancient law, both as a sound philosophy and a practical regime: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

CLIFFORD A. BRAIDER.

Bound Brook.

The services in the Methodist church tomorrow will be as follows: Sunday-school at 9:45 a. m., public worship at 11 o'clock, sermon by Rev. Daniel C. Dorchester, subject, "Pure Religion." Evening service at 7:45, subject of sermon, "Peter Waldo and the Waldenses."

Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, will speak at the union service in the Congregational church tomorrow morning.

Mrs. John Wild, aged forty years, died at St Francis' Hospital on Thursday morning after an operation. Funeral services are being held from her late home at Greenbrook, this afternoon, with interment in the Bound Brook cemetery.

You can't, even through a "For Sale" ad, sell that used article for its original cost, nor near it; but you can get its cash value at the present time for it.

JULY 17TH IN HISTORY.

1429—In the city of Rheims which she had captured, Joan of Arc held the place of honor at the crowning of Charles VII of France.

1744—Elbridge Gerry, American statesman, born. Died 1814, while Vice President.

1793—Marie Charlotte Corday, slayer of Marat, was executed. She killed Marat with a dagger when he told her of his bloody designs.

1824—Tench Coxe, known as the father of the cotton industry in America, died, aged 69.

1856—Explosion at Salonika, Turkey, killed or wounded 700, among them the Dutch, Russian and Sardinian consuls.

1913—Bulgaria appealed to Roumania for peace.

DR. ST. C. M'KELWAY DIES IN BROOKLYN

Veteran Editor of Brooklyn Eagle Passes Away After Long Illness.

Dr. St. Clair McKelway, editor-in-chief of the Brooklyn Eagle, a journalist who impressed his personality upon the city and nation, an educator schooled in all the learning of the colleges and yet a graduate of none, an orator who could give distinction to any theme, died yesterday at his home in Brooklyn.

He had not been in robust health since a year ago, when he had an attack of bronchitis, which greatly undermined his constitution. The immediate cause of his death was arterio sclerosis, from which he had been suffering for the last five weeks.

His birthplace was Columbia, Mo., not far from the town in which Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) was born, and there he began his interesting career seventy years ago. The date of his birth was March 15, 1845. He came under much the same influence as did Mark Twain—in the half formed West, where originality and initiative seemed to spring as from the very soil. It is remembered that when a few years ago he and Mr Clemens met that Dr. McKelway related a series of escapades which he ascribed to the humorist. He gave them verisimilitude by dragging in the names of about twenty of the friends of the Twain schooldays. The nomenclature he got from an old acquaintance which the men had in common and the atmosphere came to him as a breath from his own early life.

TOO MUCH RAIN IS DELAYING HARVEST TIME

"Wheat is ripe and in nearly all cases has been waiting for the reapers since the Fourth of July. Oats are coming along fast and will soon be ready to harvest, but if the weather does not improve the farmers won't get a chance to harvest their full crops," declared a Somerset county farmer this morning.

He went on to say that the rainy weather is causing the farmers great concern now as the fields of grain no sooner get dry and in readiness to cut than it rains again and necessitates a wait. He said that potatoes, while not yet injured by the wet weather, are liable to rot in the ground if dry weather does not come soon.

ROTARY MEN IN CONVENTION.

San Francisco, July 17.—From 178 American cities and a dozen foreign capitals, thousands of Rotarians are arriving for the sixth annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, which opens here tomorrow. Frank L. Mulholland, of Toledo, president of the International Association, will formally convene the big gathering on Monday. He reports that although the organization has existed only six years it now has a membership of 21,000. The motto of the Rotarians, "Service, Not Self," is emblazoned at the big headquarters of the convention. Tuesday, July 20, will be celebrated as "Rotary Dad" at the Exposition. Many prominent speakers are on the program, which extends through the entire week.

ENGLISH WOMEN IN PARADE.

London, July 17—The first big parade of women since the war broke out will march through the streets of the city today to celebrate the recognition by David Lloyd-George of the Pankhurst organization. The commissioner of munitions has agreed to consider the offer of the Women's Social and Political Union to furnish women to work as shell-makers in the munition plants. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, though bitterly criticized by some of her Suffragist followers for her stand in throwing the suffrage movement into sympathy with the war, has won large support from the patriotics women of the land, and the parade will be the expression of Englishwomen of their desire to do their share in the present emergency.

BABY-SAVING CAMPAIGN.

Chicago, July 17.—Baby Welfare Week in Chicago opened today under the auspices of the welfare organizations and club women. Educational matter is being distributed among mothers, depicting the proper care for babies during the summer months, in their dress and food. The house fly is again banned as the cause of much infant mortality. The success of previous campaigns in reducing the death rate of infants has encouraged a still broader campaign this year, which is headed by Mayor Thompson.

PICTURE MAKERS MEET.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 17—Plans have been completed for an unusually interesting convention of the National Association of Professional Photographers which will open here Monday. Will H. Towles, of Washington, president of the association, will open the big meeting Monday morning. Many of the leading picture makers of the United States and Canada will attend, and discussions of interest to their art will be held each day during the week.

PLAN TO MOVE CLOCK BACK.

Toronto, Ont., July 17.—The idea of setting the clock back an hour during the summer months, in order to give more daylight for work and pleasure, has become so popular throughout Canada that it will be brought to the attention of Parliament at its next session, with a view to securing the enactment of a statute that will make the movement uniform. The plan is to turn the clock back an hour beginning April 1 of each year, and continuing until fall, so that the people will go to work earlier and complete their work earlier and thus have an added hour of recreation in daylight.

UTAH BOYS ESCORT GOVERNOR.

San Diego, Calif., July 17—Four hundred High School cadets from Salt Lake City are acting as escort to Governor William Spry, of that State, in the ceremonies of Utah Day at the San Diego Exposition. The Utah executive and his young friends will go to the San Francisco Exposition next week for Utah Day, which is set for the twenty-fourth. A choir of two hundred voices from the Ogden Tabernacle will sing here today at the exercises and will also be heard at San Francisco.

NO SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.

Cardiff, Wales, July 17.—"There is no indication of a settlement of the strike," said a leader of the miners today. Unless the government yields by night many of the ammunition plants must close. The Graigola Fuel Works at Swansea, the largest in the world, closed down today for lack of coal. About 2,000 men were made idle.

ACCIDENT CASES.

Beatrice Loftus, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Loftus, of 209 Prescott place, fell yesterday and broke her collarbone. Leon Ludeck, seventeen years old, of 964 West Fifth street, fell out of an apple tree on Thursday and broke two bones in the left forearm. Both cases were attended by Dr. Raphael Yood, of Grant avenue.

LABOR DAY PLANS.

There will be a meeting of the Allied Trades Committee this evening in Building Trades Council Hall, when matters pertaining to the forthcoming Labor Day celebration will be taken up.

To Make Bandages.

Bandages can be prepared from the good parts of worn sheets or pillow slips if perfectly clean. Rolls six to eight yards in length are most convenient—one inch wide for fingers, two inches for feet, two and one-half to three inches for head and arms and four inches for legs. A good way of keeping them in condition for use is to seal the rolls in a perfectly clean glass fruit jar.—Philadelphia Record.

Genuine Innocence.

A youthful Ohio man who married a widow and went to Chicago for his honeymoon complained to the hotel management that his pockets had been rifled of all the money he had the very first night. Did you ever think there was such innocence as that in Ohio?—Houston Post.

Another Face on It.

"We ran across an old friend of yours the other day."

"Who was it, and where did you meet him?"

"It was Mr. Toddler, and we didn't exactly meet him—he wouldn't get out of the way."—Baltimore American.

A Good Instrument.

Sinclair—That's a nice looking barometer of yours. Is it sensitive? Kallings—It's too sensitive. It even indicates when my wife is going to have a crying spell.—Puck.

History.

The verdict of history seems to be that, while a great deal has come to pass, relatively little has come to stay.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

You need not keep "on your hands," to your present disadvantage, any real estate that is "good enough to advertise."

Rent one of your rooms and reduce your own rent materially. It's a simple and sensible plan—and it works.

Much of Wonderful Interest Marks a New Week in the Great

SIMPSON-CRAWFORD Sale

This Simpson-Crawford Sale is different enough from most sales to have had startling effects along three distinct lines.

FIRST—It is interesting the New York public to an extent never before seen in the middle of Summer. On one day last week our delivery automobiles carried within 3,500 as many packages as were delivered on the busiest day of the last Christmas season! And this interest maintains itself day after day, in the most amazing manner.

SECOND—It has enthused our own staff to a point of co-operation absolutely without precedent—and our own store family is naturally the keenest critic of a merchandise event that can be imagined!

THIRD—Its opportunities for the distribution of goods in the dull season are so evident to the business world that we find the most surprising offerings of fine merchandise coming our way at prices we should not have believed possible until they were actually quoted.

Thus, with our three-fold source of supply—the Simpson-Crawford stock, our own stocks of Summer merchandise, and numerous purchases from manufacturers, we are able to accomplish what we started out to do—make this SIMPSON-CRAWFORD Sale a month-long event of transcendent importance. Beginning next Monday offerings will surpass in interest those that have gone before. NOTE, for your profit, how closely they average to HALF PRICE!

A Special Purchase of Men's $30, $32 & $35 Suits } $16.50

A high-class New York manufacturer sold us EVERY SUIT he had—making a price in proportion to the size of the purchase. The quality—for evidence of which every suit has been carefully examined by our experts—is fully up to the exacting GIMBEL standard in every way. All the good styles, materials and effects of the season are represented, in sizes from 34 to 48.

NEW OFFICERS CHOSEN BY LOCAL CRAFTSMEN

An election of officers of the Building Trades Council took place last night as follows: President, H. H. Corey; vice president, Frederick Eckhardt; recording secretary, John Cordova; financial secretary, Russell Hann; treasurer, H. S. Derflinger; trustees, E. A. Reid, George Fosbre and John O'Brien; sergeant at arms, Patrick Boyle, and business agent, William H. Lunger. Amos Seals is the delegate from Carpenters' Union, No. 155, who will represent the local in the Building Trades Council. The newly elected officers will be installed next Friday night.

No action was taken on the new agreement between the Hod Carriers' Union and the Master Mason's Association. Action on this question was laid over until after the next meeting of the union, which will occur Thursday, August 12.

WILL ENFORCE REGULATIONS GOVERNING TYING OF HORSES

With a view to furthering his campaign for better traffic conditions in Plainfield Mayor Leighton Calkins has instructed Chief of Police Kiely to take action against horse owners who persist in leaving their animals standing in the street untied. He also has called the police chief's attention to the State law providing that no horse shall be left unbitted in any street, unless secured by a halter. This applies particularly to cases where horses are left standing with feed bags attached to their heads.

Patrolmen have been instructed to enforce the regulation and the names of horse owners violating this ordinance will be registered at police headquarters. Repeated violations will mean the confiscation of the horse and vehicle by the police department and the owner will have to appear in court before he will again be given possession of his equipment.

THIRD DEGREE CLASS AT PERSEVERANCE LODGE

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., united with Unity Lodge, No. 102, last night in a big meeting at which the third rank was conferred on a class of candidates. Owing to the hot weather and other reasons the class numbered only four, three of whom joined Perseverance and the remaining man Unity. It was a disappointment to many that the class dwindled down to so few, but the meeting was an inspiring one and drew the largest audience that Perseverance lodge room has witnessed in three years.

George Keen, who was made a past chancellor commander at the convention of the order at Asbury Park this week, acted as degree master and was complimented upon the excellence of his work. The third degree team was from Perseverance lodge, and the members were assisted by Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank. A banquet followed the degree work at which informal talks for the good of the order were delivered.

DR. HERRING TO SPEAK AT FRENCH AIR SERVICE

The service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home on Sunday afternoon will be addressed by the Rev. Dr Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The special music by the Children's Choir will be a feature. The services during the week will be of interest, on Tuesday evening Mr. Harry Gee will be the speaker, Wednesday evening I. F. Parker will have an evening for Bible study, and on Friday evening G. M. Rittenhouse will be the speaker. At all of these services the children will sing, and the public is always welcome. One of the interesting features of the Home is the bath room, if one should happen to come to the Home on almost any evening there would be a sight well worth the trouble of seeing, between fifty and seventy-five babies who are at the Home without their mothers, sleeping peacefully under the watchful care of Miss Curry—some who have come to the Home ill, and are gradually being nursed back to full vigor and health—if you have not visited the Home, make it one of the places that you will next visit—come and see what a really great work is being done for the little people of our great city. The service tomorrow afternoon begins at 3:45.

Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Rostenthal, of 210 Washington street, are the happy parents of a baby boy born Monday.

Among the visitors at the Italian celebration at Stony Hill, yesterday, were the Misses May Donnelly and Mary E. Smith, Mrs. Albert L. LaRock and Father Sciolla, of St. Mary's church.

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be the speaker at the public service tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. There will be music by the children's choir.

THE EUROPEAN HARVEST MOON

CHRISTIAN FIELD

The mid-week prayer meeting service has been discontinued at the Congregational church. Sunday, July 25, Rev. William Manchee, of Passaic, will preach. Mr. Manchee was the first minister of the local church, his pastorage extending from December, 1879, to December, 1883. A cordial invitation is extended all to hear him. Sunday, August 1, Dr. D. Everett Lyon will preach. Dr. Lyon is pastor of the historic Westminster Presbyterian church, of Baltimore. The annual excursion to Asbury Park occurs Thursday, August 5.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring will preach at the morning service at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow, while Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will occupy the pulpit at the evening union service.

Rev. Dr. D. P. F. Randolph will preach on "Peace of Mind in Hot Weather," at the morning service at the Monroe Avenue church tomorrow. In the evening the service will begin at 7:15 with a song service in charge of the Epworth League. The pastor's topic will be "The Book that Jesus Used."

At the Netherwood Reformed church, tomorrow, Rev. Edward S. Ralston will preach at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. The subject of the morning service will be "The Only Right Use of Life." The evening service will be outdoors, if the weather permits. The topic of the sermon will be "The Strong and the Weak."

J. W. Blower will be the speaker at the Rescue Mission tomorrow night. The service begins at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

At Bethel chapel tomorrow morning Rev. William L. Imes will preach on the subject, "The Cross in Modern Life." His theme in the evening will be "Short Cuts." All are invited to attend the services. On Sunday, July 25, the members and friends of Bethel chapel will join the choir boys at their camp. A union service will be held in the evening. Those desirous of going may do so by applying to the pastor.

The girls' chorus of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp will sing carols tomorrow morning at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The choir will also sing. Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson will preach on "Religion that Lives in Summer." In the evening the community open-air service will be held on the lawn. Irving Manley, the boy soprano, will sing "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." The choir will also sing. The pastor will preach on "The Greatest Discovery—The Purpose of Life." Sunday-school at 9:45 and young people at 7:15.

The union service tomorrow evening will be held in the First Presbyterian church and Rev. John Y. Broek will preach.

The Dutch Arms Band of Trinity Reformed church will hold an ice cream festival Thursday evening, July 29. It will be given under the auspices of the consistory and the proceeds will be used to help pay off the church debt, incurred by the building of an addition to the Bible schoolroom.

HOW MUCH ARE BALLPLAYERS WORTH?

Just how much the present baseball depression has depreciated the value of baseball franchises would afford an interesting table of statistics, if one were able to get down to concrete figures. Some idea of the situation may be gained, however, from isolated cases, and that is especially true in the American Association, an organization which has more than a passing interest to Plainfielders, where two clubs have avowedly been in the open market. The St. Paul Club, of which Jack Martin, of this city, is a member, drew an option of $115,000 during the winter and was kicked around for months with no one willing to assume the burden, until it was taken over for operation by the Norton syndicate, with an option to purchase, which is supposed to be about the figure named. This $115,000, however, did not represent merely franchise players and good will, but also included the real estate, which is given a conservative value of $60,000. This leaves $55,000 for the players and franchise. The Toledo club is on the market for $150,000. The sum includes $20,000 paid on property and the modern plant which is said to have cost $90,000. In other words the franchise and players are worth about $40,000.

Who is keeping Hank O'Day, veteran umpire, out of the game? Is there a boycott against him? Since last March Hank has remained idle and although three league presidents have classed him as one of the greatest umpires the game has ever known he remains unemployed. President Johnson, of the American League, says he would like to have the veteran on his staff, but has never been able to find a vacancy, despite the American League's notable lack of good arbitrators. President Tener gives the highest testimony to Hank's ability but there it all ends. Hence his friends claim he has been handed a raw deal and predict that one of these days the deep thinking decision maker will speak up and expose the plot to keep him out of the public limelight.

Just how much the City Baseball League is going to revive interest in the National pastime around Plainfield is a matter of conjecture at the present time, but the future appears to be overcast with an optimism, which, if true, will put the Queen City back in the limelight once more. The calibre of baseball being played on the amateur circuit is even higher than was at first anticipated and the season bids fare to be a success in every way. It goes without saying that the attainment of this year's object will mean a clamoring for admission from other quarters next spring and the interest will be sufficient to carry along a couple of live leagues.

Ralph Runyon, the Plainfield High School boy, who is keeping Plainfield on the athletic map these days, is performing in New York State this afternoon in one of the biggest meets of the season up that way. Runyon is trying conclusions with the country's best pole vaulters in his favorite event and the youngster should reap another first place. His ability in this sport is recognized throughout the country and if his advance during the next year is as rapid as it has been in the past it goes without saying that he will be fit for international competition when the next Olympics blow around in 1920.

Hope Chapel plays another home engagement this afternoon. If the West Fourth street boys collect another $20 in receipts it's one safe bet that they'll soon begin to figure on putting Cliff Randolph into active work.

'Tis said that Manager Moynihan, of the Tabs, is endeavoring to draw a date from Manager Burns, of the Elizabeth Tabs. Better leave that Betsytown prey alone for the present, Moynihan, it doesn't do to attempt to take too big mouthfuls.

The reason you haven't heard about any "holdouts" or "jumpers" in the City League is because the players are not salaried.

It might be a cruel blow to some of these City League organizations if another league happened to sprout out in Plainfield wherein the players were offered honest-to-goodness real money.

If certain college players we have seen perform around this burg this summer are fair examples of what they turn out in the collegiate world we little wonder that football is popularly recognized as the leading college sport.

Carl Johnson, of Hopewell, gave up a position in the manual training department of the local public schools to accept a job on the Giants' reserve catching squad. He's now backstopping in the Delaware League. Such is fate!

WALSH A "COME-BACK."

Chicago, July 17—A chest of silver and a silver loving cup were among the gifts presented to Big Ed Walsh, the veteran pitcher of the Chicago Americans, who made his "come-back" appearance yesterday. The occasion was celebrated with the raising of the flag emblematic of the Chicago baseball championship. Walsh, who has not been started in a game in more than a year, opposed the Philadelphia Americans and won the game.

LOCAL TEAM WILL FACE PITCHER OF NO-HIT FAME

The Plainfield A. A. will visit Manville tomorrow to clash with the base ball team representing that place. The Manville team is a very fast aggregation, and recently Pfeister, star hurler for the team, pitched a no-hit game. He will oppose the local clan, and hopes to register another no-hit encounter. However, Manager Jones has collected a heavy clouting array of players, and Pfeister is sure to have the time of his life restraining these fellows from making very good use of the willow.

Aaron Hirsch, the N. P. H. S. star, will cavort around the first station, while W. Miller will be in evidence around second. Harry Moulton is carded to handle the slants of either Benny Rosenson or Eddie Hamilton. The outfield will be made up of Carney, Jones and Harry Kirch. H. Rosenson is to roam around short. The lineup of the Manville team has not been given out, but that the team has been padded for the encounter has become known through the fact that Pfeister does not twirl for the team unless some tough opposition is expected.

FARMER A. C. VS. HIGHLAND A. C.

The Farmer A. C. and the Highland A. C. will clash tomorrow at Highland Park in the East End.

QUEEN CITY BALLISTS TO TRY THE WHITE SOX

The Queen City B. B. C. will clash with the White Sox Sunday in the third game of a five-game series. Two games have already been annexed by the Queen City clan, and if it can repeat these feats tomorrow there will be no need of going on with the argument. The lineup of the boys with the white hose has not been given out, but it is understood that a general shakeup has been made by the manager, who believes that his team is capable of turning out better work than it has been doing.

Some new men have been added to the roster, too, and these will be used in the fray tomorrow. Either Harry Stites or John Cleason will adorn the mound for the Sox. The Queen City lineup follows: Joe Paritz, 3b; Lou Paritz, cf; V. Mullin, 2b; F. Mullin, ss; Cohen, c; Houston, p; Goode, 1b; Smith, rf, and Randolph, lf.

RANDOLPH, HAILED AS AMBOY KING, TO FACE FRANKLINS

Cliff Randolph, the best twirler around these parts, will hurl for the Perth Amboy Pacers, Sunday, when thatt eam opposes the Franklins, of the same city. Harry Appelgate will be the Franklin pitcher, and expects to stage a pitching duel with Cliff. Another Plainfielder who will take part in the fray is Tommy Mullin, whose performance at any position with the exception of pitcher has been the cause of favorable comment on the part of Amboy fans.

It is interesting to note that the press and the public in Amboy hold Randolph in very high esteem. One paper published in that city announced that the "cleanest player who ever put his foot in a shoe or donned a uniform in this city will pitch for the Pacers tomorrow." This same publication compared the local hurler to the great Matty, who gets a wonderful game out of his system every now and then.

WIELDING THE KNOCKER

Joe Garner has resolved to do a little "come-back" stunt today. Joe will do the receiving for the Royals and declares that his absence from the game last season will not detract from his performance today in any way.

Tommy Mullin is teaching the Franklins how to play ball these days. When the Franklins win, Tommy is always one of the reasons, and when they lose he is generally the least responsible for his team's defeat.

Some swell pitching duels are carded for today in the City League race. Schott opposes Patterson, Gleason argues with Clark and Rosenson bucks up against Tone Denny.

"Stretch" Voorhees will decorate the mound for the All-Stars this afternoon, when they clash with the Kline boys. Voorhees is sure to be a puzzle to the Royals, and there is every reason to believe that the Stars will walk off the field conquerors. Either Hall or Maiden will shoot 'em over for the Giants.

The Saint Anthonys, of Amboy, declare that they are willing to meet any team in the State. This challenge, of course, is flung in the faces of Plainfield managers as well as in those of others.

Today's the day the Baptist register that long-promised win. With the addition of Townley and Smalley their chances of keeping their promise seems very good, but they certainly picked a strong team to use as victims.

The Parker Field League is a good invention and serves many purposes. It keeps youth occupied and downs any chance of the theory that an idle mind is the devil's workshop being evidenced in the ranks of local children. It serves also as a feeder for the City League, many of the players now performing in the representative circuit having been members of the junior circuit at the popular playground.

SPORTING NOTES

It is now generally agreed that the Olympic Games are out of the running for a number of years in the future.

The Grand Circuit opens with a bang on Monday, with large entries, heavy purses and plenty of interest.

Jimmy Clabby and Soldier Bartfield have been given time for additional training and should pull off a lively mill today at Brighton Beach.

The "thrift-instinct" in people makes the "For Sale" ads interesting to them.

FASTEST MILE EVER COVERED BY A MAN

Cambridge, Mass., July 17—The fastest recorded mile ever run by man was the athletic feat of Norman S. Taber, formerly of Brown University, in the Harvard Stadium yesterday. His time was 4 minutes 12 3-5 seconds. Taber was paced by three fast middle-distance runners. The first quarter was made in 58 seconds, the second in 67 seconds, the third in 68 seconds and the fourth in 59 3-5 seconds.

W. H. Meanix, formerly of Colby College, set a new world's time of 54 3-5 seconds for the 440-yard hurdles. Both Taber and Meanix ran under the colors of the Boston Athletic Association.

The former amateur mile record was 4 minutes 14 2-5 seconds, made on the same track by John Paul Jones, of Cornell, May 31, 1913, Taber running second.

BILL SCHOOLEY FAVORED FOR TUSCARORA TITLE

Captain William Schooley, formerly of this city; Fred J. Stephens, Phil Harrison and Herbert Rholffs appear at present as the most likely paddlers who will have it out in the battle for the all-around championship for the Tuscarora Canoe Club point trophy which is to be held in conjunction with the "Tusk's" annual handicap regatta at the Branch Brook lake, Newark, this afternoon.

This quartet has shown to best advantage in recent races, and as all four are in tip-top form the battle for the club championship honors should be exciting. Captain William Schooley has been pining for some time to get back at Herbert Rholffs, the paddler who beat him in the hurry-scurry race in the city meet on Independence Day, and the "Tusks'" captain will not allow this opportunity to obtain revenge to slip by.

HOLED OUT IN ONE ON SLEEPY HOLLOW LINKS

Scarborough, N. Y., July 17.—The New Jersey players were all eliminated from first-honor possibility in the second round of match play yesterday afternoon at the Sleepy Hollow Club's tournament, when W. Fellowes Morgan, playing from the Baltusrol Club, was beaten by Philip Carter, the junior metropolitan champion, by 6 up and 5 to play. In the first round Morgan cut a wide swath when he defeated M. B. Starring, of the home club, by 4 and 3.

J. Couper Lord, who belongs to many clubs in the district, playing in the fourth set of beaten eights, reached the heighth of every golfer's ambition when he holed out on his drive from the fifth tee. His ball apparently dropped slightly to the left of the pin, but when he got up to the green he discovered it lying in the hole, whereas he had expected to putt for 2.

GOOD RECORDS MADE IN AQUATIC MEET

The results of the races held yesterday in the pool at P. H. S. indicate that the schoolboys are able to hold their own in aquatic sports. In the 40 yard races, C. Wright was first and Irving Manley, second. No one over 100 pounds was allowed to compete in this event. A 100 yard race was run off also, Peter McDonough finishing first and R. Searles, second.

ROD AND REEL

Weak fishing is unusually good this year and attracts more anglers, perhaps, than any other branch of the rod and reel game.

Fresh water fishing is poor this season, owing to the unusually heavy rains.

It will interest local anglers to know that porgies and bass are plentiful around Buoy 4, off Long Branch coast. The porgies weigh as much as two pounds and the bass are large.

GAMES NOT PLAYED.

Owing to the inclement weather yesterday the games scheduled in the Parker Field League race, were not played.

S. W. MERRIHEW DEFEATED ON WESTCHESTER COURTS

Reversals were plentiful yesterday in the progress of the cup singles on the turf of the Country Club, of Westfield. Leonard Beekman, the young interscholastic champion, defeated H. H. Hackett, former Davis Cup captain, 6-8, 6-2 and 6-3.

In the same event Hugh Fallan beat S. W. Merrihew, of this city, 6-0, 6-3.

TABS WILL PLAY GARWOOD AT THAT PLACE TOMORROW

The local Tabs play the Garwood F. C. on Avon Oval tomorrow. The Garwood team played here earlier in the season and lost by a close margin.

Dick Lawton and Art Kyle will compose the Tabs' battery with Tone Denny, Geary, Brennan and McCarthy in the infield. Jack Denny, Russ Day and F. Lawton will attend to the outer garden business.

'PLAINS VS. FANWOOD.

This afternoon on the Park avenue diamond, Scotch Plains, the team representing that village and one hailing from Fanwood will clash. The proceeds of the game will go toward defraying the expenses of purchasing medals for the successful competitors in the athletic events to be held in conjunction with the community picnic scheduled to take place on August 11.

CUP DONATED.

The Fanwood Lumber and Supply Company has donated a handsome cup to be presented to the individual point winner at the community picnic athletic meet to be held in Fanwood on August 11. Bronze medals will be presented to the other successful competitors.

SPORT BRIEFS

Outfielder Eddie Murphy, of the Philadelphia Athletics, sold to Chicago White Sox.

Frank Hunter won the Westchester County Club singles tennis title when he defeated Herbert Forster in straight heats, 6-2, 9-7.

Shortstop Eddie Collins, of the Chicago Nationals, sold to the Milwaukee, American Association, club.

Jack Dillon defeated Zulu Kid at Brown's Far Rockaway Club, last night.

William Rodgers, infielder of the Boston Red Sox, sold to the Cincinnati Nationals.

Normal S. Taber, former Brown University runner, sets a new world's record for a mile. His time for the distance was 4 minutes and 12 3-5 seconds.

Tex Westersil, third baseman signed by St. Louis Federals, will replace Deal at third.

Homes of Individuality

Selected by Walter J. Keith, Architect

SUBURBAN HOME, DESIGN NO. D-1946

A combination of stone, stucco on hollow tile, and shingle has been employed with good effect in the exterior design of this cottage home.

Below is suggested a floor plan for this charming exterior including all those requirements the housewife deems necessary to make a complete home. The living room is of large proportions and is made particularly attractive by the open fireplace with its side seats, and the stairway leading from the far corner. The dining room adjoins at the rear and has service way through the commodious pantry from the kitchen. A rear entry gives space for the refrigerator, and there is a large closet in the kitchen for pots and pans. For easy access to the second floor, four steps lead to the main stair under which is a passage to the living room, and from which descends the cellar flight.

The second floor provides for four bedrooms and bath. Generous closets are arranged for, and a scuttle in the hall ceiling gives access to the attic for storage.

The cost of this model home, exclusive of heating, plumbing, electric work, and decorations, is $3,000. Plans and specifications $35.

All inquiries concerning "Homes of Individuality" will be cheerfully answered by simply addressing "Homes of Individuality Department," Plainfield Daily Press.

SEVEN PERMITS THE WEEK'S TOTAL

New Work and Alterations Represent Estimated Outlay of Nearly $30,000.

THREE NEW RESIDENCES

Permit Granted K. and G. for Construction of Store and Loft Building in Western End of City—The List.

Seven permits, representing an estimated cost of $29,525, were issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane this week. Of these, three permits were for new dwellings; one was for a business building; one for a store; one for a garage, and the remaining permit was for an alteration job.

Included in the list of permits were two for the better class of single family frame houses, while the permit for the business building allows the erection of a two-story frame structure almost one hundred feet long, in the western part of the city. Following are the permits by wards:

First Ward.

Rosie LaCosta, of East Second street and Jackson avenue, will erect a frame store building on East Second street, about 114 feet east of Jackson avenue. The building will be one story high, 24x28 feet in dimensions, and will cost $800. Joseph Indago is the general contractor.

Third Ward.

Lettie A. VanFleet, of 618 Monroe avenue, will build a frame dwelling at 1121 West Sixth street, just west of Shanley place. It will be a one family house, two and one-half stories high, 24x31 feet in dimensions, and will cost $2,700. Samuel M. Titus drew the plans and will do the carpenter work, while McGill & Lant are the masons.

A permit was granted Frank P. Stone, of West Front street, for the erection of a residence on Stelle avenue, near Monroe avenue, ground for which was broken a few days ago. The dwelling will be of frame construction, two and one-half stories high, 38x32 feet, 6 inches in dimensions, and will cost $6,000. This estimated cost also includes a frame garage to be erected on the rear end of the lot at the same time the house is going up, the permit including both structures. Fred L. Lancaster is the architect and William D. Bird the general contractor.

At 932 Park avenue, east of Ninth street, George M. Clarke, whose residence is given as Truell Inn, will build himself a home. The house will be of frame construction, two and one-half stories high, 30x31 feet, 6 inches in dimensions, and the cost will be about $6,500. Arthur C. Aalholm is the architect and Thomas J. Freeman the general contractor.

Fourth Ward.

A permit for a garage to cost $25 was issued to Peter Alstein, of 25 Clinton place. The garage will go up on the rear end of the lot and will be of frame construction. It will be 10x14 feet in dimensions.

E. M. Laing was granted a permit for alterations and an addition to the property at 461-465 West Front street. An extension will be put on the rear of the building and the improvements altogether will cost $1,500. A. L. C. Marsh drew the plans and Alex Milne is the general contractor.

A permit was granted the K. & G., Inc., of 1354 West Front street, for the new building now in course of erection at 1400-1412 West Front street. The building will be of frame construction, two stories high, 98x28 feet in dimensions, and the estimated cost was set out as $12,000. There will be seven stores on the ground floor and two lofts above. The building was started some time ago and is now well under way. Emanuel Kapelsohn drew the plans and the Anchor Construction Company is the general contractor.

MILL PROPERTY SOLD.

The New Market Roller Mills property was sold at receiver's sale this week to Arthur J. Hamley, of Dunellen, whose bid was $100 over and above the first mortgage, interest, charges and costs. This made the total figure about $6,500. The feed store and office building was sold to Harry R. Hall, who bid $3,700. Mr. Hall will reopen the place at an early date and conduct it along up-to-date lines.

LOCAL REALTY CHANGES.

U. B. Crane reports the sale of the residence property at 121 Church street to Mrs. E. Oleson, and the rental of Silas Winans' residence on Stonybrook place to J. E. Colfax. He has also sold two lots in Lincoln to George Finger, of this city.

STORAGE WAREHOUSE TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Contract Awarded for Four-Story Structure to Be Built at Once.

Ground will be broken Monday for the erection of a four-story storage warehouse for this city. The building will be erected by the Plainfield Storage Warehouse Company, on East Third street, adjoining the building of the Union Grain Company and about 300 feet east of Watchung avenue. It will cost between $25,000 and $30,000.

The building will be of concrete, built after what is technically termed the "flat slab" construction. It will have a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 75 feet. It will also have a railroad siding, the only storage warehouse on the Central Railroad of New Jersey between Elizabeth and Somerville having that feature, it is said. The construction will be absolutely fireproof.

The first floor will be divided into four large stores well adapted to the business of wholesale merchants. There will also be an office and an entrance to the building on the ground floor. The second floor will be given over to open storage space, while the third and fourth floors will be divided into separate furniture store rooms, provision having been made in the plans for about 350 of them. B. F. Tallamy & Brother are the general contractors for the entire building. It is thought that the work can be finished and the building opened for use by December 1.

Forming the Plainfield Storage Warehouse Company are W. R. Codington, Walter F. Manning, Harold E. White, James C. Manning, Frank Hubbard, Peter Koehler and C. D. Manning.

AMONG LOCAL REALTY MEN AND BUILDERS

From present indications it looks as if July will prove a good month for builders. Up to last evening the total cost of building operations for which Building Inspector T. O. Doane has issued permits so far this month amounted to $26,700, which is almost $15,000 ahead of the amount for the entire month of July, 1914.

Speculation is already rife as to business conditions in the vicinity of West Front street and Madison avenue when the new postoffice building is occupied. Many are of the opinion that most of the business will follow the postoffice and will relocate itself in the neighborhood of Watchung avenue and East Second street.

A builder said yesterday that with all the new building work underway in Plainfield and vicinity and the prospects for the near future the laboring element hereabouts ought not to find fault with conditions. Plainfield certainly is having its share of building, comparing the situation here with that existing in other cities of the same size.

Employers of labor report comparatively few men idle this summer, and of those who are not working, many do not desire work, they say.

The dwelling at 461-465 West Front street, which is being altered and enlarged, is one of the oldest structures in that section of the city, having been erected by the late Nelson Runyon. At one time it was planned to change the building into a three-story, six-family apartment house, but the owners think that their present intentions will make of the old house a structure which will more nearly meet the requirements of the neighborhood.

Real estate men report many inquiries from New York and Brooklyn parties for homes to buy and rent, occupancy to be had October 1.

SUPPLY IS NOW BEING RESTRICTED

Practically Every Line of Building Materials and Equipment Are Higher.

MANY ITEMS INVOLVED

New York, July 17.—Practically every line of building materials and equipment purchasable through hardware and metal jobbers is restricted on supply, and is higher in price. The principal items involved are fine grades of window glass, cut and galvanized iron nails, metal lath for tile reinforcement and partitions, which also includes all form of galvanized wire netting, barbed wire, shingle nails, sisal and manila rope, structural steel and all electrical equipment. Pipe in water and gas sizes is also firmly held, and there are reports of a possible further advance if the demand for spelter and steel-making iron increases in price.

Basic building materials, like lime, plaster, gypsum, common brick, Portland cement, hollow burned clay ware for fireproofing, structural steel and reinforcement bars are in a varying market. Portland cement advanced this week another ten cents a barrel, bringing the price here up to $1.52, or 90 cents mill, the level ruling prior to the recent price war, fulfilling the prophesy made in this column a month ago to the effect that Portland cement prices would reach the 90 cent mill level before August 1.

Every mill in the Lehigh Valley district is now operating at approximately full capacity and still the demand is such as to prevent stock accumulation. This fact has attracted the attention of Wall Street to the extent that at least one inquiry was made this week for the selling price of 500 shares of a well known company, whose stock has never been for sale in the open market. The company had the opportunity of naming its own figure for the stock. Unverified reports were to the effect that other interests who have been moved by peace talk to believe that the height of prosperity has been reached in destructive industries, are now ready to switch their purchases to constructive lines, and are feeling the Portland cement market as the one most likely to benefit, next to steel, from the reconstruction movement in Europe and Mexico, when peace in those sections is declared.

It is significant that so many building material producers are preparing for an early peace. Lumber interests say there is a greater demand for shipbuilding lumber for boats designed to carry coastwise and trans-Atlantic freight in bulk than there has been since the time when sailing ships were in their heyday. The present low price of cotton is favoring the manufacture of canvass, and it is considered noteworthy, at least, that sailcloth is the type most in demand.

There are those who believe that it will be in these sailing ships now building that American brick, Portland cement, lime, light structural steel, lumber, nails, wire lath, metal ceilings and other commodities for quick and inexpensive construction will be shipped abroad and to Mexico and will be able to compete with home products manufactured under difficulties. Total war casualties of 7,000,000 of the pick of the artizans of European countries, it is figured, ought to make labor scarce and prices high abroad, where industries have not been actually destroyed by fire or shell.

There seems to be no other explanation for the advancing price of certain exportable building materials than present or anticipated demand for these goods from abroad. National building plan filing for June were 7.7 per cent. below that of June a year ago, and yet eight of the ten basic materials that enter into building construction are increasing in price, the only two negative factors in this district being common brick and linseed oil. Yet in both these instances the rate of manufacture has not noticeably abated except in the case of the South River plant of the Sayre & Fisher Company, where there as an all-the-year brickmaking establishment, and stocks on hand are rather heavy for this time of the year. Haverstraw brick plants have been shut down for a month on account of strikes, but the up-river plants are still manufacturing at about 65 per cent. of capacity.

Glass, hardware, steel, iron and decorative metals, like copper and brass, lime plaster, fireproofing and paints, are all either higher in price or are being rigidly held. Such a condition in a dull building period has seldom been known, not at least since the early '60s. Firms making building material machinery such as stamping mills, grinders, kilns, building tools and equipments and accessories say they are busy, and good prices are ruling. Glass mills will probably resume in September or October instead of November or December as usual.

These are the signs of the times as applied to building materals, commodities and equipment. They are unusual for times like those through which business has just passed, but they are nevertheless actual and should inspire prompt construction.

REPAIRING OLD MILL.

Extensive repairs have been made to the old mill building on Somerset street, just off of Front street. The freight elevator on the north side of the structure has been repaired and the roof has been made whole. The property is owned by the A. M. Griffen Company, which concern will use the upper part of the building for storage purposes.

BRIDGE WORK PROGRESSES.

Contractor Arthur Smith is rushing work on the new Grove street bridge across Green brook. The last piece of the old bridge was removed several days ago and a steam shovel began excavating for the new abutments.

The FORESTER'S DAUGHTER

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

She turned a stern look on him. "You bet I am! I was raised a free citizen. No man can make a slave of me. I thought he understood that, but it seems he didn't. He's all right in many ways—one of the best riders in the country—but he's pretty tolerable domineering."

Mrs. McFarlane greeted Norcross with cordial word and earnest hand-clasp. "I'm glad to see you looking so well," she said, with charming sincerity.

"I'm browner anyway," he answered, and turned to meet McFarlane, a short, black bearded man with fine dark eyes and shapely hands—hands that had never done anything more toilsome than to lift a bridle rein or to clutch the handle of a gun. He was the horseman in all his training, and, though he owned hundreds of acres of land, he had never so much as held a plow or plied a spade. His manner was that of the cow boss, the lord of great herds, the claimant of empires of government grass land. Poor as his house looked, he was in reality rich. Narrow minded in respect to his own interests, he was well in advance of his neighbors on matters relating to the general welfare, a curious mixture of greed and generosity, as most men are, and, though he had been made supervisor at a time when political pull still crippled the service, he was loyal to the flag. "I'm mighty glad to see you," he heartily began. "We don't often get a man from the sea level, and when we do we squeeze him dry."

His voice, low, languid and soft, was most insinuating, and for hours he kept his guest talking of the east and its industries and prejudices, and Berrie and her mother listened with deep admiration, for the youngster had seen a good deal of the old world and was unusually well read on historical lines of inquiry. He talked well, too, inspired by his attentive audience.

Berrie's eyes, wide and eager, were fixed upon him unwaveringly. He felt her wonder, her admiration, and was inspired to do his best. Something in her absorbed attention led him to speak of things so personal that he wondered at himself for uttering them.

"I've been dilettante all my life," was one of his confessions. "I've traveled; I've studied in a tepid sort of fashion; I went through college without any idea of doing anything with what I got; I had a sort of pride in keeping up with my fellows, and I had no idea of preparing for any work in the world. Then came my breakdown and my doctor ordered me out here. I came intending to fish and loaf around, but I can't do that. I've got to do something or go back home."

At last Mrs. McFarlane rose and Berea, reluctantly, like a child loath to miss a fairy story, held out her hand to say good night, and the young man saw on her face that look of adoration which marks the birth of sudden love, but his voice was frank and his glance kindly as he said:

"Here I've done all the talking when I wanted you to tell me all sorts of things."

"I can't tell you anything."

"Oh, yes, you can; and, besides, I want you to intercede for me with your father and get me into the service. But we'll talk about that tomorrow. Good night."

After the women left the room Norcross said:

"I really am in earnest about entering the forest service. Landon filled me with enthusiasm about it. Never mind the pay. I'm not in immediate need of money, but I do need an interest in life."

McFarlane stared at him with kindly perplexity. "I don't know exactly what you can do, but I'll work you in somehow. You ought to work under a man like Settle, one that could put you through a training in the rudiments of the game. I'll see what can be done."

"Thank you for that half promise," said Wayland, and he went to his bed happier than at any moment since leaving home.

Young Norcross soon became vitally engaged with the problems which confronted McFarlane, and his possible enrollment as a guard filled him with a sense of proprietorship in the forest, which made him quite content with Bear Tooth. He set to work at once to acquire a better knowledge of the extent and boundaries of the reservation. It was, indeed, a noble possession. Containing nearly 800,000 acres of woodland and reaching to the summits of the snow lined peaks to the east, south and west, it appealed to him with silent majesty. It drew upon his patriotism. Remembering how the timber of his own state had been slashed and burned, he began to feel a sense of personal responsibility.

He bought a horse of his own, although Berrie insisted upon his retaining Pete, and sent for a saddle of the army type, and from sheer desire to keep entirely clear of the cowboy equipment procured puttees like those worn by cavalry officers, and when he presented himself completely uniformed, he looked not unlike a slender young lieutenant of the cavalry on field duty, and in Berrie's eyes was wondrous alluring.

He took quarters at the hotel, but spent a larger part of each day in Berrie's company, a fact which was duly reported to Clifford Belden. Hardly a day passed without his taking at least one meal at the supervisor's home.

As he met the rangers one by one he perceived by their outfits, as well as by their speech, that they were sharply divided upon old lines and new. The experts, the men of college training, were quite ready to be known as Uncle Sam's men. They held a pride in their duties, a respect for their superiors, and an understanding of the governmental policy which gave them dignity and a quiet authority. They were less policemen than trusted agents of a federal department. Nevertheless, there was much to admire in the older men, who possessed a self reliance, a knowledge of nature and a certain rough grace which made them interesting companions and rendered them effective teachers of camping and trailing, and while they were secretly a little contemptuous of the "schoolboys," they were all quite ready to ask for expert aid when knotty problems arose. It was no longer a question of grazing. It was a question of lumbering and reforestration.

Nash, who took an almost brotherly interest in his apprentice, warningly said: "You want to go well clothed and well shod. You'll have to meet all kinds of weather. Every man in the service—I don't care what his technical job is—should be schooled in taking care of himself in the forest and on the trail. I often meet surveyors and civil engineers, experts, who are helpless as children in camp, and when I want them to go into the hills and do field work they are almost useless. The old style ranger has his virtues. Settle is just the kind of instructor you young fellows need."

Berrie also had keen eyes for his outfit and his training, and under her direction he learned to pack a horse, set a tent, build a fire in the rain and other duties.

"You want to remember that you carry your bed and board with you," she said, "and you must be prepared to camp anywhere and at any time."

The girl's skill in these particulars was marvelous to him and added to the admiration he already felt for her. Her hand was as deft, as sure, as the best of them, and her knowledge of cayuse psychology more profound than any of the men excepting her father.

One day toward the end of his second week in the village the supervisor said: "Well, now, if you're ready to experiment I'll send you over to Settle, the ranger, on the Horseshoe. He's a little lame on his pen hand side, and you may be able to help him out. Maybe I'll ride over there with you. I want to line out some timber sales on the west side of Ptarmigan."

The next morning as he rode down to the office to meet the supervisor he was surprised and delighted to find Berea there. "I'm riding too," she announced delightedly. "I've never been over that new trail, and father has agreed to let me go along." Then she added earnestly: "I think it's fine you're going in for the service, but it's hard work, and you must be careful till you're hardened to it. It's a long way to a doctor from Settle's station."

He was annoyed as well as touched by her warning, for it proclaimed that he was still far from looking the brave forester he felt himself to be. He replied, "I'm not going to try anything wild, but I do intend to master the trailer's craft."

"I'll teach you how to camp if you'll let me," she continued. "I've been on lots of surveys with father, and I always take my share of the work. I threw that hitch alone." She nodded toward the pack horse, whose neat load gave evidence of her skill. "I told father this was to be a real camping expedition, and as the grouse season is on we'll live on the country. Can you fish?"

"Just about that," he laughed. "Good thing you didn't ask me if I could catch fish." He was recovering his spirits. "It will be great fun to have you as instructor in camp science. I seem to be in for all kinds of good luck."

They both grew uneasy as time passed for fear something or some one would intervene to prevent this trip, which grew in interest each moment, but at last the supervisor came out and mounted his horse, the pack ponies fell in behind, Berrie followed, and the student of woodcraft brought up the rear.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Women and Liquor.

At the Los Angeles election of 1912, with women voting, the "wet" majority was heavily increased; at Redono Beach was seen the spectacle of women campaigning from soap boxes in the interest of the saloons; at a recent election at Santa Monica an overwhelming majority voted for "wet" Sundays.

A Circular issued by the Michigan Equal Suffrage Association and published in the Detroit News of October 27, 1912, made the following definite disclaimer: "Our association has had no connection with the W. C. T. U. and we are not responsible for what the W. C. T. U. does or says. The Temperance union has noting to do with woman suffrage." The significance of public utterances like these, made by official leaders, has not been sufficiently appreciated.

Has the Vote Coarsened or Cheapened the Women?

In the Colorado Legislature four women voted for the race-track gambling bill. When it was proposed by the Board of Aldermen to make it a misdemeanor to serve women patrons of cafes with intoxicating liquors the Woman's Public Service League of Denver sent into the Board a formal protest "against any measure which places restrictions upon the freedom of action of women which are not placed upon the freedom of action of men." A league of women thought it was rendering a "public service" by claiming for women the privilege of promiscuous drinking and intoxication with men in saloons. Rev. Dr. Samuel Garvin, of the First Presbyterian church in Colorado Springs, a sermon preached August 17, 1913, charged Colorado women lesgislators with voting against the so-called Search and Seizure Bill," thus defeating it and making local option legislation of the State of Colorado of virtually no effect."

Judge Lindsey, in Everybody's Magazine for May, 1910, writing of the campaign which he had led in Denver against the forces of municipal corruption which he described as "The Beast" and "The System" said: "At the beginning of the campaign I went to practically all the woman suffrage leaders who, at national meetings, had been telling how much the women had done for the Juvenile Court, in Denver; and none of them dared help me. Women like Mrs. Mary C. Bradford and Mrs. Lafferty, who was a member of the last Legislature, took the platform against me and supported the "system" in its attempt to "get" the Juvenile Court. If any one believes that woman suffrage is a panacea for all the evils of our political life, he does not know what those evils are. The women are as free of the power of the 'Beast' as men are—and no freer."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIABLE.

The Young People's Association, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, held a sociable in the church parlor, last evening, which took the place of the lawn festival, for which all arrangements had been made. The affair was well attended, and the evening was passed with games and refreshments. The young people and their friends had an enjoyable time, despite the fact that many features which were to have been a part of the evening's program were omitted because the festival had to be held indoors. This was probably the last affair of its kind until fall.

"I think I must classify him," he said.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Funny Bug That Wanted to Be Classified.

ONCE there was a poor little bug that wasn't classified," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn. "And it felt awfully bad about it."

"What's that mean, daddy?" asked both children.

"I'll start at the beginning," said daddy. "This little bug ought to have been just as happy as any other little bug, but he wasn't, for, you see, he wasn't classified yet, and the other bugs were, and they felt above him and were smug and horrid.

"But at first this little bug didn't know that he was not classified and was as happy as any other little bug. He ran about the garden and scrambled and scampered and had the best of times.

"But at last one of the other bugs said to him, 'What is your name?'

"And the little bug looked blank. 'What's that?' he asked.

"'Why,' asked the other little bug, very much surprised, 'haven't you any name? Aren't you classified yet?'

"'I—I don't know what you're talking about,' protested the little unclassified bug.

"'Well, I'll explain,' returned the other. 'You have to have a man classify you and give you a name, you know, or you can't belong to bug society. Now, this is my name.' And he reeled off a great long name, all in Latin.

"'I haven't any name,' said the poor little bug, 'so I guess nobody has ever classified me.'

"So the little unclassified bug waited and waited for classification and a name. And he was rather lonesome, and presently he began to feel bad about it in earnest, for he was the only bug in the garden without a name, and the other little bugs felt superior and held aloof from him because they felt they were higher in the social scale of bugs than he.

"But at last, one summer day, there came to the garden an old, old gentleman with long white whiskers that reached almost down to the last button of his vest. And he stared through great big spectacles, and he also carried a magnifying glass, through which he looked at bugs.

"He looked at our little unclassified bug and said, 'Ha, this fellow is something different and new!' And he was very much excited. 'I think I must classify him,' said he.

"So he did, while the other bugs gathered round to hear. And, lo and behold, this little bug was classified and given a Latin name longer than any of the rest! And I think after that he must have been the proudest bug in that garden."

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I can't understand it, Jo. I have never run so far behind with my housekeeping money since we came here. Of course while baby was so sick there was no account kept, and to think that I ordered that expensive dress! Dick was so upset over that. I did not realize that I was being extravagant." Nell sat looking at the housekeeping book with two worry wrinkles between her eyes.

"I suppose it is because in your subconsciousness there is always the feeling that the new fortune that is coming will make things straight," suggested her friend.

"That's just what I have determined not to do; determined that I will not let this prospect of money make any difference until we actually have it in our hands and know how much it is to be. Then we can make our plans accordingly." Nell again frowned at the book.

"Of course that is the sensible plan to pursue, but at the same time it is very easy to see how the other came about."

"I can't pay all my bills this month," continued Nell, "and that will make next month hard."

"My mother used to threaten when we were hard up to restrict our diet to pork and beans," said Mrs. Parsons reminiscently, "but pork is so high now that would not help matters much," she laughed.

"What isn't high? If you know of anything cheap, tell me quickly, so that I may make ends meet this month," said Nell with a tragic air.

"Why don't you make a clean breast of it; hoist the signal of distress and let Dick throw you a life line?" suggested the usually resourceful Mrs. Parsons.

Nell's smile was dismal. "I just confessed about the dress last week and—well, it was painful. I don't want to start a series of 'Confessions of a Wife.'"

"I'm sorry to have nothing more to suggest. I have found it harder to try to hide things than to 'tell the truth and shame the devil,'" said Jo, picking up her work preparatory to leaving.

"To whom are you referring—to Dick?" said Nell with a twinkle in her eye.

"As you please about that. I must be going home, or Roger will be there for supper before it is ready. I will hurry and get the table set. If a meal is late I always do that. Did you ever notice that if the table is set nothing is said? Men think the meal is about ready, sit down with the paper and do not notice the wait, while there would be evidences of panic if the table did not look ready."

"I have much to learn." Nell followed her friend to the door.

After the supper dishes had been stacked for the little maid to wash in the morning, Nell came into the living room and drew her low rocker up to Dick's chair. He continued his reading, but stretched out his hand to give Nell's head a pat.

She had the housekeeping book in her lap and was toilsomely going over the accounts to have them straight to show Dick. She had decided to take Jo Parson's advice and was screwing her courage up for a desperate plunge. When Dick laid his paper down she said:

"I wish you'd look over the accounts and see if you can suggest a way to meet the deficit."

"Deficit?" Dick pricked up his ears and reached for the book. Nell watched him with tense nerves as his forefinger went up and down the column of figures. When he had finished he closed the book and puffed away at his cigar in silence.

"Well, why don't you say something?" she said after waiting what seemed a long time for him to speak. He slowly brought his eyes to focus on his wife's face. "I've nothing to say," he remarked after a time. Nell turned and looked behind her, then back at Dick.

"What is it?" he asked.

"I was trying to see what you were looking at through the hole you looked through me," she replied.

Dick chuckled.

Household Hints

FROZEN DELICACIES

Honey Buttermilk (new)—Healthful, delicious. Two quarts buttermilk, one pint honey, pinch of salt. Stir and beat ingredients until thoroughly blended; freeze.

Frozen Fruit Salad—Mix together one heaping tablespoon flour, one heaping tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon mustard, half teaspoon salt and a very little paprika and cayenne. Blend thoroughly. Melt one tablespoon butter, add it slowly to well-beaten yolks of two eggs, with the seasoning, one-third cup vinegar (white is best) and two-thirds cup milk. Cook in upper part of double boiler, stirring constantly until well thickened; remove from fire, beat for a moment or two with the egg beater and add slowly one cup stiffly whipped cream. Meanwhile cut in small pieces half a pound seeded malaga grapes, half a pineapple, two bananas, three oranges and small bottle of maraschino cherries. Mix fruit together, drain thoroughly, and mix with prepared dressing. Pour into a brick mold with water tight cover, bury in ice and rock salt for four hours before serving. To serve, unmold, cut in slices and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves.

Coffee Frappe—Prepare one quart strong clear coffee as for the table; add five tablespoons cream and three tablespoons sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved and cool. Have in readiness a mixture of one cup cream that has been beaten solid, one teaspoon gelatine dissolved in a little hot water, the stiffly-whipped white of one egg and two tablespoons powdered sugar. Turn into freezer and freeze not quite as firm as you would ice cream.

Maple Velvet Cream — Beat one pint double cream until solid, add pinch of salt and one cup very thick maple syrup. Turn into freezer and when the consistency of soft snow, stir in one cup chopped hickory or walnut meats. Freeze slowly and repack in melon mold for three or four hours before serving.

THE TABLE

Friday Goulash — Three large onions, two pounds cabbage, one box spaghetti. Fry in drippings, chopped onions and cabbage. When almost done, add spaghetti, which have been boiled in salt water and drained. Let it steam though slowly for fifteen minutes. Season to taste. More cabbage and onions may be added if desired.

"Apple Rings With Maiden Blush"—This recipe originated at a friend's home and has found favor whenever used. At a recent dinner, as a joke, it was given the above name. Wash some cooking apples, but do not peel. Having cored them, cut them into slices one-fourth inch thick. Then place them in syrup and let boil until soft. Syrup: Get a pound of red cinnamon candies and add these to a cup of sugar, add two cups of water and let form a syrup. This syrup will color the apples a delicious pink and they are fine eaten with meats.

Creamed Cucumbers—Peel, quarter and slice cucumbers one-half inch thick. Boil till tender in salt water. Drain, add rich milk enough to cover, season with pepper and paprika to taste. Thicken with flour to creamy consistency, add butter size of walnut. Very good for stomachs that can't eat cucumber fresh.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — IT'S A LONG SWIM TO GASOLINE — BY "HOP"

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

One of Griffith's greatest all-star feature films, "The Battle of the Sexes," was shown at Proctor's Theatre this afternoon and will be repeated tonight, in connection with several other reels of comedy, the next serial of "The Goddess," and the Paramount Travel Pictures.

D. W. Griffith has been called "The Shakespeare of the Movies," and when one considers the creative instinct and imagination that went into his "Berth of a Nation," for example, the title does not seem far fetched. He is without question the greatest picture director who has developed, and all his productions bear the unmistakable touch of genius. For "The Battle of the Sexes" he brought together a notable assemblage of moving picture favorites, Mary Alden, Lillian Gish, Fay Tincher, Owen Moore, Donald Crisp and Robert Harron. The theme of the picture itself is a big one and of the subtle, heart moving kind that he likes best to bring out.

The program of pictures, arranged by the management for next week, is an auspicious one and includes some of the finest ever shown in the city. Among those that will be shown are the following: Monday, Burr McIntosh in "Col. Carter of Cartersville," in five parts; Tuesday, Edward Connelly, the estimable character actor in "Marse Covington;" Wednesday, Florence Reed in the famous emotional drama, "The Dancing Girl;" Thursday, Maclyn Arbuckle in "It's No Laughing Matter;" Friday, Irene Fenwick in an extraordinary film dramatization of Browne's celebrated play, "The Spendthrift," and Saturday, Henry Walthall, Donald Crisp, Irene Hunt and Dorothy Gish in a vivid visualization of gripping heart interest, "The Mountain Rat."

Monday, July 19, will feature the inauguration of the victrola contest at the popular theatre. Every patron of the theatre will be given an opportunity to guess the number of a handsome mahogany No. 10 victrola, presented to the attendants of the theatre by the Mathushek & Son Piano Company free. The number of the victrola has been removed from the machine and deposited in the City National Bank in a sealed envelope and said number is unknown to any person in Plainfield. To the person who first registers a correct guess of the correct number or in event that no person does so, then the first one who guesses nearest to the number will be presented with the victrola. Blank forms may be obtained at the theatre, where they will be time-stamped. The decision will be announced as follows: A well known citizen will receive the sealed envelope from the bank and open the same in the presence of the audience, on date to be announced later.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The regular Saturday night supper will be held at the association tonight. Any young woman may secure a nourishing supper at a nominal fee.

Miss Kathryn Aller, general secretary of the association, will leave Monday on her vacation. During her absence Miss Helen Joy will occupy that position at the association.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

TRINITY'S PASTOR UNION PREACHER

Rev. J. Y. Broek Delivers Sermon on "The Law of Christian Obligation."

"THE SPIRIT OF JESUS"

Interesting Discourse Points the Way of Living For Others As Paul Did—Other Pastors Assist In the Service.

The third of the Plainfield Sunday evening union church services for this season was held in the First Presbyterian church last night. Owing to the heat the attendance was small, but Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, the preacher for the evening, delivered an inspiring sermon upon "The Divine Law of Christian Obligation." The pastors of the three other local churches combining for these union services, were present and took part, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, reading the Scripture lesson; Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, offering prayer, and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, having charge of the service.

Mr. Broek said in part: "The religion of Jesus Christ is a religion of fellowship and communion. If we have the spirit of Jesus then we will not live solely for ourselves, but for others. Paul, the servant of Christ, had much of that spirit.

"In the words of Paul to the Romans, first chapter, fourteenth to sixteenth verses, are laid down the great law of Christian obligation. Having gained anything from anybody makes me a debtor to everybody. Because I have gained so much from the Greeks, I am a debtor to the barbarians. That law is the basis of all charitable work. The godly rich are giving their millions because they believe in that law of Christian obligation. This law makes us debtors to all men without Christ. We are debtors to the men and women in China, India, Arabia, Africa and the islands of the sea.

"Paul was ready to discharge his obligations. He was ready for suffering, service and sacrifice. It was no easy task for Paul to go to Rome. It required a supreme test of courage. Rome was filled with the worst vices of humanity and back of all these elements was the powerful influence of an ungodly Nero. But Paul believed in the power of the Gospel.

"Paul was not ashamed of the Gospel. To the Roman mind the prevailing idea of Christ was that he was a criminal crucified upon a cross. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation. It is God's dynamite, hurled against sin. Many were troubled years ago about evolution. It taught the survival of the fittest. God's Gospel serves the unfittest.

"A new law went into effect with Christ's Gospel. Formerly the poor were to serve the rich; now the rich are to serve the poor. Formerly the unwise were slaves to the wise; now the wise are debtors to the unwise. The product of the Gospel is a saved man. He is not a perfect man, but a sinner headed towards God. A Christian is one who is in the world, but not of the world. He comes face to face with sin, but has higher and purer ideals than those round about him.

"We should judge Christianity by its best types of character. The Gospel of Christ has renewed the worst characters. It has made dead men alive, impure men pure, and has changed the face of the world."

RETIRING PRESIDENT WAS HONORED BY ORGANIZATION

Upon the occasion of his retirement as president of the Spicer Mutual Aid Society last week, Thomas Farrell, one of the best known members of the organization and one of those who was instrumental in founding it, was presented with a solid gold signet ring by fellow members. The presentation was made by Rufus LaRue, his successor to the presidency.

Mr. Farrell was taken completely by surprise by the token of esteem from the men in the society and responded with a few well chosen words of acceptance. The election of officers was held last week, contrary to the usual custom of conducting the election on the yearly outing. The excursion will be held this year on August 7.

TAKES NEW POSITION.

Oscar Heinold, of Duer street, who had been employed by the Trembath Printing Company, of North Plainfield, for four years, has taken a position as pressman with the Forest & Stream Publishing Company, of New York. Mr. Heinold began his new duties today.

DR. PAUL W. HARRISON RETURNS FROM ARABIA

Trinity Church's Missionary Enjoying His First Visit Home in Several Years.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, has received word from Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary, that he arrived safely last week at Scribner, Neb., his old home. He returned to this country by way of India and Ceylon, thence to the Philippine Islands. He stopped at Manila, where he visited his brother, who is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work there. He also had an opportunity to visit the mission stations in India and Japan.

Dr. Harrison expects to spend the month of August at Scribner, with his father, Rev. M. B. Harrison, who is a minister in the Congregational church. He will undoubtedly be in Plainfield some time after the middle of September, visiting Trinity church, where he has many friends.

MISS SYKES SUCCUMBS TO A LONG ILLNESS

Miss Elizabeth McCready Sykes, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Beck Sykes and the late Rev. Charles L. Sykes, died on Saturday at her home, 402 East Sixth street, following an almost life-long illness, although at times she was able to be about. She had been detained to her room since January last.

Throughout her long illness, Miss Sykes possessed the most cheerful and happy disposition, her whole life and character being especially marked by gayety and brightness, which helped her to forget her pain and suffering. Her friends were legion and it was one of her chief joys to know that she had such a wide acquaintance of people who were always thinking of her and were so kind.

Miss Sykes was born at Richfield Springs, N. Y., where her father held his first charge as rector of an Episcopal church. From there the family removed to Virginia and thence to Scotch Plains where they lived for many years, and where Mr. Sykes was rector of All Saints' church. Since his death and for the past few years the family have resided in this city.

There survives the mother, one sister, Miss Abi Sykes, and two brothers, Thomas Francis Sykes, who lives at home, and McCready Sykes, of Boise City, Idaho. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be in charge of the rector of Grace church. The burial, which will be private, will be in the cemetery at Scotch Plains.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO TAKE AUTOMOBILE OUTING

Members of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, are planning an automobile outing for next Sunday, the Third Degree members of the organization being their guests on that occasion. An automobile tour will be a prominent feature, making a stopover at Morristown for luncheon. This is an annual feature of the Fourth Degree division's work and a large number have already signified their intention of going.

Announcement for the time of starting at the West Front street clubhouse and the itinerary to be followed will be made later. Several automobiles have been chartered and it is proposed to take as many as desire to go.

TO SWIM IN RACES.

Miss Helen Brynairski, a member of the reportorial staff of the Plainfield Daily Press, began a two weeks' vacation this morning. She intends to spend the first week visiting various points of interest and next Saturday she will leave for a week's sojourn at Asbury Park. Miss Brynairski, who is one of the promoters of the athletic and aquatic meeting for the feminine sex in this city, is an ardent devotee to outdoor sports and will probably enter the swimming races for girls to be held on Deal Lake next week. She has been training for this competition in the Plainfield High School pool.

TOURISTS IN CALIFORNIA.

Word received from the Daily Press transcontinental tourists indicates that all of the members of the party are well and having a good time. A postal dated July 12, which was received here this morning, comes from Santa Barbara, Cal., but it is known that the tourists have since reached San Francisco.

HOT WAVE DROVE MANY TO SHORE

Plainfielders Sought Seashore and Mountains Over the Week End.

BATHING AT ITS BEST

Nearby Resorts Thickly Populated—Yesterday An Ideal One by the Sea—Some of the Excursionists, and Where They Went.

Sweltering weather had its customary effect on Plainfield's population yesterday, all having the necessary wherewithal beating a hasty retreat to the seaside and mountain resorts for a day's outing. Week-end parties were numerous, many leaving this city Friday night and Saturday and returning tired, but happy, last night and early this morning. The decrease in population was noticeable during the heat and humidity of yesterday, but those who sought the seaside found relief. Along the Atlantic coast a reviving breeze blew almost the entire day and thousands took advantage of the excellent water conditions to take a cooling dip in the briny deep. Reports from various popular resorts indicate that the greatest outpouring of the season was enjoyed yesterday and this is taken as an indication that the season has now struck its pace and will be brisk until Labor Day. The clearing thunder storm of Saturday night left the atmosphere in ideal trim for a holiday throng yesterday and those who deserted the city voted it the best week-end of the year judged on all around merits.

Plainfielders continue to flock to the shore for their annual vacations, Baggagemaster Frank Springer, at the local eastbound station, having one of the busiest days checking and shipping trunks and other luggage yesterday. Many are off for two weeks' recreation while others will remain away from the Queen City until after Labor Day.

One of the nearby watering places that has gained considerable favor in the eye of the Plainfield swimmer is Sewaren, the bathing center being about two hundred yards this side of Boynton Beach. Excellent bathing facilities are to be had and the throng in the water yesterday was largely made up of visitors from this city. While no casualties were recorded at this particular spot the Plainfield water devotees witnessed a double tragedy at Boynton Beach, two Roselle young men going down to a watery grave before assistance arrived.

Localites who visited Coney Island witnessed one of the wildest scenes of the season at the New York beach. Prompt action on the part of the police was all that prevented a bad riot at that resort yesterday morning in front of the municipal bath houses as the result of many persons attempting to force weaker ones out of their places in line. A special "strong arm" squad was dispatched to the scene to keep order. Long before the hour for the opening of the bath houses the line had been unwieldy and in front of the men's bath it extended five blocks down Surf avenue, while the line of persons in front of the women's bath ran to the ocean.

The number of persons at Coney yesterday was even larger than last Sunday when all records were broken more than 300,000 going to the resort.

As usual Plainfield excursionists turned out in large numbers at Asbury Park where ideal water conditions were encountered. Many also took the Ceneral Railroad outing to Atlantic City while others went to points of interest along the Staten Island shore and visited resorts on the Atlantic coast.

Among the Plainfielders registered recently at well-known resorts are: Avon, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Muncey; Belmar, Mrs. Henry N. McMenimen; Asbury Park, G. Elinor Stutsman; Keansburg, Mr. and Mrs. George Meade, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Vail; Budd Lake, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Honeyman. Among those who spent the day at Lake Hopatcong yesterday were Assemblyman William N. Runyon, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., and Robert Schropeshire.

RETURN VISITS.

Miss Julia F. Leahey, of West Second street, returned home this morning from Elmira N. Y., where she spent her vacation with Miss May Kolb, formerly of this city. Accompanying her were Miss Kolb and Arthur Jennings, of Elmira, who will spend their vacations in this city. Miss Kolb is the daughter of the proprietor of the Kolb Candy Company, which was formerly located on West Front street.

POULTRYMEN INSPECT STATION.

About thirty members of the Plainfield Poultry Association trolleyed to New Brunswick, Saturday afternoon, and inspected the plant of the State experimental station connected with Rutgers College.

COUNCIL WILL SET DATE FOR HEARING

William Mernagh Will Probably Be Tried Within the Next Fortnight.

Preliminary arrangements for the trial of William Mernagh, the local police department's patrolman now under suspension pending the disposition of charges made against him by Chief Kiely, will be made at the adjourned session of the Common Council tomorrow night. A definite date for the public hearing will be agreed upon at that time and it is expected that the accused officer will be arraigned sometime within the next fortnight. He will be represented by former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, and the city's interest will be taken care of by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed. Contrary to a previous report, the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, of which Mernagh is a member, will not finance his case and the organization will take no part in the trial unless it is plainly evident during the proceedings that the accused patrolman is not given a "spuare deal."

Little of importance will be transacted by the city fathers at tomorrow night's meeting, routine matters making up the larger portion of the calendar. It is not expected that the street committee will report back on the proposition to widen Somerset street, it being thought that this body will wait until the August meeting before taking any definite action.

BORO SEWER WORK NOW HALF COMPLETE

It is Predicted That the Contractors Will Finish Job by Fall.

While the work of laying the sewer pipes in North Plainfield is progressing satisfactorily, there is no prospect of the contractors finishing either the west side work or that on the east side before fall. According to a report filed July 1 by the contractor in charge of the pipe laying in the eastern section of the borough, 47 per cent. of the work had been done on that date, while the contractor doing the work on the west side reported only 34 per cent. done. By this time, however, the work as a whole is about half done.

This apparently slow progress made by the west side contractor was due to the fact that he had to go deeper with his pipes and also that the pipes he was laying were of a larger size than those being put down on the east side. He also encountered water, which was not the case with the east side contractor until a few days ago. The contractor for the east side work has still to pipe Grove and Duer streets and all the side streets as far north as he goes. In some places a depth of twenty-two feet had to be reached in order to give the line the required fall. In these cases teams of horses and scoops were used to do the rough excavating.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, announced this morning that the steam roller would be put in commission on those streets where the pipe has been laid and that they would be put in as good condition as possible pending more permanent improvement when the streets will need to be torn up no more.

WATCHUNG FESTIVAL.

Fair weather tomorrow evening is all that is needed to assure the success of the festival and fete of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the Mary E. Wilson Memorial Union church at Watchung. The women of the church have compiled a cook book which will be on sale tomorrow night. To carry those from this city who wish to attend the festival, extra motor busses will leave Front and Somerset streets tomorrow night for the trip.

HANS PETERSON'S FUNERAL.

Funeral services for Hans Peterson, an inmate of the Plainfield Industrial Home, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital early Saturday morning, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking parlors, 200 West Second street. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery. The Rev. Dr. C. W. F. Attlee will have charge of the services.

BUSINESS MEN'S MEETING.

The Business Men's Credit Association will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Frost building on Park avenue. Matters of financial importance to the members will be discussed.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

Portland, Me., July 19—Two men were killed when the Standard Oil tank steamer Petrolia III. blew up in the harbor of Rockland today.

ONE INJURED AS CARRIAGE UPSETS

COMING FROM PICNIC

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Shrager, their six children and Mrs. Shrager's mother, Mrs. Rose Shrager, of 121 Madison avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury while driving from Chimney Rock to their home at 8:30 o'clock last night, when the rig collided with a Main Line trolley in charge of Motorman William Hoelzel and Conductor Reynolds, of Elizabeth.

The accident occurred near Gallagher's Corner, Dunellen, and the force of the collision took off the right front wheel of the carriage and jammed it against a telegraph pole. Mr. Shrager was thrown out and had a narrow escape from going under the wheels of the trolley. His injuries consisted of slight lacerations. The other members of the family were uninjured. The party had been attending a picnic at Chimney Rock.

The carriage, owing to sewer excavations, was on the wrong side of the road, and some of those at the scene of the accident were not inclined to blame Mr. Shrager altogether. He was confronted with several red lights and this fact together with the lights of a couple of automobiles confused him in driving his horse. Not having much choice he decided to remain on the left side of the road.

At the point where the accident occurred the distance between the curb and the nearest trolley rail is only eight feet. This distance was lessened to probably seven feet by the projecting body of the car, as it follows the curve of the track.

The carriage measured five feet in width and this only gave Shrager a clearance of two feet. Whether he was blinded by the glaring light of the car as it bore down towards his carriage, or whether the light scared the horse Mr. Shrager does not know. All that he can remember is, that he tried to guide his animal as close to the curb as possible. As he was trying to do this the collision occurred and he fainted.

When he regained consciousness he was lying on the grass with his anxious family gathered about him. He quickly recovered from the effects of the accident and was able to accompany his family home. The wagon with the broken wheel was left along the side of the road and the horse was placed in a neighboring barn.

EXPECT FRANK TO HAVE FAST RECOVERY FROM WOUND

Milledgeville, Ga., July 19—Physicians attending Leo M. Frank, who was stabbed by convict Green, stated that his condition was wholly favorable this morning. They look for a speedy recovery.

An operation on Frank brought encouraging results and he has considerable vitality left. Unless the hot weather complicates matters it is believed the deep wound in his neck will heal. Gov. Harris is greatly incensed over the assault upon Frank and stated today that he had ordered a thorough investigation of the attack. It is believed that a general shake-up in the management of the State Prison will follow the investigation.

What Gov. Harris especially wants to find out through this investigation is whether Green, who cut Frank's throat on Saturday night, acted upon his own initative in making the attack up Frank or was merely used by others as a tool.

If Frank recovers he will owe his life to two convict physicians who heard his cry as Green stabbed him in the throat. They are Dr. J. W. McNaughton, of Swainsboro, convicted of murder, and Dr. L. M. Harrison, of Columbus, who is serving a long term.

When the lights were flashed on the two physicians hurried to Frank's bedside and checked the flow of blood until Dr. Compton, the prison surgeon, arrived on the scene.

Green has a long criminal record behind him and has been tried twice for murder. His only explanation of his attack upon Frank is that he "had a strange feeling that Frank should be put out of the way."

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 78 degrees; 11 a. m., 87 degrees; 1 p. m., 90 degrees.

The "tarit-instinct" in people makes the "For Sale" ads interesting to them.

PRESIDENT AT CAPITAL; CONFERS WITH LANSING

Discusses German Note on Lusitania Immediately Upon Arrival.

Washington, July 19—President Wilson arrived in Washington at 9:35 o'clock this morning. The trip from New Hampshire was uneventful. The President, with Dr. Cary Grayson, was driven in the White House automobile to the executive office.

Less than an hour after his arrival in the White House today from Cornish, President Wilson summoned Secretary of State Lansing for a conference on the reply to the German note on the Lusitania affair and the German submarine policy. The conference was held in the President's library and not even a stenographer was present. The officials appeared to have entered on an earnest discussion of the situation to which each has given grave consideration throughout the past several days.

After leaving the White House, Secretary Lansing declined to discuss his conference with the President or to indicate when the next note to Germany will be sent.

ENJOY AN ALL-DAY IN THE MOUNTAINS

The picnic held yesterday at Chimney Rock by the I. O. B'rith Abraham, Jehuda Halevin Camp, No. 57, for the benefit of the Talmud Torah or Jewish Sunday-school, was a great success both from a social and a financial standpoint. During the day private autos conveyed people from this city to the picnic grounds, situated at an ideal spot in the Watchung Mountains, a few miles back of Bound Brook. Many people took the trolley to Bound Brook and there found vehicles to convey them to the pleasure grounds.

Dancing, sports of all sorts and refreshments made up the day's amusements, which were enjoyed by people not only from this city but from New York, Brooklyn, Bayonne, Elizabeth, Westfield, New Brunswick, Somerville, Bound Brook and surrounding places.

The picnic is an annual affair with the Jewish people of this community, who use it as a means of replenishing the funds of the Sunday-schools conducted in connection with the synagogues of this city.

BADLY HURT WHEN SWING BROKE WITH THREE IN IT

An accident in which one Plainfielder, was seriously injured occurred at Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur's bungalow at Lake Hopatcong, Saturday, when a swing, in which three persons were sitting, broke. Seated in the big pleasure devise were Mr. and Mrs. Blake Tatum, of Newark, and Mrs. Joseph Allen, of this city.

The weight of the three persons caused the guy-ropes to snap, Mr. and Mrs. Tatum, who were on the outer edges, being thrown several feet. Mrs. Allen, who sat in the middle, fell on top of Mr. Tatum and the latter had to be removed to the Memorial Hospital at Morristown this morning, so that physicians in charge of the case can ascertain the exact extent of his hurts. It is known that three of his ribs are broken and he may have other internal injuries. Mrs. Tatum, who is a daughter of Mr. Wilbur, sustained a slight injury to her left arm. Mrs. Allen was unhurt.

REMINISCENT CLUB WILL VISIT MUIR AT THE LAKE

Between twenty and thirty members of the Reminiscent Club will pay their annual visit to Tommy Muir at Camp Ram's Horn, Lake Hopatcong, next Sunday, the trip to the resort being made in a special train. Because of the large number that have signified their intention of visiting the popular camp conducted this year it has been necessary to divide the excursion in two parts, one party going next Sunday and the remaining going a week from next Sunday.

William Jaeger is chairman of the committee in charge and he has already secured the assurances that at least fifty will compose the combined party. Special arrangements have been made for the trip, both going and coming, and at the lake Tommy Muir has made arrangements for the entertainment of the "West Enders."

ITALIAN CRUISER TORPEDO VICTIM

Guiseppe Garibaldi Prey of Austrian Submarine This Morning.

REPULSED BY FRENCH

Vienna, July 19.—The Italian armored cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi was torpedoed and sunk in the Adriatic Sea this morning by an Austrian submarine, it is officially announced by the Austrian Admiralty. The Guiseppe Garibaldi was attacked south of Ragusa, and sank within fifteen minutes after being struck. She was a vessel of 7,234 tons, and normally carried a complement of 550 men.

Paris, July 19.—Violent attacks have been launched by the Germans over an extended front, according to an official communique issued by the War Office today. All the attacks, however, were repulsed. The French positions near Souchez, in the Argonne and in Lorraine were assaulted by the German infantry and hard fighting followed at close quarters. The communique indicates that the Germans have renewed their efforts to break the French lines of communication west of Verdun.

A special communique was issued by the French War Office today correcting certain statements made in official reports issued by the German General Staff in Berlin on July 14, 15 and 16. It says:

"One of our aeroplanes came to earth within our lines near Souchez, the aviator being slightly wounded. In Lorraine it was not a skirmish of advance guards that took place but an important German attack which was repulsed.

"Attempts of the Germans to pierce our lines in the Argonne has been completely arrested since July 13. The number of 7,000 prisoners mentioned by the Germans was not the number of our losses in the Argonne, but the total of our missing everywhere on the front during the month. The Germans suffered as heavily as we."

London, July 19.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that the casualties at the Dardanelles were 42,431.

London, July 19.—Between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 men, the best armies that Germany, Austria and Russia have ever put into the field, are embattled on the long front from Bessarabia to the Baltic. The supreme interest of the warring nations is now centred on the campaign in which the Teuton hosts are trying to grind Warsaw between the upper and nether millstones of Von Hindenburg and Von Mackensen.

Far to the German rear Gen. Von Falkenhayn and his staff are co-ordinating the great armies of the Teuton offensive, while the Grand Duke Nicholas, on the other hand, is trying to block the incessant attacks along the thousand mile front.

Already according to German reports, Von Hindenburg has twice pierced the Russian line north of Warsaw in the valley of Przasnysz, compelling the defenders to retire upon the Nerew River.

Notwithstanding the tremendous pressure in this sector and the employment of large forces of cavalry in the Baltic provinces, where the Germans, under Gen. von Buelow, have crossed the Windau and are nearing the port of Riga, Russian military opinion pins its faith to the theory that the enemy's main objective is the Lublin-Cholm line, which must be won by Von Mackensen to place beyond peril the armies that camp in the wilderness fringing Galacia.

The Russians are now in good condition to resist the Austro-German onslaughts, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the London Times, who had been permitted to visit all the Russian armies from Bukovina to Warsaw.

According to the German statement received last night, portions of Gen. Von Buelow's army in the Baltic provinces have defeated the Russians near Alt Autz and are pushing the defenders eastward. East of Kurshany, where the Germans crossed the Windau, Russian advanced positions have been taken by storm.

Berlin is rejoicing over the victories of Von Hindenbugr between the Pissa and the Vistula, which threaten the crumpling of the Russian right flank. The official report says Von Mackensen has broken the Russian line on the left flank near Krasnostav, bringing the Germans within thirty-four miles of Lublin and dangerously near the Lublin-Cholm line. Both of these points are of prime importance to the Russians in maintaining their hold upon the

SUFFRAGISTS ADOPT A UNIQUE METHOD

Telephone Canvass Made in Dunellen Brings Encouraging Results.

The canvass committee of the Equal Suffrage League of Dunellen and New Market experimented with a telephone canvass last evening gaining considerable results. A page of Dunellen and New Market numbers were chosen at random and faithfully called. The opinions of both men and women were asked.

The first to answer was a woman. She established a record for her sex, replying, "I have nothing to say." The first man called believed in suffrage and always had.

A daughter answering for herself and mother said they had always believed in woman's suffrage and thought it a good thing. The next answer came with manly candor. He believed in woman's suffrage because he believed in equality and no taxation without representation.

Two voters in one family replied they both favored woman's suffrage because the woman is as much the head of the house as the man and works just as hard.

Two diplomats after asking to whom they were speaking and if the speaker were a resident of Dunellen, said they had not formed an opinion.

In surprise a woman's voice replied: "Oh, my! I'm not read up on those subjects."

A commuter answered, "I am very much opposed." When asked his chief objection he replied, "The street meetings in New York city."

One gentleman said he was glad the women were thinking of suffrage because through it the men were certainly becoming popular. He said other women had asked him the same question and that he was glad to say both he and his wife had always believed in woman suffrage.

The last called was a man neither for or against suffrage and had no reason for objection or approval.

Of the eighteen people reached eleven were decidedly for suffrage, six had not formed an opinion and one was opposed.

John and Charles Wilcox, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Wilcox, of Dunellen avenue, have returned from Bloomsbury, where they spent ten days visiting with Mrs. Fred K. Wilcox, Jr., at Martin Krinic's.

Recorder John J. McGovern, of the District Court at Hoboken, visited Frank J. Farrell recently. Mr. Farrell and Recorder McGovern have known each other for over thirty years.

Mr. and Mrs. George Voehl, of Washington avenue, entertained extensively yesterday. Among their guests for the day were Miss Minnie Bachman and Lester Conklin, of Brooklyn; John W. Voehl, of Bayonne; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gnatz, of Plainfield, and John F. Kulp and daughter, Miss Frances, of Bayonne.

Miss Jessie Hayes, of New Market road, is spending a week at Hopewell the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Titsworth.

Miss Florence Smalley, of Jackson avenue, spent the week-end at Madison visiting friends.

Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Platt left Friday morning on a trip to Lake George and Lake Champlain.

Mrs. Sarah Painter and son, of Newark, and Charles Painter, Sr., of Rochester, N. Y., were entertained by Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole, of Washington avenue, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Barton, of Newark, spent the week-end in the borough as guests of Mrs. Barton's father, Adam Herlich, of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Levins, of Railroad avenue, have been entertaining Mrs. Levins' brother, Peter Dwyer, from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dineen, of Washington avenue, entertained their son, John Dineen, of Brooklyn, over the week-end.

John H. Schneidler, of Washington avenue, has been indisposed for the past several days with his old complaint, stomach trouble.

Guy H. Rentschler, principal of the local schools, who has been visiting the home of his parents at Ringstown, Pa., where he is spending his vacation, spent the week-end at the home of former Mayor and Mrs. William Wyckoff.

David Tarpey, of New York, is spending the summer in the borough as the guest of his brother, Marshal Patrick Tarpey.

LeRoy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith, of Front street, has accepted a position as helper on the farm of Fred Boice, in Piscataway.

Councilman and Mrs. Richard M. Ryan leave tomorrow for New London, Conn., where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Elston Lowrie. They will be gone two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Melachton Apgar, of Dunellen avenue, spent the week-end at Port Colon visiting Mr. Apgar's sister.

JUDGE CAMPBELL HELPS TO SETTLE "FAMILY JARS"

Lewis Johnson was arraigned in Judge David S. Campbell's court Saturday evening on a warrant sworn out by Overseer of the Poor Lewis Schneider, which alleged that he was not supporting his wife.

The couple had only been married three months. The wife, who had returned to the home of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, of Walnut street, testified that her husband had wilfully left her and would not support her.

Johnson on the other hand claimed that his wife had been the one to leave him. He told the court that she had locked the door of their home, located in the Koschek house on Bound Brook road, and left him. He said that he had given the furniture away when his wife failed to return to him at the expiration of three days.

Confronted with this contradicting testimony the court bluntly asked Johnson whether he would support his wife. Johnson, who has been out of work, replied that he would if she would go with him where he could find work.

Upon the suggestion of the court the two then shook hands and left to start married life anew. Prior to their leaving Judge Campbell gave them some fatherly advice, telling them that they must expect many inconveniences and disagreements as they went along together. But by standing together and each making allowances for the peculiar disposition of the other these can be overcome and surmounted the court said.

Assessor and Mrs. J. H. L. Peters visited Assessor Peters' brother, Herman Peters, of Brooklyn, over the week-end.

Mrs. A. F. Samson and Mrs. Robert F. Bogardus shopped in New York today.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Borough Hall this evening.

CAMPING ON THE RARITAN.

The Misses Margaret and Jennie Ryan and Miss May Hunt, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting them, composed a party of ten which has been camping along the Raritan, near Princeton, since Saturday. The trip to the camping place was made in canoes. The party will return this evening.

GETS A $5 FINE.

John Laskody, of Bound Brook, was arrested by Marshal Patrick Tarpey Saturday evening while lying in a drunken stupor on North avenue in front of the residence of Mrs. John Huff. When arraigned in Judge David S. Campbell's court yesterday morning he was fined $5.

'Plains & Fanwood.

The thirty-fourth annual "Big 8" excursion from Fanwood township and Westfield to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove is scheduled for tomorrow. Unless the weather is stormy one of the largest crowds yet will spend the day at the shore. As there will be none from Plainfield this week, the local promoters of the outing expect a larger number of people from that city to go than ever before. Going down there will be but one section, due at Fanwood at 8:15 and Westfield ten minutes later. The Baptist, Methodist, Episcopal and Willow Grove, of Fanwood, and the Mountainside, Branch Mills Presbyterian and Baptist will join at Westfield. Returning there will be two sections the first leaving the shore at half-past six and the second following about half-past nine.

A meeting of the executive board and various committees of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association will be held in the lecture room of the Baptist church today to further plans for the "community picnic" on August 11 and as it is a distinctly community affair any resident having any ideas that they think would help it to be a success are invited to be present and give their views. It is now expected that while Governor Fielder is in town the local merchants will close their stores as a mark of respect. Those who have already been approached have acquiesced with those in charge of the arrangements.

The members of the Epworth League, of the Methodist church, enjoyed a picnic on the lawns surrounding the church on Saturday night. Lights were swung among the trees and other pretty decorations were in evidence. The evening was pleasantly spent, with music as a prominent factor, and later light refreshments were served.

The 'Plains boys returned a winner by a one-run margin in a well-played baseball game against the Fanwood boys on the Park avenue diamond on Saturday afternoon. The final count was 10 to 9, the winners scoring their last run in the ninth when a man was walked with the bases full.

TWO INDIVIDUALS IN ONE

Every person has two "selves."

One, the Positive Personality, is to "ever go forward"—the other, the Negative Personality, is to "pull backward."

Until your Negative Self has been conquered you can not derive the pleasures of life. It causes worry, unhappiness, trouble and misfortune.

Positive Self tells you to come to Rothberg's for your next. Suit. Negative Self objects.

Once and for all throw off the "pull backward" spirit and start to go onward and upward!

Watchung.

The services at the Mary E. Wilson Memorial Union church were exceedingly well attended yesterday. The members of the Watchung Chemical Engine Company attended the morning service in a body. Rev. Mr. Ramsay preached a forcible sermon on "Why Should I Go to Church?" There was special music, which included solos by Lawrence Vail and Mrs. Edward Spier, anthems by the choir and violin solos by George H. Spier. Two baptisms took place at this service also. In the evening Mr. Ramsay spoke on "Gifts of Eeternal Life." The music at this service consisted of a quartet, entitled, "O, Lord Most Holy," by the Misses Elsie F. Schmidt, Helen Y. Hughes and the Messrs. Lawrence J. Vail and Douglas W. Demler, and selections by the girls' chorus.

BIBLE SCHOOL CONDUCTS SERVICE AT THE HOME

A service of song was conducted by the Bible School of the Park Avenue Baptist church at the Industrial Home, yesterday afternoon, it being in charge of Willard M. Maxim, superintendent of the school. Their Children's Day carols were repeated for the benefit of the men and women of the Home and the singing was greatly enjoyed.

Solos were given by Miss Evelyn Manley and Elwood Waller. Mrs. John Manley presided at the organ, assisted by Mrs. Willard Maxim, violin, and T. S. Casner, cornet. The inmates of the Home apparently enjoyed the service.

Health Notes

Published by the Plainfield Health Department.

The Plainfield Milk Supply.

The Plainfield Board of Health believes that time, labor and money are well spent in supervising the milk supply. Inasmuch as the health and sometimes, life itself, of persons who use milk as the chief article of diet, must depend on the character of the milk, it is of the utmost importance that the milk should be wholesome in every respect.

Frequent inspections of the dairies from which Plainfield's milk is produced, are made, and as a further check on the methods used, and as a means of determining the quality of the milk, at least two samples from each retail dealer are analyzed each month.

Home Care of the Milk.

As indicated above, the Health Department is making it their business to see that the milk supply is wholesome, but the householders must understand that after the milk has been delivered to them, it is their business to see that the wholesomeness of the milk is not destroyed by their carelessness. There are three main things to do in caring for the milk. See that it is kept covered, clean and cold.

Here Are Some Dont's to Remember:

Don't allow the milk to stand for hours on your back porch; take it in as soon after it is delivered as possible and put it in a cold place.

Don't take off the cap until you have washed the top of the bottle.

Don't keep the milk uncovered.

Don't allow dirt to get in the milk.

Don't mix old milk with fresh milk.

Don't use pasteurized milk after it is 48 hours old.

If you cannot use ice for keeping the milk cold, put the bottle in a dish of cold water or wrap the bottle with a clean cloth which has been wrung out of cold water. The water should be of the same depth as the milk and should be changed often.

OFFERS $100 A POUND FOR BULL ON HOOF—SOME BULL!

Bernardsville, July 19. Bernhard Meyer, of Finderne, owns a year-old registered Holstein bull. An unnamed multi-millionaire wants the bull. He has made a standing offer, good for two years, offering to pay $100 a pound for each pound that the bull may weigh at the time of the sale.

Mr. Meyer estimates that the bull, whose name is K. Cordessa Scott will weigh 2,000 before he is three years old, and that, at $100 a pound, he will be worth $200,000. He possesses a cow, which under a test broke the world's record for a milk yield in 365 days. The cow gave 24,812 pounds of milk in that period. She was milked four times each day.

RECREATION NOTES

The "Zephers" are to meet tomorrow evening in the High School gymnasium. Games and dancing will be features of the program.

The Y. W. H. A. are not to meet this week, but will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday.

The Girls' Athletic Class has the High School "gym" each Wednesday evening. From all appearances this class is to be more popular than ever next winter. Many new girls are coming in each meeting. Last week several girls' banded together and formed the nucleus of a self-governing club, which will include among its activities, dramatics and dancing as well as athletics. The club will have a representative basketball team and Plainfield will see some games this year. The manager of the team, Miss Smith, is to make the booking for the team early in the fall.

Other clubs may have the use of the school buildings under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee for various forms of recreation. Application may be made at the office in Stillman School at any time.

DRIVE THEM AWAY.

Defiance of Mayor Calkins and the authorities by the members of the Pillar of Fire, in continuing to hold street meetings without permission, shows the necessity for a strict ordinance regulating such conditions. These people came to town, attacked religious denominations, lodges and other organizations in an inexcusable way, making broad assertions which they made no effort to prove, and were generally objectionable. While it may be true that under the liberal interpretation which has been given to the free speech clause in the constitution, there was no way to stop them, the authorities could have been technical and locked up a few of them, as was the case in Somerville, and thus made it so unpleasant that they would leave the city.

Everyone believes in religious freedom, but when it is made an excuse for scurrilous attacks on other denominations the authorities should step in, and on some technicality or other run undesirables out of town. A gang of hoodlums got the best of the police once, but they should not be given an oppoturnity to do so again.

So far as can be learned the sect which has caused so much discussion in this city can point to no particular good it has done. They apparently are not to be considered in the same breath with the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America and similar organizations which hold street meetings, and which have proven by their work that they occupy an important place in the world. All sorts of vague rumors are in circulation as to the "Holy Jumpers" practice with regard to marriage vows. They seem to have plenty of money to buy houses and automobiles, but are singularly quiet about any accomplishments they have brought about in the way of conversions, or redeeming those who have fallen.

But it is in their open defiance in coming back to hold meetings without so much as recognizing the authorities and asking for a permit that they are most objectionable. Because of some question as to his authority Mayor Calkins has not ordered them driven off the streets, as it would seem that he has a perfect right to do under the ordinance regarding the obstruction of traffic. The Common Council can soon remedy the matter by passing an ordinance making a permit necessary for such meetings, and providing a penalty for those who fail to get one. If one were in force now the Mayor could refuse the privilge on the past record of the "Holy Jumpers," and they could be treated by the police just as any other disturbers of the peace would be treated.

As it is now, it is necessary to order a lot of extra patrolman on duty each time they hold a meeting, to protect them from possible trouble, such as that which was encountered a few weeks ago. And there is no reason why officers should be provided to protect those who attract only curious persons with no interest whatsoever in the theories being expounded.

It has been said that many persons after failing at everything else turn to the real estate business, or try to take up newspaper work. That the latter is true is known to everyone who has the hiring (and firing) of those employed on the reportorial staff of any newspaper in the country. During the summer months there are always a lot of amateur writers, who may have been successful in high school in writing essays, who feel that they are thereby fully qualified to immediately take a position on the staff of any newspaper. The truth of the matter is that hundreds of people who may be excellent writers from a literary viewpoint are absolutely incapable of grasping the first essentials of a news story. There are plenty of famous magazine writers today, with nation-wide reputation, who, if they were assigned to report some event in the news, would not be able to handle the task as well as the average cub reporter. The city editor of any great metropolitan paper could testify to this, as the result of actual experience.

Evidently the anti-shop out of town fever has hit Bayonne, too. The Review of that city voices the same sentiments that are often expressed in this city, when it complains about the patronage of out of town stores to the neglect of those in Bayonne. The difference between the situation there, and that in this city is that here we have much better stores than are to be found in the Hudson county municipality.

Think of any family wasting a million dollars on a man like Harry Thaw? Put to a good use the money would have provided a splendid education for hundreds of young men who would grow up to be a credit to the country and to their families.

Don't need to go to the Italian-Austrian border to get an idea about some phases of warfare. Just go over the brook and see the men digging the sewer trenches.

It's a question whether the war or "Did your jelly jell?" is the most popular topic of discussion just now with a lot of the "women folks."

Even the confirmed doubter must admit that summer has come at last.

WORK ON THE FEDERAL BUILDING AT STANDSTILL

The brick for the new postoffice building on Watchung avenue had not arrived on the ground at noon today, and work on the building is apparently at a standstill. There is no real delay, however, according to United States Inspector S. H. Nealy, for the steel and stone are not here and even if the foundations were laid to grade there would be a halt in the work until the steel girders and the stone for the exterior walls were received. The brick expected is that which will take the place of those recently condemned by the inspector as not up to the sample submitted by the bidder.

All the stone for the new building is cut at the quarry and will reach this city all ready to put in place. The details from which the actual work show the exact size of every column, etc., so there need be no guess-work on the part of the workmen.

PRESIDENT OF RUTGERS PREACHES IN THIS CITY

The Rev. Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, preached a scholarly sermon in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday morning, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, who is away on his vacation. He spoke on "The Mission of Jesus."

The speaker said that Jesus did not come into this world to destroy the law, but to keep it and to impress upon men and women the importance of keeping it. Neither did he undertake to discredit the prophets, but rather to exalt them. Dr. Demarest declared that the laws of God are at work in the world today just as they were two thousand years ago, if men would only realize it, and that the hand of God may even be seen in the great world war.

There was a fair-sized congregation for a Sunday morning in July, and the choir sang three anthems.

CONVENTION OCTOBER 21.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the Union County Sunday School Association will be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this city, Thursday, October 21.

W. H. Nichols, of this city, will tonight install the officers-elect of Bound Brook Lodge, No. 56, Knights of Pythias, at Bound Brook, and Lodge of the Castle at Somerville.

PLAINFIELD GIRL GOING TO JAPAN

Miss Louise Klein to Become Secretary of Education for Unitarian Church.

Miss Louise Klein, of 321 East Second street, has closed a contract with the Board of Foreign Missions of the Unitarian church to serve as secretary of education for a period of five years, beginning November 15, all of which time will be spent in Japan. She is now touring the Pacific coast acquiring additional information of the language and the ways of the Japanese, among whom she will reside for the next five years.

Miss Klein is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Klein. She was graduated from the Plainfield High School about six years ago and took a course at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn. She has just graduated from the St. Lawrence University, at Canton, N. Y., with high honors. She converses fluently in the Japanese language.

The contract with the Unitarian body is a lucrative one for Miss Klein. Her salary will be $1,500 a year and expenses. She's now under salary and having her expenses paid while touring the Pacific coast. At the end of the five-year period Miss Klein may renew the contract for another like period, and will be granted a year's vacation, with salary paid in advance, before taking up her work again for the second period.

$97,000,000 WAR ORDER FOR BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS

New York, July 19—The Baldwin Locomotive Works has received orders directly for locomotive car wheels and axles and indirectly orders for war munitions aggregating $97,000,000. The company to handle the war munition contracts is the Eddystone Munitions Company. The incorporators of this company and the Baldwin representatives signed the agreement in which the Baldwins participate in the profits of an $87,200,000 contract made last Wednesday and which is for 5,000,000 three-inch loaded shrapnel. The Eddystone Munitions Company will incorporate at once and start the erection of buildings without delay.

CHRISTIAN FIELD

There will be a meeting of the C. E. Expert Class at the home of Miss May Randolph, 317 East Front street, tomorrow evening. At that time the examinations will be held.

An important meeting of the Fresh Air Committee of Trinity Reformed church Christian Endeavor Society is to be held at the home of Harold C. Gayle, 18 Vine street, the borough, on Thursday evening. All members are urged to attend, as this is the last meeting this season. All are expected to bring the donations which were collected and hand the same in at that time.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Royle T. Phillips, of Arlington avenue, are the parents of a daughter born to them last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Brown, of Lebanon, Pa., have been spending several days in this city with relatives and friends. Mr. Brown has been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work at Lebanon, and he and his wife plan to spend the summer at the home of the latter at Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew D. Sweeney, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, were in town yesterday visiting relatives. Mrs. Sweeney and the children, the Misses Evelyn and Dorothy and Warren Sweeney, will remain here for several days.

Miss Lucie Coriell, of West Fifth street, is enjoying a two weeks' outing at Asbury Park.

William Hand, of Watchung avenue, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation from his duties with the New Jersey Central.

IMPORTANT RATE HEARING.

Chicago, Ill., July 19—A hearing will begin here today and last all the week under the direction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the taking of evidence for and against an increase of freight rates throughout the Western territory. The present hearing will be confined to consideration of rates on agricultural implements, canned goods and furniture, and of the proposed changes in rules and practises relating to general transit rules on grain and milling of grain in transit. Another group of rate subjects will be taken up next week.

KANSAS DAY AT THE FAIR.

San Francisco, July 19—Governor Arthur Capper, accompanied by members of his staff, formally opened "Kansas Day" at the Exposition with exercises in the Kansas building this morning.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR ENCAMPMENT

70,000 G. A. R. Veterans and Friends to Visit Washington Sept. 27 to Oct. 2.

NO EXORBITANT RATES

President Wilson is Expected to Witness the Grand Review—Congress Appropriated $11,000 for Public Comfort Stations.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Elaborate preparations are being worked out here for the accommodation of 70,000 G. A. R. veterans and their friends who will attend the forty-ninth annual encampment of the organization to be held in this city from September 27 to October 2.

A special citizens sub-committee has been appointed to look out for this one feature, and as a result of the good work that has already been done and is now underway there will be no exorbitant, rates charged in either hotels or boarding houses. As a part of their work this committee advertised in all of the daily newspapers of this city asking boarding house proprietors and those who wish to rent to list with them at their headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce all of the data concerning their rooms. This information consists of addresses and telephone numbers, prices for rooms with and without meals, with and without baths, and in fact every detail which might be asked by any one intending to rent rooms. This information is tabulated and put into a card index system. Several persons are at work on this continually and it is said that hundreds are bringing in this information.

It is said at the headquarters that good comfortable rooms will be available for the veterans at anywhere from 50 cents per day up, without meals, so that no one need stay away from the encampment because of high room rent. Hundreds of letters are being received daily by the chairman of this committee asking about the rooms and all that is necessary to do is to look at the card index system and one is able to tell just what will suit the inquiring person. Reservations have been made for scores of delegations, many of whom wish to be together, as well as for many individuals. It has been a part of the duty of the committee to interview the hotel managers and restaurant proprietors and call their especial attention to the fact that both room and food prices shall be normal. This has been promised and it is thought by the committee that no trouble will be experienced along these lines.

In addition to these accommodations $11,000 was appropriated by Congress, just before adjournment for the erection of public comfort stations and like incidental expenses. This work will be in charge of Major Raymond W. Pullman, superintendent of police of Washington. The Woman's Relief Corps is to be in charge of the information booths and they will be ably assisted by the Boy Scouts.

This forty-ninth encampment will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the grand review of the troops at the termination of the Civil War by President Johnson, and it is the plan of those in charge that at this forty-ninth encampment may be reproduced, as nearly as possible, that review. It is expected that President Wilson will review the veterans. This probably will be the last great encampment of the G. A. R. because of the increasing death rate of the old soldiers. In addition to the G. A. R. encampment, conventions are to be held here at the same time by the Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., the Association of Union Prisoners of War, Naval Veterans and other kindred organizations.

The National Defense League will hold a great conference on national defense immediately after the G. A. R. encampment.

At the last G. A. R. encampment held here in 1902 it was estimated by the railroads that about 70,000 persons attended the encampment. It is believed that because of the uniqueness of this encampment that fully as many will attend the coming encampment. Col. John McElroy, past senior vice commander-in-chief, has expressed great pleasure over the work of the accommodations committee and he believes there will be no exorbitant charges by hotels, restaurants or rooming houses.

KANSAS PLOWING EXHIBITION.

Hutchinson, Kans., July 19—Plowing by power will be shown to the farmers of Kansas in an exhibition which begins today and lasts all the week. Some 800 acres will be plowed under the watchful eyes of agricultural experts, and all kinds of tractors will be demonstrated. The Kansas State Agricultural College arranged the plowing match, which will demonstrate the practical use of modern machinery in the fields.

G. O. P. ENDORSE R. P. F. VON MINDEN

Piscataway Township Republicans Urge Him to Seek State Senatorship.

HAIGHT FOR ASSEMBLY

Exective Committee of Party Hold An Enthusiastic Meeting at New Market—Wilson Frederick Talked of for Freeholder.

Justice Rene P. F. von Minden was endorsed for the State Senatorial nomination and Clarence Haight for the Assemblyman nomination, at a meeting of the Republican voters of Piscataway township, held at Nelson's Hotel, New Market, Saturday night. The meeting was called by the executive committee of the township organization. There was a large attendance of Republican voters and considerable enthusiasm.

It was the expressed opinion of those present that this end of Middlesex county was entitled to a little more than it has been receiving in the way of political offices and for that reason a meeting was arranged for this early to get the voters interested in the campaign.

There is also an opinion that this end of the county is entitled to at least one freeholder, and among those prominently mentioned for the honor is Wilson Frederick, of Dunellen, who for several years has been active in behalf of his party.

Justice von Minden was mentioned in these columns recently as a probable candidate for the Senatorial nomination and since then he has received assurnaces of support from all parts of Middlesex county. When questioned today about his candidacy, Mr. von Minden said that he had made no efforts to enter the race and that thus far assurances had come to him entirely unsolicited. It is the belief of his many friends that he would make an unusually strong candidate. The same is said of Mr. Haight, who is also active in the Republican party in the county.

John M. Dayton was chairman of the meeting Saturday night and all three districts in Piscataway township were largely represented. The outlook for the success of the Republican ticket next fall was considered unusually good and there was evidence of much harmony among those present.

Justice von Minden has already served one term in the lower branch of the State Legislature. He is now State Councilor of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and is connected with several other patriotic organizations. He is well known not only throughout Middlesex county, but the State as well.

MANY LOCAL AUTOISTS RAN INTO SHEDD'S MOTOR TRAP

Those Plainfield autoists (and there were scores of them) who chanced to pass through the Elizabeth end of Union county yesterday afternoon were forced to display their driving credentials to Motor Vehicle Inspector Harry Shedd, of Roselle who spent the day operating just outside of the county seat. Many minor violations were recorded but not a single Plainfielder was caught in the drag-net stretched out for offenders.

One New York driver, who was exceeding the speed limit, was arrested and when arraigned before Judge Owen P. Mahon in the Elizabeth police court, was fined $10.

FLYNN ARRESTS QUARTET OF YOUNG DISORDERLIES

Frank Terry, Frank Asoldo, Patrick Long and Frank Donati were arrested by Captain John J. Flynn yesterday afternoon, while loitering about the road at Farragut road, near Greenbrook. The youths were making themselves heard throughout the neighborhood by the disorder they were creating and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court they were charged with disorderly conduct.

Sentence was suspended in the case of Terry; Asoldo will have to appear for hearing tomorrow morning, and Long and Donati will be arraigned Saturday morning. Donati is the youth who was reported to be missing from home by his mother Saturday morning and Judge DeMeza instructed him to report to his parents at once in order to allay her apprehension concerning his safety. Long has a record in the police court, having many times figured in similar cases.

HE TOOK A LONG CHANCE.

Charged with driving a wagon without the necessary tail lights on Plainfield avenue, Saturday night, Alfred Schenedecker, of 211 Plainfield avenue, was arrested and gave $10 bail to insure his appearance before Judge DeMeza for trial this morning. He neglected to put in an appearance and hence the $10 bail was ordered forfeited.

SUFFERING MEMORY LAPSE; WOMAN IS FOUND ON ROAD

While driving his car to this city shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, William Sachs, chauffeur for the Plainfield Transit Company, found an aged woman wandering aimlessly about a stretch of road near Watchung. Mr. Sachs was coming to this city from Sterling and brought the woman to the local police headquarters.

Although she could remember little concerning herself Chief Kiely managed to learn from her rambling statements that she was Mrs. Catherine Froelich, the mother of Dr. J. C. Froelich, a Newark physician. The doctor was communicated with and he came here this morning and took her home. The woman had been visiting at Dr. Froelich's summer home near Bernardsville and wandered away early this morning.

DEATH OF AGED 'PLAINS WOMAN AT WESTFIELD

Mrs. Adelia A. Lyons, a resident of Scotch Plains for the last thirty years, died early this morning at the home of a niece, Mrs. Charles E. Smith, 523 Westfield avenue, Westfield. The funeral will be held tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Smith. The Rev. R. E. Marshall, pastor of the Scotch Plains Methodist Episcopal church, will have charge.

Mrs. Lyons was the widow of the late James C. Lyons, a Scotch Plains farmer, and was in her eighty-second year. She was born in this State and had lived at Westfield avenue and Forest road for many years. She was a member of the Scotch Plains Methodist church and a regular attendant until old age compelled her withdrawal from active work. She had been in ill health for some time and had been residing at the Westfield home of her niece.

There are no near relatives. Besides Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Lyons leaves another niece, Mrs. Thomas Clarkson, of Clinton avenue, Plainfield, and two nephews, Charles Moore, of Dunellen, and William Moore, of Jersey City.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

O. P. Crane, of Westervelt avenue has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Helen Elizabeth, to J. Wilbur Garretson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Garretson, of Somerville. Miss Crane is well known and popular among a large circle of acquaintances in this city. She was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1912 and during the succeeding year was assistant in the school's history department. Mr. Garretson is well known both here and in Somerville.

BICYCLE STOLEN.

Herman Ransome, of 418 West Fourth street, reported to the police Saturday night that his bicycle had been stolen from in front of Kresge's five and ten cent store on West Front street, Saturday afternoon. The police have been able to get no trace of the wheel as yet.

PLAINFIELD MEN FORM KILL-STAIN COMPANY

A certificate of incorporation of the Kill-Stain Company, of Plainfield, in which three local men are interested, was filed with the clerk of Union county today. The capital stock is $100,000, of which $15,000 is paid in. The capital is divided into 10,000 share of a par value of $100 each. J. L. Bennett, the West Front street grocer, is named as the agent. The incorporators are Mr. Bennett, Hallie G. Morris and George A. Beattie, all of this city. The concern will manufacture and market a patented stain.

TWO MINDS THAT DID AS ONE.

When Dr. Anna Shaw and Miss Anthony Lectured Together.

Writing of her lectures for suffrage with Susan B. Anthony, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw says in the Metropolitan Magazine:

We traveled and lectured together so constantly that each of us developed an almost uncanny knowledge of the other's mental processes. At any point of either's lecture the other could pick it up and carry it on—a fortunate condition, as it sometimes became necessary to do this. Miss Anthony was subject to contractions of the throat, which for the moment caused a slight strangulation. On such occasions—of which there were several—she would turn to me and indicate her helplessness. Then I would repeat her last sentence, complete her speech and afterward make my own.

The first time this happened we were in Washington, and Aunt Susan stopped in the middle of a word. She could not speak; she merely motioned to me to continue for her and left the stage. At the end of the evening a prominent Washington man who had been in our audience remarked to me confidentially:

"That was a nice little play you and Miss Anthony made tonight—very effective indeed."

For an instant I did not catch his meaning or the implication in his knowing smile.

"Very clever, that strangling bit, and your going on with the speech," he repeated. "It hit the audience hard."

"Surely," I protested, "you don't think it was a deliberate thing—that we planned or rehearsed it?"

He stared at me incredulously.

"Are you going to pretend," he demanded, "that it wasn't a put up job?"

I told him he had paid us a high compliment and that we must really have done very well if we had conveyed that impression, and I finally convinced him that we not only had not rehearsed the episode, but that neither of us had known what the other meant to say. We never wrote out our speeches, but our subject was always suffrage or some ramification of suffrage, and naturally we had thoroughly digested each other's views.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. George Cole and Miss Annie Scheelein, of of the Bristol, 102 Central avenue, are spending some time at Richmond Hill, Long Island.

Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, of Central avenue, left today to spend the month of August in Maine.

Howard Firstbrook, of George street, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation from his duties in the engineering department of the Public Service Corporation.

AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION.

A collision between two automobiles at Park avenue and Seventh street last night resulted in both cars being damaged. The headlights on one car were smashed, while the other, a Buick touring car, came out of the collision with a wheel broken and a mudguard twisted out of shape. The latter car is at the Thompson Garage, on Park avenue, undergoing repairs. The account was not reported to the police.

LAWN FESTIVAL.

St. Mary's Social Club will hold a lawn festival and dance tomorrow evening on the spacious lawn in front of the T. A. B. Hall, on West Fourth street. Festivities will begin at 8 o'clock and refreshments will be served throughout the evening.

Old Time Cider Drinkers.

A century or so ago enormous quantities of cider were consumed in England, more particularly in the cider districts, where the drink is still popular. In his Cambridge reminiscences Henry Gunning says that in 1788, when he was a tutor in Herefordshire, he witnessed some extraordinary feats in cider drinking. Farm laborers were allowed to drink as much as they liked, and it was not unusual "for a man to put his lips to a wooden bottle containing four quarts and not remove them until he had emptied it." — London Spectator.

Cape of Good Hope.

In 1487 Bartholomew Diaz sailed far enough south along the western coast of Africa not only to descry but to double the cape of Storms, as it was then called, and as the coast was ascertained to run toward the northeast the prospect of success in the direction of India seemed now so clear that the Portuguese monarch renamed the cape "Cabo de Bon Esperanza," or Cape of Good Hope. The "good hope" was realized in 1498 by Vasco da Gama, who, doubling the southernmost point of Africa, sailed on to Calicut, thus opening up the long dreamed of route to India.

You need not keep "on your hands," to your present disadvantage, any real estate that is "good enough to advertise."

THAW BEAMS ON A CURIOUS CROWD

Philadelphia, July 19—Harry K. Thaw positively beamed upon a curious crowd in the Broad Street station for ten minutes this morning before his train left for Pittsburgh at 8:42 o'clock. For the first time since he arrived here he had drawn a crowd, totalling about 150 persons, including commuters, train hands, newsboys, policemen, detectives and newspaper men.

The passage of Thaw from the Bellevue Stratford to Broad Street station and into his train through gate No. 13 resembled a triumphal procession. On one side walked his secretary, on the other his detective body guard. Behind in solid phalanx came the New York newspapermen, shouldering aside all who pressed about to get a nearer look at the chief figure of the celebration.

From time to time pedestrians would recognize Thaw, and, gazing at him with wide eyes, would cry: "There goes Harry Thaw."

Each time this happened Thaw raised his right hand and gave a genial wave. When a woman happened to be among the spectators Thaw would raise his hat and bow courteously. Inside the Broad Street station Thaw did not get a single chance to put on his hat until he had landed in his drawing room.

When Thaw arose this morning shortly before 7 o'clock, he seemed a bit piqued. There was no crowd in the lobby of the hotel. No one noticed him until he had been surrounded by his guard of newspaper men.

BAPTIST OUTDOOR SERVICES ATTRACT MANY WORSHIPPERS

The outdoor service conducted by the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, was unusually interesting and was attended by a large number of members and friends. "To This End Was I Born," was the subject of a splendid sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, and the closest attention of the congregation was held from beginning to end.

The musical portion of the meeting included a service of song by the congregation, anthems by the choir and a solo, "Angels Ever Bright and Fair," from Handel's "Messiah," sung by Irving Manley.

TWO DROWN AT ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, July 19—For the second time in twenty-four hours a boy drowned here yesterday by falling off a dock into Staten Island Sound. John Rayuneles, Jr., 9, of 71 Bond street, was the one who tumbled to his death yesterday, and Daniel Boyle, 14, of 40 Third street, was the victim on Saturday. Rayuneles' body was discovered a few hours after the mishap. Boyle's body has not been found. Rayuneles fell off a Central Railroad dock and Boyle off the New York and New Jersey steamship dock.

MAY SAVE HIS EYESIGHT.

Oliver Hill, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, who met with a serious accident on July 5 which threatened the loss of his eyesight through an explosion of a flower pot, is reported to be improved and physicians, it is said, now have some hopes of saving Mr. Hill's sight. The injury to one eye was greater than the other.

Vistula defences. In the section designated as north of the Vistula to the Pilica, Berlin reports the Russians in retreat on Warsaw.

Last night's official statement from Petrograd admits the German advance toward Riga. Between the Vistula and the western Bug the battle attained its greatest intensity on Saturday and heavy attacks by the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. In the direction of Lublin the Austro-Germans delivered attacks along the whole front, chiefly concentrating their efforts on Wilkolaz and in the district of Wieere. In the course of the day the Russians repulsed ten attacks.

HOPE CHAPEL RETAINS LEAGUE LEAD; SAURER DEFEAT CAME AS THE SURPRISE OF THE DAY; BAPTISTS AGAIN FALL ONE SHORT

Hopes, Tabs and Netherwoods Figuring Closely for the Championship.

The results of Saturday's games indicate that there is going to be a three-fold race for the pennant, with the Hopes, the Tabs and the Netherwoods as members of the "Triple Entente." The defeat of the Saurer team was the surprise of the day, while the splendid exhibition staged by the Tabs and the Clinton Avenues was the feature of the week-end encounters. The contest indulged in by the Baptists and the Chapelites was another close one, with the issue always in doubt. As usual, the Baptists fell victims to hard luck.

Jack Denny adorned the hillock for the Tabs and was touched for six hits, three of which were obtained with one down in the ninth inning. Beny Roseason twirled for the Clintons and was reached for only six hits, which, unluckily for Benny, were bunched. Gleason got his bumps, while the Baptist twirler pitched fairly well. Dick Schott maintained his title of best flinger in the league by allowing only four hits.

The Hopes are still perched on the top rung of the ladder with the Tabs but a game behind, while Coughlin's crew is but a lap back of the Abstainers.

A team that is not to be counted out of the race is the Clinton Avenue nine, which has put up the best brand of ball of all the contenders, but which, like the Baptists, has been in too close companionship with hard luck. It is to be lamented that the Baptists look to be out of the running, while the Saurer outfit, if it persists in giving exhibitions of the same brand as put forth Saturday, may have the honor of supporting the league when the race is run.

JIMMY NASH GETS HIS BAT WORKING

Temple University Assists Dutch Schott in Winning for Hope.

The City League baseball leaders met and defeated the cellarites Saturday in a very close and well-played game, the score of which was 6 to 5. Dick Schott, of the winning Hope team, allowed his opponents only four hits, while he and his mates reached Patterson, of First Baptist, for twice that number. The Baptists started out well, getting two tallies in the first frame, one in the second and two in the fourth. Thereafter they remained idle as far as runs were concerned.

Nash and Tommie Heron cracked the pill hardest for the winners, the former batting 1.000 and the latter .500 for the day. All of the hits made off Schott were doubles and figured prominently in the run getting. Seventeen men bit the dust during the fray, Schott humiliating nine and Patterson eight.

DENNY'S FINE STABS SAVED TAB'S HIDE

Rally by Clinton Avenue in the Ninth Fell One Run Short.

In a game marked by brilliant plays and timely hitting the Tabs downed the Clinton Avenues, Saturday, on West End Field, the score being 3 to 2. Up until the ending of the ninth the Avenue boys had nary a run and had registered only three hits off the delivery of Jack Denny, who, however, blew up in the ninth and was reached for three taps, good for two runs and, perhaps more, had not Tone Denny come across with his sixth great catch of the day.

Tone made three running catches and two standing stabs that were as sure hits as ever were walloped. McCarty, Miller and Hendry made several sensational catches during the fray, too, but Tone Denny was the individual star in this respect. Brennan, Apgar and Rosenson were the clouters of the day, getting two safeties apiece.

GIANT DIDN'T LOOK VERY BIG TO THEM

Netherwoods Clout "Babe" Gleason's Offerings for a Win.

Away went Saurer's pennant hopes and along with them Gleason's "rep" when the Netherwoods trimmed Martin's boys Saturday, to the tune of 15 runs to 4. Seventeen hits were garnered off the "Big Babe's" delivery, while Russ Stewart allowed only six hits. Lou Slocum, Jack Wilson, Matty Coughlin, Earle Moran and Bill Dodd were the heavy hitters of the day.

Bases on balls were prominent during the contest, each pitcher issuing seven free tickets. Henry Alberts tapped out a triple but he failed to hit when he approached the plate at other stages of the game. Netherwood players stole bases at will, pilfering ten sacks on Alberts.

HOLDERS RETAIN OFFICERS' MEDAL

W. P. Taylor and W. H. Nischwitz Defeat Dr. Carroll and J. A. Wilson.

Despite the intense heat on Saturday there was a good sized field out at the Park Golf Club to take part in the scheduled events. Dr. H. K. Carroll and J. A. Wilson, challengers, defeated W. P. Taylor and W. H. Nischwitz, holders, for the Officers' Medal, the winning pair being 3 up and 2 to play at the end of the eighteenth hole.

The leading scores for the President's cup were as follows:

R. G. Campbell, 89, 21-68; W. H. Nischwitz, 89, 20-69; W. P. Taylor, 80, 9-71; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 85, 13-72; H. E. Blazier, 84, 9-75; J. A. Wilson, 98, 16-82; Clarence J. Hand, 109, 19-90.

HITS, WHEN HITS MEANT RUNS, WON THIS CONTEST

The Queen City B. B. C. defeated the White Sox at Crescent Oval, yesterday, by the score of 4 to 1. The victory of the Queens was the third in as many weeks, Houston adorning the mound on all three occasions. Boos and Dodd composed the Sox battery while Houston and Marsh were in the points for the winners.

Eddie McNee was the star of the whole fray, batting 1.000, fielding errorlessly and stealing bases at will. The game was not a heavy hitting affair but when the winners connected with the pill, there was always someone on the bags.

MATTERS WERE MIXED.

The game scheduled to be played at Parker Field Saturday, between the Royal Giants and the All Stars was not played owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the All Star management.

RECORD-BREAKER OFF.

Boston, July 19.—Norman S. Taber, of the Boston Athletic Association, who Friday set a new world's record of 4 minutes 12 3-5 seconds for the mile run, arranged Saturday to leave for San Francisco in order to become fully acclimated for the Panama Exposition games next month. He will be accompanied by his trainer, Edward O'Connor, of Worcester. Friends of Taber stated Saturday that the champion would make an effort while on the coast to shatter the half-mile record of 1 minute 52½ seconds, held by J. E. Meredith, of the University of Pennsylvania.

BOY TO TRY FOR TITLE.

Bobby Shealy, of Chicago, is only fifteen years old, but he is going to compete in the Western amateur golf championship tournament, which begins in Cleveland tomorrow. And, what is more, there are many in Chicago who believe the boy will finish among the leaders. Shealy will represent the Garfield Golf Club, an organization which uses the Garfield Park links. Its members are paying Shealy's expenses.

STURGIS WINS WESTFIELD GOLF.

Westfield, July 19.—W. Sturgis beat L. J. Dietz, 3 up and 2 to play, in the second round of the handicap competition at the links of the Westfield Golf Club, Saturday afternoon. The result of this match places Sturgis against R. S. Gales and Bert Clemens versus F. S. Slater in the semi-finals, which will be played during the coming week.

SECOND CLUB TITLE FOR BILL SCHOOLEY

Former Plainfielder Hangs up Notable Victory at Newark.

William Schooley, formerly of Plainfield, New Jersey State and Newark hurry-scurry champion, and with William Burtt, his doubles partner, holder of the Newark tandem record and title, Saturday won the championship of the Tuscarora Canoe Club by scoring fourteen points in the annual handicap regatta of the Branch Brook organization. Schooley won the hurry-scurry event, was first over the line in the club fours, second in the singles and fourth, with Burtt, in the doubles. It was his second consecutive victory in the club championship contest, which he won last year with room to spare.

The events were witnessed by a crowd much larger than usual, nearly 4,000 persons lining the banks and crowding about the concrete steps off which the races finished. The enjoyment of the regatta was increased by a band concert, which relieved the monotony of the waits between races. When the rainstorm broke the crowd scurried for shelter which was provided by the covered bandstand, the several pagodas and the Park avenue bridge.

The hurry-scurry race, which is Schooley's specialty, was the usual splashy scramble. Schooley's craftiness gave him a slight advantage of the other three scratch men, Stephens, Rohiffs and Harrison, and he won from the latter, who put up a splendid battle and finished second. Rohiffs lost time boarding his shell and was unable to do better than third, while Ennis, who needed only a second place to tie Schooley for the all-around, was short on speed in the swim and lost valuable time hauling up his anchor.

QUAKERS TASTE DEFEAT ON GARWOOD DIAMOND

The Quakers, of this city, were defeated in Garwood, Saturday, in a six-inning encounter, the score of which was 4 to 3. Rain prevented the continuation of the fray, making it impossible for the locals to overcome the small lead. DeCamp was on the mound for the local team, with Vail doing the backstop work. Hesserling shot them over for the Garwoods and had a deaf mute, Smith, as a battery mate.

A return game has been booked with the out-of-town aggregation. The Rahway Juniors, the Y. M. C. Juniors, of Garwood, and the Garwood Juniors have also been booked to appear here at either Parker Field or Crescent Oval.

CASE GETS NO-HIT, NO-RUN DECISION AT FLEMINGTON

Flemington, July 19.—Lambertville defeated Flemington here Saturday afternoon, 12 to 0. It was the formal opening of Flemington's new baseball park and a large crowd witnessed the contest. The score:

HITS SAFE IN 45 GAMES.

San Francisco, July 19.—Jack Ness, first baseman for Oakland, landed a safe hit in the fourth inning of the Coast League game Saturday between Oakland and Salt Lake, again setting a new world's record by hitting safely in forty-five consecutive games.

WOLGAST MATCHED TO FIGHT.

Duluth, Minn., July 19—Ad Wolgast will meet Joe Welling, the Chicago lightweight, here August 6, in the opening bout under the new Minnesota boxing law. Signed articles were received from Wolgast. Welling signed some time ago. The bout will be ten rounds at 138 pounds, at 4 o'clock.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE GOLFERS' ANNUAL MEETING ENDS IN A DEADLOCK

The Plainfield Country Club played its first team match of the season with the Somerville Country Club, at the later place Saturday afternoon, the match being a draw, 13 to 13. It was previously understood that if Plainfield won the match, the Somerville team would play a return date in this city, but inasmuch as neither team won there is a question as to the place of the next match.

The Nassau system was used, the golfers playing in pairs. C. E. Lipscomp and W. M. Alling, W. T. Kaufman and E. B. Shoemaker, Leighton Calkins and T. S. Wheeler, E. A. Lyon and H. H. Craig, did practically all the scoring for Plainfield, each pair getting three points, while R. S. Rowland and S. D. Lounsbery secured one point.

During the afternoon "Marty" O'Loughlin, the Plainfield "pro," met Goeble, the Somerville "pro," in a match for a purse subscribed by the members of the two teams. Goeble won with a score of 81 to O'Loughlin's 80. The summary of the team match:

Plainfield—W. Lester Glenney and O. H. Fleming, 0; R. S. Rowland and S. D. Lounsbery, 1; W. H. Rogers and H. D. Hibbard, 0; J. R. Shoemaker and Morris J Dumont, 0; G. F. Shoemaker and H. R. Stockton, 0; S. H. Patterson and J. E. Erickson, 0; Charles A. Reed and E. T. Wilson, 0; C. E. Lipscomb and W. M. Alling, 3; William T. Kaufman and E. B. Shoemaker, 3; Leighton Calkins and T. S. Wheeler, 3; E. A. Lyon and H. H. Craig, 3; total, 13.

Somerville — R. Howard and Wright, 3; Freeman and C. Howard, 0; Southwick and McHose, 2; Barcalow and Bergen, 3; Griggs and Lynch, 3; Noble and W. Howard, 1; Mets, Jr., and McClure, 1; Mack and Vosseller, 0; Latourette and Miller, 0; Ammerman and Field, 0; Gaston and Beekman, 0; total, 13.

The point-winners for the Golf Committee Cup at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, were as follows:

Morris J. Dumont, 88, 12-76; Burnett C. Kenyon, 93, 16-77; H. H. Craig, 99, 16-83; D. H. Rowland, 102, 19-83.

ROD AND REEL

One of the hottest days we ever spent on the water was that of yesterday. It was boiling and the water was so hot the fish refused to hunt food. There were more zeros in the catches of weakfish than has been the case for a long time. We went to East Point, just north of Keansburg, about noon and there wasn't a boat on the fishing grounds. The white buoy that marks the anchorage grounds on the Staten Island shore was popular, as fully one hundred boats were anchored there.

Bert Littell fished in Staten Island Sound yesterday and came back with a dozen weaks. According to the local angler the fish, for some reason or other, are not biting as well as they should at this time of the year and the results of recent trips have not been altogether encouraging. The ones landed, however, are of good size and indicate that the fish are not scarce but that there is something about the water that is keeping them from taking the bait.

Ephraim Conklin and Bert Chamberlain spent yesterday at Sea Bridge Point, where they caught twenty-nine weakfish and one eel.

EASTERN TENNIS TEAM THAT IS BATTLING FOR EXPOSITION HONORS

San Francisco, July 19—Eastern tennis men escaped a shut-out in the special East versus West tennis singles here yesterday, when Dean Mathey, of Princeton, downed Thomas Bundy, of Los Angeles, in a hard five-set match.

Maurice E. McLoughlin defeated R. Norris Williams, of Harvard, national champion by virtue of his defeat of McLoughlin last year, and John R. Strachan outplayed W. M. Washburn, of Harvard, and William Johnston won from G. M. Church, of Princeton. Their results, coupled with a twin win in doubles Friday, gave the Californians the tourney, five matches to one.

fishing near the Red Buoy, registered a catch of thirty-seven weakfish.

H. R. Chamberlain caught thirty weakfish, the scene of his sport being Ackons' Dock.

TENNIS ECHOES FROM THE WATCHUNG HILLS

Rival Knights of the Racquet Perform in Match Events.

A very interesting and exciting tennis tournament was played on the tennis courts at Sunbright Farms on Saturday afternoon between teams from Stirling and Watchung. Ladies' singles, men's singles, mixed doubles, men's doubles and ladies' doubles were participated in and each time Watchung came out the victor.

Those who represented the Stirling team were the Misses Frazer and Hermann, Mr. Hermann and Mr. and Mrs. Homan. Those who represented the home team were the Misses Winifred Eaton, Helen Y. Hughes and Elsie F. Schmidt, and William de LaR. Anderson, Arthur Meyers, Douglas W. Demler and Rev. Mebane Ramsay.

At the close of the tournament the Watchung team and its friends tendered a picnic supper to its guests on the Improvement Society's picnic grounds. The picnic menu was enjoyed by about forty people and after the picnic supper they gathered about the camp fire to sing songs and tell stories.

GOTCHA STEVE!

In a note received at this office today, probably coming from the manager or scorer of the Netherwood or Saurer team, it is suggested that the City League umpires be supplied with field glasses. This idea may be considered worthy of comment at tonight's meeting of the City League.

"Want ad publicity" is the solution —when work-finding becomes a serious matter with you.

FORMER PETS DO WELL FOR TRI-COUNTY LEAGUE TEAM

The Hackettstown baseball team maintained its lead in the Tri-County League, yesterday, by scoring a victory at the expense of the humble Dover team, the score of the conflict being 9 to 1. Several former members of the now extinct Plainfield Pets performed for the winners and all figured most prominently in the Hackettstown victory.

Wally Cosgrove, Swanson, Clinton and Bill Stallings hammered the pill hardest. Stallings poled out a four-base clout and Cosgrove clouted out a double. Only four bingles were obtained off the delivery of Jimmy Clinton.

GOULLET BEATS KRAMER BY AN INCH IN TWO-MILE

In one of the closest finishes witnessed at the Newark Velodrome this season, if not in years, Alfred Goullet, the light-haired Australian, led Frank Kramer, the national champion, over the tape in the two-mile title race yesterday afternoon, winning by what looked to be not more than an inch. It was a wonderfully close finish, and no one really knew who crossed the line first until the mechanical judge had been consulted. This instrument gave the verdict to Goullet. Thousands of fans did not "see" the result as given, thinking that Kramer had won, and there was much hissing and booing when the winner was announced.

To many it appeared that the worst Kramer should have been handed was a dead heat, while many at the tape conceded Kramer to be the victor. Alfred Grenda, the elongated pedal pusher from the Antipodes, was third over the line, about a length behind, while Bob Spears was a poor fourth. There did not seem to be anything "phony" about the race, and the teaming, which has been so flagrant in the last few weeks, was conspicuous by its absence.

JUNIOR VAULT TITLE CAPTURED BY RUNYON

Plainfield Boy Wins A. A. U. Event With Ease in New York.

Ralph Runyon, the only local competitor in the junior track and field championships of the Metropolitan Association, held Saturday at Schenectady, N. Y., carried off first honors in the pole vaulting event. Runyon competed against a large field, but jumped six inches higher than his nearest opponent, R. L. Storm, of Albany, whose vault was 10 feet 6 inches. Runyon's victory makes him the champion junior metropolitan polt vaulter.

The N. Y. A. C. was the first in the number of points scored, while the Pastime A. C., under whose colors the local lad competed, annexed only six points.

JONES SPRINGS ONE ON THE TAB OUTFIT

New Baseball Club Takes the Measure of City League Talent.

By bunching their hits at times when errors by their opponents were plentiful, Jones' Plainfield A. A. easily defeated the Tabs at Avon Oval, yesterday. Tone Denny and Eddie Conshay started the twirling for their respective teams but each complained of a sore arm and retired before the contest had progressed far. Brennan relieved Denny and Lou Brown took Conshay's place.

Miller and Benny Rosenson were the fielding stars of the day, although Miller is credited with two errors. Harry Moulton and Tone Denny were the long-distance clouters, each registering a double.

CLIFF RANDOLPH ALLOWED ONLY THREE HITS AT AMBOY

Cliff Randolph, the local hurler, pitched the Perth Amboy Pacers to a 3 to 1 victory over the Franklins, of the same city, yesterday. Randolph allowed only two hits and deserved a shutout victory, but three errors on the part of his team-mates made this impossible. He held his opponents scoreless after the first frame and was master of the situation at all times. Applegate, twirler for the losers, was reached for twelve hits, but these were bunched only in the fifth frame. The score by innings:

DUNELLEN TENNIS STARS RETURNED WITH A VICTORY

A team from the Crescent Tennis Club, of Dunellen, went to Hasbrouck Heights, on Saturday afternoon, to accept a challenge of the Hasbrouck Heights A. C.

After three hard-fought matches the Crescents returned home with the scalps of the Hasbrouck's best warriors fastened to their bolts. The local team was composed of Ritterbusch, Fedderman, Westcott, Bender and Daly.

The challenge called for five matches, three singles and two doubles, but rain prevented the carrying out of the full program. When forced by the rain to discontinue Bender had defeated the champion singles player of the Hasbroucks by scores of 6-2, 6-4, and Westcott and Fedderman had disposed of their opponents best doubles team to the tune of 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. In order not to appear discourteous Ritterbusch and Daly permitted the Hasbroucks to win one match, the scores being 6-2, 6-2.

SPORT BRIEFS

Arthur Lovibond and Harry Steinkampf won the doubles trophy of the Woodmere Club's annual tennis tournament yesterday.

In final round of the invitation tennis tournament of the Country Club, of Westchester, N. Y., Carl Behr defeated Leonard Beekman in straight sets at 6-4, 6-3.

Frank Kramer and Caesar Moretti to meet in match bicycle race at nine heats at Sheepshead Bay Velodrome tomorrow evening.

Johnny Dundee and Jose Rivers to box ten rounds at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow evening.

Charles White, of Chicago, and Ted Lewis, of England, meet in main bout of ten rounds at the St. Nicholas A. C., New York, Wednesday night.

At the Far Rockaway A. A., Friday evening, Frankies Burns and Jimmy Murphy, two New York bantamweights, will box ten rounds.

HARNEY DEFEATED.

P. Harney twirled for the Kirkman A. C. at Sea Cliff, Saturday, and was defeated by the Sea Cliff A. C., the score of the conflict being 9 to 3. Twelve hits were annexed off the delivery of Harney and Dunn, the man who succeeded him, while the Soap Boys got only five bingles.

HE'S DOING WONDERFUL WORK AT HELM FOR BROOKLYN NATIONALS

Wilbur Robinson.

Brooklyn, July 19—One of the most remarkable spurts seen in the baseball world is that of the Brooklyn Nationals. During a couple of weeks, by virtue of their wonderful playing, they jumped into third place, ready to take a whack at the Cincinnati Reds, seemingly trying to dig a way into the cellar occupied by the Boston Braves. If Brooklyn were to hold up this kind of work, Wilbur Robinson, formerly of the Giants, but now manager of the Brooklyns, would accomplish what no manager for years has done—make Brooklyn a winning team.

DEFENSE LEAGUE STARTS A CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 19.—Congress should appropriate for one hundred submarines at the next session, according to a statement issued here today by the National Defense League.

"A recent account, widely printed by the press, that the General Navy Board will recommend appropriations for at least thirty submarines and that these will be included in the naval estimates to be sent to the next Congress by Secretary Daniels, is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough," according to the League's statement.

"We must make provision for more than three times that number of undersea boats," declares the statement.

The League has launched a campaign throughout the country to arouse public sentiment for one hundred submarines in the next naval bill. It will agitate the question of an adequate number of submarines until Congress convenes next December.

In this campaign the League will have the support of powerful members of Congress. A letter received by the League today from Representative William D. Stephens, of Los Angeles, Cal., who has recently been in the Hawaiian Islands investigating the defenses of Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, said that Mr. Stephens will demand at the next Congress appropriations for one hundred submarines. The California Congressman's letter bears great weight because he is one of the leading members of the house Naval Affairs Committee and was largely responsible at the last Congress in forcing an increase in the number of submarines appropriated for from eight to sixteen, the number in the last naval bill, Secretary Daniels having recommended eight of the boats, but Congress, largely through the efforts of Mr. Stephens and other Congressmen who are members of the League, doubling that number. Mr. Stephens wrote from Honolulu:

"I am more than ever convinced that the United States should have another hundred submarines, at least fifty of them stationed on the Pacific Coast, more battleships, and several battle cruisers, besides a sufficient number of auxiliary vessels."

"The United States now has a total of seventy submarines, built or building, but many of those now in commission are obsolete and practically worthless. If Congress will provide at the next session 100 new submarines, with the submarines now authorized, or building, with those that are in commission which are really efficient and seawothy, the Navy will then have a fleet of approximately 150 undersea boats that will be ample to protect the Atlantic and Pacific Coast lines, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and the Panama Canal," is the assertion of the League.

"While most of the new submarines should be coast and harbor defense vessels a suitable proportion should be sea-going craft with a cruising radius of at least 3,000 miles, a radius large enough to enable the boats to be shifted from coast line to coast line, through the Panama Canal, and from the Pacific Coast to Alaska or Hawaii under their own power."

LLOYD GEORGE—THE MAN.

Being by profession a solicitor, it is scarcely surprising to learn that Mr. Lloyd George takes a keen interest in criminal cases. He will follow the evidence of a big murder trial very closely, and will afterwards describe to you, in course of conversation, what questions he would have put to the witnesses and what verdict he would have given if he had been in the jury.

I once asked him, "Were you fond of the law?" "I was fond of advocacy," he replied, "and, on the whole, the six years during which I practised were very happy, although," he said, reflectively, "I do not know whether I should care to resume my professional labors. I had one serious drawback—I never sent in any bills of costs. The result was I never had any money. But when my brother joined me in practice things improved in that respect. I must confess, however, that I hated the office work."

Some time ago a friend had been descanting to him upon the enormous quantity of margarine which is consumed. A few weeks afterward the following conversation took place.

Mr. Lloyd George: "I sent for some of your margarine the other day."

The Friend: "How did you like it?"

Mr. Lloyd George: "Well, it seemed all right, but somehow I did not feel that I was doing the right thing."

The Friend: "I suppose you thought you were robbing the poor cow of her living?"

Mr. Lloyd George: "Yes. Having been brought up in the country I regard the cow as a sacred animal." —From the August Strand Magazine.

TENNIS UP-TO-DATE.

"Tennis has lost the reputation of being a pink-tea, handkerchief-in-the-sleeve, deah-old-Algy sort of affair, and has come to be recognized as spirited, red-blooded, fast. People thought its chief ingredient was milk-and-water; now they know it is ginger.

"True, aggressive net play is almost as old as the game itself. Back in the eighties the Renshaws were furious volleyers, and since their day volleying has been a recognized part of tennis. But it was not until ten years ago, about the time that Holcombe Ward treated the British at Wimbledon to a spectacular (though unsuccessful) exhibition of rushing-in tactics, that the public began to appreciate the possibilities that lay in the game. The style of play that was the exception at the beginning of the century is now an every-day sight. And the advent of McLoughlin, who combines dash and wonderful skill with a peculiarly engaging manner on the court, gave the finishing touch to the education of the public upon the real character of present-day tennis."—Louis Graves, in the August Century.

CHAPTER VI.

In Camp.

FOR several miles they rode upward through golden forests of aspens. On either hand rose thick walls of snow white boles, and in the mystic glow of their gilded leaves the face of the girl shone with unearthly beauty.

Twice she stopped to gaze into Wayland's face to say, with hushed intensity: "Isn't it wonderful? Don't you wish it would last forever?"

Her words were poor, ineffectual, but her look, her breathless voice, made up for their lack of originality. Once she said: "I never saw it so lovely before. It is an enchanted land!" with no suspicion that the larger part of her ecstasy arose from the presence of her young and sympathetic companion. He, too, responded to the beauty of the day, of the golden forest as one who had taken new hold on life after long illness.

Meanwhile the supervisor was calmly leading the way upward, vaguely conscious of the magical air and mystic landscape in which his young folk floated as if on wings, thinking busily of the improvements which were still necessary in the trail and weighing with care the clouds which still lingered upon the tallest summits, as if debating whether to go or to stay. He had never been an imaginative soul, and now that age had somewhat dimmed his eyes and blunted his senses he was placidly content with his path. The rapture of the lover, the song of the poet, had long since abandoned his heart. And yet he was not completely oblivious. To him it was a nice day, but a "weather breeder."

"Don't you wish it would last forever?"

"I wonder if I shall ever ride through this mountain world as unmoved as he seems to be?" Norcross asked himself after some jarring prosaic remark from his chief. "I am glad Berrie responds to it."

At last they left these lower, wondrous forest aisles and entered the unbroken cloak of firs whose dark and silent deeps had a stern beauty all their own.

The horses began to labor with roaring breath. A dozen times he thought, "We must be nearly at the top," and then other and far higher ridges suddenly developed. Occasionally the supervisor was forced to unsling an ax and chop his way through a fallen tree, and each time the student hurried to the spot, ready to aid, but was quite useless.

"One of the first essentials of a ranger's training is to learn to swing an ax," remarked McFarlane, "and you never want to be without a real tool. I won't stand for a hatchet ranger."

The sky was overshadowed now and a thin drizzle of rain filled the air. The novice hastened to throw his raincoat over his shoulders, but McFarlane rode steadily on, clad only in his shirt sleeves, unmindful of the wet. Berrie, however, approved Wayland's caution. "That's right; keep dry," she called back. "Don't pay attention to father, he'd rather get soaked any day than unroll his slicker. You mustn't take him for a model yet awhile."

He no longer resented her sweet solicitude, although he considered himself unentitled to it, and he rejoiced under the shelter of his fine new coat. He began to perceive that one could be defended against a storm.

After passing two depressing marshes, they came to a hillside so steep, so slippery, so dark, so forbidding, that one of the pack horses balked, shook his head and reared furiously, as if to say, "I can't do it, and I won't try." And Wayland sympathized with him. The forest was gloomy and cold and apparently endless.

After coaxing him for a time with admirable gentleness, the supervisor, at Berrie's suggestion, shifted part of the load to her own saddle horse, and they went on.

Wayland, though incapable of comment, so great was the demand upon his lungs, was not too tired to admire the power and resolution of the girl, who seemed not to suffer any special inconvenience from the rarefied air. The dryness of his open mouth, the throbbing of his troubled pulse, the roaring of his breath, brought to him with increasing dismay the fact that he had overlooked another phase of the ranger's job. "I couldn't chop a hole through one of these windfalls in a week," he admitted, as McFarlane's blade again liberated them from a fallen tree.

He was beginning to be hungry also—he had eaten a very early breakfast—and he fell to wondering just where and when they were to camp, but he endured in silence. "So long as Berrie makes no complaint my mouth is shut," he told himself. "Surely I can stand it if she can." And so struggled on.

Up and up the pathway looped, crossing minute little boggy meadows on whose bottomless ooze the grass shook like a blanket, descending ravines and climbing back to dark and muddy slopes. The forest was dripping, green and silent now—a mysterious menacing jungle.

"I'm glad I'm not riding this pass alone," Wayland said as they paused again for breath.

"So am I," she answered, but her thought was not his. She was happy at the prospect of teaching him how to camp.

At last they reached the ragged edge of timber line, and there, rolling away under the mist, lay the bare, grassy, upward climbing naked neck of the great peak. The wind had grown keener moment by moment, and when they left the storm twisted pines below its breath had a wintry nip. The rain had ceased to fall, but the clouds still hung densely to the loftiest summits. It was a sinister yet beautiful world—a world as silent as a dream, and through the short, thick grass the slender trail ran like a timid serpent.

"Now we're on the divide," called Berea, and as she spoke they seemed to enter upon a boundless Alpine plain of velvet russet grass. "This is the Bear Tooth plateau." Low monuments of loose rock stood on small ledges, as though to mark the course, and in the hollows dark ponds of icy water lay, half surrounded by masses of compact snow.

"This is a stormy place in winter," McFarlane explained. "These piles of stone are mighty valuable in a blizzard. I've crossed this divide in August in snow so thick I could not see a rod."

Half an hour later they began to descend. Wind twisted, storm bleached dwarf pines were first to show, then the firs, then the blue green spruces, and then the sheltering deeps of the undespoiled forest opened, and the roar of a splendid stream was heard. But still the supervisor kept his resolute way, making no promises as to dinner, though his daughter called: "We'd better go into camp at Beaver lake. I hope you're not starved," she called to Wayland.

"But I am," he replied so frankly that she never knew how faint he really was. His knees were trembling with weakness, and he stumbled dangerously as he trod the loose rocks in the path.

They were all afoot now descending swiftly, and the horses romped down the trail with expectant haste, so that in less than an hour from timber line they were back into the sunshine of the lower valley, and at 3 o'clock or thereabouts they came out upon the bank of an exquisite lake, and with a cheery shout McFarlane called out, "Here we are, out of the wilderness!" Then to Wayland, "Well, boy, how did you stand it?"

"Just middling," replied Wayland, reticent from weariness and with joy of their camping place.

With businesslike certitude Berrie unsaddled her horse, turned him loose and lent a skillful hand at removing the panniers from the pack animals, while Wayland, willing, but a little uncertain, stood awkwardly about. Under her instruction he collected dead branches of a standing fir, and from these a few cones kindled a blaze, while the supervisor hobbled the horses and set the tent.

One by one the principles of camping were taught by the kindly old rancher, but the hints which the girl gave were quite as valuable, for Wayland was eager to show her that he could be and intended to be a forester of the first class or perish in the attempt.

McFarlane went further and talked freely of the forest and what it meant to the government. "We're all green at the work," he said, "and we old chaps are only holding the fort against the thieves till you youngsters learn how to make the best use of the domain."

Berrie was glowing with happiness. "Let's stay here till the end of the week," she suggested. "I've always wanted to camp on this lake, and now I'm here I want time to enjoy it."

"We'll stay a day or two," said her father, "but I must get over to that ditch survey which is being made at the head of Poplar, and then Moore is coming over to look at some timber on Porcupine."

The young people cut willow rods and went angling at the outlet of the lake with prodigious success. The water rippled with trout, and in half an hour they had all they could use for supper and breakfast, and, behold, even as they were returning with their spoil they met a covey of grouse strolling leisurely down to the lake's edge. "Isn't it a wonderful place?" exclaimed the happy girl. "I wish we could stay a month."

"It's like being on the Swiss Family Robinson's island. I never was more content," he said fervently. "I wouldn't mind staying here all winter."

"I would!" she laughed. "The snow falls four feet deep up here. It's likely there's snow on the divide this minute, and camping in the snow isn't so funny. Some people got snowed in over at Deep lake last year, and nearly all their horses starved before they could get them out. This is a fierce old place in winter time."

As the sunset came on the young people again loitered down to the water's edge, and there, seated side by side on a rocky knoll, watched the phantom gold lift from the willows and climb slowly to the cliffs above, while the water deepened in shadow and busy muskrats marked its glossy surface with long silvery lines. Mischievous camp birds peered at the couple from the branches of the pines, uttering satirical comment, while squirrels, frankly insolent, dropped cones upon their heads and barked in saucy glee.

Wayland forgot all the outside world, forgot that he was studying to be a forest ranger, and was alive only to the fact that in this most bewitching place, in this most entrancing hour, he had the companionship of a girl whose eyes sought his with every new phase of the silent and wonderful scene which shifted before their eyes like a noiseless yet prodigious drama.

At last the girl rose. "It is getting dark. I must go back and get supper."

"We don't need any supper," he protested.

"Father does, and you'll be hungry before morning," she retorted, with sure knowledge of men.

He turned from the scene reluctantly, but once at the campfire cheerfully gave his best efforts to the work in hand, seconding Berrie's skill as best he could.

The trout, deliciously crisp, and some potatoes and batter cakes made a meal that tempted even his faint appetite, and when the dishes were washed and the towels hung out to dry deep night possessed even the high summit of stately Ptarmigan.

McFarlane then said, "I'll just take a little turn to see that the horses are all right, and then I think we'd better close in for the night."

When they were alone in the light of the fire Wayland turned to Berrie: "I'm glad you're here. It must be awesome to camp alone in a wilderness, and yet, I suppose, I must learn to do it."

"Yes, the ranger often has to camp alone, ride alone and work alone for weeks at a time," she assured him. "A good trailer don't mind a night trip any more than he does a day trip, or if he does he never admits it. Rain, snow, darkness, are all the same to him. Most of the boys are fifteen to forty miles from the postoffice."

He smiled ruefully. "I begin to have new doubts about this ranger business. It's a little more vigorous than I thought it was. Suppose a fellow breaks a leg on one of those high trails?"

"He mustn't!" she hastened to say. "He can't afford really to take reckless chances; but, then, father won't expect as much of you as he does of the old stagers. You'll have plenty of time to get used to it."

McFarlane upon his return gave some advice relating to the care of horses. "All this stock which is accustomed to a barn or a pasture will quit you," he warned. "Watch your broncbos. Put them on the outward side of your camp when you bed down and pitch your tent near the trail, then you will hear the brutes if they start back. Some men tie their stock all up, but I usually picket my saddle horse and hobble the rest."

It was a delightful hour for schooling, and Wayland would have been content to sit there till morning listening, but the air bit, and at last the supervisor asked: "Have you made your bed? If you have turn in. I shall get you out early tomorrow." As he saw the bed he added: "I see you've laid out a bed of boughs. That shows how eastern you are. We don't do that out here. It's too cold in this climate, and it's too much work. You want to lug the ground—if it's dry."

The weary youth went to his couch with a sense of timorous elation, for he never before slept beneath the open sky.

After the supervisor had rolled himself in the blanket, long after all sounds had ceased in the tent, there still remained for the youth a score of manifold excitations to wakefulness till at last he fell into an uneasy drowse.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

How Angry Those Animals Were!

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Animals That Made Up Verses.

"I THINK I must tell you a makeup story about the animals that made up verses," said daddy, "and about the animal which won.

"Of course this didn't really happen, but it's a pity it did not. You shall judge for yourselves.

"It happened out in the African jungle, where it is very hot. One day it was even hotter than usual, and the animals lay about and panted and just didn't know what to do. And then the monkey said:

"'I'll tell you what to do. Let us make up verses, and the one that makes up the best verse shall have a prize, anything that he wants that we can get for him.'

"The animals were very glad to have a contest of this kind, so they called upon Mr. Lion first to make his verse.

"And Mr. Lion, with his big eyes and his yellow mane, looked about very importantly, and he growled out this verse:

"'Sound your trumpets and beat your drums,
Everybody runs when the big lion comes.'

"Then Mrs. Hippopotamus looked in the mirror of the pool to see if her face was on straight, and she said this verse:

"'Oh, I am Mrs. Hippo!
I have a lovely lip, Oh!
I love to tramp
Where it is damp
And then to take a dip, oh!'

"'That's much better than Leo's verse,' announced the monkey, who seems to have elected himself the judge of the jungle poets. 'Now, Mr. Giraffe.'

"So the giraffe bowed from away up in the air and repeated this verse:

"'Oh, I am the lovely giraffe!
I have a long neck and a half.
My impression grows stronger
That were my neck longer
I never could hear myself laugh.'

"'That's fine!' agreed the monkey. 'Now, I will make up the best verse and take the prize, which will be a laugh at your expense.'

"So the monkey said this and then skedaddled up a tree:

"'I've come to a conclusion, and I'll say it flat—
That I'd rather be a monkey than say verse like that.'"

PROTESTANT CHURCHES SEEK $50,000,000 FOR PENSIONS

Practically every Protestant religious body in the country is now endeavoring to create pension funds for their ministers and the widows and orphans of decease ministers. The sums that these bodies seek total $50,000,000. A conference on the subject will be held by the leaders at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Wednesday.

The same scientific principles applied by railroads and large industrial concerns to their pension schemes are being put to use by the religious bodies. Leaders in these pension reforms include the Methodist, Disciples, Presbyterians and the Episcopalians. Almost all bodies have pension systems in some form and many of them possess large funds.

Methodists lead in all in the sum asked for, namely, $15,000,000. Presbyterians, Baptists and Episcopalians want $10,000,000 each, and the Disciples, Methodists South and Lutherans $5,000,000. The Congregationalists have set their mark at $2,000,000.

In the literature the fund raisers plead the value to America and the world of the preacher of the gospel and point out the growing appreciation of ministers on the part of laymen. They also say that when pensions are provided it will be possible to retire aged and even incompetent and unsuccessful preachers, and permit success to come into fields that are stagnant or worse.

TUTTLE ASSUMES DUTIES AS PANAMA EXHIBIT OFFICIAL

Washington, July 19.—Former Congressman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, has assumed his duties as American commission to the exposition of the Panama Republic at Panama, to open in December. Mr. Tuttle held a long conference with Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips and afterward received suggestions as to the American exhibit from Acting Secretary of Commerce Sweet and Dr. E. E. Pratt, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Saturday afternoon Mr. Tuttle saw the officials at the Legation of Panama and John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Bureau. It is probable Mr. Tuttle will go to Panama within the month.

OVERBLOUSES AND BOLEROS THE VOGUE FOR GIRLS.

No. 8663.

There is nothing, perhaps, that harmonizes better with the young girl's figure than overblouses and boleros. These have been exceedingly popular this season, due in no small measure, not alone to their good looks, but to their practicability. A very delightful dress with an overblouse is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8663, shown above. The underwaist opens in front and has a roll collar, full length sleeves and a pretty four-piece circular skirt with plaits at the hips. The overblouse slips on over the head and is held in place by a belt. The pattern cuts in sizes 14, 16, 17 and 18 years, requiring for size 16, five yards of 36-inch material with two yards of material for the underwaist.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD.

"I brought you that housekeeping book," said Nell, "because I wanted advice and help and you sit there like a graven image."

"Great Scott! Nell. Can you prescribe a course of action that will please you?" exploded Dick. "You were hurt because of the remarks I made about your running in debt for an expensive dress, for which you will have very little use in a small town like this, so I resolved to say nothing on the next acute financial situation. Now I find that's wrong."

"I think I've done pretty well for a novice in financial matters," said Nell quietly. "I have not set an extravagant table, and I have not wasted anything, but we are behind this month. The question is, what can we do without to bring expenses down to the amount we can afford to spend. You have a good, hearty appetite and I'm eating for two, so canary bird rations will not suffice. Let us go over the items together and see what can be eliminated."

Dick took the book, and together they went over the list.

"We've had a lot of olives this month; they are expensive and can be dispensed with, even if we are fond of them."

Nell checked olives.

"Can't this butcher's bill be cut? Sometimes we have cold meat for supper; once a day is enough for me; how about you?" he asked.

"That's all right. We seldom have it more than once a day, but we have been having a good deal of steak and that is the most expensive kind of meat. We can have pot roasts and the cheaper stews this month."

"How about desserts? You are very fond of them, but a lot of money could be saved by coming right down to necessities," suggested Nell.

"We need not have salads and desserts too, that's a sure thing. We might alternate, or cut them out altogether for a month, if it means getting things shaped up and started on a business basis."

"All right; how about coffee?" was the next question. "Do you want to save badly enough to do without that?"

"No," said Dick slowly; "I hope we have thrown overboard enough to lighten the cargo so that we can reach port all right."

"But if not——" began Nell.

"I'll come to the rescue, I suppose, but I am trying to save $50 for the doctor this month. We paid nothing on the bill last month, so we must go as slowly as possible," interrupted Dick.

"Oh, wouldn't it be fine if we didn't have to count pennies," sighed Nell, closing the account book. "If we were only able to get what would make us comfortable and never have to count the cost."

"I don't believe you would say such things if you realized how they hurt me, Nell, dear. I am doing my level best to earn a comfortable living. You knew you were marrying a poor man. Maybe it was a mistake to risk it." Dick leaned his head on his hand.

Nell sat up with a jolt. "Oh, Dick, how stupid of me not to see that it would cut. Not marry! Not have all the dear, happy times together? How could you think I would hear of such a thing? I never dreamed of your feeling that way about it. We are very comfortable. I am ashamed of myself."

Dick pulled her over to a seat on his knees and the interview turned to more pleasant channels.

Household Hints

HOME-MADE DRINKS ARE HARMLESS AND COOLING

Home-Made Root Beer—Dissolve five cakes of dry yeast and three tablespoons of sugar in one pint of lukewarm water. Keep in a warm place for twelve hours, then stir well, strain through cheese cloth, discarding the meal left in cloth. Add one bottle of root beer extract, four pounds of sugar and five gallons of lukewarm water. Mix them thoroughly and bottle. Tie or fasten corks securely. Keep in warm place forty-eight hours, then cool and it is ready for use. Store bottles in a cool place.

Dandelion Cordial—One peck of dandelion blossoms, three pounds brown sugar, three gallons boiling water, three sliced oranges, three lemons, 25 cloves, six sticks of cinnaman, one cake of compressed yeast. Crush fruit, cover with sugar, add spices, put in stone jar, pour on boiling water, let stand six days in warm place, strain, and return to jar, add yeast; when perfectly clarified, bottle. For elderberry cordial use elderberry blossoms.

Lemon Nectar—Six lemons, two oranges, one pound raisins, two sticks cinnamon, 15 cloves, one ounce sassafras, two gallons boiling water, two pounds rock candy. Slice lemons and oranges, add cinnamon and cloves, sassafras, and rock candy, put in stone jar and let stand in cold place for one week stirring daily, strain through several folds of cheese cloth and bottle for use.

Grape Nectar—One bottle grape juice, juice of one lemon, one orange, one cup brown sugar, one cup of pineapple. Pour over cracked ice. Serve with whipped cream and small spoons.

Lemon Syrup—Juice of six lemons, grated rind of three lemons, three pounds of white sugar. Make a thick syrup. When cool, strain the juice into it, and squeeze as much oil from the grated rind as possible. A tablespoonful in a glass of water will make a delicious drink on a hot day.

Strawberry Punch—Juice of four quarts of berries, one crushed pineapple, two pounds of sugar, juice of four lemons, one quart cracked ice, two quarts of charged water. Place three strawberries in each glass.

Pineapple Punch—Two grated pineapples, juice of six oranges, six lemons, three pounds of sugar boiled ten minutes to dissolve. Cool and pour over fruit. Add cracked ice.

Raspberry Shrub—Place raspberries in stone jar, cover with cider vinegar, let stand over night, strain and press. To each quart of juice add one quart of sugar, boil and bottle. Serve with cracked ice. All berries can be used for shrub in like manner, giving a delightful variety of refreshing summer drinks.

THE TABLE

Berkshire Gems—One-half cup corn meal, one-half cup flour, one-half cup cooked rice, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup scalded milk, one egg, one tablespoon melted butter, three teaspoons baking powder; turn milk on meal, let stand five minutes; add rice, and flour sifted with remaining dry ingredients; add yolk of egg beaten, butter and white of egg beaten stiff.

Quick Beef Stew—Wipe meat cut in cubes, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown bread in fried out fat; put in kettle or casserole and cover with boiling water which has first rinsed the frying pan. Boil five minutes and turn down fire. If you have no leftover vegetables and do not care to cook fresh ones for the stew, get a can of vegetable soup and add without diluting, when the meat has become tender.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — Th' Good Ship Scoop Takes on a Cargo of Gasoline — BY "HOP"

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The management of Proctor's Theatre has booked another highly entertaining bill of motion pictures for this week, beginning with this afternoon, when a large and enthusiastic audience viewed the World Film Corporation's five-part photo-play, "Col. Carter of Cartersville," featuring Burr McIntosh, Lilly Cahill and Katherine LaSalle. The picture is a story of the Civil War and depicts all the Southern traits; the costumes, girls, slaves, etc. Those who have not seen the matinee performance should not fail to see the excellent picture tonight.

Tomorrow B. A. Rolfe will present the estimable character artist, Edward Connelly, in "Marse Covington," a picture in five parts, a romance of the Southland. Covington Halliday, a true Southern gentleman, is possessed of one vice—gambling. At the age of thirty, he goes to war, followed by his faithful boy, Dan, a black boy of his own age. On his return home, his parents now dead, he becomes the owner of Halliday House. He marries. Dan stays with him and refuses to be set free. About twenty years later, Covington, with his passion for the cards and race track is swindled by two adventurers, Bantree and Daly. Falling into their net he places a mortgage on the house, and loses the money in a wild gambling scheme. Unable to pay the mortgage, he and Miss Carol, his granddaughter, are turned out of the home, accompanied by Dan. In New York, Carol secures work, but is later discharged. Events from then on follow in rapid succession, the duplicity of the adventurers is revealed, the love of Carol and a young lawyer, and the final restoration of the Halliday House.

The Week's Work In Brief

Mulch the rose beds; also perennial borders.
Clean out the cold frames and prepare them for fall use.
Rub off all shoots at base of spring-set trees.
Apply liquid manure to porch and window boxes.
Prepare lists of hardy plants for fall planting.
Sow winter varieties of radishes.

THE season is at hand when work in the garden is less pressing. It consists now mainly in cultivating, spraying, fertilizing. As the summer advances and the roses finish blooming, mulch the beds with a mulch of rotted leaves from the compost pile. This is done to preserve moisture and save cultivation rather than to add plant-food. Beds and borders of both annuals and perennials also will be much improved by this mulch. In addition to what it does immediately for the plants it has value, too, as a source, later on, of humus. Apply it to the ground round young trees and shrubs. Go over the latter and cut out dead bloom and any wood that has succumbed since the last pruning.

If currant worms make their appearance, dust thoroughly with hellebore. If red spider attacks flowers, fruits or vegetables, resort to a strong spray of water to rid the plants of the pest. Be on the lookout for damage by borers. Use a flexible wire and run this into their burrows. They may also be killed by squirting carbon bisulphide into the holes and immediately plugging them up with putty or mud. A medicine dropper can be used to apply the poison.

Barrel for making liquid manure. An iron hoop holds the burlap sacking open and suspended. In it the manure is placed and the water then poured through. This prevents clogging of the faucet.

Cold frames should be gone over now, cleaned out and made ready for use this fall. Put in fresh soil, composted of two-thirds rich, turfy loam and one-third thoroughly rotted stable manure. Add half a bucketful of clean sharp sand to each wheelbarrowful of the compost. Mix the ingredients well and run the compost through a screen with a quarter-inch mesh. See that broken glass is replaced and wherever necessary apply new putty.

As rapidly as little shoots form on the trunks or lower limbs of spring-set trees, rub them off. These are valueless, it is needless to say, but quickly rob the tree of strength and vitality. They are easily rubbed off by the fingers if taken in time.

Liquid manure should now be used every ten or twelve days on porch and window boxes. Where this excellent plant food is to be used in quantity—as it should be even on the smallest place—it will be found convenient to make it in a barrel. To an iron hoop securely fasten the bottom half of an old sack. Suspend this inside the barrel by wires attached to the hoop and supported on the barrel top. Fill it with fresh manure to which, if desired, may be added a handful of nitrate of soda, and pour the water into the sack and its contents. Draw the decoction off through a spigot at the bottom and dilute if necessary until it is the color of weak tea. Use it liberally on both flowers and vegetables.

carefully and make up a list of trees, vines, shrubs and herbaceous perennials wanted for fall planting. Remember that peonies should be planted in August or September. In sending in your order, instruct your dealer that you want your stock forwarded at the earliest possible moment after the season's growth has hardened sufficiently to make transplanting safe. Losses in fall planting come more frequently through planting stock too late in the year. Earlier planting is better. Evergreens, bear in mind, can be safely moved next month and where a stock of these is wanted, it is well to get them early and into the ground before consignments of decidious plants begin to arrive later.

Among the best of the perennials that can be planted with fair degree of safety in autumn are the following: Achillea, aconitum, aquilegia, artemisia, aster, bocconia, campanula, coreopsis, delphinium, dictamnus, digitalis, gaillardia, helenium, funkia, hemerocallis, iris, papaver, lupinus, pentstemon, physostegia, pyrethrum, rubeckia, phlox, peony, sedum, trollius, statice, stokesia, thalictrum and veronica.

For the reception of all of these plants, the soil should be well prepared and in good tilth. If any are ordered to replace former occupants that did not survive the summer, see that the spaces to be filled are thoroughly forked and a handful of bone dust stirred deeply into the soil.

Sow winter radishes thinly and later thin the larger growing varieties so that they stand five inches apart in the row. Sow in drills three-quarters of an inch deep and twelve inches apart. Winter radishes, it should be borne in mind, can be stored as beets and turnips are stored and will prove a delightful dish later on in the year. Before eating them soak for an hour or more in cold water.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments For Street Improvements In the City of Plainfield.

Andrew J. Gavett, Vincent W. Nash Jr., and Frederic E. Mygatt, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the thirtieth day of April, 1915, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessment have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz.:

Gerald Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

Monroe Avenue, from the macadam on West Eighth Street to the center of Sherman Avenue;

West Fourth Street, from the macadam on Clinton Avenue to the City Line;

under the ordinance of said city entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the Necessary Fund in advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," Approved July 6th 1914, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled: "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved July 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the 30th day of July, 1915, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County
Court of Common Pleas.

WESTERN SIGHTS IN EASTERN EYES

Miss Leighs, One of Daily Press Tourists, Gives Glowing Account of Trip.

EDUCATIONAL VISITS

Although many postal cards have been received by relatives and friends from the Plainfield Daily Press Transcontinental tourists who have been visiting the Panama Exposition, the first letter describing the wonderful trip was received today from Miss Agnes Leighs. The party is made up of Miss Leighs, her mother, Mrs. George Leighs; Miss Anna McGinnis and Miss Lorena Harris. The letter from Miss Leighs was dated Los Angeles, Cal., July 14, and is as follows:

"In view of the fact that perhaps some of our friends, who so kindly helped us in the Panama-Pacific Exposition contest may be interested in our glorious trip, Miss McGinness, Miss Harris, and I have decided to send home descriptions of the trip. My account will give our experiences as far as Los Angeles. Miss McGinness will then take up the story, including the exposition at San Francisco, and Miss Harris will conclude the narrative.

"July 3 (Saturday).—We left Plainfield about 9 o'clock this morning on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. We found our Pullman chairs and were soon very comfortably settled for the first installment of our six thousand mile trip.

"The country is beautiful because the grain has been cut and stacked and the golden brown, mixed with the green fields and trees, is most attractive.

"We have crossed the Delaware and Susquehanna Rivers and have seen the Baltimore aeroplane sheds. We arrived in Washington at the union station. This is indeed a splendid building. Walking out New Jersey avenue brought us to the Capitol building. Oh, what a marvelous structure! This is one thing of which we Americans can be truly proud. A guide took us round the building, charging twenty-five cents for each person. Mr. Fort gave us, before leaving home, a letter of introduction to James Martine. Our guide called his office on the telephone and found that he had not been in the Senate building all day, so we unfortunately missed a great privilege. I will mention some of the things explained by our guide in the Capitol building: The doors of the Capital, of Italian make, weighing ten tons; the painting in the dome, made by Brumidi, the Italian artist, who spent thirty years decorating it, which is 185 feet from the floor of the rotunda and cost Congress $39,500; the eight paintings round the rotunda; the circular continuous painting, by Brumidi, and another Italian artist, half way up the dome, of famous events in U. S. history (this looks like bas-relief work but is perfectly flat); what is left of the original Capitol, built in 1793, the cornerstone of which was laid by Washington (this is made of Virginia sandstone, while the present building is made of Massachusetts marble); the vice president's lobby, which has statues of various vice presidents; the Italian marble staircase; the senator's private lobby; the president's room or office, where he interviews senators and signs bills, the table he uses, which was Lincoln's, the new chandelier finished very recently, Rumidi's decorations on the ceiling; the largest painting in the building ("The Battle of Lake Erie") which cost $25,000; the Tennessee marble staircase (chocolate color); the two Mayon paintings; the senate chamber with 96 chairs; the public reception room, where this morning an explosion, caused by a bomb, did considerable damage (the guilty person who placed it has not been caught yet and the room is well guarded); the national statuary gallery, in the "House" half of the building, where each State can place statues of two of her notorious people; the oldest clock in the Capitol (over 100 years); the House chamber where there are 435 members (here the President's messages are delivered); the painting, "Westward Ho," and the Golden Gate scene for which Lentze was paid $20,000 (this is painted on the rough wall); the floors which were put down in 1847 and are yet very good; the view from the building taking in Pennsylvania avenue, Mt. Vernon, etc.

"We were very greatly disappointed to find that the Congressional Library is closed Saturday afternoons in the hot weather. It started to rain as we hurried back to the union station and waited until our Chicago train arrived. Near the station is a

COUNTY COMMITTEE PLANS G. O. P. OUTING

Saturday, August 21, Fixed as Date for Trip to Coney Island.

A report of the plans for their annual outing, to be held Saturday, August 21, were made at a meeting of the Union County Republican executive committee, held at Republican headquarters, Elizabeth, last night.

The outing will be in the nature of a day excursion to Dreamland, Coney Island, and the steamer will leave the dock at Elizabethport at 9:30 o'clock that morning, sail around Staten Island, and land at Dreamland in time for several hours pleasure there. Refreshments will be served both going and coming, and the outing bids fair to be the biggest and best ever held. Instead of $3.50 for tickets this year, the price will be $2.50.

The list of invited guests will be a large one and will include every announced candidate in the State for Governor or United States Senator. Among those already invited are the following: Senators Edge, Colgate, Reed, Gaunt, Pierce and Frelinghuysen; former Governor E. C. Stokes, Senator Smalley, Congressman J. H. Capstick, Judges Carey, Spear and Connolly, Republican State Committeeman Hamilton F. Kean, Mayor Victor Mravlag, of Elizabeth; former State Senator Ernest Ackerman, of this city; Mayor Leighton Calkins, of this city; Judge Raymond, Mayor of Newark; chairman Ehlers, of the Union County Republican Committee; Assemblymen Morgan, Runyon and Pierson; Senator Rathbun, of Morris county; former Governor Franklin Murphy, of Newark; State Committee Chairman Bugbee and former Congressman Fowler.

The secretary of the committee was instructed to frame a letter of condolence and send it to Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, on the loss of his father, and also to State Senator Walter H. Edge, whose wife died last week.

The next regular meeting of the committee, instead of being held on the third Monday night in the month will take place Friday evening, August 20, the night before the outing. At this meeting all arrangements for the next day's frolic will have been made and a full report will be rendered. A smoker, with refreshments, will be provided by the entertainment committee.

ASSESSORS WILL CONFER WITH PROPERTY OWNERS

The Board of Assessors, which has been holding several sessions during the past week for the purpose of giving property-owners ample opportunity to discuss property valuations where they think they have just cause for complaint, will hold another meeting in the city building tonight, which will probably be the last one.

The assessors are anxious that any property-owner who has a complaint appear at this time. If they can show that there is good reason for a change in assessment the Board will give the matter every consideration. There was probably less than thirty taxpayers who appeared before the Board at its four sessions last week and out of the number there were none who had any serious "kick" to make.

The assesors' books are about ready to be sent to the county board at Elizabeth. Taking everything into consideration there has not been much change in the assessments throughout the city. The Fourth ward is probably the heaviest loser, through the removal of the Spicer plant to South Plainfield. What the total increase in valuation throughout the city will be cannot be told at present, but it is believed that it will be considerable.

FESTIVAL AT WATCHUNG.

The annual ice cream festival will be held at the Wilson Memorial Union church at Watchung tonight. The committee in charge has planned an attractive program, including a concert by the Dutch Arms Band, of Plainfield. There will be many features to interest the patrons of the affair. The auto bus will run from this city to Watchung to accommodate Plainfielders wishing to attend.

POPULAR OUTING AUGUST 5.

One of the most popular excursions from this city to Asbury Park during the summer is that of the Sunday-schools of the First Presbyterian, Congregational, Park Avenue Baptist, of this city, and the Seventh-Day Baptist, of New Market, which this year is scheduled for Thursday, August 5. There will be two sections of the excursion train, stopping at all local stations, both ways.

PAINTERS WILL MEET.

The Master Painters will hold a meeting Thursday night in Woolston & Buckle's store on North avenue.

OPENING OF HOTEL DEPENDS ON LICENSE

Adolph Rhuel, of New York, Negotiating for Truell Hall at Netherwood.

Negotiations are now underway whereby Adolph Rhuel, of New York city, who has conducted hotels in Brooklyn and Rockaway and other points in Greater New York, hopes to lease Truell Hall at Netherwood and re-open that old hostelry. Mr. Rhue, has been in Plainfield several times during the past week in conference with J. Fred MacDonald, who represents the Hyde estate, the owners of the property, and he has also been securing estimates for putting the hotel in tenable condition.

Mr. MacDonald when questioned about the matter today said that he thought the re-opening of the hotel would depend on the question as to whether a license could be secured. He said that a number of people in the Netherwood section favor the proposition, but he was unable to say what the Common Council would do with an application for a license.

That the granting of a license to the hotel would be opposed seems to be an assured fact. Several ministers have already expressed themselves on that point, and with the present "zone" ordinance in effect, favorable action on the part of the Council would not be possible unless an amendment was made to the ordinance.

LOCAL ANGLER LANDS FORTY-ONE POUNDER

A tale that would be possessed of all the earmarks of a first class fish story of the "fishiest" variety were it not for the fact that material evidence was produced is being told and retold by John Doughty, the North avenue fishing tackle dealer, today. The plot centers around a forty-one pound catch of channel bass credited to John J. Yates, of DeLacey avenue.

According to Mr. Doughty, and he has evidence aplenty to back up his assertions, the mammoth specimen of the finny tribe was hooked by Yates at Corson's Inlet yesterday and shipped immediately to this city. It is now on display in the North avenue shop's show window and will be taken in hand by Fred Ivamy this afternoon who will turn it into a sumptuous dish for the kiddies at the Children's Home.

That Mr. Yates had the time of his life landing the big water product is a foregone conclusion, but many of his old time fishing friends in this city are anxiously awaiting his return from a trip of several days' duration to hear him tell of the incident.

The bass measures over three feet from tip to tip and has a girth of about eighteen inches at the middle. It is expected that it will provide enough fish meat for one big meal for the inmates of the Home and when informed of the gift the youngsters immediately set out to gather appetites.

This is not the first big specimen taken from the inlet, other anglers having turned in reports that indicate that the channel bass are running unusually well just at present. The big catches are all being landed with hook and line and some interesting battles are being staged.

JEFFERSON DEMOCRATS WILL GO ON AN OUTING

At a meeting of the Jefferson Democratic Club, last night, arrangements were completed for the annual outing of the organization to be held on Sunday. The outing will be an all day affair and will be held on the "Count" VanNess property on East Front street. One of the features will be a dinner which will be served in the open and various kinds of recreative games will be indulged in during the afternoon.

Three new members were elected at last night's session. Enthusiasm evidenced over the excursion Sunday indicates that the number to go on the outing will break previous records and the program in store is above the ordinary.

INTEREST CONTINUES.

In spite of the warm weather the men's noonday meetings held from 12:30 to 1 o'clock in the Rescue Mission, W. C. T. U. rooms, continue in interest. Recently the services have been marked by a deep spiritual feeling. All men who are interested are cordially invited to these meetings.

FAVORS MARTINE FOR SECOND TERM

Former Congressman Tuttle Says He Will Support Plainfielder.

FIELDER A CANDIDATE

Governor Will Undoubtedly Enter Senatorial Contest — Rumored That James Smith and George LaMonte Are Also in the Race.

Believing that he is entitled to a second term, former Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, will support United States Senator James E. Martine for a renomination next year, he having expressed himself to that effect. At the same time Mr. Tuttle has declined to give his opinion as to the chances of the Senator in winning out at the primaries. The attitude of the former Congressman is considered perfectly logical for the reason that he would be expected to lend his aid to a Union county man and one who is such a near neighbor with whom he has been so closely associated.

While this position taken by Mr. Tuttle is considered by some as peculiar in view of the fact that only recently Governor Fielder and former Senator James Smith were special guests at the complimentary banquet given to the Westfield man at Elizabeth, there seems to be no doubt but that the Governor will seek the Senatorial nomination, but at the same time Mr. Tuttle is no doubt actuated by county pride.

The former Congressman has just returned from Washington where in a conference with Secretary Tumulty the latter was assured of the fact that the Democratic party is united in its support of President Wilson. There was no definite announcement as to the Gubernatorial situation, it being considered a little early to discuss probable candidates. Although his name has been mentioned, Secretary of War Garrison continues to discourage any suggestion of his name for either a Gubernatorial or Senatorial nomination.

That former Senator Smith is really desirous of running for Senator again no one has said with anything like assurance. His recent activities, however, have given rise to the rumor, concerning his political ambitions.

In this connection a story is going the rounds that the Smith-Nugent leaders held a conference recently at a seashore resort when it was then and there unanimously decided that nothing could be gained by continuing the hostility to Wilson. An open capitulation to the President was not relished, but a movement was started to have a graceful capitulation accomplished through the medium of the Orange and Newark postmasterships. The organization is accordingly striving now toward having Smith-Nugent men named to these positions at the next session of Congress.

The suspicion that Smith would be a candidate for Senator once more has been aided by the withdrawal of the Newark Morning Star from its alleged "For Sale" position. Instead of being disposed of to a Republican corporation, as confidently expected, the Morning Star is now due for a reorganization on August 2. Its name will be changed to the Morning Eagle.

Banking and Insurance Commissioner George M. LaMonte, who has been regarded as a Gubernatorial possibility, is now reputed to be looking at the Senatorial toga. State Treasurer Grosscup continues actively on the trail of the Gubernatorial nomination.

CHIEF KIELY IS LOOKING FOR A LOCAL DOG-CATCHER

Who wants to be the city's dog catcher? Chief of Police Kiely is confronted with his annual task of awarding this spring "plum" and, strange to relate, the annual scarcity of candidates is evident. Any sober and industrious young man, whether or not he is a lover of animals, may enlist his name as a candidate for a chaser of canines in Plainfield and should one or more likely aspirants to the job make their appearance within the next few days Chief Kiely will award the job the latter part of this week.

In view of the fact that many men claim to be unable to get work the task involved in selecting a dog-catcher is unexplainable. The job is one that pays well and the fact that there are plenty of bow-bows to be caught is generally admitted.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mrs. J. M. Westbrook, of Clinton Hill, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dannet M. Westbrook, to James A. G. Pike, of this city. No date for the wedding has been set.

EDWARD CALLAHAN ATTACKED BY DOG

Serious Results Follow His Failure to Take Notice of Warning Sign.

Failure to take notice of the warning "Beware of the dog" resulted seriously for Edward Callahan, of New York city, when he visited the place of George Zink, on North avenue, Dunellen, yesterday, laboring under the impression that it was a livery stable. Mr. Callahan is today nursing a bad bite inflicted on the calf of his left leg by a big Newfoundland dog which Mr. Zink keeps to stand guard over a quantity of flour he has stored in the stable.

Mr. Callahan became hysterical and had to be subdued by Gustav Winters, who carried him into the Park Hotel. Dr. M. J. Whitford and Dr. Longbotham gave his first aid at the hostelry and found the victim in a terribly nervous condition. It took seven stitches to close the wound.

According to Mr. Callahan, who is staying at the Ellsworth with his wife and children on his annual vacation, he was directed to the Zink stables when he made inquiries concerning where he could hire a horse and carriage for an afternoon's drive.

He had planned to leave this morning for Chicago, having already purchased tickets for the Panama-Pacific Exposition. His injury will necessitate a ten days' confinement, at least.

This is not the first instance in which the dog has attacked a human being. Robert Bogardus, of Dunellen, a victim on a former occasion, being badly bitten.

FIND BABY'S BODY FLOATING IN BROOK

Small boys playing in the brook west of Clinton avenue yesterday afternoon discovered the body of a tiny child floating on top of the water. The object was brought to shore and the youngsters notified Chief of Police Kiely who in turn reported the incident to County Physician Westcott and City Physician Norman W. Currie. It is the opinion of the police that the infant was thrown into the brook by a mother who choose this means of getting rid of it.

The physicians who examined it declared it to be a case of "still" birth and an investigation is now under way with a view to determining the identity of the mother. Owing to the condition of the body, only the skeleton remaining, it was impossible for the physicians to tell whether it was of the male or feminine sex. It was apparently about two days old.

JAMES P. HOMAN RETIRES FROM CARRIAGE BUSINESS

J. P. Homan, the Somerset street blacksmith and carriage manufacturer, is closing out the carriage department of his business in deference to the popularity of the automobile. Mr. Homan says that automobiles have taken the place of other vehicles to such an extent that there is little doing nowadays in that line. He will still continue the blacksmith and carriage repairing lines.

Starting in business in New Market in 1868, Mr. Homan moved to Dunellen two years later, and in 1875 established his business at its present stand. He has been forty-five years in his Somerset street location.

BECKER'S COUNSEL WILL ASK FOR A NEW TRIAL

New York, July 20—Martin T. Manton, counsel for Charles Becker, announced this afternoon that an application for a new trial will be filed on the ground of newly discovered evidence. He would not say whether the application will be filed in State or Federal Court.

AUSTRIANS PROVIDENT.

Berlin, July 20.—Reports from Vienna says savings banks deposits in the first half of 1915 increase 1,353. Reported increased 139,000,000 crowns or about 8 per cent. This increase applied to the whole of Austria means a gain in savings deposits of 1,600,000,000 crowns. This gain has been made notwithstanding the great success of the two war loans and is regarded as a splendid illustration of Austrian economic conditions.

COLUMBUS CLUB FETE PROMOTED BY WOMEN

Elaborate Social Event to Be Given in the Auditorium July 29.

Plans are now well underway for another enjoyable social function to be held in the auditorium of the Columbus Club, Thursday evening, July 29. It will take the form of a card party and dance and if the enthusiasm displayed at a meeting last night is to be taken as a criterion of what is to follow, this event will be a record-breaker in the organization's annuls.

The coming affair will differ from preceding card parties inasmuch as the wives, sisters and other friends of the members are taking the initiative and doing the major portion of the planning. The original committee, headed by John J. Varley, was composed of Arthur A. Cannon, John Caffrey, Frank Burke and H. P. Greenwood. This body has since assumed a position in the background and the women have taken up the managerial reins for the occasion. It is proposed to furnish card games of various kinds and to make the affair an informal meeting featured by many novelties designed for pleasure. Dancing will play a prominent part during the evening, music for which will be furnished by "Al" Squires' orchestra, and a refreshment committee will serve good things for the palate during the intermissions.

Leading the miniature army of women promoting the affair is Mrs. Wilbur Schaffer, as chairman; Miss Margaret Meaney is acting as secretary, and Mrs. A. A. Cannon was last night chosen treasurer. It is desired to interest as many women folk as possible in the project and another meeting will be held in the club parlors in the near future.

WEEK'S GRACE ALLOWED ON DELINQUENT TAXES

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of North Plainfield, said today that the list of delinquent taxpayers for the year 1914 is nearly as long again as last year's list, but that names are being stricken off every day as back taxes are paid. Mr. Brown intended beginning the advertising of the list of properties in a Somerset county paper tomorrow, but has decided to give the property-owners another week's grace and to start Wednesday, July 28.

Mr. Brown had about 150 names on his list when he compiled it a week ago, but this morning it had been cut down to about 100. The collector blames the tight financial conditions prevailing throughout the country for the failure of the people to pay last year's taxes, but the usual rush to square up as soon as advertising day draws near is now on.

BOROUGH POLICE WAGES A LIVELY CAMPAIGN

In response to notices served on them by the North Plainfield police, sixteen dog owners of the borough appeared before Recorder Hand this morning and took out dog licenses. Three more came in of their own volition, making a total of nineteen dog licenses issued today, and bringing into the borough treasury the sum of thirty-eight dollars.

There are still a number of dog owners who have not paid their licenses, according to the figures of last year, and these persons will be reached by the police as soon as they can get to them, and they will have to part with the sum of two dollars for every dog they keep, unless they no longer own or harbor dogs.

To each defendant this morning Recorder Hand put the question, "How many dogs have you at your place?" and the reply was invariably, "One," where the ownership of a dog was admitted at all. Many of those arraigned denied ownership of a dog, some of them declaring that they had recently disposed of their canines. Such excuses for not paying dog license money to the borough were of no avail, however, for dog licenses were due May 15, and Chief Marshal Weiss was primed with evidence as to the presence of a dog or dogs about the premises of the parties notified to appear in court, and in every case the license money was forthcoming.

BICYCLE RIDER FINED.

It cost Albert Carccavelli, thirty years old, of 19 Somerset street, this city, the sum of one dollar for riding a bicycle in North Plainfield last night on the sidewalk and without a light. Special Officer Cooper made the arrest, the time being 8:16 o'clock, and Carccavelli's wheel was held at police headquarters to insure the man's appearance. Recorder Hand made the sentence a fine in this case in view of the double offense.

GERMANS DRIVE RUSSIANS BACK

LINE 1,000 MILES LONG

French Airmen Make Two Successful Raids — Italians Capture Hill Dominating Gorizia—War Loans Being Liberally Subscribed.

Petrograd, July 20.—The latest report from Grand Duke Nicholas admits that the enemy has made successful advances, particularly in the Baltic Provinces on the Vieprz River, in the Lublin district and on the Bug River near the Poland-Gilicia frontier.

In the extreme north the Germans advancing toward the great naval base of Riga have occupied Tukum. North of Warsaw, von Hindenburg's centre has captured the village of Porely and is engaged in continuous assaults against the Russian lines north of the Narew River.

Southeast of Warsaw the Russians have been forced to exacuvate Krasnotaf, eight miles south of the Lublin-Cholm railway, toward which Gen. Mackensen's centre is attempting to batter its way. North of Lemberg the armies of Gen. Ivanoff have been driven eastward by superior forces of Austrians.

At several other points, however, the Russians are maintaining themselves against the heaviest attacks and hurling the enemy back with severe losses.

Berlin, July 20.—A German army under Gen. Gallwitz has forced the Russians to retreat across the Narew River at several points and has taken up positions within twenty miles of Warsaw, the Polish capital.

One wing of Gen. von Buelow's army has captured the Baltic seaport of Windau, commanding a railway leading to Riga, the Russian naval base.

An official statement from the War Office early today, declared that the greater 1,000-mile drive to squeeze the Russians out of Warsaw, is moving forward at amazing speed. From the Riga region to Bukowina the Slavs are everywhere in retreat abandoning guns and ammunition.

In the fighting south of Przasnyez alone, von Hindenburg's forces have captured 101 Russian officers and 28,760 men. Between the Bug and the Vistula, Mackensen has made 16,250 prisoners in the past forty-eight hours of fighting. Prisoners taken at other sectors of the long battle front raise the total number of captives to more than 50,000.

The statement issued by the General Staff follows:

"German troops occupied Tukum and recaptured Windau. Pursuing the enemy, who was defeated on the Aa River at Alt Autz, our troops yesterday reached the district of Hofzumberge and northwest of Mitau, where the enemy occupied previously prepared positions.

"East of Popeliany and Kurszany the fighting continues.

"Between the Pissa and the Skwa the Russians evacuated a position which had been penetrated at several points by our troops and are retreating toward the Narew. The German reserve Landwehr fighting in this district of wood and marshy ground, which is extremely favorable to the resistance of the enemy, accomplished notable deeds.

"The army of Gen. von Gallwitz, advancing further, now is standing with all its troops on the Narew line southwest of Ostrolenka and Nowo Georgievsk. The Russians who did not find protection in their fortifications and bridge head positions already have retreated across the Narew. The number of prisoners taken by us has been increased to 101 officers and 28,700 men.

"In Poland between the Vistula and the Pilica the Russians are retreating eastward.

"The enemy defeated on the 17th by the army under Gen. von Woyrisch northwest of Sienno attempted to arrest our pursuit in his previously prepared positions behind the Ilzanka section. Yesterday afternoon the Silesian Landwehr stormed the enemy's advance positions near Cieplilow. The same troops during the night penetrated the main position. Along the line near Krasanow and Baranow the enemy is beginning to waver.

"Between the Upper Vistula and the Bug the battle of the allied troops under Frield Marshal von Mackensen is proceeding with unabated violence. On the Irruption point near Pilaskovice and Krasnostav the Russians made desperate efforts to avert defeat. Fresh troops sent against ours were defeated, however.

"Further east, in the Grabovetz district, allied troops advanced across the Bug to a point north of Sokol. Under pressure of our pursuit the

BOROUGH YOUTHS START ON "HIKE" TO THE LAKE

Alfred Day and Adam Dealaman left the borough at 3 o'clock this morning on a "hike" to Lake Hopatcong. The course which they have mapped out for their trip will take them through Stirling, Millington and Bernardsville. They planned to be at Bernardsville by 8 o'clock this morning and to remain there until 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the heat of the day should commence to diminish.

By the route they take it is about thirty-five miles to the lake and they said that they expected to arrive there at about 10 o'clock tonight. This estimate is based upon their covering the distance at the rate of three miles an hour.

They will remain at the lake until Friday morning. During their stay there they will be entertained by R. Longfellow Brakeley, of this borough, who is spending two weeks there, stopping at Camp Gargoyle.

The young men are both athletes. Mr. Day is one of the best mile runners that has ever graced the borough by his presence and Dealaman is a crack tennis and football player. They have been in training for sometime for this hike and no anxiety is felt about their becoming exhausted along the way.

AWARDED CONTRACT FOR THREE NEW DWELLINGS

While other builders are complaining of slack times in the line of new construction work Contractor Samuel M. Titus is not one of these for he has recently been awarded contracts for the erection of three houses.

One of these will be erected for Clarence Hallett on his 145-acre truck farm between New Market and South Plainfield. The house will cost $5,000, and will be of the same type of architecture as the Charles M. Fedderman house at the corner of Penfield place and Washington avenue. The cellar of this new house is now being staked out.

George Romond, of Plainfield, son-in-law of George Vail, has awarded Mr. Titus the contract of erecting a seven-room house with all improvements on the lot which he recently purchased near Mr. Vail's home on Dunellen avenue. The house will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000. Mr. and Mrs. Romond will move here from Plainfield upon its completion.

In Plainfield, on Sixth street, between Monroe and Clinton avenues, the contractor has men at work excavating the cellar for a house to be erected for a party by the name of Van Fleet. This house will contain seven rooms and will have all improvements. It will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OUTING REPORTED FINANCIAL SUCCESS

The committee in charge of the excursion of the Presbyterian Sunday-school to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on Thursday last submitted its report to the school at the morning session Sunday. The committee was composed of A. F. Todd and J. Travis Suthpen, assisted by T. W. Day and Albert Ritterbusch. The report, which was read by Mr. Todd, showed that 339 people from this borough and New Market went on the excursion, which is believed to have been the largest excursion that has ever left this place for the shore. This total was made up of 118 First Baptists, 113 Presbyterians, 27 Seventh-Day Baptists and 81 outsiders.

The committee stated that while it was an assured fact that the school, financially, had come out ahead on the excursion it would not be known what the amount would be until a statement was received from Howard H. Williams, of Plainfield, the treasurer of the excursion. Last year this amount was in the neighborhood of $4, but 500 more people went on the excursion as a whole this year than last and the amount made should therefore be much larger.

Leander T. Stryker, of Morrisville, Pa., visited Judge David S. Campbell, Sunday.

Benjamin H. Vail, of Dunellen avenue, spent the week-end at Sebring's Mills as the guest of his uncle, John H. Sebring.

The Misses Carrie and Sophie Alberti, of Hudson, N. Y., are spending two weeks in the borough as the guests of their uncle, George Zink, of North avenue.

Miss Anna Mohan, of Dunellen avenue, visited friends at Hoboken, Sunday.

Linwood Hutchinson, of North avenue, spent Sunday at South Beach.

Miss Florence Hannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hannon, of Front street, is spending the summer with her sister, Mrs. R. G. Minich, of Allentown, Pa.

Emerson Platt, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Platt, is visiting his uncle George Wolsifer, of Vineland.

TAKES NEW POSITION.

John Marren, who has boarded in the borough for the past six years or so, has accepted a position in the Carnegie Steel Works at Newark and has transferred his place of residence to that city.

Miss Frances Sullivan, of Dunellen avenue, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation from her duties in the motion picture plant of Pathe Freres at Bound Brook.

Miss Louise Wiedenhaupt, of Dunellen avenue, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kratzel, of Roselle.

Plains & Fanwood.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Willow Grove chapel will be held in that edifice tomorrow. The meetings will continue throughout the summer.

Miss Ethel Gilbert, of Westfield avenue, has been appointed as a member of the girls' athletic committee of the "community picnic" to take the place of Miss Hannah Lambertson.

Charles Gorton, Jr., of North avenue, has accepted a position with an Aldene manufacturing firm.

The Plains and borough are nearly deserted today, everyone going on the largest of any of the thirty-four annual "Big 8" excursions. Owing to changed plans on the part of the railroad officials there were two sections going down, at 8:15 and 8:25. Returning they will reach Fanwood at 9:30 and 10:30.

The storm of last night was the cause of a rather small turnout at the meeting of the executive board of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association and the various committees of the "community picnic" held in the lecture room of the Baptist church last night. All of the committees have held meetings during the past week and reported their progress. The athletic program has been completed and entrants are beginning to send in their applications. The silver loving cup for the point winner and bronze medals for each event have caused additional interest. The picnic will start about 10 o'clock and until noon the younger children will be amused with various games. In the afternoon there will be the athletic meet and a baseball game between the married and single men. The Westfield band will furnish music. Matters in the afternoon will really rest on the arrival of Governor Fielder and several other State officials.

Mrs. William Head, of Mountain avenue, and her two daughters, are spending some time at Asbury Park. Miss Beatrice Head has already been at the shore several days, while Mrs. Head and Miss Gertrude Head went on the excursion this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hardgreaves, of Woodland avenue, are spending their vacation at Atlantic Highlands.

Another two weeks will see the completion of the remodeling of the "Old Station" on Midway avenue. When finished it will be one of the show places of the borough and Mrs. Charles Norton, who owns the place, is having the grounds prettily laid out.

The Township Committee has set the engineer of the town at work to find a solution to the drainage problem at the corner of Park and Westfield avenues following heavy rain. It is probable that a system of drains will be laid to carry off the water after surveys have been made to determine the exact lay of the land.

Mrs. Ryan, who suffered a severe attack of apoplexy last Thursday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Sternheim, of South avenue, is reported as slightly better.

Robert Meggy, of North avenue, is now at Carbondale, Pa., where he occupys a position with an engineering firm.

Township Clerk Robert G. Rogers has purchased the Northrup place in Plainfield avenue and will soon commence building on it.

Albert E. Jackson, of Springfield avenue, yesterday commenced the construction of a new greenhouse, to be thirty feet wide by 226 feet long. Mr. Jackson, who is a miniature portrait painter, is a devotee of flowers, having three greenhouses, with 10,000 square feet under glass. The addition will increase it to 17,000 square feet. Mr. Jackson will grow sweet peas in the new house.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry O'Brien, of New Bedford, Conn., have returned from a week-end visit to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woodruff, in Springfield avenue.

Samuel Taylor, proprietor of Pine Tree Inn, Berkeley Heights, will celebrate his sixty-first birthday tomorrow. He has invitations out for a party.

A meeting of township politicians took place Saturday night at the home of Mrs. A. D. Creveling, in Union avenue. A "citizen ticket" scheme is being promulgated. Democrats, Republicans and Progressives were represented. The discussion included only local offices.

Judge Walter Hetfield, Sr., of the District Court of the Second District of Union county, at Plainfield, has set the hearing in the phonograph case for July 28. The Board of Education has two lawyers prosecuting its claim of ownership of the machine which people of the Diamond Hill section attempted to give to Miss Camilla MacDonald, the teacher there. Simon P. Debbie of that section, still has the phonograph.

There will be a tennis tournament Saturday afternoon between teams representing the New Providence and Summit Epworth Leagues. The game will be played on the local Epworth League court, on the property of William T. Hickson.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bauman will return tomorrow from a five days' vacation spent in Southern New Jersey. Mr. Bauman is agent at the Lackawanna station at West Summit. During his absence John Blatt, of Chatham, had charge of it.

SEEING WESTERN SIGHTS

postoffice, where we watched men canceling stamps.

"Leaving Washington we sat on the observation platform till we were ready to go to bed.

"Sunday, July 4.—We have passed through Harper's Ferry and then Pittsburgh at 4:30 a. m. At 7:35 a. m. we stopped at Akron, Ohio. This is a great manufacturing city. We have seen the Firestone Tire plant and the Goodrich Rubber Company plast. We sat on the observation platform till it was time to go to the diner for breakfast.

"The country interests me greatly. I have been comparing crops all along. They seem to me more advanced in the East than in Ohio. Corn is very low here yet. This State is dotted with many fine farms. We have passed through Tiffin and Fostoria and have seen flour mills and oil wells here and there. Ohio and Indiana are very flat, more so than Jersey. As we near Chicago we can see herds and herds of cattle. In Chicago we saw the factories of: Gold Dust, Dickinson's Seeds, Concord Piano, etc. From the station we were transferred to the Sherman House. Here we met the Elizabeth Journal party. After dinner at the College Inn, which is connected with the Sherman House, and where we saw some splendid ice skating, we took taxi-cabs to the Sante Fe station. Our sections are in the same Pullman sleeper as the Elizabeth party. We had a fine view from the observation car as we left the city. The lights of the oil refineries are wonderful at night.

"Monday, July 5.—While we were eating breakfast we crossed the Missouri River. As we are nearing Kansas the rivers are very high. Corn and trees are flooded because of the heavy rains. We stopped long enough at Kansas City station to take a stroll on the platform and buy newspapers and postal cards. We saw the Packard & Baker Electric factory, Cudahy Packing Company, etc.

"There are 105 persons on this tour from all parts of the East. We have a special train and our tour manager is Mr. See, from Cranford, New Jersey. The Elizabeth girls are very jolly and I am sure we will have a fine time all the way.

"We have passed tremendous fields of alfalfa and wheat. Kansas is the largest wheat producing State in the Union. At Emporia we have followed a terminal morain for many miles and now starts 450 miles of prairie land. Part of this is productive because of irrigation. Syracuse is our last stop in Kansas.

"Tuesday, July 6.—In the night at Trinidad we took on an extra engine for the start of the Rockies. This powerful engine at the rear has five driving wheels on each side. We have seen some Cacti and Mexicans. After breakfast, while stopping at Lamy, New Mexico, I took a picture of a fine looking Indian, but I had to pay him for this privilege. We are enjoying the mountain scenery. From the car we have noticed: Mexican mud huts, Indian villages and bake ovens, and cow boys. The horses out here are much smaller than we are used to seeing.

"Alberquerque is a very interesting place. The Indians congregate at the station and sell their wares. The Harvey Museum is well worth visiting. Mr. Hacquer, formerly of the Daily Press Company, was to meet us here. At present he lives in this city, but for some reason was unable to see us.

"We are crossing the New Mexico prairie and have seen: Sage-brush; herds of goats, sheep and horses; prairie wagons; cow boys; Indians working in the fields.

"Wednesday, July 7.—At some time in the night we arrived at the Grand Canyon of Arizona. At the Hotel El Tovar, which is built very near the brink of that marvellous gorge, we had breakfast. This log-cabin hotel, with its immense dining room, is so simple yet beautiful. It was named after a Spanish officer who lost his life near the canyon.

"We walked several miles along the edge of the gorge and watched the people on burroughs going down the trail. There was such a crowd visiting the canyon today that all the scenic trips were sold out quickly. The only trip we could take was an automobile trip to Grandview Point. This trip we took in the afternoon. It covered about thirty miles and took us to the beginning of the Grand Canyon, where the granite and marble canyons run into it. The chauffeur showed us the four 'Cathedral Spires,' the 'Flat Iron,' the 'Sentinel and Dog,' and 'Thor's Hammer and Anvil.' On Grandview Point, which is 7,500 feet above sea level, we could see Mt. Navaho in Utah, 125 miles away; the desert wall 25 miles away; four miles of the Colorado River, 12 miles away; part of the 800,000 square miles of U. S. forest reservation; the 'Turtle;' the copper mine, from which copper 75 per cent. pure is taken; the 'Battleships,' and 'Suicide Point.' Oh, what a marvellous sight this is. It is beyond description. I am going to give you the impression of one man who has traveled all over the world: 'To gaze at the Grand Canyon is to be gripped in heart and soul, the like of which I never before experienced.'

"Almost every one of our party were troubled with chapped and parched lips which were affected by the alkali of this district. Some of you may be interested to know that although we are traveling in the United States, we were chased by a bullet. While returning to the hotel in the automobile, a calf came racing after us. Our chauffeur told us of a woman who said to the farmer upon her first visit to the barn-yard, where she saw some calves, 'Oh, look at the pretty cowlets!'

"The farmer replied, 'No, madam, those are bullets.'

"Thursday, July 8.—We are now crossing the Mojave desert—100 miles of waste land. It is very hot. While at lunch we began to see the palm trees and in a short time we pulled into Riverside, California. We took automobiles for a twenty-mile trip around the city. We saw: The First Congregational church with its $10,000 solid concrete tower; the public library and the business section. We climbed Mt. Rubidoux (1,600 feet above sea leved), and viewed the Chinese truck farms, orange groves and mountains. We have seen a few snow-capped peaks. Continuing our drive we saw: The 'Sunkist' orange groves; eucalyptus, pepper, camphor, palm and magnolia trees; the parent navel orange tree which was brought from Australia; Magnolia avenue, Victoria avenue, Indian Institute; quantities of shasta daisies; the palm tree planted by ex President Roosevelt; and the court house. Riverside is truly a beautiful city. We had dinner at the notorious Mission Inn, in the Spanish court. Then the proprietor's son took us through the building. He showed us. The two beautiful macaws (Napoleon and Joseph), with such gorgeous feathers; the music room, where we listened to a splendid organ recital; the art room; the curio department; and the cloisters. In a word of explanation, I would say this hotel was built in memory of the Spanish Franciscan monks and their work teaching civilization to the Indians. You will find relics of Catholicism and reference to the early missions throughout the building. On Mt. Rubidoux there is also a cross erected in memory of one of these early workers. Thousands gather here every Easter morning to worship.

"Friday, July 9.—After breakfast at the Mission Inn, we started for San Diego. We have seen some very tall cacti plants: It has been very warm, but we can feel the cool breezes as we are nearing the Pacific. For many miles we have followed the coast line as we travel south. After lunch at the San Diego Hotel, we took a bus to the exposition grounds. Everything seems so new and clean in these western cities. I suppose this is due to the fact that they have been built up so recently. The streets are very wide and all asphalt. San Diego is going to be the coming harbor of the western coast. It is one of the ten natural harbors of the world and its commerce is growing constantly. The exposition here is noted for its spectacular settings rather than its exhibits. The buildings are exquisite. We heard the new pipe organ that has been presented to the city and on the Plaza de Panama we feed the pigeons. They are so tame and so numerous that they perch on one's head, shoulders, arms and hands eating seeds. In the Southern California building we were asked to register and one of the staff saw me sign New Jersey. He asked from what part we came. Then he told us he had a niece teaching in Plainfield. She is Miss Osborn. While walking down one of the avenues, I met Mr. and Mrs. Krull, of Philadelphia. These people went on the same European tour that I did in 1912. We had a very pleasant chat about old times. Tonight we are to sleep in our sleeper and at 2 a. m. we will start for Los Angeles.

"Saturday, July 10.—We had breakfast at the Hotel Alexandria and left immediately for San Pedro in order that we might catch the morning boat for Santa Catalina Island. We had a pleasant sail for about two hours. I was interested watching the flying fish and the gulls. We stopped long enough at Avalon to allow some of our party the privilege of having a swim in the Pacific. Some of the native boys here make a specialty of diving for coins as they are dropped by the passengers on board the large boats. On our return trip from this pretty island, a crowd of Y. M. C. A. boys amused the people aboard with their songs and jokes. We arrived at the hotel just in time for dinner.

"Sunday, July 11.—Los Angeles is getting ready to welcome the Elks for a convention this week. Miss Harris, another and myself joined the Mission Trolley Trip party. We passed through the city, Eastlake Park and saw the Selig Moving Picture plant. Our first stop was at San Gabriel where we saw the hugh grapevine which covers 9,000 square feet, bears two tons of grapes each year and was planted in 1775. At the Old Mission we visited the Priests' House; saw the old rose bush (65 years old), and looked into the church during service. This is the oldest mission in use in the State and the fourth oldest mission in California. We walked round the Mission Play Theatre and saw reproductions of twenty-one Californian missions extending from San Diego to San Francisco. We had lunch at the Hotel Maryland in Pasadena. H. B. Huntington, the builder of the Pacific Electric Railway, has a very fine estate in this beautiful city. We have passed 'Lucky' Baldwin's race-horse ranch and acres of grapes, apricots, olives, oranges and lemons. Cawston's ostrich farm was our next stop. There are 500 birds here, including George and Martha Washington (35 and 36 years old), the $30,000 bird which is used in parades to draw a small carriage. Lord Kitchener, Mr. and Mrs. Taft and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson. The male bird has black plumage and the female brown. The ostrich eggs are $5 each. We saw little chicks three hours old. It takes forty-two days to hatch them in the incubator with the temperature up to 140 degrees. About the farm we saw Japanese silky chickens and some fine macaws. Miss McGinness attended the Mission Play instead of taking the trolley trip.

"After dinner we prepared to leave the hotel. Mother and I will not continue with the party. We are going to visit relatives here for four weeks and then finish our tour with another party. I am sorry we are not going on with those who left the East with us, because we have had such a jolly time.

"Wednesday, July 14.—This ends my part of our narrative, but I might add that I have seen some elegant parades here this week. The city is a mass of purple and white. This morning I had the privilege of seeing the real Charlie Chaplin, Mabel Normand, Kathleen Williams and Roscoe Arbuckle in one of the parades formed to welcome the Elks. This afternoon I was taken through the zoo connected with the Selig Picture Company and saw some of the animals they use in their jungle pictures.

"With this letter all the Plainfield girls wish to send home their best wishes to our relatives and friends and many thanks to those who have helped us enjoy this wonderful trip."

RECREATION NOTES

The Girls' Athletic Class meets in the High School "gym" tomorrow evening. Indoor baseball and relay races will be a part of the program.

The Zephers will use the gymnasium tonight. The colored girls are having the best kind of a good time every Tuesday.

The Saturday night dance continues at Washington School. It is cooler inside the school than it is outdoors and there is the place for a crowd to enjoy a delightful evening.

On Friday night the Dunbar dance is held by the colored people. Friday it is to be a "white dance." As far as possible the girls will be dressed in light clothes and the men in shirtwaists.

MRS. BARBARA BURGER DIES IN THE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Barbara Burger, mother of Theodore Schwartz, of 1109 West Fifth street, died at Muhlenberg Hospital last night. Funeral services will be held at the residence of her son Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be private.

Mrs. Burger was in her 71st year. She had been a patient at the hospital since April 12. Born in Germany, she had been a resident of this State for about fifteen years.

REMOVAL OF A SILVER TUBE RESULTS FATALLY

Rodman Price Cox, of Newark, a cousin to Mrs. Jacob Blimm, of the borough, died in Newark yesterday. Miss Blimm will attend the funeral, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mr. Cox was 63 years of age. He had just been operated upon for a throat trouble and was breathing through a silver tube which had been inserted. The irritation caused by the tube annoyed him and he tore it out, and the subsequent loss of blood brought about his death.

CABINET CONSIDERING NEW NOTE TO GERMANY TODAY

Washington, July 20—The Cabinet this morning took up consideration of the President's draft of the reply to the German note on submarine warfare.

There was no doubt that this Government will make plain to Berlin its displeasure over the failure of German assurances that the law of visit and search will be observed in submarine warfare.

"Friendly, but firm and final," was the characterization of the note by a high American official. It is an admirable document from every angle and so skilfily done that the responsibility for any break will be placed squarely upon Germany. Such revision as is required will be made before next Friday, when the Cabinet will give it final approval. The prompt despatch of the note to Berlin is forecast, although the transmission may not be complete until early next week.

SIX BURNED TO DEATH.

Chelsea, Mass., July 20.—Six persons were burned to death in a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin at 46 Beacon street, this city, early this morning.

GASOLINE AFIRE; NO DAMAGE.

A quantity of gasoline, spilled on the street in North avenue last evening and into which someone dropped a lighted match, created a scare and box No. 13 was pulled. The fire did no damage.

Self-interest will induce hundreds of people to read and consider your "Business Opportunity" ad.

TROT OUT SOME ONE ELSE.

Under the heading "Martine-Wescott-Smith" the Trenton Times says:

Attorney General Wescott, it is said, will be a candidate for United States Senator Martine's seat, next year. His principal claim will be that he made the speech nominating President Wilson in the Baltimore convention, but for that service he has been well repaid, as he owes his present position to President Wilson's influence.

If ability to talk long and eloquently is the main consideration, there is no reason for disturbing Senator Martine, who can do both, and besides has the advantages which go with six years of life in the Senate. For forty years Martine talked and worked for the Democrats before his work was recognized.

If one may judge from present signs, former Senator James Smith must be reckoned with in next year's fight, and if he decides to become a candidate in the open primaries, there will not be much chance for Wescott. Should Senator Smith be elected New Jersey will have at least one real representative in the Upper House of Congress.

Just what method of reasoning the Times used in reaching the conclusion that with Smith in the Senate the people would "have at least one real representative in the Upper House" is not explained. A careful consideration of Smith's record when he was there before did not convince the people that they again wanted him when he ran against William Hughes for the place. Our own Jim may not be the greatest man who has represented New Jersey in the Upper House, but he compares favorably with a large majority of those there now. What is more he has attended to business in such a way that he has not missed a roll call or failed to be recorded on a single issue that has come up since he went to Washington. The anti-Martine people will have to present stronger candidates than Smith and Wescott if they expect to beat Senator Martine.

There was no phase of the great war more menacing to humanity in general than the epidemic of typhus fever in Serbia, says the Newark Morning Star. At its height there were 300,000 cases. That this awful pest has been virtually wiped out is due chiefly to American medical science, and an American may say so without boastfulness, for he will only be repeating the tribute paid by a foreigner. "Miraculous" is the proper term to apply to the work done in Serbia by American physicians and nurses, according to Sir Thomas Lipton, who has made two trips to that country with his hospital yacht. Sir Thomas declares that the Americans excel in organization and preventive measures. His conclusion is that this American specialty of sanitary efficiency has saved Serbia from what threatened to be the worst series of epidemics ever suffered by a modern nation. It is a story of the same genius which made Cuba and the Panama isthmus health resorts instead of pest-holes.

Thaw has gone to Atlantic City. How is it that the Asbury Park Publicity Department didn't get him to go there?—Long Branch Record.

Probably because the things which attract such men as Thaw are not to be found in Asbury Park, but are plentiful beyond measure in Atlantic City.

After throwing face powder in the eyes of two burglars and beating them with hair brushes and water pitchers two co-eds, in West Liberty College, Wellsburg, Va., pushed the intruders out of the window.—News item.

And yet they say women are the "weaker sex" and should not vote.

We suppose that the people of Georgia will now erect a monument to the man who cut Leo Frank's throat. The Governor has already been petitioned to pardon him.

Society note—After having spent nine years sojourning at Matteawan and in New Hampshire Harry K. Thaw is now taking an extended vacation trip.

More than one bather has come out of the sea these warm days to discover that the old adage should read "a stitch in time saves embarassment."

The German government, judging from the Orduna incident, does not care how the American people feel about her submarine war.

There are always some things for which we can be thankful. They've put open cars on the Netherwood line this summer.

German societies will meet to tell the truth about the war—headline.

It can't be done!

LOCAL DENTISTS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Plainfield Delegates at Annual Gathering to Open Tomorrow at Asbury Park.

Among the large gathering of dentists expected to be present at the opening session of the New Jersey Dental Society in the boardwalk casino at Asbury Park, tomorrow morning, will be Dr. Olive W. Montfort, Dr. Charles Davis, Dr. O. B. Whitford, Dr. Ray S. Stevens, Dr. Frank Clawson, Dr. George Moore and Dr. Charles Moore, who will represent this city. They will make the trip by automobile and will remain throughout the two-day session. The convention of the New Jersey dentists is the largest one held in this country with the exception of the national convention. There are but few other State societies in the country and New Jersey's is by far the most flourishing. Elaborate preparations have been made for this year's event and headquarters have been established at the Coleman House. The meetings will all be held in the Casino where an extensive display has been installed showing products of various manufacturers of dental supplies.

The convention this year will have several important matters before it for consideration. One will be the question of affiliating the State body with the national association. To do this will require the complete revision of the constitution and this revised draft will be submitted to the members during the present gathering. It is thought that the matter will be acted upon favorably. There will also come before the State body the question of recommending four members for the State Board of Dental Examiners. The increase in the number is the result of recent legislation. During the gathering a number of excellent papers will be read on topics of interest and a series of progressive clinics will be presented which will be opened to members in good standing. One of the papers will be read by Dr. George W. Voorhees, of Somerville.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Your editorial comment relative to the franking privilege exercised for the benefit of anti-suffrage would be a point well taken were it not for the fact that the Senator promised to send suffrage literature under his frank into our State.

Miss Anna Dunn, of Sussex, complained to him about a flood of literature that was poured into her county. He stated that it was done at the request of a California woman named "Bock"—not because of any bias on his part. Miss Dunn asked that he send suffrage literature out under his frank. This he promised to do for Jersey.

He has not kept his word, and believing that a gentle reminder might bring the desired result we forwarded to him a resolution from the Women's Political Union of New Jersey.

Ask your doctor if these things are important:

Wood Brook Farms maintains clean, concrete stables; washes all utensils and cows clean before milking; chills the milk quickly and packs it in ice; sterilizes all bottles and utensils daily; milk all packed in ice in delivery wagons.

MOVIE "WAR" HAS HIT PASTE DAUBERS

But Truce Has Been Declared and Poster Admirers Need Not Fear.

Putting to rout the generally accepted theory that war can't exist without publicity, three youthful born and bred Plainfielders have been engaged in a regular dyed-in-the-wool conflict during the past fortnight and have managed to keep their manoeuvres out of the public limelight. With the exception of the publicity end the engagement has had all of the earmarks of an international fracas and that there hasn't been a death toll recorded is due to the fact that the combatants have indulged in tactics even more modern than those being used at the present time on European soil. The forces have mediated after a heated campaign unstained by bloodshed and all is rosy again. At least, that was the impression given a Daily Press reporter by one of the army captains last night.

Those who occupied the centre of the fight stage during its existence were Walter Glaentzer, a bill poster employed by the U. S. Astor Theatre, Leslie Randolph, who occupies a similar position with Mike Shannon's Airdome advertising squadron, and Harry Allen, the veteran of Plainfield paste daubers who sports the regalia of Proctor's Theatre. According to the participants the war was declared when disputes arose over the right to display the respective theatres' posters on certain local bill-boards, each paste splasher laying claim to the right and impressing his claim by finding a resting place for his posters over the top of the ones pasted by one or the other of his contemporaries.

Both Glaentzer and Randolph agreed that Allen had been in the business longer than they had and also that he ought to have a little more sense by this time and that he was no better than they were. But that was the extent of their concessions. Allen deemed that his age and experience gave him a pretty fair claim to any bill-board that he decided to charter for his advertising posters and 'tis said that the Proctor agent was not as liberal as he might have been in leaving empty spots for the Astor and Airdome heralds. Hence, the declaration of war.

Contrary to expectations, Randolph and Gleantzer did not become allies but elected to fight individual battles. Each believed that the most effective campaign would be to daub posters over those placed their by either one of his competitors.

After several days of this variety of battling a sudden truce was effected. What any of the leaders gained in the conquest will not be admitted but from a general survey it is reasonable to expect that nothing was accomplished. The bill posters are right where they were when they started and another outbreak may be expected at any time. Allen is still the veteran dauber, Glaentzer still handles the Astor brush and Mike Shannon's bill-board interests are being protected by Randolph.

HANS PETERSON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services for Hans Peterson, an inmate of the Plainfield Industrial Home, who died at Muhlenberg Hospital early Saturday morning, were held in the undertaking parlors, 200 West Second street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The services, which were simple, were in charge of the Rev. Dr. C. W. F. Attlee. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

TO ATTEND FUNERAL.

Mrs. Guy D. Peck, of Park place, left yesterday for Mt. Vernon, N. Y., to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Edward Lauten, of that place, who died Sunday. The funeral will be held this evening.

PATRICK LAWLER DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

Patrick Lawler, sixty-three years of age, died at 6 o'clock last night at his home, 606 New street, after a week's illness. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, at an hour to be fixed later, with interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Lawler had resided in Plainfield for forty years. Several years ago he suffered a stroke of apoplexy which prevented his working. He was able to be about, however, and was in his usual health until about a week ago. Three children, all adults and residing at home, survive him. They are John, Michael and Miss Margaret. Mrs. Lawler died about four years ago.

REPORT GOOD COLLECTIONS.

The Business Men's Credit Association met last night in the Frost building, when the association's collector, W. A. Cochran, made an encouraging report for the past month. The members are pleased with the success which the collector is having with his work.

TROOPS TO QUELL THE STRIKE AT BRIDGEPORT

Connecticut Naval Militiamen Given 15 Rounds of Riot Ammunition.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 20.—Orders were issued today to the naval militia stationed in Bridgeport to be ready to report for strike duty at the Remington Arms-U. M. C. strike zone at 15 strokes of the fire alarm system. Fifteen rounds of riot ammunition have been issued for the use of each man.

One thousand men in addition to the employes of the Remington Arms Company will go on strike today. Labor leaders have induced the employes of the Columbia Nut and Bolt Company, the Gaynor Manufacturing Company and the Bullard Machine Tool Company to quit with the others for a general strike for an eight-hour day. The strikes at the Remington Arms works was still pending at 1:30 at which time a conference was in progress between the strikers and the officials of the plant.

The general strike in the plant of the Remington Arms Company was expected to start at noon today. Both the manufacturers and the labor leaders appeared determined not to recede one inch from their original stands.

"Neither Samuel Gompers nor the President of the United States can stop the strike now," declared J. J. Keppler, international vice president of the Machinists' Union, this morning. "The only man who can stop it is Major Walter G. Penfield, works manager of the Remington plant.

"And," said Mr. Keppler grimly "he can cut it short by backing down completely."

Mr. Keppler stated that Samuel Gompers had no jurisdiction over him and he reiterated his statement that he would not go to Washington to confer with Gompers nor would any of the strike leaders.

If the strike starts today it will mean that 500 men from the new Remington plant and 300 from another plant, not named, will walk out in a body. Within a week the strike leaders declare that they will tie up the manufacture of war munitions so tight that the supply from Bridgeport will practically cease.

It was stated here today that the labor leaders are planning to extend the strike throughout New England if their demands are not met by the manufacturers in Bridgeport within a week.

Reports from Washington hinted at a conspiracy on the part of Hungarians to cripple the output of war munitions in this country intended for the Allies. There are several thousand Hungarians working in the new Remington plant.

Last night Bridgeport was swamped with copies of a Hungarian newspaper, which called for a mass meeting of Hungarians tonight to vote on a strike in all Bridgeport plants. This paper denies that the sending of munitions to the Allies has anything to do with the situation here.

The labor leaders are greatly incensed over the fact that Samuel Gompers has backed up the statement of Major Penfield that German money was being used to engineer the big strike in this city.

5,000 STRIKE AT STANDARD OIL WORKS IN BAYONNE

New York, July 20.—About 5,000 men at the Constable Hook plant of the Standard Oil Company in Bayonne, struck today. Loading of six steamers at the company's piers in the Kill Van Kull was stopped. There is a dispute between some of the men and the company over wages.

FRANK BETTER AND THEN WORSE, SAY PHYSICIANS

Millegeville, Ga., July 20.—Leo M. Frank's condition today continued favorable. His temperature had receded to 99 early this morning and physicians said his chances of recovery have improved noticeably.

At 11:45 Frank's temperature had again risen to 102 and physicians found some infection in his wound. His pulse and respiration however, remain practically normal.

WELSH STRIKE SETTLED RESUME WORK THURSDAY

Cardiff, Wales, July 20.—England's Minister of Munitions David Lloyd George today effected a settlement of the strike in the South Wales coal fields that threw 250,000 men out of work, and threatened to cripple the British navy and the munitions plants supplying the army. Announcement was made this afternoon that the coal operators had accepted the terms agreed upon by Lloyd George and the miners at the morning conference.

Officials of the government who are on the scene expressed the belief today that work would be resumed in the mines on Thursday.

AN ORDINANCE

To Establish the Easterly Curb Line of East Ninth Street, Between Watchung Avenue and Third Place.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the easterly curb line of East Ninth Street, between Watchung Avenue and Third Place, be and it is hereby established as follows: Said curb line shall be distant two feet westerly from and parallel with the present easterly curb line of said East Ninth Street from Watchung Avenue to a point of curve distant 194.8 feet in a southerly direction from the centre line of Second Place produced; thence curving to the right with a radius of 172 feet to the northerly curb line of Third Place.

Adopted by the Common Council, July 6, 1915; approved by the Mayor, July 12, 1915.

AN ORDINANCE

To Regulate the Use of Sewers in the City of Plainfield and the Making of Connections Therewith.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The Committee on Sewers shall have the direction and control, subject to the orders of the Common Council, of all sewers and appurtenances in the City, and of the construction, maintenance, repair and use of the same.

Sec. 2. No person shall make any connection with any sewer or sewer connection in the City of Plainfield or open any manhole, lamphole or flushtank, or clean or repair any sewer connection, except with the written permit of the Engineer in charge of Sewers (hereinafter called the Engineer), or his authorized representative. The applicant for a permit to make house connections shall at the time of making application, deposit with the City Treasurer or with the said Engineer (by him to be deposited with the City Treasurer), the following sums:

If the connection has already been to the curb line, the sum of one dollar; if the connection has not been and to the curb line, the applicant shall deposit such additional sum as the Committee on Sewers may from time to time determine and additional sum to be approximately the average cost of furnishing the materials and doing the work of constructing 4-inch cast iron house connections from the sewers to the curb lines, said cost to be ascertained by advertising for bids for furnishing the materials and doing the work. For this sum the connection will be laid by the city contractor from the sewer to the curb line.

Where openings are made in brick or similar permanent pavements, an additional charge of three dollars and seventy five cents ($3.75) shall be paid for each square yard of such pavement to be replaced, which amount shall be paid at the time the permit is issued. Where openings are made in concrete pavement, the charge shall be two dollars and ten cents ($2.10) per square yard in addition to the one dollar permit fee.

Sec. 3. No more than one building shall be connected with the sewer through one connection without a special permit from the Department of Health.

Sec. 4. No trap shall be placed on any connection between the sewer and the building.

Sec. 5. No surface, underground or rain water shall be allowed to enter any sewer or house connection, and no vault or cesspool shall be connected with any sewer or house connection.

Sec. 6. No person shall permit or cause to enter or flow into any sewer or appurtenance, any hot, corrosive, suffocating inflammable or explosive liquid, gas, vapor or substance, or any substance which may injure said house connection or sewer or shall tend to form deposits or obstruct them; provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to water from ordinary hot water boilers.

Sec. 7. All stables, garages, ice cream factories, milk depots and similar establishments, in which floor drains are to be connected with the city sewers, shall be provided with catch basins or sand traps to receive and retain all sand, dirt and other refuse which would tend to clog the house drain or sewer. The catch basin or sand trap shall have a cover of ample size which can be easily opened and the sand and refuse must be removed at sufficiently frequent intervals to keep the deposits below the bottom of the outlet pipe.

Where any sand traps now in use are, in the opinion of the Engineer, incapable of performing the work for which they are intended, they shall be removed and new sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the requirements of this ordinance and these specifications, within sixty days after receipt of notice from the Engineer to make such change.

Sec. 8. All garages, industrial establishments and other buildings from which gasoline or oil are liable to flow into any house connection or sewer, shall be provided with properly constructed separators of ample capacity to intercept the gasoline and oil and prevent them from entering the sewer.

Gasoline or other volatile oils shall not be permitted to drain into the house connection or sewer.

Sec. 9. All work done in making connections to sewers and all materials furnished therefor shall conform to the requirements of the specifications annexed hereto and adopted herewith and entitled "Specifications for the Construction of Drains or Connections to Sewers in the City of Plainfield, N. J."

Sec. 10. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding ten days for each offense, or both such fine and imprisonment.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF DRAINS OR CONNECTIONS TO SEWERS IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Inspection.

All work and materials shall be subject to the inspection of the Engineer or his representative, and all improper work shall be reconstructed, and all material which do not conform to the requirements of the specifications shall be removed from the work. In no case shall any work be covered until it has been inspected and approved by the Engineer or his representative.

Location.

The proper location for the connection will be given at the time the permit is issued and no deviation from this location shall be made and no opening shall be cut into a sewer without special permission from the Engineer or his authorized representative.

Precautions.

All excavations, piles of materials and other obstacles incident to the work must be protected with barricades and lights to prevent accidents.

Excavation.

All macadam stone or other paving material removed in excavating the trenches shall be piled by itself, and after the completion of the work shall be relaid and the street left in as good condition as before being disturbed. In case the stone is wasted, or if the trenches settle, the contractor shall furnish new stone and restore the surface to the proper grade at his own expense.

Excavation shall be made in open trenches and no tunneling will be allowed except by permission of the Engineer.

In case the ground in the bottom of the trench is soft or spongy, it shall be excavated to such increased depth as the Engineer may direct, and shall be refilled with gravel or other suitable material, thoroughly rammed.

House Connections.

House connections shall be constructed of four inch cast iron pipe, strong, tough and of sound, even grain, weighing not less than 15 pounds per linear foot, and coated inside and outside with hot coal tar varnish. Larger pipes shall not be used except by special permission.

In laying the iron pipe, gaskets of clean, sound oakum or jute, braided or twisted, and tightly driven, shall be used to pack the joints. The best quality of pure, soft lead suitable for caulking, shall be used, and the depth of lead shall not be less than one inch. Before running the lead, the joints shall be carefully wiped out, and shall be run full at one pour. If the gasket becomes wet before time for pouring, it must be removed and a dry gasket inserted in its place. The joints shall be thoroughly calked by competent and experienced men, and when finished, the lead shall be flush with the face of the socket and the joint shall be absolutely tight.

Grade.

No connections with the sewers shall be laid with a less inclination than one-quarter of an inch to the foot except by special permit and at owner's risk.

Pipes to Be Clean.

All rubbish must be removed from the pipes before they are laid, and the open end of the pipe must be protected to prevent the intrusion of dirt.

Pipes to Be Plugged.

When the pipe is not connected to the soil pipe at once, the upper end shall be closed with a cemented or leaded plug.

Refilling.

The lower part of the trenches shall be refilled with the best of the excavated material, and no filling shall be done above the pipe until the material around it shall have been thoroughly tamped. The remaining portion of the trench shall be refilled in horizontal layers not exceeding nine inches in depth, each of which shall be well rammed. The earth must not be thrown into the trench faster than it can be distributed and properly rammed, and in filling, the number of men ramming shall not be less than the number of men filling. All extra material and rubbish must be promptly removed after the completion of the back-filling.

Sand Traps.

Sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the plans on file in the office of the City Clerk and under the direction of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

Gasoline and Oil Separators.

Gasoline and oil separators shall be installed under the supervision and subject to the approval of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

Adopted by the Common Council, July 6, 1915; approved by the Mayor, July 12, 1915.

INTERESTING FIGURES OF 1915 CAMPAIGN IN MAJOR LEAGUES INDICATE A CLOSE FIGHT

With the major league baseball teams swinging into the second half of the penant races, the records made by the various clubs during the first three months of the 1915 campaign, furnish an interesting insight of the strength and weakness of the various combinations. These tabulations show that in the play up to and including the first week in July, the Western clubs had played a greater number of games than the Eastern clubs and that the National League teams figured in fifteen tie games to the American League's eight.

Taking the clubs in the order of their percentage at that time the figures show that in the National League, the Chicago club was second in total number of runs; third in hits; second in errors made and fifth in the number of runners left on base. Philadelphia was sixth in runs; eighth in hits; third in errors and had fewer players stranded than any other club in the league. St Louis led in runs and hits; was fourth in errors and second in men left on bases. Pittsburgh had made the least number of errors and held third place in the left-on-bases column, but was low in the total of runs and hits.

In the second division Brooklyn had made the greatest number of errors; next to the least number of runs; was fifth in hits and fourth in batters stranded. The World's Champion Boston Braves led the league in players left on bases; were tied for fourth place with New York and Philadelphia in errors and fourth in runs and hits. The New York Giants were third in runs; second in hits and had less players left on base than any club except Philadelphia. Cincinnati had made the least number of runs; less hits than any club except Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, and had next to the least number of players left.

The Chicago White Sox headed the American League in hits; was third in runs; had made more errors than any clubs except St. Louis and Philadelphia; while holding fifth place in runners stranded. Boston had made the largest number of runs, and was fourth in hits, errors and left-on-bases. Detroit was second in hits and runs; had made less errors than any club except Washington and New York, but had more runners left on bases than any of the other teams. The New York Yankees were credited with the least errors; were third in hits; sixth in runs and third in marooned runners.

Washington had made the smallest total in runs and left-on-bases; next to the least errors and fewer hits than any club except St. Louis and Cleveland. The latter team was eighth in hits; seventh in runs, next to last in runners left and had the third least number of errors. St. Louis was tied with the Philadelphia Athletics for the head of the error column; was next to last in hitting; fifth in runs and sixth in runners marooned. The Athletics, in addition to making more errors than any club in the junior league except the Browns, had more runners left than any team except the Tigers. In hitting the Mackmen were fifth and in run-making fourth.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

During the past week the sporting public has been given reason to believe that Harry Thaw can surpass even the renowned Ty Cobb as a drawing card. Just think of how much some of these major league magnates who are complaining of poor attendances would give to sign the notorious Smoky City product.

That suggestion offered by an east end fan to the effect that providing the City League umpires with field glasses would be greatly appreciated by the organization's supporters did not meet with ready approval at the mogul's meeting last night. The umpires believe that they should be provided with a little more cash for each appearance.

If threats from various quarters are carried out we're inclined to believe that the "umps" will soon be calling for an accident insurance clause in their contracts.

In Watchung and Dunellen they have "regular" tennis teams. In Plainfield, a town recognized as the superior of these two suburbs in population we have a few "regular" tennis players but no team.

Cliff Case twirled a no-hit, no-run ball game at Flemington Saturday. Yes, gentle fan, it's the same old Cliff who deserted our shores some years ago to pastime on the Tri-State circuit. But no one ever accused that route of being a farming out place to educate future greats in the art of turning this kind of a feat.

If business keeps up at the City League turnstiles for the weeks to come as it has recently we will be the first to expect the Plainfielders to take out a franchise on the Federal circuit next fall. While a majority of the league players are well "bread" as ballplayers go, we have never been able to find a Ward among them.

If it isn't too late we'd like to extend our congratulations to Bill Schooley. Capturing a club canoe title two years in succession is no mean trick and those who have seen the little blonde perform are authority for the statement that he's the peer of the State's best.

And here's to Ralp Runyon. The Plainfielder certainly deserves all that is coming his way for capturing that junior "met" title. It's been so long since a Plainfield High School athlete has had a junior crown tucked under his belt that you'd accuse us of being in a league with Methusalah if we ventured to give you the date.

That Tab team, yes, the same one that wants to meet Joe Burns' Elizabeth Abstainers, got an awful bump when it met the Jones' Plainfield A. A. talent Sunday afternoon. Just Jones, that's all.

Those much-tooted City League hurlers were scattered about the three engagements Saturday afternoon. Dick Schott was the leading light in the Hope-Baptist struggle; Denny held forth in the Tab-Clinton exhibition, and Gleason was in the firing pit against Netherwood. Not a bad collection on paper.

OLYMPICS IN TOKIO.

Arrangements have been made to hold the next Olympic games of the Far East in Tokio, Japan, in May, 1917. Since the institution of the game at Manila the tournament has been very popular and the decision to hold the next bi-annual meet at Tokio has caused great satisfaction among the Japanese, who are showing a steadily increasing interest in athletics. The expenses of the meet are estimated at about 15,000 yen, but baseball is so popular in Japan it is believed the baseball gate receipts alone will total 10,000 yen.

SOME BROOKLYN BETS.

The news to the effect that a Manhattan pool had been formed to bet $7,000 against $1,000 that the Brooklyn team would not win the pennant this year, has aroused the ire of some of the Brooklyn betting fraternity. Fred Schumm has a commission to bet for a prominent Brooklynite $200 against $1,400 that the Brooklyn team will win the pennant this year, and also has another bet of $100 to $600 to make to the same end.

ROD AND REEL

John J. Yates, of DeLacy avenue, caught a 36-pound channel bass at Corson's Inlet yesterday and sent it to John Doughty, of North avenue, this morning. The fish is of a species that is varied in color and edible but there are very few people who take advantage of this latter quality.

Plainfield fishermen, who have tried their luck around Gedney and Sandy Hook lately, say that fluke is plentiful in these channels.

Dr. Hughes, who is spending the summer in the Lake Champlain region, reports that fishing is good in that section, which is scarcely ever visited by tourists and inhabited mainly by Indian guides.

Reports indicate that fishing is unusually good in the Hudson River region this year.

"CRABBING" UMPIRES AND PLAYERS IS "TABOOED" BY CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

It was the concensus of opinion of the representatives of the City Amateur Baseball League at its weekly meeting in the Plainfield Daily Press office last night, that for the best interest of the game and promotion of the sport here that the common practice of "crabbing" the umpires and players should be stopped. Several complaints of this nature were brought before the meeting and the umpires were told that they would be held responsible for the maintenance of order at the City League games.

There will be no objection to legitimate "rooting" on the part of the crowd, but remarks of a too personal nature will be "tabooed" from now on and the umpires will have the power to put a stop to the practice. Umpires Coriell, Malanga and Hensen attended last night's meeting by invitation of the league and many things of common interest were discussed for the advancement of the league's interest.

There was considerable discussion regarding ground rules on Hope's field as to the number of bases allowed on hit balls, but it was finally decided to allow the present rules to remain in force, that is two bases will be allowed on balls hit in either left or right field, owing to the proximity of the railroad on one side and the street and houses on the other.

It was reported that Harry Dreier had offered to present a pennant to the team winning the city championship. The offer of Spaulding to give individual watch fobs to members of the winning team, which was accepted, now awaits a final decision on the part of the New York sporting goods' house, Secretary Dan Randolph having furnished the concern with a list of the league officers and teams.

Managers of the different teams reported a few changes in the list of players at last night's meeting. Oscar Dilts and Arthur O'Leary were added to the Clinton Avenue club roster, taking the places of McFadden and Teeling. Ernest Stahl, the former N. P. H. S. pitcher, was added to the First Baptist list and the name of Ungaretti was dropped. Frank Hand was posted on the Netherwood team list, Monroe Terry being dropped. H. Overland was dropped from Hope's team, Lou Hefti taking his place. No changes were reported in the lineup of either the T. A. B. or Saurer teams.

An encouraging feature about the league thus far is that all the teams report good attendance at the games and all of the clubs have been able to make a little money.

EXPECT HOT WINDUP OF LEAGUE CAMPAIGN

Hope, Tabs and Netherwood Appear to Be Likely Title Candidates.

Three teams are considered pennant possibilities in the City League race, the Hopes, Tabs and the Netherwoods being the ones referred to. At present the Hopes lead the race, with the Tabs very close behind and the Coughlin boys dangerously near them. There are eight or nine more games to be played and it will be necessary for the three leading teams to win all of these if they wish to still be in the running when September 6 rolls around. By virtue of a postponement the Tabs have nine more games to play.

On paper the Hope combine looks to be the best of the three, having a better battery than any of the five contenders. Dick Schott and Nash surpass the best that can be exhibited by any other team, their nearest rivals being "Tone" Denny and "Henny" Winters, of the Tab forces. The Chapel infield, however, does not outshine that of any other league team and the outfield is not above the ordinary. The secret of their success seems to lie in the fact that they play together and are urged on by the splendid work put forth by their hurler. The Tabs are a fast aggregation and are the ones feared most by the Hopes. With a stable of hurlers like Tone and Jack Denny and Brennan, these fellows ought to be on top when the race is finished. Their infield is of about the same calibre as that of Hopes, while their outfield is fair, nothing more or less. The Netherwood team is another one that posseses a great battery in the persons of "Russ" Stewart and Earl Moran. Their infield and outer garden are in the same class with those of the Hopes and Tabs.

With these three teams so closely bunched and so evenly matched the last half of the pennant race should produce some real thrills.

AMATEUR BALL JINGLES

"Goat" Nash is performing well for the Hopes, hitting heavily and opportunely and fielding in faultless style. The fact that Nash broke a leg several years ago does not seem to detract from his ability at the present time.

Another Hope artist who deserves credit for his work in the last few City League games is "Nels" Luthgran, who has played every position on the team and performed creditably in each of them. Unlike many other all around men Luthman can tackle the pitching problem just as readily as any other position.

"Kid" Brennan has been doing great stunts for the Tabs in the clouting line, but it is to be lamented that his fielding is a little loose. Brennan is a light man and ought to be able to cover the short field position better than he has been doing.

Lou Brown and his boys would have won easily Saturday if it were not for the splendid fielding uncorked by Tone Denny, who made five difficult catches in centre. If he had dropped any of these clouts a run would have resulted and he would not have been charged with an error.

Joe Newell, the Junior League star hurler, allowed but one hit again yesterday and if he keeps this work up will undoubtedly register a no-hit win in the near future.

For the first time in many weeks Plainfield fans were treated to a really good Sunday ball game. The encounter took place Sunday, the teams contending being "Dipper" Jones' Plainfield A. A. and Jim Monahan's Tabs. Jones and his boys walked away with a 5 to 1 victory and a fairly good crowd saw them do it.

Cliff Randolph was compared to Christy Mathewson by a Perth Amboy paper recently and in working out the comparison the Amboy scribe declared that the two were alike inasmuch as each hurled a good game once in a while. Sunday was one of the days when Cliff was good for he allowed only two hits.

Ralph Smalley and Wren Townley did not perform as well Saturday as was expected. Although Ralph caught a good game he failed to break into the hit column while Wren was just a little off form.

The Quaker manager has been active during the past week and has booked several good teams to appear here. The Rahway Juniors, one of the aggregations oilled, have a great "rep" and are coming here well-prepared to defend it.

What happened to "Babe" Gleason Saturday? Some people say that he has reached his limit of time allowed by the "rep" ticket presented to him by ardent City League fans. However, it must be remembered that all good pitchers get their lumps now and then.

Lou Slocum has proven himself a valuable addition to "Mat" Coughlin's forces. His hitting has been consistent and his fielding faultless. As yet Lou has not attempted to pitch any league contests, but it is hoped that he will adorn the mound at least once before the race is over.

Add to the City League twirlers' Hall of Fame one Russ Stewart, of Netherwood, who, by virtue of his good slab work on Saturday has earned a place among the best.

W. Miller, better known as "Kitten," is a regular "Rabbit" Maranville, "Hal" Chase and Johnny Evers, when it comes to handling the hot ones. He can play any position but has one fault, being a little too sure of his ability to field the ball.

We wonder why the Royals are not active this season. The Kline boys used to furnish the city with some real stuff along the diamond lines, but for some reason or other they have been noticeably inactive this year. Wonder why?

Manager Jim Monahan declares that he realizes that his team could not cope with that managed by Joe Burns, of Elizabeth. But Jim adds that he is certain that the local Tabs could give a team picked from the membership of the Elizabeth Tab Society a hearty tussle. It seems that Burns' boys are Tabs in name only.

There ought to be some decided changes in the Parker Field Junior League standing this week and we look for a few more one-hit games.

RIDES TWO MILES IN 4:05.

Chicago, July 20—A world's amateur bicycle record was claimed yesterday for Ernest Koekler, of Chicago, who rode two miles in 4:05 in a race here Sunday night. The former record was made by John H. Hume, of Salt Lake City, in 1905.

VANDEVENTER LOSES HARD SET FOR TITLE

Plainfield Boy and Partner Fight in Fine Form After Strenuous Semi-Final.

After one of the most thrilling competitions that ever decided a tennis match in this county, Phillip Van-Deventer, of this city, pairing with Kirkland, of Elizabeth, in the finals of the Westfield Golf Club's doubles tourney, was forced to accept defeat when Dunham and Glazebrook, of Rahway, won the fifth and deciding set. Whirlwind tennis, featured by sharp serving and phenomenal returns was staged for a record crowd of night tennis enthusiasts and the deciding of the last engagement put a fitting finale on a wonderful tournament.

The Rahway outfit cleaned up on the first set with a 6 to 1 count; the Plainfielder and his partner won the second, 6-8, and Dunham and Glazebrook again came to the fore in the third with a 6 to 2 win. The team of interest to local followers of the sport evened matters up in the fourth, but was sent down to a hard fought 6 to 4 verdict at the conclusion of the match. VanDeventer played in brilliant form throughout the tourney and together with his partner put up a formidable opposition against the classy talent that faced them.

Leading up to the finals Throckmorton and Ernst defeated Dunham and Glazebrook 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. VanDeventer and Kirkland defeated Throckmorton and Ernst, 6-1, 6-0.

The scores in the finals were 6-1, 6-8, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

"MIDGE" EXPLAINS.

"Midge" Kline is getting profuse with his alibis. Saturday his Royal Giants were scheduled to meet the All Stars on Parker Field, but through a misunderstanding the game was not played. Quite a few fans were on hand to witness the match and a few of these made it a point to see Kline after they learned that the game had been postponed. Inability to get the game sufficiently advertised was the alibi "Midge" produced on this occasion.

YALE DEFEATS MERCERS BY A SCORE OF 11 TO 2

Old Eli secured a firm hold on first place honors in the Junior League, today, defeating the Mercers 11 to 2. Kennedy, hurling for the winners, allowed his opponents eight hits, while he and his team-mates registered thirteen hits. The large score can be attributed to the fact that the losers made nine errors.

CYCLING PROGRAM.

New Yorw, July 20—Two special features will be on the attractive program tonight at the Sheepshead Bay Velodrome. Frank Kramer meeting Caesar Moretti in a match race for the best two out of three heats and a one hour motor paced race between Clarence Carmen, George Wiley, Georges Seres, Menus Bedell and Worth Mitten. The match race was postponed from Saturday night. The paced race is the longest endurance test to be staged this year and with a strong field going to the post, the largest to get together so far at the new track, the finish may result in a surprise.

HE'S USED TO CLIFF.

Tommy Mullin, catching for the Franklins Sunday, got one of the two hits made off the delivery of Cliff Randolph, another local man. The only other Franklin player to connect with Cliff's delivery was Romer, the New York cop.

SUNDAY ATTRACTION.

WILL MANUFACTURE AND SELL CLOTHING CLEANER

The Kill-Stain Company, of this city, announcement of the incorporation of which appeared in the Daily Press yesterday, will maintain an office at the grocery store of J. L. Bennett for the present, but in the near future will erect a plant. The company will manufacture and sell a cleaner for clothing, rugs, carpets, etc. The cleaner is the patent of H. G Morris, one of the incorporators, the remaining incorporators being George A. Beattie and J. L. Bennett.

TROLLEY EMPLOYES AND FAMILIES ENJOY OUTING

Local trolley employes and their families enjoyed a trolley trip to Coney Island yesterday. Promptly at 8 o'clock two comfortably filled cars left the car barns in Dunellen for the popular metropolitan resort. On board both cars were plenty of refreshments and a band, which furnished music for the trip. At Elizabethport the cars were abandoned and a boat taken for Coney Island. Another excursion of this kind will be made by those of the trolleymen who were unable to go yesterday, on the second of August.

enemy retreated during the night on the entire front, stopping only at the Irruption point near Krasnostav, where he attempted some resistance, but suffered a severe defeat.

"German troops and the corps under the command of Field Marshal von Arx captured from the 16th to the 18th 16,250 prisoners and twenty-three machine guns.

"According to written orders which have come into our possession, the commanders of the enemy were resolved to maintain, without regard to losses, the positions which we now have captured."

Vienna, July 20.—The official Austrian statement says:

"The offensive of the Allied troops in Poland was continued yesterday. West of the Vistula fighting continued at Alzonka. Northwest of Itza Austrian troops captured some positions. German troops advanced successfully to the height near Krasnostav. In conjunction with German forces Austrian regiments are engaged in violent fighting between Skierbicyow and Grabovetz."

Paris, July 20.—Two more successful air raids have been carried out by Allied aviators, the French War Office announced today. The railway station at Colmar, in Alsace, and the railway junction at Challerengo, in eastern France, were attacked.

Six French aeroplanes took part in the raid on Colmar, which occurred early today. Four machine guns were in the squadron that raided Challenengo on Monday. At Colmar the railway line was damaged as well as the station and a train. All the aeroplanes returned to their base undamaged. Forty-eight bombs were dropped at Challerengo.

Rome, July 20.—Italian troops are reported in a semi-official dispatch from Milan to have captured by storm Podgora Hill, which is only a mile from Gorizia and dominates that city.

The total subscriptions to the war loan amount to 950,000,000 lire (about $190,000,000). This figure does not include subscriptions received since Saturday night, nor take in all of the sums which have been subscribed by Italians in the Americas.

Salonika, July 20 (via Paris).—A German army aviator on Sunday landed in Constantinople, after making a flight across Bulgaria, say advices from the Turkish capital.

London, July 20.—A new vote of credit of 150,000,000 pounds was introduced today in the House of Commons. This second supplementary vote will bring the sum actually appropriated by Parliament for war expenditures to the total of 650,000,000 pounds. The amount thus provided will tide over the period for the coming Parliamentary recess.

PICTURE STAR IN CITY.

Maurice Costello, one of the film stars employed by the Vitagraph Company in the manufacture of motion pictures, together with a delegation of "movie" actors, visited the Queen City hotel at noon today for luncheon. They afterwards proceeded in automobiles to their destination in Brooklyn. Costello is well-known to local "movie" devotees and not a little excitement was caused by his recognition as he entered the hostelry.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

Queenstown, July 20—The British steamer Lowther Range from Manchester to Montreal, rammed and sunk the British steamer Polish Prince early today. One man of the Polish Prince crew was drowned.

FESTIVAL AND DANCE.

St. Mary's Social Club will hold a lawn festival and dance tonight on the spacious lawn in front of T. A. B. Hall, on West Fourth street. Miss Anna Howe is chairman of the committee in charge.

SUFFRAGISTS PLAN BIG DEMONSTRATION

Will Unveil Tablet at Orange in Memory of Lucy Stone, Founder of Movement.

The greatest suffrage demonstration which has ever occurred in New Jersey will take place on August 12 and 13. Suffrage pilgrims will come from every county in the State, from Sussex to Cape May, by automobile, by train and on foot, their destination being the house at 16 Hurlbut street, Orange, which was once the home of Lucy Stone, the pioneer New Jersey Suffragist and the founder of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association. In this house she lived at the time of making her famous protest against the paying of taxes by women.

On the afternoon of Friday, August 13—that day being the anniversary of the birth of Lucy Stone—a memorial tablet in her honor is to be placed on the house. Her daughter, Alice Stone Blackwell, will speak at the unveiling of the tablet, and afterward the suffrage pilgrims will proceed to one of the Orange parks, where there will be an immense outdoor mass meeting, among the speakers at which will be Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the Masachusetts Woman Suffrage Association and editor of the Woman's Journal; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage Alliance and chairman of the Empire State campaign committee, and other speakers of national fame.

The chairman of the committee of arrangements is Mrs. E. F. Feickert, the State president; and among those serving on her committee are Mrs. Gordon Grand, Mrs. Philip McKim Garrison, respectively president and vice-president of the Equal Suffrage League of the Oranges; Mrs. F. H. Colvin, vice-president of the State association; Mrs. G. H. Linsz, of East Orange; Dr. Mary D. Hussey and Miss Lillian Wiggin, also of East Orange; Mrs. Arthur Hunter, of Montclair, and Miss A. E. Cameron, of Glen Ridge.

ALLEGES WOMAN BEAT HER ABOUT HEAD WITH A WHIP

Somerville, July 20.—A horsewhipping, alleged to have been given Mrs. C. Elizabeth Munzo, who lives with her father, John M. Schorb, on his big farm between Liberty Corner and Mt. Bethel, in Bernards township, was the basis of a complaint on which Mrs. Munzo had Mrs. Mathilda Worman, wife of the man who works the place for her father, arraigned here Saturday night before Police Justice William P. Sutphen. Mrs. Worman was released in $500 bail to await the action of the Somerset Countl grand jury on the charge, which is technically one of atrocious assault.

Mrs. Munzo alleges that Mrs. Worman struck her on the head, arms and body with the whip. Mrs. Worman declared that Mrs. Munzo threw stones at her. There has been friction between the Wormans and Mr. Schorb and his daughter for some time. Mr. Schorb recently began suit to dispossess the Wormans. In addition to Mrs. Munzo's charge, Mr. Schorb alleged attempted assault against John T. Worman, the husband, and John T. Worman, Jr., his son. They were released under $200 bail.

ODD ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

It is estimated that in the United States the expenditures this year for motor cars and supplies for them will reach $1,180,000,000. It is figured that 8,000,000 Americans are regular motorists or passengers.

LEAVE FOR SILVER BAY.

Several members of the local Y. W. C. A. left yesterday for Silver Bay where they will attend the Eastern City Conference. They expect to remain at Silver Bay about ten days. Those who made the trip were the Misses Colton, Mildred McAuliff, Clara Smith and Mrs. Tennyson. The party was under the leadership of Miss Allen, the general secretary of the local association.

INSTALLED LODGE OFFICERS.

Deputy Grand Chancellor W. H. Nichols, of this city, installed K. of P. officers in Bound Brook lodge, No. 56, of Bound Brook, and Lodge of the Castle, at Somerville, last night.

A ROMANCE OF THE BEAR TOOTH RANGE

CHAPTER VII.

Storm Bound.

WAYLAND was awakened by the mellow voice of his chief calling: "All out! All out! Daylight down the creek!" Then, breathing a prayer of thankfulness, the boy sat up and looked about him "The long night is over at last, and I am alive," he said and congratulated himself.

"How did you sleep?" asked the supervisor.

"First rate—at least during the latter part of the night," Wayland briskly lied.

"That's good. I was afraid that Adirondack bed of yours might let the white wolf in."

"My blankets did seem a trifle thin," confessed Norcross.

"It doesn't pay to sleep cold," the supervisor went on. "A man wants to wake up refreshed, not tired out with fighting the night wind and frost. I always carry a good bed."

It was instructive to see how quietly and methodically the old mountaineer went about his task of getting breakfast. First he cut and laid a couple of eight inch logs on either side of the fire, so that the wind drew through them properly; then, placing the Dutch oven cover on the fire, he laid the bottom part where the flames touched it. Next he filled his coffeepot with water and set it on the coals. From his pannier he took his dishes and the flour and salt and pepper, arranging them all within reach, and at last laid some slices of bacon in the skillet.

At this stage of the work a smothered cry, half yawn, half complaint, came from the tent. "Oh, hum! Is it morning?" inquired Berrie.

"Morning," replied her father. "It's going toward noon. You get up or you'll have no breakfast."

Thereupon Wayland called: "Can I get you anything, Miss Berrie? Would you like some warm water?"

"What for?" interposed McFarlane before the girl could reply.

"To bathe in," replied the youth.

"To bathe in! If a daughter of mine should ask for warm water to wash with I'd throw her in the creek."

Berrie chuckled. "Sometimes I think daddy has no feeling for me. I reckon he thinks I'm a boy."

"Hot water is debilitating and very bad for the complexion," retorted her father. "Ice cold water is what you need. And if you don't get out o' there in five minutes I'll douse you with a dipperful."

This reminded Wayland that he had not yet made his own toilet, and, seizing soap, towel and brushes, he hurried away down the beach, where he came face to face with the dawn. The splendor of it smote him full in the eyes. From the waveless surface of the water a spectral mist was rising, a light veil, through which the stupendous cliffs loomed 3,000 feet in height, darkly shadowed, dim and far. The willows along the western marge burned as if dipped in liquid gold, and on the lofty crags the sun's coming created keen edged shadows, violet as ink. Truly this forestry business was not so bad after all. It had its compensations.

Back at the campfire he found Berrie at work, glowing, vigorous, laughing. Her comradeship with her father was very charming, and at the moment she was rallying him on his method of bread mixing. "You should rub the lard into the flour," she said. "Don't be afraid to get your hands into it—after they are clean. You can't mix bread with a spoon."

"Sis, I made camp bread for twenty years afore you were born."

"It's a wonder you lived to tell of it," she retorted, and took the pan away from him. "That's another thing you must learn," she said to Wayland. "You must know how to make bread. You can't expect to find bakeshops or ranchers along the way."

In the heat of the fire, in the charm of the girl's presence, the young man forgot the discomforts of the night, and, as they sat at breakfast and the sun rising over the high summits flooded them with warmth and good cheer and the frost melted like magic from the tent, the experience had all the satisfying elements of a picnic. It seemed that nothing remained to do. But McFarlane said, "Well, now you youngsters wash up and pack while I reconnoiter the stock." And with his saddle and bridle on his shoulder he went away down the trail.

Under Berrie's direction Wayland worked busily putting the camp equipment in proper parcels, taking no special thought of time till the tent was down and folded, the panniers filled and closed and the fire carefully covered. Then the girl said: "I hope the horses haven't been stampeded. There are bears in this valley, and horses are afraid of bears. Father ought to have been back before this. I hope they haven't quit us."

"Shall I go and see?"

"No, he'll bring 'em if they're in the land of the living. He picketed his saddle horse, so he's not afoot. Nobody can teach him anything about trailing horses, and, besides, you might get lost. You'd better keep close to camp."

Thereupon Wayland put aside all responsibility. "Let's see if we can catch some more fish," he urged.

To this she agreed, and together they went again to the outlet of the lake, where the trout could be seen darting to and fro on the clear, dark flood, and there cast their flies till they had secured ten good sized fish.

"We'll stop now," declared the girl. "I don't believe in being wasteful."

Once more at the camp they prepared the fish for the pan.

As they were unpacking the panniers and getting out the dishes for their meal thunder broke from the high crags above the lake, and the girl called out:

"Quick! It's going to rain! We must reset the tent and get things under cover."

Once more he was put to shame by the decision, the skill and the strength with which she went about re-establishing the camp. She led, he followed in every action. In ten minutes the canvas was up, the beds rolled, the panniers protected, the food stored safely. But they were none too soon, for the thick gray veil of rain which had clothed the loftiest crags for half an hour swung out over the water, leaden gray under its folds, and with a roar which began in the tall pines, a roar which deepened, hushed only when the thunder crashed resoundingly from crag to crest, the tempest fell upon the camp and the world of sun and odorous pine vanished almost instantly, and a dark, threatening and forbidding world took its place.

But the young people, huddled close together beneath the tent, would have enjoyed the change had it not been for the thought of the supervisor. "I hope he took his slicker," the girl said between the tearing, ripping flashes of the lightning. "It's raining hard up there."

"How quickly it came. Who would have thought it could rain like this after so beautiful a morning?"

"It storms when it storms in the mountains," she responded with the sententious air of her father. "You never can tell what the sky is going to do up here. It is probably snowing on the high divide. Looks now as though those cayuses pulled out some time in the night and have hit the trail for home. That's the trouble with stall fed stock. They'll quit you any time they feel cold and hungry. Here comes the hail!" she shouted as a sharper, more spiteful roar sounded far away and approaching. "Now keep from under!"

"What will your father do?" he called.

"Don't worry about him. He's at home any place there's a tree. He's probably under a balsam somewhere, waiting for this ice to spill out. The only point is, they may get over the divide, and if they do it will be slippery coming back."

For the first time the thought that the supervisor might not be able to return entered Wayland's mind, but he said nothing of his fear.

The hail soon changed to snow, great, clinging, drowsy, soft, slow moving flakes, and with their coming the roar died away and the forest became as silent as a grave of bronze. Nothing moved save the thick falling, feathery, frozen vapor, and the world was again very beautiful and very mysterious.

"We must keep the fire going," warned the girl. "It will be hard to start after this soaking."

He threw upon the fire all of the wood which lay near, and Berrie, taking the ax, went to the big fir and began to chop off the dry branches which hung beneath, working almost as effectively as a man. Wayland insisted on taking a turn with the tool, but his efforts were so awkward that she laughed and took it away again. "You'll have to take lessons in swinging an ax," she said. "That's part of the job."

Gradually the storm lightened, the snow changed back into rain and finally to mist, but up on the heights the clouds still rolled wildly, and through their openings the white drifts bleakly shone.

THE W. C. T. U.

All social clubs in Atlanta, Ga., have been prohibited from dispensing liquor in any form. Claims of exclusiveness or aristocracy will cause no distinction in Chief of Police Beaver's ultimatum. Rigid democracy will govern all enforcement measures; the rich will not be permittted violations for which the poorer people are held accountable.

This decision has been won by the persistent work of Messrs. Egan and Jackson, the "Men and Religion" advertising men of Atlanta.

"Under the operation of the present prohibition law wonders have been worked in North Carolina. The improvement can be seen in every city and hamlet, and many men who voted against the present law have since its operation become convinced that it has been more than worth while," says the Charlotte Times in speaking of the result of prohibition in North Carolina.

Colonel Roosevelt says: "There is nothing more absurd than the belief that the closing of the saloon will cause workingmen to lose their jobs. There are few things more important to our social advancement than the loosening of the grip of the liquor interests upon the labor movement. The saloon always represents economic loss."

"If the alcohol question were solved there would still remain other social questions to be solved, but it is also true that as things stand today no other question of social welfare can be taken up with any prospect of securing efficient results until the alcohol question is solved."—Judge Herman Popert, Hamburg, Germany.

One-fourth of all daily newspapers of the United States decline liquor advertisements.

The following testimony to the advantages of prohibition appeared in one of the newspapers of Sussex county, Deleware:

"The county jail at Georgetown is without a prisoner, and Sheriff Jacob West is idle. The turnkey is on his vacation, chickens are roosting in the cells and the jailyard will probably be planted in early corn unless another applicant appears. The lone prisoner, Elwood Armstrong, who was afraid to stay by himself, was paroled for two years after having confessed to stealing five dozen eggs."

Further testimony as to the workings of prohibition comes from Kalamazoo, Mich. The Gazette of that city on April 5 contained a paragraph headed "Klamazoo without Crime for 48 Hours—Crimeless Period of City's History Follows Knockout of John Barleycorn." and the item reads:

"'Rooms for rent. Apply within.' This is the text of a sign which will likely be tacked on the front door of central police station in another week if the period of quiet continues. Not a cell door in the station house has been opened during the last 48 hours. The 'bull pen' is as barren and quiet as an abandoned country church. There has not been a single drunk arrested since Sunday afternoon. Crime in general appears to be at a standstill.'

A man was trying to convince another that because of the vested interests involved the people had no right to close the breweries. His friend answered thus: "I have three boys. By the time I graduate them from college they will have cost me about ten thousand dollars apiece. Every interest of the brewery and everything that the brewery stands for is diametrically opposed to and threatens the investment that I have made in my boys. No doubt the brewer has more than thirty thousand invested in his plant, but I am going to safeguard my own interests first. I shall vote dry within ten minutes after the polls open if I can get my ballot by that time."

The public officials of Clarksburg, W. Va., are quoted by the Clarksburg Telegram as saying that but one-seventh as many arrests were made in the city during July, August, September and October under prohibition as were made during the corresponding months of last year. Three members of the police force have been cut off as a result of prohibition.

Where the saloons flourish the homes wither.—The Pioneer.

A mother having expressed her regret at the lukewarmness of a certain preacher on the prohibition question, received the reply, "But, my dear woman, it is not necessary to urge it. It is right and is sure to come. It may be twenty or, perhaps, ten years, but what matters a few years, more or less?" "What matters a few years?" replied the mother with deep feeling. "If your boy or my boy are to be among those who will be ruined in the saloons in these ten or twenty years, it would seem a matter of infinite importance how soon the liquor traffic was exterminated."

The Worth Brothers Steel Mills Company, the Lukens Iron and Steel Company, of Coatsville, Pa., and the Florence Iron Company, of Florence, N. J., have prohibited the delivery of beer, whisky or any other intoxicating liquors to the homes of their employes, and all agents of breweries are prohibited from soliciting upon the premises.

The efficiency slogan—"Sobriety first—Safety follows."

"I am the sworn, eternal and uncompromising enemy of the liquor traffic," declared Dr. Billy Sunday, recently in Philadelphia. "Stand by me," he pleaded, "in my fight for your homes, your families, and your decency. The saloon is doomed; the anti-saloon sentiment already holds the balance of power in the United States. In God's good time we are going to sing My Country 'Tis of Thee,' and there won't be a saloon in it. We might as well try to dam Niagara Falls with toothpicks as try to stem the great tide of temperance reform that is sweeping our country."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Naughty Mice That Ate The Poppy Plants.

"What's this, what's this?" shouted Frolic.

"MAMMA and Papa Mouse had the dearest little home you ever saw. It was down back of the managing editor's great big desk." Daddy was beginning the evening story.

"The managing editor's desk was in the corner of a great big room on the top floor of a very high building, and he didn't know anything about the cozy little flat back of his desk.

"And he didn't know either when Frolic and Frisky came to live in that little paper lined home back of his great desk.

"Anyhow, the little family was there behind his desk, and Frolic and Frisky grew from little balls of fluff to be cute little mice.

"And they almost always had cheese and breadcrumbs to eat at night when the great big room where the twenty editors worked during the daytime was as silent and still as only a place can be which has hummed with activity during the daylight hours.

"You see, the German editor at 11:20 every day always ate sandwiches made of bread and cheese, and Mamma and Papa Mouse found the big basket where he threw the crumbs.

"One night after the editors had all gone home and the managing editor's big desk was closed and it was dark and quiet in the big room Mamma and Papa Mouse and Frolic and Frisky went foraging as usual.

"They climbed up the sides of the big basket and were in such a hurry that they jumped right down into the papers and began scrambling around for their dinner. But, alas and alack, the German editor had a vacation that day, and their dinner was not there!

"'What shall we do?' squeaked Mamma Mouse in dismay, thinking, as mammas usually do, more about Frisky and Frolic and their dinnerless little 'tummies' than she did about herself and Papa Mouse.

"So they explored that place, but nothing could they find, and went slowly back toward the big desk, a very hungry and unhappy little family.

"'What's this? What's this?' shouted Frolic, who had scampered ahead. They all ran to see, and it was a big box of green plants sitting upon the window sill beside the managing editor's desk.

"Cautiously Papa Mouse sampled those succulent green things, and, finding them good, they ate and ate and ate till they ate the green plants all up.

"'Well,' said the managing editor the next morning, 'those mice have had some wonderful dreams. Those were poppy plants they ate. I forgot to take them home last night.'"

SUSPENDERS DRESSES HOLD POPULAR FANCY.

No. 8973.

While the suspender dress is popular it cannot be said to be a fad, for the idea is not new. The dress is bound always to be in favor because of its practicability and smartness. The dress above, cut by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8973, is in extremely good taste, having a three-piece corded skirt with a gathered yoke. The waist is cut with full sleeves in sizes 34 to 42 bust measure, requiring in size 36, 4⅛ yards of 36-inch material and 1⅞ yards of 36-inch contrasting material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Miss Viola Allen, the most noted dramatic actress on the American stage and who has a large following among Plainfield theatregoers, made her screen debut here yesterday in "The White Sister," at the U. S. Astor Theatre, and despite the fact that the Astor billboards were covered with paper by miscreants alleged to have been inspired by certain opposition theatrical managers, the theatre was crowded at both matinee and evening performances. "The White Sister," shown for the first time in Plainfield at the popular West Front street picture house, should prove extremely popular, for it has a theme which has stood the test of time and its appeal today is as strong as it ever has been.

The story had to do with the young girl who, believing her lover to be dead, enters a convent, only to find after she has taken her final vows that he still lives and loves her. Then follows the intense struggle between her love and duty, with the latter triumphant, until a friendly priest steps in and uses his influence to obtain a dispensation releasing her from her vows.

"The White Sister" is one of the most tensely dramatic photoplays ever produced. Viola Allen has put all her genius into the play, with the result that it is unsurpassed in the portrayal of intense emotions. Miss Allen's beauty is the type that photographs with exceptional excellence and she entered into the spirit of producing the play with unbounded enthusiasm. While it is her first experience in screen drama she had not the slightest difficulty in adjusting herself to the work. The thrilling scene in the convent where the White Sister comes face to face with the man she supposes dead is very well enacted. There is a moment of great joy when the lovers realize they are forever separated by the veil. The play is the greatest work of the late F. Marion Crawford and its intense human element is attested by the success the play had on the stage.

Tomorrow "Gretna Green," with dainty Marguerite Clark in the principle role, will be shown. It is a refreshingly bright comedy drama and just the right sort of entertainment for warm weather.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Those who love those romantic stories of the Southland in picture form should not fail to visit Proctor's Theatre this evening, and see "Marse Covington," a photo-production of five acts and 207 scenes. The title role is ably taken by Edward Connelly, the estimable character actor well-known to those who follow the screen from time to time.

With the usual observance of the weekly Ice Cream Day at this theatre tomorrow, "The Dancing Girl" is to feature the motion picture program. In this picture Daniel Frohman presents Florence Reed in the title role of a famous emotional drama. Those who love the contrasts of sharp marking will make no mistake in making it a point to see this wonderful picture.

Going from the sublime to the foolish, the feature picture for Thursday has been announced as "It's No Laughing Matter," a comic tragedy which creates the number of laughs which is expected from the rural play, whether on the legitimate stage or in the form of moving pictures. This story, with Maclyn Arbuckle taking the leading part, is one that tells of the doings of Hi Judd, well-known as 'Old Sunshine,' the village postmaster, poet and philosopher.

Mrs. T. J. Lyness and daughter, Miss Mae Lyness, and Miss Mabel Goodwin, of 958 Union street, are registered at the St. James Hotel, Atlantic City.

J. W. Lyness, of Union street, has gone to Millington for a week, after which he will spend some time at Lake Hopatcong.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Why, how do you happen to be home at this time of day?" asked Nell in surprise as Dick tore into the house in great haste.

"I got a long distance call from Kansas City, from the lawyer who is working on that inheritance deal. He wants me to come down there at once. If you can help me get ready I can make the afternoon train."

"What does it mean?" asked Nell, taking the suit case out of its enveloping bag in the closet.

"That's what I am going to find out," said Dick, kicking off a shoe. "He merely asked me to come at once; said it was necessary to see me."

"That's encouraging, I should think," replied Nell.

"Oh, I suppose so. Throw me a pair of socks, will you? Thanks." Dick's arms were going through the air like the fans of a windmill.

"How long will you be gone?" asked Nell.

"Oh, only over night. I'll be back tomorrow evening at latest. Are you afraid to stay alone?" Dick jerked the words out with the rapidity of his motions.

"No; I'll go over to Jo's house if I get lonely."

"So I thought.

"Where's my pleated shirt with the brown lines in it? Funny thing, my clothes are never in my drawer." Dick was pawing at the drawer like a terrier after a rat.

"Isn't it there? Let me look.

"Here it is." Nell handed him the shirt. "You paw things into such a mess no wonder you can't find anything." She was rearranging the garments before closing the drawer.

Dick mumbled something inaudible as he plunged his arms into the shirt sleeves.

"Got my suit case packed?" he asked.

"I have your pajamas, some handkerchiefs, a pair of extra socks, a couple of collars and your shaving outfit. Anything else you want?"

"Yes, put in a couple of magazines to read on the train.

"Where in time are my collar buttons? If they are not the most elusive things!"

"Take the ones out of the shirt you just took off," suggested Nell.

"I might do that. Great head!" He grinned at Nell while he struggled to get the buttons in place.

"Well, luck to you, dear. I hope you come home with your pockets full of gold," said Nell as she kissed him goodby.

"I feel as if I were digging for a pot of gold under the end of the rainbow, but of course I am naturally interested to know what the fellow wants. Goodby, little man." Dick took a flying peck at the baby and swung out of the door and down the walk.

Nell stood and watched him and waved the baby's hand in response to his signal until he turned the corner and disappeared from view.

After she had straightened the disordered bedroom she took down the receiver and called up Jo Parsons.

"Hello, dear," she called when she recognized her friend's voice over the wire. "I'm deserted. Dick has left me. * * * * Yes, he's gone to Kansas City to see after that business you know about. * * * * Not long, just over night. * * * * Indeed I'll come. I called up to get an invitation; it's doleful here alone. * * * * Thank you. I'll be along in about an hour, just as soon as I get things taken care of for the night. Goodby," and Nell hung up the receiver.

She fixed the fire for the night, put the cat in the cellar, put salt in the pump in the kitchen to keep it from freezing, carefully locked the doors and windows, packed her handbag and put it in the front of the baby carriage and locked herself out for the night.

Household Hints

SIMPLE DESSERTS.

Steamed Cherry Roll—Make a biscuit dough. Roll out one-half inch thick, spread lightly with butter, scatter seeded cherries, sweet or sour, over the surface, sprinkle with sugar, roll, fasten ends by pinching together. Steam thirty minutes and dry in oven ten minutes. Serve with sugar and cream.

Snowballs with Strawberry Sauce—Cream one-third cup butter, half cup sugar, two-thirds cup milk. Sift together one cup flour, half cup cornstarch, three level teaspoons baking powder. Stir gradually into the batter, then whip in the beaten whites of two eggs. Put batter in well buttered cups and steam thirty minutes. Turn out on plate and pour over strawberry sauce, made as follows: cream half cup butter with 1½ cups powdered sugar, add yolks of two eggs and one quart mashed strawberries the last thing.

Epicure's Lemon Pie—One cup sugar, three teaspoons flour, butter size of English walnut, yolks of three eggs; beat all together, then add juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cup milk and whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Line pietin with pie crust and pour in mixture. Bake in quick oven. The whites will come on top and form a crust. Make lemon pie in this way once and you will not make it any other way again.

Sour Cream Pie—Mix together one cup sugar, one cup chopped raisins, one cup sour cream, one well beaten egg, half teaspoon cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, one-fourth teaspoon cloves and one teaspoon vinegar. Bake in two crusts.

Cottage Pudding—One egg, three-fourths cup sugar, three tablespoons butter, one cup milk, two tablespoons baking powder, 2½ cups flour. Bake one-half hour.

Sauce: one cup sugar and one tablespoon butter wet with a little cold water. Add a pint of boiling water, boil two or three minutes.

Prune Whip—Pick over one-third pound prunes, soak them several hours in cold water, then cook until soft. Remove stones and put prunes through strainer. Add one-half cup sugar and cook five minutes. The mixture should then be of consistency of marmalade. Beat the whites of three or four eggs until stiff and add one-half tablespoon lemon juice. Combine these mixtures and pile lightly in a mold or dish. Bake in oven about twenty-five minutes, so it will become a light brown. This may be served with a yellow sauce.

THE TABLE.

Bran Bread—Good for an invalid; For two loaves use one quart flour, one quart bran, and one even tablespoonful salt. Mix these together, make a "well" in the center and turn into it 2½ cups of tepid water to which have been added two tablespoons molasses and one tablespoon of melted lard. Dissolve one cake compressed yeast in one-half cup tepid water and add to the other ingredients. Stir the mixture and beat it all together for ten minutes. Cover the bowl with a heavy cloth and let rise over night. In the morning shape into loaves, put into greased pans and allow to double in size. Bake in very moderate oven 1½ hours. The success of bran bread depends largely upon the thorough beating and slow baking.

Potato Salad De Luxe—Delicious potato salad is made by putting a sweet green pepper, a cup of celery, and a small onion through the chopper and adding the mixture to the salad dressing, which should be thoroughly mixed with a quart of well-seasoned diced potatoes.

Strawberry Pie—Bake a shell as for lemon pie. A short time before you are ready to serve it, slice a generous quantity of strawberries into the shell, sprinkle generously with powdered sugar and lastly cover with whipped cream.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — THE "BOSS" DISCOVERS A FLY IN THE GASOLINE — BY "HOP"

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Boston.—One of the mist important public offices held by an Eastern woman is that of State actuary of insurance, which is held by Mrs. Emma Cushman. For forty years she has been supervising insurance in this State, and during the past twenty years she has been head of this important office. She presides at a desk which is always weighted down with a mass of detail that would challenge the resources of most any business man. Every Massachusetts insurance company must submit to an examination of its valuations and records once in every three years, and this inspection in itself means a great deal of work.

New York.—A pretty romance is that of Miss Kitty Lanier Lawrence, who is to wed William Averell Harriman, the eldest son of the late E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate. They had been much together since the young lady was thrown from her horse and injured last April, and it was no surprise when the engagement was announced two weeks ago. Young Harriman was sent out in the West by his father some few years ago to learn practical railroad work. He labored with a section gang and roughed it. His bride-to-be is prominent and popular in society, and is devoted to out-door sports. She is one of the best horsewomen in this city. When she was injured last spring, young Harriman took her to the hospital, and he has been constantly interested in her recovery.

Paris.—With the French lawyers for the most part fighting with the army, the women lawyers of France have found unlimited work cut out for them, and are reaping a harvest. It is a common thing for women "advocates" to appear at courts-martial to plead for soldiers who were on trial for small offenses, and their pleas are proving effective. The routine business of the courts is now falling largely to women, whereas in the past they secured only cases involving women clients.

Washington.—A unique educational movement suggested by Mrs. Harvey E. Jester, formerly of Chicago, and about to be carried into effect through her personal efforts, has had the approval of several South American republics. She is on her way to Central and South America to ask the wealthy Pan-Americans to send their sons and daughters to the United States to be educated, instead of to Europe. It is her idea that through education a bond of fellowship can be established that will bind firmly the estranged nations of the American continents. Various governments have informed Mrs. Jester that they will place every facility at her disposal and will aid the movement. She will go first to Panama and thence down the western coast, returning by way of the east coast, and visiting the capitals and bigger cities en route.

San Francisco.—A hospital romance in France has resulted in the marriage of Mrs. Clara Sutro English, daughter of the late Adolph Sutro, former mayor of San Francisco, and once the wife of William J. English, a prominent lawyer in Chicago, to a member of the French nobility, Count Bilbert de Choiseul-Praslin. The bride was planning to sail on the Lusitania on its fatal trip, but cancelled her passage to join a Red Cross band en route to France. Fate assigned her to a hospital where the Count was taken when wounded on the battlefield. It was the American divorcee who nursed him during the days when his life was in the balance. The ceremony followed his complete recovery, and was celebrated quietly in Paris.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The selection of Mrs. Meta L. Berger to head the Milwaukee school board at its recent meeting, again brings to notice the career of this wonderful woman. Since girlhood she has fought for the better education of children. She has been an active member of the school board for six years. She has worked continuously to extend the night school system and to give educational opportunities to unfortunate children, such as cripples and paupers. She married Victor Berger in 1897 and their three children have been educated in the Milwaukee public schools.

Where Quality Counts

The reputation of a druggist depends largely upon the quality and the class of drugs and other merchandise he is known to sell.

Quality is the first thought here. The perfect quality of all our many lines of drug store goods has created a reputation of value to us.

Medicines, drugs, chemicals, toilet articles, rubber goods, sick-room supplies and nursery helps—all are of the best; all are carefully selected for class and grade. And this perfect quality costs the buyer no more than the unreliable kind.

REVIVAL PLANS ABOUT COMPLETE

Rev. Dr. George W. Anderson Engaged to Inaugurate Campaign.

WILL BEGIN IN APRIL

General Committee Organized Last Night—W. D. Murray Temporary Chairman—Permanent Head to Be Chosen Tuesday Night.

The first meeting of the general committee having the coming evangelistic campaign in charge, was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. The committee voted to secure the services of Rev. George Woods Anderson, the evangelist, but as the latter's next open date is not until about April 1 it will be necessary to wait until then before opening the campaign.

William D. Murray was made temporary chairman last night and J. Henry Crane temporary secretary. Afterwards J. H. Manning was made permanent secretary and A. V. Heeley permanent treasurer. Another meeting of the general committee will be held in the same place next Tuesday night when a permanent chairman and vice-chairman will be selected.

Originally it was planned to begin the evangelistic campaign the first of the year, but as the committee will be unable to secure Dr. Anderson at that time it has been necessary to postpone the opening. The chairman of the committee was instructed to communicate with Dr. Anderson and make the necessary arrangements with him as to remuneration, etc.

Dr. Anderson is a well-known figure in Methodism and has made a name for himself in the evangelistic field. He recently closed a series of meetings in Burlington, and has been engaged to take charge of the evangelistic services during the annual camp meeting in Ocean Grove, which begins the later part of August and extends over Labor Day. Dr. Anderson was a successful pastor before he took the evangelistic field and his last charge was the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal church, of Scranton. His address is Belle Fountaine, Ohio. He is about forty-five years of age. He is no relative to Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of this city. Comprising the general committee are the ministers of the city, who are members ex-officio, and the following:

Rev. Frank Fletcher, Edgar F. Shephard, J. W. Gavett, Frank J. Hubbard, Horace Martin, George M. Rittenhouse, James R. Joy, Harry J. Manning, George W. V. Moy, A. V. Heeley, W. D. Murray, B. E. Randolph, W. J. Conroy, John M. Whiton, A. M. Harris, J. Henry Crane, Norman Probasco, G. H. Condict, G. E. Hall, J. H. Manning, J. D. Loizeaux, Frank Stewart.

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST WELL KNOWN CITY MERCHANT

Discoveries of a startling nature made by Sergeant Andrew Saffron, Patrolman John Kelly, Patrolman George Muir and Constable George Yorke, when they accompanied Mrs. Frances DeDood, of Fanwood, to the apartment over her husband's cleaning establishment at 125 Park avenue, about 1 o'clock this morning, resulted in Yesbrand DeDood and Miss Grace Gable, of Philadelphia, appearing before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. Both complaints have been made by Mrs. DeDood and the defendants were represented by Martin Stutsman. On behalf of Mrs. DeDood, Constable Yorke appeared in court and requested a postponement until next Tuesday morning, when the complainant's counsel, William Newcorn, would be able to appear for her. This request was granted.

According to the story told by the three men and the complainant, DeDood, who is one of Plainfield's well-known business men, has been harboring the Gable women in the apartment for sometime past and a long period of surveillance on the part of Mrs. DeDood brought last evening's climax. The two were found in the apartment and were taken completely by surprise.

DAY'S OUTING.

Fifty members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Turn Verein are spending the day at Keansburg, having motored to that resort this morning in a huge automobile moving truck.

PLANNING SUNDAY OUTING.

Members of the German Benefit Society, of the Turn Verein, are planning for an all-day outing Sunday. Details of the proposed trip will be made public later.

ASSESSORS GRANT NO TAX REDUCTIONS

Property Owners Apparently Satisfied With This Year's Levy.

The Board of Assessors held a meeting in the City Building, last night, for the purpose of discussing property valuations and assessments with real estate owners. It was the last of several meetings which have been held within the last ten days.

About a dozen property owners appeared before the Board last night, but a look through the assessors' books apparently convinced every caller that the Board had shown no discrimination in his or her case and that property in the same neighborhood was valued as high as theirs. Asa Randolph appeared before the Board on behalf of the owners of the Babcock building, on which the assessment was raised this year, and at his invitation Henry Liefke will inspect the property today and be informed of the amount of revenue derived from the property.

No reductions were granted last night and none were asked for. With the callers last night, about fifty persons have appeared before the Board during its five sittings, and the members feel that they have given ample opportunity to all property owners to talk over valuations with them. The assessors' books will soon be ready to be sent to Elizabeth and in due course of time the tax rate will be announced and the tax bills will be placed in the hands of tax-payers. The Board is composed of Henry Liefke, John McLaughlin, Thomas Hughes and De Witt Ivins.

MERNAGH WILL BE ARRAIGNED JULY 26

Suspended Policeman's Trial Expected to Consume Two Nights Next Week.

Police Chief Kiely's charges against Patrolman William Mernagh were filed with the Common Council at an adjourned session last night, and upon the motion of Councilman Juan Babcock, president of the Police Board, Monday night, July 26, was decided upon as the date for the public trial. The complaint includes nine specific counts, alleging indiscretions committed by the officer during his past six months' of service in the local department.

Among other things he is accused of "loafing" on his beat; giving protection to and neglecting to report a "speak easy" run by Arthur Thompkins, in Fairchild's alley, and threatening to shoot the first man that "squealed" on him. The Police Board authorized the city clerk to supply Mernagh with official copies of the complaint and a summons for appearance for trial, three days prior to the date fixed and to issue such subpoenas as the defense and complaining parties demand. George S. Clay, president of the Council, will issue all subpoenas and it is the opinion of those connected with the case that more than one evening will be consumed in taking testimony.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed will represent the city and he was last night given authority to employ a competent stenographer to make records of the case. Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy will defend Mernagh. Mr. Moy was the city's chief executive at the time when Mernagh made application for a position on the force.

Many affidavits have been secured by Chief Kiely to support the city's side of the case and from all accounts it appears as though Mernagh had gathered together considerable matter that will aid him in putting up a stiff fight for acquittal. Should he be found guilty the Council will have the power to suspend him without pay for a period of time or to retire him. He is at present under suspension.

HIS LAST CHANCE.

Charged by his son-in-law, James Giles, of 652 South avenue, with creating a disturbance at his home yesterday afternoon, William S. Moffett, aged fifty-one years, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, when a sentence of six months in the county jail was suspended over his head. This is the second time he has been arrested after returning home in an intoxicated condition to cause trouble and the court warned him that a third appearance would mean a sojourn at Elizabeth.

MORE DOG LICENSES.

In the campaign for dog licenses being waged in North Plainfield, four more dog owners were arraigned before Recorder Hand, this morning, and instructed to take out licenses at once. They all obeyed.

WIDENING COST SET AT $35,000

Councilman Blatz Believes Assessment at Large is Advisable.

OWNERS MAKE OFFER

Petition Council Indicating That They Do Not Intend to Let Matter Drop—Offer to Bear $15,000 of Cost.

Although it was plainly evident at the public hearing held last week that there is a well fortified faction opposed to the widening of Somerset street, between West Front street and the dividing line of North Plainfield, action taken by Chairman Francis J. Blatz, of the street committee, at the Common Council meeting last night, indicates that the city fathers are carefully investigating the proposed improvement and that the matter will not be dropped without receiving due consideration. Mr. Blatz has resorted to a new line of action which was prompted by a petition received last week from owners of properties that will be effected by the widening of the street. Every owner of such property, with the exception of those who hold the corner buildings, has placed himself on record as being decidedly in favor of the movement and these individuals have announced that they will subscribe $15,000 toward the cost.

Mr. Blatz stated last night that the improvement would entail an expenditure of between $35,000 and $40,000 and expressed himself as being in favor of a plan to assess the city at large for it. This will necessitate another public hearing, the date for which will be made known later.

It is the opinion of many that because of the fact that such an improvement will be rendered practically impossible after the erection of the new Gloekler building, that it should be done now. "Now or never" is the popular slogan and those whose properties will figure centrally in the proposition are determined to do their utmost to see it carried through.

KING'S DAUGHTERS FUND INCREASED

Mrs. W. H. Riley Contributes $10 to the Work of The Day Nursery.

Mrs. William H. Riley added $10 today to the City Union, King's Daughters', fund for the summer work at the Day Nursey, thus making $21.20 thus far contributed toward this worthy charity. The King's Daughters are especially in need of funds this summer for its work, for large quantities of milk as well as other provisions are needed for the children.

All friends of this work are urged to contribute something toward the fund, no matter how small, for it will be greatly appreciated. As in the past, The Plainfield Daily Press will be glad to receive contributions, acknowledge the same and forward the amount to Mrs. Anna Most, the treasurer of the King's Daughters.

The contributions to date are as follows:

Mrs. W. H. Riley	$10.00
Jr. Dept., First Baptist Church.	9.00
One Little Girl	1.00
Three Little Girls	1.20
Total	$21.20

TOOK THIS PRESS WANT ADV. 45 MINUTES TO RETURN DOG

A Prospect avenue resident inserted an advertisement in The Daily Press last night for a lost bulldog. Before the advertiser had received her own copy of The Press, and within three-quarters of an hour after the time that the first copy of the paper had been printed, the dog was returned by a resident of West Fourth street, who had found the animal. This is but another evidence of the rapidity with which Daily Press classified advertisements do their work.

WILL INVESTIGATE.

Arraigned on the complaint of Overseer of the Poor Dunham, who charged him with not supporting his wife and three children, Lemuel Somerset, colored, was remanded back to a cell by Judge DeMeza, this morning, to await trial tomorrow morning. In the meantime the court will investigate the conditions surrounding the case.

HACK ORDINANCE MAY BE REVISED

West Front Street Men Ask for Extension of Limit to Monroe Avenue.

COUNCIL IS PETITIONED

One New Policeman Appointed at Last Night's Adjourned Meeting—City Judge's Report Received—Other Routine Matters.

Bringing to a head an agitation that has been brewing for several months, Frank A. Weeks, and other residents of West Front street, last night petitioned the Common Council to have the single charge hacking territory extended in a westerly direction to Monroe avenue. The present limit is Grant avenue and there has long been a feeling among residents between that thoroughfare and Monroe avenue that no second charge should be made for transportation as far as the boundary suggested. The matter was referred to the public affairs committee and will be investigated prior to the August session of the Council.

Upon the recommendation of Chief Kiely and Mayor Leighton Calkins, John M. Worth, one of the candidates who recently passed the examination prescribed for aspiring to police department vacancies, was appointed a special officer, to begin duty August 1. City Judge William G. DeMeza filed his second quarterly report for the period ending June 30, stating that 241 cases had been disposed of in that time by the city court.

The councilmanic finance committee made an appropriation of $42 to cover Mayor Calkins' annual dues as a Plainfield representative in the New Jersey League of Mayors. This expenditure was recently agreed upon and Mayor Calkins has been attending the meetings. In accordance with a petition received from President Ladd, of Muhlenberg Hospital, the Council set aside $75 for the erection of two signboards on Randolph road and two on Park avenue to warn motorists approaching that institution that the speed law is enforced within the city limits and that as little noise as possible should be made in passing by.

Councilman Thomas Hylan, on behalf of the finance committee, reported that a new drinking fountain for horses had been erected to replace the old one on Muhlenberg place. The cost amounted to $33.46, which was well within the appropriation of $50.

CITY EDITORSHIP FOR ARCHIBALD BRAKELEY

Dunellen Man Given Important Position on New York Sun's Staff.

G. Archibald Brakeley, son of Mrs. P. W. Brakeley, of Dunellen, has just been made night city editor of the New York Sun, by which paper he has been employed as special reporter for the past three years. Mr. Brakeley began his journalistic career as Dunellen correspondent for the Plainfield Daily Press and later accepted a position on the Asbury Park Press. Before going with The Sun he was sporting editor of the Jersey City Journal.

Mr. Brakeley, who was graduated from the Plainfield High School and Princeton University, has a host of friends in this city and Dunellen who will be glad to learn of his success in the newspaper field.

One of his notable pieces of reportorial work was accomplished during the trial of Charles Becker, the New York police department lieutenant now awaiting death after being convicted of murder. He "covered" the entire trial for The Sun in a manner that elicited considerable favorable comment.

WILLIAM WARFIELD CHOSEN FOR CONFIDENTIAL MISSION

Washington, July 21—William Warfield, of Baltimore, nephew of Governor Warfield, of Maryland, has been sent to Russia on a confidential mission by the State Department. He will sail Saturday.

CONDITION UNCHANGED.

No change was reported today in the condition of Mrs. Sarah Boss, of West Fourth street, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Monday suffering from a stroke of paralysis.

"FLY-BY-NIGHTS" MAY BE CHECKED

Local Merchants Want Council to Fix License for Transient Business Men.

ORDINANCE PREPARED

$200 Per Month License Advocated—This Class of Merchant Has Made Himself a Nuisance Both Here and Elsewhere.

An ordinance, which, if passed, will go a long way toward doing away with the "fly-by-night" merchant who has long been a source of annoyance to local business men, was introduced at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night by Councilman Francis J. Blatz. It provides for a monthly license of $200 for all transient merchants, thereby doing away with the possibility of an outsider entering Plainfield with a "get-rich-quick" scheme and leaving after several days of successful dealing with a "victimized" public. A copy of the proposed ordinance has been submitted to each councilman and it is possible that it will be brought up for first and second reading at the August meeting.

For some time past Plainfield's established merchants have been "crying" for some sort of legislation that will protect them from outsiders to come here for two or three days, or possibly weeks, of selling. It has been the custom for these invaders to advertise "cut prices" and create an interest among the shop-at-home public in various other ways that hinder Plainfield trade.

The aim of Councilman Blatz's ordinance is to fix a monthly license so high that it will keep this class of dealers away from Plainfield and provide the protection which the year-around merchant has a right to expect from the city. The "Fly-by-night" business promoter has paid no taxes to the city in the past, but on many occasions has left a dissatisfied group of patrons behind him.

PLEADS GUILTY TO SMEARING POSTERS

Harry Allen Arraigned on Astor Charge and Will Be Sentenced Saturday.

Plainfield's "movie" war extended to the city police court this morning, when Harry Allen, bill-poster for Proctor's Theatre, was arraigned on a complaint filed against him by Walter Smith, manager of the U. S. Astor Theatre, and was held in $200 to await a disposition of the counts. According to the complaint Allen is accused of destroying certain posters belonging to the Washington Amusement Company, which controls the U. S. Astor show house in this city. He pleaded guilty to the allegations and Judge DeMeza announced that sentence would be passed next Saturday morning.

As told in the Daily Press last night the local motion picture houses' bill-posters have been engaged in a "war," during the course of which they daubed each other's signs with paste and other materials to make them unrecognizable. The specific charge is that Allen smeared white paper over a poster located in front of the Astor Theatre on July 18.

WILL GO TO CHINA FOR STANDARD OIL COMPANY

Lewis G. Murray Timpson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, of 1045 Hillside avenue, goes to China for the Standard Oil Company next month. Mr. Timpson has been connected with the Standard Oil for some time and graduated recently from the class of instruction which the concern maintains to train efficient young men for positions of responsibility with it.

Mr. Timpson does not know yet to what part of China he will be assigned, but expects to take charge of a territorial division. He will sail from Seattle with three other young men for the Far East about August 20, and will leave Plainfield the 12th. He expects to be gone at least three years.

CHOIR LEAVES FOR CAMP.

During the balance of the summer the regular choir of Grace Episcopal church will be absent and there will be no regular singers. The choir leaves Saturday for Manasquan, where the members have a camp. The choir will be away until September.

VARIED PROGRAM ENJOYED BY MANY

St. Mary's Social Club Give a Festival and Dance in T. A. B. Hall.

St. Mary's Social Club held a lawn festival and dance at T. A. B. Hall, last night, when fully three hundred young people assembled to enjoy the entertainment and the dancing provided by the committee. Several well-known local actors were on the bill, the first number of which was a song by Miss Dorothy Sutton, of North Plainfield, who later in the evening gave a very good imitation of Charlie Chaplin. Mrs. George Aller followed with two songs, one of which, "The House Upon the Hill," was exceptionally well rendered. The hit of the evening, however, was made by "Buddy" Pagliucca, who appeared with a partner, Miss Margaret Graniery. The two sang several of the latest song hits and Master Pagliucca gave an exhibition of clog dancing.

The evening's theatricals closed with the appearance of James Moore, of West Fourth street, who sang a few songs, danced "Keystone Fashion" and recited a short monologue, the contents of which referred mainly to United States Senator James E. Martine. Moore is a popular local entertainer and has been on the boards in Atlantic City for some time. Dancing followed the entertainment and continued until a late hour. Refreshments were served throughout the evening.

The committee in charge was as follows: The Misses Anna Howe, chairman; Nora Meaney, Catherine Deady, Mary Lappin, Nellie Higgins, May Carney, Henrietta Graniery and Hazel Hogan.

COUNCIL TRANSFERS KENSINGTON LICENSE

John J. Sullivan Will Take Possession the Fore Part of Next Week.

At an adjourned session of the Common Council last night that body authorized the transfer of the license now held by William J. Kitchen, proprietor of Hotel Kensington, to John J. Sullivan, of Point Pleasant, who will become proprietor of the local hostelry the fore-part of next week. In recommending that the transfer be made Councilman Charles Graves introduced three testimonials of merit concerning Mr. Sullivan's reputation as a business man, one coming from Mayor Furgerson, of Point Pleasant Beach, and two coming from officials of the Ocean County National Bank.

Although he has been in Plainfield from time to time during the past week Mr. Sullivan will not assume control of the hotel until next Monday. He is a man of wide experience in hotel matters and while he will make several changes in the present routine of work, he intends to retain the same plan that has been worked out successfully by the present owner.

The present force of employes, including C. V. Smith, the present clerk, who has made himself acquainted with so many of the hotel's patrons, will continue in Mr. Sullivan's employ.

In speaking with a Daily Press reporter last night, Mr. Sullivan said: "The plan adopted by Mr. Kitchen has proven itself such a satisfactory one and so adaptable to Plainfield's needs that I am of the opinion that the best interests of the hotel require that it should remain as it is. I will make a few minor changes, that is only natural, but in the main the hotel will be run as it has been during the past four years." He paid a marked tribute to Mr. Kitchen's ability as a manager and was thoroughly pleased with the patronage being given the hostelry by Plainfield people at the present time.

Since taking possession of the place Mr. Kitchen has made numerous changes that have brought the hotel up to a plane with the best in the State. He has introduced a modern plan and such reconstruction has been done as to make it up to date in every detail. During his four years in Plainfield he has gained a wide circle of acquaintances through his courteous treatment of patrons.

BATTLE OF CARSIC LASTED TWO DAYS

Rupture Between Turkey and Italy is Now Anticipated at Rome.

RIGA NOW THREATENED

Official Archives, State Moneys and Court Records Taken to Petrograd—Government Officials Advised to Be Ready to Depart.

Rome, July 21.—The great battle on the Carsic Plateau lasted uninterruptedly for two days and two nights, says a despatch to the Messagero from its correspondent on the Isonzo front. The newspapers of Rome expect a rupture of relations between Turkey and Italy.

Rome, July 20, via Paris, July 21 (6 a. m.).—The national muntions committee held its first meeting today, under the presidency of Premier Salandra. A number of plans were adopted to insure a continuous supply of munitions in the event of a long war and to organize industries which produce other supplies for the army.

Belin, July 21 (via London, 11:45 a. m.).—According to despatches reaching Berlin all the official archives in Riga, the Russian Baltic port now threatened by the Germans, together with the moneys of State banks and court records, were taken to Petrograd, Monday. Government officials have been advised to be ready to depart. It is said that more than 10,000 inhabitants of the city fled last week.

A despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, reports heavy fighting along the Dniester Aiver near the Bukowina-Galicia border. The Russians brought up heavy reinforcements and made determined attempts to retake positions on the left bank of the river which had been captured by the Austrians. They were supported by heavy artillery, but, the despatch says, their attacks gained them nothing.

Along the Bessarabian front also the Russians are on the offensive, having made desperate attacks during the last four nights. They succeeded in breaking into the Austrian positions in one place, but the attacking forces subsequently were captured, and here, as elsewhere, the Russians were unable to make gains. The battle on Monday night lasted six hours, during which the Russians made eight assaults at many points.

Paris, July 21—The French war statement is as follows:

"In Artois the night was marked by a cannonade around Souchez and Neuville St. Vaast. Soissons was bombarded during the night. The enemy attacked our positions around Tete D Bach and also at Vaux Fery, but was repused.

"Lively infantry actions developed in the Vosges yesterday afternoon. At night there was hard fighting on the heights dominating the Facht valley on the east. To the north of Fecht we made ourselves masters of part of the enemy's offensive works and made notable progress, almost reaching the crest line of the heights.

"On Tuesday 31 aviators bombarded Conflans en Jarny near Longuyon, an important Franch railway junction. It was observed that three 155 milimetre shells and four 30 milimetre shells were placed.

Udine, via Paris, July 21—The engineer corps of the Italian army has completed the reconstruction of the railroad bridge over the Isonzo River between Cervignano and Monfalcone, which was destroyed by the Austrians at the outbreak of hostilities. The first train passed over the structure today. Reconstruction of the bridge in so short a time is regarded as an engineering feat.

Bari, Italy (via Paris), July 21—More than 500 members of the crew of the Italian cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi, sunk Monday by an Austrian submarine, were saved. This leaves only about fifty who are missing and who probably were drowned.

Survivors say the Giuseppe Garibaldi was attacked by three submarines which came from the direction of Ragusa and Spalto, Dalmatia. The Italian warship opened fire on the submarines, one of which is believed to have been sunk.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK.

Cardiff, Wales, July 21—More than 8,000 miners returned to work in the South Wales coal field today without waiting for the federation's official endorsement of the strike settlement reached yesterday through the efforts of David Lloyd George.

SEWER MONEY NEEDED

Collecting System Progressing More Rapidly Than Joint Sewer—Mayor Latham Offers Solution to the Problem.

The report of the Carpenter Audit Company, of New York city, showing the receipts and disbursements of borough funds for the months of May and June was submitted at last evening's adjourned session of the Mayor and Common Council. The meeting convened with Mayor E. B. Latham presiding and Councilmen Neighbour, Castner, Williams and Craig present. The two absentees, Councilmen Ryan and Jones, were both out of town.

The report of the Carpenter Audit Company is as follows:

Tax collector's account: Receipts—1914 taxes, $2,494.58; 1913 taxes, $3.35; 1905-1912 taxes, $11.84, and interest on taxes, $41.25. Total receipts $2,551.02.

Treasurer's report: Receipts—Balance in bank May 1, $393.36; sidewalk assessment, $35.70; recorder's fines, $116; taxes from collector, $2,551.02; from the bank (notes), $3,500; poor fund, $10; sundry receipts, 65c; wholesale liquor licenses, $347.59. Total receipts, $6,956.32.

Disbursements—Street improvement and maintenance, $353.73; borough engineering, $47; oiling and sprinkling streets, $133.43; sidewalk extension and maintenance, $25; maintenance of fire department, $10; salaries of borough officers, $100; printing and advertising, $81.56; interest on notes, $42.35; maintenance of Board of Health, $10.93; support of borough poor, $3; extra help for collector's office, $33.33; miscellaneous expenses, $32.22; maintenance of police department, $203; catching and disposing of dogs, $4.25; maintenance of Borough Hall, $24.50; maintenance of borough park, $19; lighting of streets and buildings, $355.11; notes paid, $2,500; North avenue drainage system cost, $39.11; Madison avenue drainage system cost, $1,806.69; Front street drainage system cost, $521. Total disbursements $6,475.21. Balance $481.11.

Collecting sewerage account: Balance May 1, $50,376.75; disbursements (H. K. Corbin, construction work; George W. Fuller, engineering; inspecting cost and insurance) $22,891.11. Balance $27,485.64.

Joint sewerage account: Balance May 1, $13,682.18; disbursements (borough's proportion of expense) $1,223.98. Balance $12,458.20.

In commenting upon this report, Mayor Lathom said that it showed the collecting sewerage work to be progressing more rapidly than the joint sewer. The balance in the collecting sewerage account is now $27,485.64 and the borough will soon be confronted with the necessity of raising money to place to the credit of that account. This can be done in two ways, viz.: By the sale of improvement certificates or by borrowing on demand notes. According to law any municipality can raise money by either of the above methods in anticipation of the collecting of assessment benefits to an amount not exceeding three-quarters of the anticipated taxes or assessments. Of the two methods the Mayor favored the raising of money by demand note. He stated that the local bank would take full care of the borough on the matter at an interest rate of 5 per cent. In explaining why he favored the raising of the money by demand note rather than by the issuing of improvement certificates the Mayor stated that interest could be saved by the borough in that way. For example, in the case of the money having been raised by demand note and assessment money coming in all that the treasurer would have to do would be to go to the bank and apply this money on the demand note whereas if improvement certificates had been issued this of course could not be done.

A petition was received and signed by residents in the vicinity of Walnut street and Fairview avenue stating that there were a lot of houses in that vicinity but no provision for gas lights, the petitioners stating that the Public Service Gas Company would do nothing about the matter. This matter had been taken up by the Council with the gas company before and the company, it is said, made a pretense to lay the pipe but never got any further. The petition was referred to the committee on lighting. The signers of the petition were Fred Greninger, Otto Rice, W. E. Barber, H. S. Carpenter, Mrs. G. W. Smalley, Mrs. H. H. Williams, Andrew Forgach and Julius Brandeis.

A petition signed by J. F. Sayre, A. H. Burdick and Frank Burdick, owners of property on both sides of Walnut street east of Washington avenue, asked for the extension of the collecting sewerage system along Walnut street from Washington avenue to Fourth street. The petitioners represent 400 of the 500 feet that the petition covers. A. H. Burdick, through Councilman Williams, said that he was erecting one house along that thoroughfare now, that he was going to erect another and furthermore that he had sold a lot to a party who was also going to erect a house. The Mayor in commenting upon the petition said that the sewerage system should be extended. It was laid over for action at the next meeting.

A communication was received from Mrs. Emily Morel Arenot asking the Council to extend the sewerage system for the necessary distance along Center street to benefit her property. This distance, according to Councilman Williams, is 200 feet. Mrs. Arenot's home would be the only place benefitted by this lengthy extension and the matter was laid over until the next meeting for further consideration.

The new contract with the Public Service Lighting Company was ordered readvertised.

Councilman Neighbour complained about the resumption of the practice of nailing posters to trees and telegraph poles. This practice is common, the councilman said. It doesn't look good and should be stopped, he added. A motion was made and carried relative to the stopping of the nuisance that a clause be incorporated in the ordinance, covering the distribution of posters, which is now being prepared by the law and ordinance committee.

Chairman Craig, of the fire and water committee, reported that he had taken up the matter of blowing out of the fire hydrants about town with Superintendent Cook, of the water company.

Chairman Williams, of the collecting sewerage committee, reported that the sewer contractors had struck a river on Bound Brook road near Gallagher's Corner and that they were only making about nine feet a day.

Bills aggregating in the neighborhood of $800 were ordered paid. Most of these bills was for sewer work. There was a bill for $105.39 for street sprinkling and one of $16.67 from the Carpenter Audit Company. The engineer's bill for borough work amounted to $15.

RUMORS OF A FACTORY COMING TO DUNELLEN

According to Louis L. Block, bank director and extensive owner of real estate in the borough, a new factory may locate here. Mr. Block was interviewed by a visitor from out of town yesterday as to how much he wanted for a nine-acre tract owned by him on Fairview avenue. The party wanted to know whether there were any restrictions on the property. "For example," he said, "if the party whom I represent purchased this land from you and wanted to erect a factory on it could he do so?" "Certainly," Mr. Block said.

With the information he desired in his possession the stranger changed his conversation and when he left town Mr. Block didn't know who he represented.

DETAILS COMPLETE FOR "PROOF OF THE PUDDING"

At the meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Dunellen and New Market, yesterday, at the home of Mrs. A. F. Conant, on Washington avenue, further preparations were made for the "Proof of the Pudding," the big suffrage affair which is to take place Saturday, July 31, from 7 to 10 p. m. There will be another meeting of the committee tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at Miss Parker's home.

Plans were made to attend the Lucy Stone suffrage pilgrimage at East Orange, August 13. At this time Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Dr. Carrie Chapman Catt and Miss Blackwell will be among the speakers. Members of the local league plan to go in a body to East Orange by auto. The next meeting of the league will be held Tuesday, August 3, at the home of Mrs. D. W. C. Ramsey, on Dunellen avenue.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR CONCERT AND FESTIVAL

The social committee of Holy Innocents' Episcopal church met at the home of its chairman Monday evening and completed arrangements for its band concert and ice cream festival tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Every little detail has been looked after and from the advance sale of tickets a record crowd is being arranged for. The different booths will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Day, candy; Mrs. C. W. Richards, cake; Mrs. Hicks-Barrow, lemonade and soft drinks; Mr. Costello, ice cream cones and peanuts, and Mrs. Alex Hurlick, fish pond. Paul Carpenter will act as cashier, while Treasurer C. W. Richards will assist the chairman in general supervision of the event.

Mrs. Paul Carpenter has charge of decorations and Mrs. Charles Day will be in charge of the many waitresses, which will be twenty-four in number, captained by a chairman for each table. Each table will have its own color scheme and the attendants will dress accordingly. The affair will open at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, while the band concert will commence at 8 o'clock.

NEARLY CAUGHT A DEER.

In a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Block, of Orange street, from their son, George Block, who is visiting his uncle, John Wagner, at Clinton, Conn., he says that he is having a fine time and that he came near catching a deer while gathering hay. The animal which had been scared by something in its flight came within five feet from where he stood with a pitchfork in his hand. George is a crack football player and dropping the fork he made a flying tackle at the deer, but just missed it.

Whitehouse

Repairs are being made to the macadam road from the Somerset county line through East Whitehouse and Whitehouse Station to Flemington by filling with cracked stone the basins worn in by automobile traffic.

Unsatisfied with the train service between Whitehouse Station and High Bridge for the High School pupils from this place and nearby towns, County Superintendent of Schols Jason S. Hoffman is endeavoring to have the Boards of Education of Lebanon, Tewksbury and Readington townships band together to secure a large automobile stage to transport the children at the opening of the fall term. The idea is to have the stage start at New Germantown and pick up pupils at Whitehouse, Lebanon and Annandale on the way to High Bridge.

The Misses Mae and Isadora Drinkwater entertained at a lawn party at their residence near East Whitehouse yesterday afternoon.

Miss Bertha Swackhamer, of Plainfield, was a week-end visitor to her mother, Mrs. Jane Swackhamer, in East Whitehouse.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Moore, of Asbury, Warren county, were week-end visitors to Mrs. Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderVoort, of Whitehouse Station.

'Plains & Fanwood.

John J. Gimber, of Midway avenue, after a residence here of the past three years, will leave about the middle of next month for Chicago, where he will make his home with his family.

The monthly meeting of the Fanwood Fire Company was held in the fire-house last night, and consisted of the transaction of routine business. The attendance was considerably diminished owing to the excursion to Asbury Park, yesterday.

The Rev. J. Madison Hare will be in charge of the prayer meeting in the Baptist church tonight.

The thirty-fourth annual excursion of the "Big 8" to Asbury Park was held yesterday, and gave the majority of local residents a day's outing at the shore. As yet no accidents have been reported.

The "Sploms" will hold their first apron and necktie social tomorrow night. As the club is composed of girls, each one has the job of inviting a boy.

The first thing on the schedule for the "community picnic" will be the flag raising. The large flag at the Scotch Plains Parish House will be used for the occasion and David Hand has donated a pole. Benches and tables will be built on the grounds from lumber given by the Fanwood Lumber and Supply Company. From present indications the 'Plains and borough will have a regular holiday on August 11 and everyone will help make the affair a success.

Many people from Scotch Plains attended the funeral services of Mrs. Adelia A. Lyons, held last night, from the home of her niece, Mrs. Charles Smith, of Westfield. Mrs. Lyons died on Monday morning in her eighty-second year. She had, until a short time ago, been a resident of the 'Plains for many years, where she had many friends. She had been a communicant of the Scotch Plains Methodist church for the greater part of her thirty years' local residence, until old age forced her to retire from her activities. The Rev. Raymond E. Marshal, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the services.

The funeral services for Miss Elizabeth Sykes, held from the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles L. Sykes, of Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, were attended by a number of borough residents, who knew Miss Sykes through her activities in the Episcopal church. Prior to the removal to Plainfield, the family had resided for many years on Front street, Scotch Plains. Miss Sykes' father was one of the first pastors of the Episcopal church and she was also an earnest worker for it during her residence here. The Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, pastor of Grace church, Plainfield, was in charge, and burial was made in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

MANY ENROLLED IN U. S. INSTITUTIONS

Report of Commissioner of Education Presents Facts of Much Interest.

In round numbers there were 22,000,000 persons enrolled in educational institutions in the United States in 1914, according to the annual report of the Commissioner of Education just issued. Of these over 19,000,000 were in elementary schools; 1,374,000 in secondary schools, both public and private, and 216,000 in colleges and universities. Close to another hundred thousand were in normal schools preparing to be teachers. 67,000 were in professional schools, and the remainder were scattered through other types of institutions. The teachers for this educational army numbered 700,000 of whom 566,000 were in public schools. In point of rapid growth the public high school still presents the most impressive figures; the enrollment for 1914 is greater by over 84,000 than for the year before.

The cost of education for the year is estimated by the Bureau, was $750,000,000. "This three-quarters of a billion is a relatively small amount when compared with other items in the public expense," declares the report. "It is less by $300,000,000 than the cost of running the Federal Government; it is less than one-third the Nation's expenditure for alcoholic liquors; it is only a little over three times the estimated cost of admissions to moving-picture theatres in the United States for the same year. Measured in terms of products of the soil, the United States spent somewhat more for education in 1914 than the value of its cotton crop, and less than half the value of the annual harvest of corn; while the Nation's bill for education was less by nearly a hundred millions than the value of the exports from the harbor of New York in the calendar year just passed."

Very little increase is yet to be noted in the average term for public schools. Between 1910 and 1913 the increase was from 157.5 days a year to 158.1—a growth of only six-tenths of a day in three years. Attendance has improved, however. The average number of days attended by each person enrolled increased from 113 in 1910 to 115.6 in 1913.

Special subjects treated in this year's Annual Report of the Commissioner of Education include: The Junior High School; Montessori Schools in the United States; Denominational Schools; Vocational Education; Education for Child Nurture and Home-Making; School Surveys, and Education for Special Classes for Children.

BELGIANS CELEBRATE THE BIRTH OF THEIR FREEDOM

The Belgians of the United States and Canada are joining today in the celebration of the 85th anniversary of the independence of their native country. Despite the havoc of war, the Belgian people will hold a national holiday, in recognition of the 85th anniversary of independence. The observance of the day will be general in France and England, in recognition of the bravery and self-sacrifice of the devastated little nation which thwarted the Kaiser's plan to swoop down on Paris and the English Channel.

The observance will be principally in the nature of patriotic meetings and religious services in memory of the brave fighters who lost their lives during the past year.

The Belgian people, although now for the most part under German rule, are united for their faithful King Albert, who is still in the trenches with his men. He is the successor in line from King Leopold, who was crowned King of the Belgians just 84 years ago today. It was in 1830 that Belgium achieved its independence, and in that year was recognized as a nation. The Duke de Nemours was chosen King, but his father, the King of France, refused his consent. Leopold, Prince of Coburg, was elected to lead the new country.

TWO MORE VOTES FOR WOMEN

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS THE EATING

Woman Suffrage In New Jersey and In California.

By EDMUND BURKE OSBORNE.

A lot of good people in New Jersey are pleading eloquently that votes for women will do great things for Jersey, and a lot of other good people rather indignantly insist that woman suffrage will be a very bad thing.

During the six weeks I was in California I tried to find out all I could about the results of women voting. I wondered if they had lost their "feminine charm;" if participation in politics had "coarsened" them; if they "neglected their homes for politics;" if many homes had been "broken up" and generally if the dire predictions of the antis had really come true.

I visited the home of an exceptionally capable young matron, a graduate of an eastern college. I had known her as a fine, attractive girl in Iowa twenty years ago. I wondered if voting had spoiled her much.

She wasn't as young as she used to be, but she knew a lot more and so was more interesting. Neither her looks nor her talk indicated that she had been "coarsened," and her husband and little daughter seemed to adore her.

If her home had been broken up by politics it had been put together again so skillfully that it wasn't noticeable. If her family had been neglected on account of politics a reference to the aforesaid family revealed no traces of resentment over the "neglect." She hadn't the slightest question about suffrage being a good thing for women.

I visited many types of homes, and every Californian woman I talked with about woman suffrage is unqualifiedly in favor of it.

But it was a man known to me "back east," now a leader in his profession in California, who unconsciously made the strongest argument for giving the vote to women.

He complained that so many questions were submitted on the ballot at the last election that HE AND HIS WIFE HAD TO SPEND AN ENTIRE EVENING STUDYING THE CAMPAIGN BOOK, which is sent to voters at public expense.

Did you get that, Mr. Jersey Voter? Don't you think it was a good thing for that man to study the issues and try to know how to vote so as to promote the general welfare? Don't you think it made him a better man and citizen to take his mind off his own business, his own family, his own pleasures and think hard in terms of the common good?

And don't you honestly think the effect on the woman was just as good as on the man? And don't you think that kind of study will help a woman train her son better for citizenship?

And don't you think the real study of political issues would be just as good for the women of New Jersey as for the women of California? And don't you think the women of New Jersey would have a lot more incentive to study public questions and think about such an inspiring subject as the common good if they knew their votes would help to promote it?

Think it over, my friend, and remember that "the proof of the pudding is the eating of it," as we can see by the unanimous vote of the California legislature indorsing suffrage.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS AMUSED BY BOSS NUGENT'S CAMPAIGN

"James R. Nugent's campaign against woman suffrage, which has been brought before New Jersey suffragists recently, is much less to be feared in the open than if it were carried on under cover," said Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey State Woman Suffrage Association, when asked if Mr. Nugent could influence many voters. "We can't help but be amused to observe that he must go out of the state to Mr. Root, a Republican, to secure support. Does it mean that all of the prominent Democrats of New Jersey are suffragists? Mr. Nugent prides himself upon being one of their leaders."

Mrs. A. Van Winkle, president of the Woman's Political Union of New Jersey, does not believe that Mr. Root's opinion of twenty years ago will have much influence in New Jersey.

"I was interested to learn that Mr. Nugent went to Cardinal Gibbons and believe that it was the result of a well grounded fear, fear of the Catholic women's committee, which has carried the message of suffrage into the most influential Catholic churches of Essex county, Mr. Nugent's own bailiwick. A priest is director of the committee, and Mgr. Cody in his ecclesiastical habit introduced the speakers at a meeting. Cardinal Gibbons' opinion was but seven or eight lines, and to it Mr. Nugent added a column, an ounce of the cardinal to a ton of the politician.

"Moreover, Eugene J. Connelly, assistant secretary to his eminence Cardinal Gibbons, writes in answer to an inquiry about his recent letter in regard to woman suffrage:

"'His eminence the cardinal directs me to write and state that in answer to your letter regarding the church's attitude concerning woman suffrage the church has taken no official attitude on the subject, but leaves the matter to the good judgment of her children as to what they think best.

"'The statement that our church is opposed to the enfranchisement of women is incorrect.'"

EX-GOVERNOR MARTIN H. GLYNN CONVERTED.

One of the latest converts to woman suffrage is the ex-governor of New York, Martin H. Glynn. Speaking recently at the Panama exposition, Mr Glynn said that his stay in California meant the end of his opposition to woman suffrage.

"As the train carries me away," he added, "the wheels will seem to say, 'Votes for women, votes for women.'"

Only last year Governor Glynn was regarded as a "bad case" by New York suffragists.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER IS TAKEN TO CHICAGO

Somerset County Detective George Totten started last night for Chicago with William Harney, the man who was arrested on Henry Garretson's place on the Canal road, near Bound Brook, Monday, on a complaint made by the Chicago police. When arrested Harney had $10,000 in his pockets and had a four-passenger automobile in one of Garretson's buildings. He did not resist arrest.

Word came in January to Chief Brampton from the Chicago police that they wanted one John Duberry then, according to the message, living in Bound Brook. Chief Brampton didn't know Duberry and wired back to Chicago for more particulars. The Western detectives suggested that Chief Brampton go to police headquarters in Manhattan and there look up New York records on Duberry, who, it is said by the detectives, is Harney. The chief got much information regarding the man and saw a photograph of him. Since that time he has been looking for him. Recently the chief saw Harney, found out where he was living and wired Chicago. The arrest Monday resulted.

When taken into custody Harney, or Duberry, was sitting in a hammock. He tried to make the policemen take the $10,000 in cash as bail, but they didn't.

According to the complaint in the case Harney went to Chicago about three months ago and, under the name of Duberry, became acquainted with a wealthy lumber merchant. From this man, it is said, Harney finally got a draft for $5,000 under alleged false pretenses and fled East.

MAKING READY FOR OPENING OF HOTEL

Ninety-Line 'Phone Switchboard Will Be Installed in Netherwood Hotel.

Work of remodelling the Netherwood Hotel to put it in condition for opening as a modern hostelry has been started and it is expected that a portion of the monster building will be ready for occupancy by August 1. Adolph Ruehl, of New York city, has leased the place and this morning signed a contract with the New York Telephone Company for the installation of a ninety-line phone switchboard. Every room and department of the hotel will be connected up by wire, thereby affording a convenience that has heretofore not been enjoyed by patrons.

While he personally believes that the success of the enterprise depends largely on the action the Common Council assumes in passing on the matter of granting him a liquor license for a hotel bar, Mr. Ruehl stated this morning that he intended to attempt the proposition whether or not the license was forthcoming. Words of commendation have been advanced by influential Netherwood citizens and by the Netherwood Improvement Association concerning Mr. Ruehl's plans and he has been promised the co-operation of every east end property owner in his project.

The large building has long been an eyesore to residents of that section and the general belief is harbored that a successful hotel at this point would mean an increase in property values. It is an admitted fact that the building has been a losing proposition in recent years but Mr. Ruehl's wide experience as a hotel manager, and the fact that the interests of the people living in that section of the community are at stake, are expected to renew the old patronage that was formerly enjoyed.

ENJOYING VACATIONS.

Miss Margaret Burke, of Lee place, and Miss Sadie Hyler, of West Front street, are spending a two weeks' vacation in Portland, Me. From that place they expect to make a number of interesting side trips to various well-known points.

CLEAN FUEL MEANS CLEAN CYLINDERS

POOR fuel is as frequent a cause of carbonized cylinders as poor lubrication. You cannot be too careful what goes into your tank.

Standard Motor Gasoline is a straight-distilled refinery product—not a "blend" or a "mixture". Mixtures make trouble because they do not stay mixed. The light fraction goes off first, and the heavy residue necessitates carburetor adjustments and is a frequent cause of cylinder carbon.

Standard Motor Gasoline is absolutely homogeneous—every drop like every other drop. You get the same steady, dependable power-impulses, whether you are running on the top or the bottom of your tank.

Look for the "Standard Motor Gasoline" sign on garages and supply stations. Wherever you see it you can also get Polarine—the Standard Oil for All Motors—the oil that keeps your car in finest trim.

MAYOR GARVEN ASKS FOR STATE TROOPS

Labor Troubles at Bayonne Alarming—One Man Killed at Constable Hook.

Trenton, July 21.—Mayor Pierre Garven, of Bayonne, today requested Governor Fielder and Adjutant General Sadler to rush State troops to Bayonne, following the serious labor troubles at the Standard Oil Works here. The Governor and Adjutant General have taken the situation under consideration, but are not likely to order out any part of the State militia unless Sheriff Kinkead, of Hudson county, finds that he cannot cope with the situation and joins in the request for troops.

New York, July 21.—One man was killed and fifty men were hurt in a fight between policemen and strikers at the Constable Hook plant of the Standard Oil Company today. Police Inspector Cady was shot in the leg and earlier in the day his horse was shot under him. The mob attacked the house of Fire Company No. 4, of Bayonne, and smashed all the windows.

EDUCATION BOARD AWARDS TRANSPORTATION CONTRACTS

At the meeting of the Piscataway Board of Education last evening contracts for conveying the township school children to the Plainfield, South Plainfield and New Market public schools were awarded. There were seven routes specified, and the successful bidders will sign contracts in a few days. John Dayton and David Osborne, of New Market, were among the successful bidders. The bids ran from $70 down, $70 being the highest bid. The bids cover transportation for the pupils on a particular route for ten months. Four of the routes are from points in the township to the New Market school, two to the South Plainfield school, and one to the school in this city.

Progress on the four-room addition to the South Plainfield school, which will cost about $12,000, was reported and an architect's certificate for a payment to the contractor was honored. The building will be in readiness for use by fall.

TWENTY-FIVE GUARDS JOIN THE STRIKERS

Former Army Men Refuse to Serve Under Captain John Inches.

Bridgeport, July 21.—Twenty-five guards of the Remington Arms plant today joined the eleven who went on strike last night. They want $18 a week instead of $14.10, and refuse to serve under Captain John Inches, a military officer. The guards are all former army men. A demonstration occurred late this morning in front of the plant of Coulter & Mackensie. It was quelled by the police. Workmen of the Columbia Nut and Bolt Co. returned to work, when Fred Atwater, head of the concern, announced that he had returned his contracts for war materials to the Remington officials. The strikers held an orderly parade just before noon.

At noon today the union officials claimed to have five hundred machinists and tool-makers, 300 structural iron workers and 135 millwrights out on strike in the various factories in the city and expect more to come out this afternoon.

Labor leaders announced today that pickets stationed in front of the Remington Arms and Ammunition Company's main plant had stopped eighty skilled mechanics on the day shift from going to work.

The pickets went to the plant soon after daybreak and remained there several hours. Every machinist that appeared ready for work was taken aside and talked to by the pickets. The labor men admitted that not all of the men approached stayed away from work.

An attempt to get some statement from Major W. G. Penfield, works manager of the company, as to how many men, according to the company's count, had struck, was unsuccessful.

GOVERNOR NON-COMMITTAL.

New York, July 21.—Charles Becker, in a final effort to save his life, had John B. Johnston, one of the Becker lawyer, hand to Governor Whitman just before noon today, a document. After scanning the paper hurriedly, Governor Whitman intimated that it contained nothing which he did not already know. He made no comment, however, as to his probable action.

DISTRICT DEPUTY INSTALLS FREEDOM CASTLE OFFICERS

An enthusiastic meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of Golden Eagle, was held last night, at which the installation of officers occurred. The new officers are:

Past chief, John Dickson; noble chief, Dr. C. Howard Pratt; vice-chief, Theodore L. Martin; high priest, E. A. Borman; venerable hermit, L. E. Giddis; sir herald, Thomas W. Darling; worthy chamberlain, S. F. Runyon; ensign, C. E. Post; esquire, L. A. Martin; first guardsman, A. E. Fiske; second guardsman, P. G. Allen.

The installation was conducted by District Deputy Grand Chief Robert S. Turton and staff, of New Brunswick. Past chiefs jewels were presented to John Dickson and George A. Ayers.

LITERARY

ENGLISH CHAPLAIN PERMITTED IN GERMAN CAMPS.

The (English) Bishop for English chaplaincies and congregations in Northern and Central Europe (the Rt. Rev. Dr. Bury) writes that a great change appears to be taking place in the attitude of German military authorities towards British soldiers imprisoned in Germany. The Bishop has just heard from Berlin that the War Office has given permission to the English chaplain, the Rev. H. M. Williams, to visit and minister in all the camps where there are English prisoners of war. There are fifty-three upon his list already. The Rev. Mr. O'Dorke, chaplain to the forces, who has been imprisoned at Burg, has permission also to visit and minister in the camps at Magdeburg, Torgan Halle, and Stendal. "These privileges," the Bishop says, "are likely to be increased rather than diminished and they are of inestimable value. Not only will the men greatly appreciate the services, but—I know it so well—the regular visits of English clergy will have great influence upon the German non-commissioned officers who, as everyone in Germany is aware, are practically responsible for the good or ill treatment of the men under their authority." The Rev. Mr. Williams asks the Bishop to let it be known that the relations between the camp authorities and the British prisoners of war at Doberitz are now quite happy, and they realize that the commandant is doing his best for them.—The Living Church.

FINISHING TOUCHES ON AMERICAN REPLY

President Wilson's Message to Kaiser is Said to Be Unusually Strong.

Washington, July 21—Secretary of State Lansing is today putting the finishing touches on the American reply to the German note. It will be dispatched to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, it was stated at the White House today, probably Friday or Saturday.

Not an ultimatum, but sufficiently firm and final in tone to make it more than ever impossible for the United States to sit idly by if its citizens are further destroyed unwarned by torpedo attacks, there is a general feeling that the note just approved by the cabinet will bring this country and Germany one step nearer to a crisis.

When the new note goes to Berlin this government will for the fourth time have given diplomatic admonition to Berlin that American rights must be respected. The leaders in the Wilson administration understand that the time is close at hand when her protestation of this sort will not suffice, provided Germany does not refrain from attacking Americans at sea.

It is impossible to conceal the fact that the leading men of the administration take a grave view of the situation. Advisers of the President have told him various things about public sentiment in this country. Some have told him the country wants peace above all else. But the bulk of the President's counsel, that on which he most relies, is that while the nation hopes nothing may occur to cause a break with Germany, it cannot tolerate repeated and deliberate infraction of the sea rights of its people, especially when such infraction means that non-combatants lose their lives.

FIND STONE'S BODY.

Queenstown, July 21.—The body of Herbert S. Stone, son of Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, who was one of the Lusitania victims, has floated ashore at Bally Bunnion, a small village at the mouth of the River Shannon. The body has been identified by articles found upon it. At Mr. Stone's office this afternoon it was stated that the plans for the disposition of the body have not been made.

John Journeaux, of Harrison avenue, has returned home after spending three weeks at Atlantic City.

CLEAN UP EVERY DAY.

Clean up days or weeks are splendid, but after all the only way to keep Plainfield or any other community looking right is to keep everlastingly at it. A campaign, supported by the usual appeals to the people does good, but what is better yet is to make every resident realize that the city cannot be kept clean unless the plan is supported by every individual. A part of the responsibility for dirty streets and sidewalks rests upon the householders and others who fail to obey regulations, and the street cleaning department cannot be blamed if paper is thrown around indiscriminately fifteen minutes after the street cleaning gang has passed by.

Throwing away papers and rubbish, failing to take proper care of garbage, allowing waste to collect in cellars and yards—these are things that make cleanliness impossible. It was a good plan that was tried in Philadelphia recently when a procession of schoolgirls was held in a part of the city where greater attention to the essentials of health as well as of neatness happened to be especially needed. As an object lesson it was picturesque and impressive. The campaign has been well begun; let it be followed up. A "clean-up week" once a year cannot have much permanent moral effect.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. has reason to be proud of the records made by the boys who returned last Thursday after a two weeks' outing at Camp Wawayanda. They excelled in athletic contests and left camp with a lead of about 400 points over their competitors for the cup. It was no empty compliment paid the local branch when the five members of the Plainfield Boys' Leader Corps were selected to lead the "setting up" exercises every morning, and spoke well for the work of Robert L. Meermans, the physical director, who trained them, as well as for the quality of the material with which he had to work. The boys also proved themselves not lacking in intellectual acquirements, as was shown in the results achieved in the mental tests. And by the way, it may be added that there is no better place in the city for a boy to spend his leisure hours than under the watchful eyes of those who look after the frequenters of the Y. M. C. A.

Former Assemblyman Rene P. F. VonMinden was endorsed by his "home town folks" for the Republican nomination for State Senator from Middlesex county, at a meeting held a few days ago. He would make an able Senator, and the Republicans of Middlesex county could go a long way to secure a more satisfactory candidate. Judge VonMinden, while a member of the lower house a few years ago, made a favorable record, and the people, if given a chance to vote for him this year, will show that they appreciate his efforts in the past.

There's so little doing politically this summer that it is hard to stir up any interest in the coming campaign. In Union county the only important offices to be balloted for are the three Assembly places, and Messrs. Runyon, Pierson and Morgan made such a generally satisfactory trio of representatives last year, that there will be trouble getting good men to oppose them. Not in many years has there been such an "off" season as is the case now. But it will be made up for next year, when a President, Governor, United States Senator, Congressmen and other important officials are to be chosen. Probably as the time approaches the suffrage campaign will create more interest than will the November election this year.

When the task of installing the North Plainfield sewer system is completed and the sewers are in working order, the borough will begin to reap benefits innumerable from the improvement. There is no doubt that the absence of sewers has retarded the growth of the section of late years, and a big building boom should follow as soon as financial conditions throughout the country warrant it. That North Plainfield can look forward to a season of activity along this line is the belief of those who have given study to the situation.

A Thursday in July without an excursion! The Central Railroad officials must have had a lapse of memory when they arranged their schedule so that Plainfielders could not get a low rate trip to the shore tomorrow, and then shoved three excursions on us in one week, as will be the case in August.

Careful inspection of the newspapers each Monday morning convinces us that the drowning season is just as prolific this year as it has ever been.

Judging from the hordes of the pests that are in evidence now, the "swat the fly" movement in Plainfield failed to "take" this spring.

The Becker case is getting to be as tiresome as was that of Thaw.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Please publish these lines as historical facts for the benefit of the American nation, especially of the younger generations. The undersigned was born in the northern part of Germany in the year 1850, and was a schoolboy of said country of eleven and fourteen years of age, respectfully, during our Civil War of 1861-65 with the southern States of America.

There were continued collections made in our German schools for the assistance of American widows and orphans, as a national affair, which is a big difference of morality and culture from private and family obligations. Furthermore! My two years' older sister, with all the rest of our young women in our town were sewing bandages and preparing lint for American field hospitals in their schools and at home, where often our mother helped to finish this noble Samaritan work. And now, today, the German nation is receiving their payment with bloody compound interest for their generous and noble deeds in the form of shrapnels and munitions of war of all colors and descriptions to be slaughtered therewith in wholesale. I am ashamed as a legal citizen since the year 1873 of the double nature of a big part of our nation. With their mouths does this fraction of our nation praise the mercy of God for peace and good-will unto men on earth, but with their hands do they crush the lives of the innocents of their best friends. Even so does the Cain's curse of the brother-murderer reflect his dark shadow on myself and every true American citizen.

We, in this case, the German school children, offered bread to the Americans and the return is a stone. We gave money and are paid now with the scorpions of hate and blackguard, and I must see at the present time that black spot of our national soil covering its Medusian head in the symbolic veil of the Midgard's snake to conceal the shame in their faces.

We have a law said the hyphenated Pharisees at the crucifixion of Christ, and He must be crucified according to this law! We have a law, is the shameful call of our hyphenated Americans, which allows us to provide arms and war material to the combined colors of Corah. The sum total of their silent speeches and Cossak press organs sound now more vehemently through the four quarters of the Zodiak because their cannons and their shells are singing and roaring: "Crucify, crucify all moral laws, truths and justice on this earth! Crucify, crucify the whole German nation, including all their peaceful school children and teachers, as the foremost promoters of that world redeeming symbol, 'The brotherhood of all nations.'"

Under the sign of the cross do our money mongers cover the sign of the dollar, the Cain's murder of those sons and grandsons which in the early sixties gave their last pennies to heal the American wounds of our Civil War.

It is the trained and highly educated master-mind of peace on earth and good-will unto me which rules and controls this world. It is hidden from the observation of liars, brutes, prize-fighters, hypocrites and the worshippers of the golden calf, which are swept away on the battlefields like dry leaves in an autumn storm under the accepted principles of the unity of all like. From such common national centers power and strength radiates through peaceful thought waves into all the directions of the four winds for the common benefit of all humanity, domestic animals and vegetation, because the substance of our thought waves are the light vibrations of the aura of our planet, and therefore, say, "The peaceful shall inherit this earth."

Washington M. Cross, of East Orange, has been appointed secretary to former Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., who was recently named by President Wilson to represent the United States at the Panama Republic Exposition commencing in December at Panama. Mr. Tuttle secured Secretary Tumulty's approval of the selection of Mr. Cross before communicating with the latter. Mr. Cross was secretary to Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, during the latter's term as Congressman from the Ninth New Jersey district. Mr. Tuttle shared the same Congressional offices with the present judge, and Mr. Cross also acted as his secretary for a time. Mr. Cross left today for Washington to begin his new duties. He will also be known as the disbursing agent of the commissioner, and it will be up to him to secure exhibits from this country for the Exposition. The positions held by Messrs. Tuttle and Cross will last for nine months.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Piquant Marguerite Clark, one of the most famous actresses on the American stage, will appear today at the U. S. Astor Theatre in "Gretna Green," a play of life in England in the eighteenth century. It is as fresh as a sea breeze and just the right type of film entertainment for warm weather.

Miss Clark in a brief career on the screen has attained a position of wide distinction. Many film lovers prefer the dainty little actress to Mary Pickford and Blanche Sweet and the other long established stars of the screen. Certainly she can act and in the lighter roles she is at her best. And Miss Clark has just this kind of a part in "Gretna Green."

The film tells a very pretty love story in which Miss Clark is the central figure. There is an elopement in which the couple seek refuge in an inn, but they are discovered by relatives. However, the climax is happy.

Scenically this picture is one of the best ever produced by the Famous Players Company, for the presentations of whose films Frank G. Hall, proprietor of the Astor Theatre, has exclusive rights in Plainfield. Admirers of Miss Clark will see this dainty little actress in a role that fits her down to the ground and one which she portrays with all the dramatic resource at her command.

There will be shown the usual supplemental program of high class comedies and dramas.

Tomorrow, "The Quarry," an extremely amusing motion picture, will be the feature of an extraordinary program.

Y. W. C. A. CONFERENCE.

Raleigh, N. C., July 21—The first conference of the Young Women's Christian Association in the South, opened today at Robert E. Lee Hall, at Blue Ridge, N. C., where many delegations from Southern States are assembled. The conference has brought together professional workers and many board members and business women interested in the work. Miss Harriet Taylor, of the national board, in New York, is presiding at the conference. Mrs. George F. Armstrong, of Savannah, will lead the council for board members, and Miss Flora Shank, of Louisville, will lead the employed officers' council. Rev. Ryland Knight, of Clarkeville, Tenn., will deliver evening lectures. The conference will last for ten days, during which every phase of Christian work will be considered.

LAY CORNER STONE OF P. S. C. TERMINAL

Interesting Program Marks Progress of $5,000,000 Structure in Newark.

In the presence of several thousand people, President Thomas N. McCarter laid the corner stone of the new $5,000,000 Public Service terminal building in Newark yesterday afternoon. The building with its subway and its overhead approaches is destined to be the largest and most modern street railway terminal in the country. It is designed to accommodate a maximum of 400 cars an hour. It is unique in street railway terminals in that there are two train floors, and the street level will be used as a concourse. Above the train floors the structure will rise six stories which will be devoted to the uses of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and its railway, gas and electric companies.

Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark, stood at Mr. McCarter's side as the stone was laid, and in the party were mayors, councilmen and other officials of various municipalities in Essex county and West Hudson. Business, financial and professional men prominent in New Jersey, New York city and Philadelphia were in attendance.

Following the placing of the stone a luncheon was served to nearly 250 guests. Mr. McCarter made a short address, telling what Public Service had done to develope the communities it served. Mayor Raymond congratulated the company and predicted great things for the future. Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., told of the development of the utilities of Essex and of the city of Newark, and Senator Austen added his congratulations and his views of what the community would develope into.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy said that long ago he took his stand as believing that public corporations and public service companies were beneficial from a public standpoint. He holds that same view today. He added that New Jersey was to be congratulated on the fact that men from New York and Philadelphia who possessed great imagination and broad visions had the courage to invest large amounts of money in New Jersey, and were fortunate enough to secure a man of such ability and force as Mr. McCarter t accept the task of welding together a multitude of small companies. He had comparatively little knowledge of the business at first but has developed into a master of his trade. The workman is worthy of his hire, he added, the lawyer is worthy of his fee, the merchant is worthy of his profit and the utility company investor should be considered worthy of a fair return on the money he risks.

The terminal building is expected to be completed some time next summer. The Hedden Construction Company has the contract for the building. The subway and foundations having been completed by the Hollbrook, Rollins & Cabot Corporation.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Tonight "The Dancing Girl," the famous emotional drama Paramount production with the following cast. Florence Reed, Fuller Mellish, Loraine Hulling, Malcome Williams, William Russell and others, at Proctor's Theatre.

With this great picture, ice cream of the famous Ritz make is set up for the house, while 100 votes are given to each patron in the Three Shetland Pony contest, and a guess in the victrola contest, which was opened Monday, and has created considerable interest since that time.

Women folks who keep homes will be interested to know that tomorrow the first silver spoon matinee is to be held, each and every woman receiving a silver spoon. This will continue to be the case each Thursday afternoon.

Maclyn Arbuckle as "Old Sunshine" or "Hi Judd," in "It's No Laughing Matter," is to be shown at the Proctor house tomorrow, both afternoon and night, and if one desires to rid himself of the blues, see this picture. "Mrs. Judd," better known as "the boss," is played by Cora Drew, while "Bess Judd," "Jim Skinner," alike in name and nature, "Widow Wilkins," and "Sam" are all present in this photo-play of comedy and tragedy.

For Friday and Saturday, "The Spendthrift," with Irene Fenwick, and "The Mountain Rat," with Henry Walthrall, are scheduled as the feature pictures.

ASBURY PARK RECTOR AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Rev. William N. Bailey, until recently rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Asbury Park, has taken charge of Grace Episcopal church, of this city, during the vacation of the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. Mr. Bailey had charge of the services last Sunday and will continue with the church until September.

Mr. Bailey was rector of the Shrewsbury Episcopal church, around which cling so many Revolutionary War associations, before taking up his work in Asbury Park. He served at the latter place until last Easter, when he resigned. During his Asbury Park rectorship Trinity parish built a handsome new church edifice, largely through the untiring efforts of Mr. Bailey.

J. N. PIDCOCK MAKES OFFER TO BUY N. J. AND PENN. R. R.

An offer of $27,500 for the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad running from Watnong, near Morristown, to Whitehouse Station on the New Jersey Central Railroad, subject to State taxes amounting to $15,000, was yesterday reported to Vice Chancellor Howell, who made an order directing parties in interest to show cause next Tuesday why the offer should not be accepted.

The offer was made by James N Pidcock, of Whitehouse Station, to Frederic C. Pitney, receiver for the road, and was reported to the vice chancellor by Corwin Howell, of Pitney, Hardin & Skinner.

The road is bonded in the amount of $200,000 and there are other general claims totaling upwards of $70,000.

There is also outstanding a first mortgage of $5,000 with many years interest unpaid, held by George E Fisher.

The road has not been in operation for several years.

BOY IS KILLED BY ELECTRIC WIRE

High Voltage Passes Through Body of Albert Alberts in Tree Near Westfield.

Killed instantly through coming in contact with an electric wire from which the protecting insulation had been rubbed off, was the fate which Albert Alberts, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Alberts, of 648 Downer street, Westfield, met yesterday afternoon. The boy was playing in a tree near his home and accidentally touched with some part of his body the spot on the wire where the insulation had been rubbed off.

The accident occurred at Scotch Plains avenue and Cumberland street, Scotch Plains township. Albert, with two boy companions, was in a large tree carving their names in the bark. The wire with which his body came in contact passes through the tree and constant friction against a limb had removed the insulation so that when Albert, in getting down, unfortunately touched that part of the wire which was exposed, received a shock.

Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, the county physician, who was summoned, declared that death must have been instantaneous. A current of 13,250 volts is said to have passed through the body. Albert fell at once after coming in contact with the wire and those who ran to his assistance and carried him to his home said that he was dead when they got there.

Mrs. Alberts was almost beside herself with grief, but was able to talk quite calmly about the accident this morning. The couple have one other child, a girl eleven years old.

Albert was a bright boy and was a favorite with young and old in the neighborhood where he lived. He attended the Westfield public school and the Methodist Sunday-school. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist church, with interment in Fairview cemetery.

RECEIVED INTO THE ORDER OF SISTERS OF CHARITY

Miss Elizabeth Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Carroll, of 1171 Elizabeth avenue, and a niece of Mrs. William Willis, of 414 West Fifth street, this city, and a graduate of the Rosary School and the Star of the Sea Academy, Long Branch, was yesterday received into the Order of the Sisters of Charity.

The ceremonies were held in the Mother House at Convent Station. With the taking of the veil, Miss Carroll will assume the name of Sister Helen Rose. It was in March that Sister Rose entered the convent to make final preparation for her entrance into the order. She was one of a class of fifteen that took the veil at yesterday's ceremonies, being the only young women from Elizabeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. James Byrnes, Mrs. John Masterson and Miss Jane Meehan were among those who went to the convent to witness the acceptance of Miss Carroll in the sisterhood.

FINED FOR BREAKING GASOLINE TANK GLOBE

For being drunk and disorderly and breaking the glass globe on the curb gasoline tank of the Somerset Garage last night, two Plainfield men were fined five dollars each or given the alternative of spending ten days in the Somerset county jail by Recorder Hand, in the North Plainfield police court this morning. The offenders were Phillip Millwater, of South Second street, and John Finn, of Clinton avenue.

Roundsman Keller and Special Officer Cooper made the arrest. Millwater paid his fine at once and also settled with the garage owner for the damage done, that action being declared necessary by Recorder Hand before he would release the man. Finn was locked up again and given a few hours in which to raise the amount of his fine. He was also instructed by the recorder to turn over to Millwater half the sum the latter paid to the Somerset Garage.

FUNERAL OF MISS SYKES IS LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth McCready Sykes, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Beck Sykes and the late Rev. Charles L. Sykes, was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home, 402 East Sixth street. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and neighbors. Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace church, officiated at the service, during which William Holmes, of this city, sang two selections.

There was an unusually large number of beautiful floral tributes from relatives and the host of friends of Miss Sykes, which included many garden and wild flowers of which she was especially fond. These were arranged about the bier in such a way as to form an almost complete garden of flowers. The burial which was private was in the Scotch Plain cemetery.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

The misfortune that has overtaken Congressman R. Wayne Parker evokes the most sincere sympathy and regret from all classes and parties. His service to the State and nation during his several terms at Washington was such as to carry the conviction of the sincerity of his beliefs and the vigor of his application to the problem at hand. It is worthy of comment that at this time of his affliction his uppermost thought seemed to be the safety and defense of the nation, a matter to which he had recently been giving much attention. The earnest hope that he will soon be restored to health and able to fill the office to which he has been re-elected will be shared both by those who have agreed with him and those who have not.—Newark Evening News.

GEORGE E. SCHROPPE DIES IN 31ST YEAR

Well Known Young Man Succumbs to Long Illness Following Two Operations.

George Edward Schroppe died this morning at his residence, 421 Spooner avenue, after an illness extending over a period of a year. The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock at his late residence, and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, where a high mass of requiem will be offered. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Schroppe was in his thirty-first year. He was operated upon about a year ago and was unable to work at his trade of a machinist for five months. He had scarcely recovered when another operation was found necessary. As the result of the two operations he was incapacitated from work for about a year.

Mr. Schroppe leaves a widow and two children, a boy of seven and a girl two and a half years old. His father is John Schroppe, of 29 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. The deceased was employed in the Spicer plant. He was a Forester and a member of the factory fraternal organization.

BUYS LAND FOR ELEVATION OF TRACKS IN ELIZABETH

Elizabeth, July 21—In preparation for the fight that is sure to come before permission to close streets is given by the city to the Central Railroad for the purpose of elevating its tracks, the Communipaw Central Land Co. yesterday filed eighty-four deeds for property along the railroad right-of-way in this city. The city strongly opposes the closing of some of the streets. The road has spent about $500,000, it is estimated.

The land involved includes all the property along the Long Branch division, from First avenue to the Elizabethport station, a distance of approximately a mile, and running fifty feet west of the main tracks. No land was purchased on the easterly side. Purchases had been made during the last four years, but little was known of them.

The purchase includes scores of private houses, an average of two on either side of fifteen thoroughfares, and also include a wholesale grocery concern and coal yard. As the deeds were made before December 1, 1914, no revenue stamps were necessary.

ESTATES WILL EXHIBIT AT BERNARDSVILLE PLANT SHOW

Bernardsville, July 21.—The fifth annual show of the Bernardsville Horticultural and Agricultural Society has been announced for September 1 and 2 in Bernard's Inn auditorium. The pick of the fruit, flowers and vegetables, grown on the estates of millionaires in this vicinity, will be on exhibit.

Many prizes have been offered. Besides the cash awards, Stump & Walter have offered a silver cup for the best collection of twenty-four varieties of vegetables. Mrs. H. Otto Wittpenn has offered a sterling silver cup for the best general collection of cut flowers, outdoor grown.

The arrangements are in the hands of the executive committee, consisting of Louis Barkman, chairman; Alexander McCohn, Alexander Sheriffs, W. G. Carter, secretary; James Lyons, William Turner, A. R. Quinby, George Horsburgh, Clayton Olivette, Kolman Nagy, David Neill, John Kuhn and J. F. Anderson, president of the society. The judges will be Edward Ragan and Percy Whitney, of Morristown, and Arthur Stratford, of Convent.

A new feature has been added this year, a home department which will be in charge of the Women's Social Union. It will display preserved vegetables, fruits, cakes and other products of the kitchen.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Injuries to one or more employes of the Swift Beef Company's plant on East Fourth street were narrowly averted by more good luck than good judgment, this morning, when a train was backed into the siding without warning, ramming against a car in which the men were unloading meat. Several men had a hair-breath escape from injury, but as it was got off with shaking up.

PICKED UP RUNAWAY.

Patrolman John Fritts picked up a small boy giving his name as Charles Smith, at the eastbound Central Railroad depot at 6:30 o'clock last night. The youth said he was a pupil in the Groszmann School and admitted that he was running away. He said he lived in New York city.

FIREMEN ENJOY A FEED.

Volunteer firemen of New Market to the number of about twenty-five gathered at the Hotel Nelson, New Market, last night, and enjoyed a get-to-gether dinner. It was strictly informal, with impromptu speeches only, but those who attended enjoyed the affair immensely.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments For Street Improvements In the City of Plainfield.

Andrew J. Gavett, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., and Frederic E. Mygatt, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the thirtieth day of April, 1915, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz.:

Gerard Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

Monroe Avenue, from the macadam on West Eighth Street to the center of Sherman Avenue;

West Fourth Street, from the macadam on Clinton Avenue to the City Line;

under the ordinance of said city entitled, "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," Approved July 6th, 1914, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled: "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real state benefited thereby," approved July 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the 30th day of July, 1915, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.

MISS HYDE AND PHILLIP CARTER THE ONLY 1914 GOLF CHAMPIONS TO REPEAT THIS YEAR

Now that the nearby golf championships for 1915 have come to an end, a survey of the field shows that only in the feminine field has the laurel not changed brows. Of the champions of 1914, Miss Lillian B. Hyde, the woman champion, and Philip Carter, the junior, are the only title holders to repeat their 1915 victories.

The championships are generally classed as these: Men's metropolitan amateur, women's metropolitan amateur, metropolitan open, metropolitan junior and New Jersey amateur.

Last year Oswald Kirby won both the New Jersey titles, the former at Englewood, where he defeated Walter J. Travis in the final, and the latter at Morris county, Maurice E. Risley here being the runner-up.

This year Kirby failed in both these title competitions. The amateur was won at Apawamis by Walter J. Travis, who defeated John G. Anderson on the home green while the New Jersey championship was captured by Max R. Marston, who defeated Roy D. Webb by a large margin.

The metropolitan open also changed hands, Macdonald Smith won in 1914, at Scarsdale, but this year at Fox Hills he was well down the list, Cli Nichols, of Wilmington, carrying off first prize.

In the women's field Miss Hyde's undoubted superiority shown at Essex county in 1914, when she "snowed under" Miss Georgianna M. Bishop in this year at Sleepy Hollow, where she won the final from Mrs. J. E. Davis on the fifteenth green.

The shifting of titles in three of the four championships cannot but be regarded as a good game for the sport in widening the interest and preventing anything like a monopoly of titles after the fashion of the British triumvirate, Vardon, Taylor and Braid.

Another championship played in this district also saw a switch of the title together with the comeback of a famous golfer. This was the national open at Baltusrol, where Jerome D. Travers, the amateur, after a year of defeats rose majestically to the occasion and won the open title.

Connecticut has also seen its title pass, W. P. Seely, Brooklawn, the 1914 winner, being succeeded by H. K. Kerr, Greenwich.

A new championship was established this year. It includes only the clubs in Westchester county, which probably has more golf and country clubs than any other county in the United States. It was held at Wykagyl last month, and was won by Dwight Patridge, of Bedford.

A very moving incident was noted at a tournament not far from Ossining not so many hours ago. It is generally understood that finalists in the "sixteens" have the right to go through players in the Saturday handicap.

Now, it so happened that the final of the beaten eighteen of the fifth sixteen did not start till very late in the afternoon.

"Great Scott!" said one of them, looking at his watch at the first tee. "I've got to get the 6:44 train, and these handicap fellows will hold us back."

"No they won't. Leave that to me," said the other.

When they would come up to a handicap couple one of the eight would say at the tee:

"We're finalists, gentlemen." Whereupon the others would step back, yielding first place on the tee.

So they went sailing through the field. Each time a pair would give way, the spokesman would chuckle and say to the other:

"The 6:44 looks pretty good to you, eh?"

Half a dozen couples had yielded without incident before the thirteenth tee was reached.

There two doctors were playing in the handicap. Neither is much of a golfer and the magical word "finalists" stirred their admiration. They stepped aside, proud to do honor to "sixteeners."

After the "finalists" had topped their cleek tee shots into the deep ravine and were walking off the tee one of the doctors made bold to ask:

"What sixteen were you in?"

When the reply came back, "The fifth eight," one of the doctors exclaimed: "Gee! Only the coffee grounds at the bottom of the cup, and we lost our place. Can you you beat it?"

His medical partner rendered first aid and no serious result was reported.

There is now talk of having the different pairs properly labeled in the Saturday afternoon finals of tournaments, so that the "eights" can be distinguished.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

According to the City League magnates "crabbing" umpires and players is to be "tabooed." Well, how about the spectators? We've chanced to see some engagements which gave the sideline watchers an opportunity to kick.

Arthur O'Leary, Oscar Dilts and Ernest Stahl have signed up with certain league outfits in the city. From all around performances it would seem that these high school boys hold a slight prestige over certain college products who are pastiming hereabouts.

A feminine scribe, who was rumored to have entered the swimming races at Deal Lake next week, has informed us that she can't swim. Well if you can't, you ought to.

Phil VanDeventer's defeat in the Westfield night tennis argument was accomplished only after the Rahway rival clan had been pushed to the limit. The Plainfielder and his Elizabeth partner performed in excellent style and while their lot was that of a loser's they deserve all the praise that's coming their way for the game they put up.

"Midge" Kline has informed us that "lack of advertising" was the cause of the seventh hour cancellation of the All Star-Royal clash last Saturday. 'Smatter with your press agent, Midge? You'll never have a real ball team until you get a live news spreader.

That team of Second Night Club swimming stars was out for another practise at Sewaren Sunday. Little was accomplished, however, for Coach Bill Sullivan had an engagement to stay on dry terra firma.

One fan has formed a pool to bet $7,000 to $1,000 that Brooklyn will win the National League race. We're willing to wager the same amount that Brooklyn won't accept a post-season challenge from the winner of the City League flag.

With Nibs Hand sticking .295 and fielding .970 on the New England circuit the City Leaguers venture to enter him in their roster. Somebody evidently believes this record by a Scotch Plains' boy is sufficient cause for his release.

"Art" Thorn has accepted a job as assistant "pro" at the Westfield Golf Club. Thus, the Hope leaguers will be deprived of another good ballist.

AMATEUR CRACKS PUT OUT OF WESTERN GOLF EVENT

Cleveland, O., July 21—Several leading golfers in the competition for the Western amateur championship were defeated on the Mayfield golf course yesterday, including H. K. B. Davis, of San Francisco, Panama-Pacific champion; Mason Phelps, Chicago, former Western champion, and E. M. Byers, Pittsburgh, former national champion. Phelps and Davis failed to qualify, and even Byers was defeated in the first round of match play by Ned Sawyer, of Chicago, 5 and 4.

W. C. Fownes, who made the course in 72 in the last eighteen holes of the qualifying round, set an amateur record for the Hayfield course as it stands, after the tees recently were moved back.

Besides the final eighteen holes of the qualifying round yesterday, the first round in match play was staged.

"Chick" Evans was among those who won his way through the opening round, defeating J. C. Dillworth, of Pittsburgh, 4 and 3.

BRICKLEY SIGNS TO COACH.

YACHT BUILDER DEAD.

Bristol, R. I., July 21—John B. Herreshoff, president of the firm of yacht builders who have constructed many of America's cup defenders, died yesterday at the age of seventy-seven. He had been totally blind since fifteen years of age.

Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

POLO PONY KICKED GOAL THAT HELPED WIN MATCH

Rumson, July 21—After G. Jason Waters, playing for the Reds in a polo match with the Whites on the Rumson Field, yesterday, had carried the ball almost the length of the field, his pony kicked a goal that helped the Reds defeat the Whites by the score of 10 goals to 7.

Three pretty goals by Howard S. Borden for the Whites and a spectacular goal from the side board made by J. B. Waters, who played a brilliant game throughout, featured the close match.

AMATEUR BALL JINGLES

Compton has been doing some really good work for the Baptists, having performed in centre field, as catcher and at various times in every position in the infield. When a player is forced by circumstance to change so often his work in one position is not especially flashy, but in the case of Compton, the more he is shifted the better he gets. With a few more players of his calibre, the Baptists would be on top, not on the bottom.

Henry Winters, the Tab catcher, is a good backstop although his work is not marked by that show of flash exhibited by several other City League mittmen. If Henry could work up a little more enthusiasm, he would greatly aid his team and himself.

We must speak of the labors of "Heinie" Alberts, who has been scouting around after the slow ones emitted by "Hercules" Gleason. Alberts has been fielding splendidly and has been hitting heavily, at least, in the last few games. Henry has a line of chin-chatter that would make Hughey Jennings look sick. This kind of "pep" goes a good way sometimes.

Wanted—Six surgeons to be present at Avon Oval, Sunday. Full particulars upon request.

This notice has been necessitated by the announcement that the married and single members of the Tabs are going to settle all arguments concerning baseball and, perhaps, dues, by staking a monster comedy, which has been unjustly called baseball.

Jim Scott, one of the veterans who has not found the youthful company of the City Leaguers any too fast for him, has been coverting around first in great style. However, there is one bad feature about Jim's work. He takes up too much of the bag. That this is a fact was exhibited Sunday, when he was nearly spiked on two occasions.

Some ardent fan remarked Sunday that "Heinie" Rosenson was a slow man on the paths. Somehow "Rosie" heard the remark and the very next time up bunted down the third base line, at the same time making a terrific dash for first. And he arrived at the first sack about two minutes ahead of the ball, too.

Gunzelman still pilfers the sacks, but he is getting a little reckless about the manner in which he does it. Saturday he stole second, leaving the first station just as Henry Winters received the pill. That he arrived safely at the keystone bag is a wonder. The dust flew, the "ump" yelled and Winters grunted. Gunzelman had stolen another base.

How is it that the Tab roster has not been changed? Netherwood has signed Hand and the Chapelites have annexed Randolph. Perhaps, a few of the performs in Sunday's "prelim" may be signed up.

SPORTING NOTES

Today is Johnny Evers' birthday, and the veteran second sacker takes the occasion to slip us the dope that the Braves' hoodoo has vanished.

Ad Wolgast is signing up for every bout in sight. Strange to relate, many managers arrange for a substitute for each of his dates.

With Church and Mathey in the Northwestern singles, the net experts of that section will get some interesting action.

Connie Mack gets today a new pitcher, Dana Fillingham, and an outfielder from the Sally League. Fillinghame won ten games in a row, and Scout Ira Thomas picked him up for the new Athletics.

Jim Savage, who won a victory over Al Reich two weeks ago, is matched to meet Gunboat Smith at New York a week from tonight.

The fiftieth year of the modern canoe will be celebrated by a big canoe regatta at Asbury Park.

Walter J. Travis, now in his 56th year, still goes on winning golf championships. He weighs only 140, stand 5 feet 8 inches, and wears glasses. His many years at the game have reduced his play to a science.

Some good performers have been gathered for the swimming championships at the Frisco Fair. The 880-yard championship is being held today.

The one week cruise of the Boston Yacht Club will close with a race from Camden, Me., to Marblehead, Mass., to be started Saturday.

Eastern sportsmen are backing the Red Sox for the American League pennant and world championship. Carrigan's team is surely going a fast pace and are showing up well in the postponed games.

Howard Drew, the colored sprinter, is getting his training between the runs of his train. As a dining car waiter he is a huge success on the coast.

Fred Clarke has completed 21 years in baseball. He made his debut in 1894, making five hits in five times at bat in his first game with Louisville.

MULLIN FLATTENING THE PILL AT A .250 GAIT

Tommy Mullin is the seventh best batter in the Perth Amboy City League, according to the official averages made public yesterday. Tommy has been at bat sixteen times, has tallied two runs and has clouted the pill safely four times, his average being, therefore, .250. Tommy has hit heavier when playing in independent contests, but has walloped the pill in the league matches when his mates were swinging like rusty gates.

Cliff Randolph has been hitting the pill at a .117 clip. Cliff has played in ten games, league and otherwise, has been at bat 34 times and has connected safely four times. What makes Mullin's feat more noteworthy is the fact that his team's clouting average is only .171, whereas that of the Pacers is .260 and that of the Saints is .207.

Cliff Randolph and the Pacers will make a trip to Brooklyn next Sunday, where they will oppose the crack Suburbans of that metropolis.

Hist! Smgle Men vs. Benedicts; Providing Wifie Gives Consent

Sunday will be a gala day in Tab baseball circles. The Abstainers will clash with the Tiger A. A., of Newark, in the regular Sunday match and previous to the big show eighteen "comedians" will stage a farce in the form of a baseball match between the married and single members of the society. This comedy will begin promptly at 1:30 and will continue for the full nine innings provided, of course, none of the participants get killed before the full number of frames is completed.

"Alec" McDonald is manager of the benedicts and has collected a fast array of talent. He has chosen as his battery, "Butt" O'Keefe, the former Woodside hurler, and Al La Rock, of Rhode Island fame. Rufus La Rue will amble around first. "Bud" Higgins intends hanging around second, and "Alec" himself will attend to the difficult station. Dannie Nugent will be seen at short. Eddie Kyle will pick "currents" in left garden, "Duff" Muldowney doing the Tone Denny stunt in centre. Manager Jim Moynihan is going to show how the right garden should be played.

The married men's press agent refers to the opposition as "infants" and declares that Bill Mahoney and Joe Carroll, the minstrel men, will be the youthful battery.

"Tacks" O'Keefe is going to station himself in the region of first, with "Smiling" Hugh McDonald on second. Paddy Snyder will be seen at third, and Jack Carney, the Plainfield A. A. "heavy," can be witnessed at short. The entertainers in the outfield will be Jack Force, in left; Harry Dunn, in centre, and Tommy Griffen, "the big beauty," in left.

Michael O'Keefe and Jack Willis are going to umpire and it is said that several doctors have agreed to be on hand in case their services are needed.

Both encounters will be staged, as usual, at Avon Oval.

ROD AND REEL

There is much grumbling heard these days along Greenwood Lake because of the poor fishing. The excursionist who goes there for a day rarely gets fish, but those who spend considerable time at the lake learn the few spots in the course of time and reports from them would indicate fine fishing, but they are misleading. Greenwood Lake is a very much abused body of water as far as stocking is concerned. In fact, the oldest inhabitant can't remember when the fish car was seen there and the reason is very simple and that is the dual ownership. New Jersey and New York each claim part of the fishing rights, but they won't get together on laws that will protect, much less agree on stocking. This split is nothing new, as New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania are always at sword's points on this very question and the fishing suffers as a consequence. Fishing is held too lightly by the State authorities, as a rule, and few officials ever realize the valuable asset this sport is to any community, especially if the official plays golf, then he thinks that a fisherman isn't just right and one not worthy of paying attention to. Let the fishermen that frequent Greenwood Lake petition their Senators or Assemblymen for a get-together plan and thosands of fresh water fish will be placed in the lake before another year rolls around.

Now is the time to make up a party and fish Barnegat Bay. The fish are biting well and all the guides are on the job. Some people say that we will never see catches of from one hundred to two hundred made down there again, but fifty have been made by one-day parties since the early part of last week. A few striped bass have been caught by the Forked River fishermen as well. Barnegat pier, the new bridge that crosses at Sea Side Park; Forked River, Waretown, Barnegat, Beach Haven, and, in fact, everywhere along the bay where boats can be hired, the fish can be caught. Automobile parties are arriving early in the morning and returning that same evening with good catches.

Al De Nise, Peter Van Zandt and Charles Doeringer spent yesterday in the vicinty of Buoy Seven, where fishing is good and where there are always from fifty to a hundred anglers in action. The total catch registered by the combine was fifty weakfish.

Bluefish, weighing from five to ten pounds, are running well at Corson's Inlet.

John R. Yates, of De Lacy avenue, who caught the forty-pound channel bass exhibited by John Doughty yesterday, has returned home after enjoying an extensive fishing trip. The big bass shown in Plainfield was not the largest caught by Mr. Yates on the trip just completed. He landed one weighing almost fifty pounds and declares that neither of the two big ones he caught were anywhere near as large as some of the bass landed by a couple of the anglers, who were fishing the Inlet at the same time that he was.

Fresh water fishing is doomed, due to the unusual amount of rain which has fallen in this section. The waters are too active during and after a rain-storm and it is impossible, even for an experienced angler, to make any kind of a catch, no matter what kind of bait he uses. Insect life attracts the fish, who gorges himself and is not at all anxious to take a nip at the bait offered by the fishermen. However, the lakes are free from this state of affairs and fishing in them is better during and after a storm than it is when the sky is clear and a hot sun is out.

Plainfielders have been among those who have been mislead by fraudulent reports issued by the owners of fishing smacks, which ply along the coast. Statements are made by either the ship's captain or members of the crew that fishing in the region they traverse is unsurpassed and many persons, not familiar with the region in question, are led to believe that these false reports are founded on fact.

Allowing his opponents no hits during the seven innings played, Joe Newell, twirling for Old Eli, led his team to a 7 to 1 victory over the Princetonians in a Parker Field Junior League contest this morning. Newell has hurled three one hit encounters and it has been repeatedly predicted that he would uncork a no-hit win before the close of the season. He almost accomplished this feat this morning, the fact that the game went only seven innings alone preventing his so doing. Gary was the slabman for the losers and was touched for only four hits, but these coupled with six errors on the part of his mates were enough to produce seven big tallies for the Yale team. Reasoner made three errors although he handled ten other chances accurately.

PRESENT REPORT ON MILK ANALYSIS

Varied Bacterial Count Shown in the Statistics Compiled for Past Six Months.

The milk analysis averaged by the laboratory division of the Plainfield Board of Health for the months of January to June, inclusive, show a varying bacterial count. This count, the Board of Health declares, is the index of the care used in the production and handling of the milk. Fifty thousand per unit indicates careless methods and 150,000 is the maximum allowed by the department.

Following are the statistics:

Plainfield Milk and Cream Co., 3,500; Hickory Grove Farm, 4,600; Sunbright Farm, 5,100; Sunbright Farm "Baby Special," 5,400; Woodbrook Farms, 9,800; Plainfield Milk and Cream Co., Quaker Hill Farm, 11,000; Peter Peterson, 22,000; Charles F. Debele, 23,000; W. F. Muller, 30,000; Welsh Farms Dairy (Templin), 33,000; Borden Condensed Milk Co., 39,000; Frank Schropfer, 40,000; Thomas Mair, 49,000; J. H. KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO TAKE 1,100 SMALL GUESTS

Members of the excursion committee of the Knights of Columbus met in Columbus Club last night, and completed a number of outstanding details relative to the annual trip to the seashore which will be conducted this year on Tuesday, August 10. Reports received last night indicate that more than 1,100 children in the Sunday-schools of St. Mary's church, of Plainfield; St. Joseph's church, of North Plainfield; St. John's church, of Dunellen, and the Sacred Heart church, in South Plainfield, will this year be provided with free tickets.

In accordance with its annual custom the committee will make special arrangements for the welfare of the juvenile guests and one committeeman will be stationed in each train to take charge of the throng. Every indication points to a record-breaking crowd for this year, forty-five cars having already been chartered with the possibility of having to get more.

POLICE VACATIONS.

Sergeant Charles Flynn, of the local police department, this morning began a two weeks' vacation. Together with Mrs. Flynn he will visit Maine for his annual outing. Sergeant Andrew Saffron returned last night from his annual vacation. He spent the major portion of the time at Atlantic City.

BAND TO PLAY.

The Dutch Arms Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will play at a lawn fete to be given tomorrow evening by Holy Innocents' church, Dunellen. The band has eighteen engagemen already for the month of August.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the "For Sale" ads.

Titled Classic Dancer Capitulates To Motion Pictures

THE CAMERON GIRLS

LEO PIRNIKOFF and ETHEL ROSE

Scenes from "MIDNIGHT AT MAXIM'S"

TIME was, and that not so long ago, when there was attached to the mere mention of the words "motion pictures" at least the suspicion of opprobrium. Presented as an inexpensive form of amusement motion pictures made their first tremendous appeal to the masses, and inevitably the classes made an effort to hold aloof. Today theaters of the most expensive construction are devoted to animated photography, millions of dollars of capital and some of the best brains in the country are devoted to the production of the silently visualized drama, Broadway favorites are delighting to register their emotions before the camera, and limousines are hauling men and women of wealth and distinction to the picture theaters for hours of entertaining and instructive amusement which the public could secure in no other manner quite so agreeably as through the medium of the projector and the screen. Magazines and newspapers the world over are devoting columns of space to the motion picture industry because animated photography, or the photo play—which, in the last analysis, still remains a "motion picture"—has become more firmly established in popular favor than any form of entertainment ever devised.

Of particular interest in the development of the industry which now ranks third among the industries of the world in point of money invested has been the changing attitude of representative artistes whose ideas of "high art" originally made them look upon motion pictures as far beneath them. Today the dignity of the photo play is established. Today from Bernhardt down artistes of international reputation are not only willing, but anxious to trust their best efforts before the camera.

In the very near future the American theater going public will be given the opportunity of witnessing a particularly pretentious screen portrayal which is in itself the proof conclusive that "high art" has capitulated—capitulated, that is, if there ever existed any reasonable argument to the effect that the art of a Bernhardt, with a limited appeal, was greater than the art of any conscientious director of motion pictures with an appeal as broad as the world is wide and as long as time runs on. The picture in question carries the title "Midnight at Maxim's," and the "capitulation" in it is seen in the fact that an artiste of no less importance than the Baroness Imgard von Rottenthal, internationally known among people of the highest culture, has enthusiastically contributed her best efforts to make is a success.

The Baroness Rottenthal is a member of the Austrian nobility by birth, her father having been the Baron Yusef von Rottenthal, now dead, but during his lifetime a well known figure in Austrian military circles and quite close to the king of his allegiance. For years she has occupied an enviable position among the exponents of classic dancing, both in this country and abroad, an artiste so situated that she has been able to devote her life to the realization of an ideal, an artiste who has been able to keep herself absolutely free from the smirch of commercialism, an artiste whose appearance in motion pictures needs no other justification than her freely given expression of opinion that the development of cinematography has afforded her an opportunity to pass along more rapidly and more surely the beauties of rhythmic motion which she has been striving for years to develop.

The Baroness Rottenthal is most widely known in this country by reason of her work in the homes of the best society people in such cities as New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Her dances have been the star attraction at many brilliant affairs given in the homes of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Taylor Pyne, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Mrs. Benjamin Guinness and Prince Troubetzkoy in New York city and in the show homes of Newport, including that of Mrs. Mitchell Clark. In addition to a number of similar engagements in Chicago, during a period of three or four years, the baroness appeared as an attraction extraordinary with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, founded by the late Theodore Thomas, now under the direction of Frederick Stock. This engagement, which attracted the best people in the Windy City, was for fourteen evenings at beautiful Ravinia park.

In many respects the Baroness Rottenthal is one of the most interesting figures in the world of art today. In no sense of the word is she an imitator. In spite of many temptations she has persistently refused to give up her ideals. Although wedded to the art of interpretative dancing, she has found no justification for the popular practice of appearing in public in a state of nudity which, though possibly justified by the subject matter of the dances, is more calculated to appeal to those in search of a "thrill" than to those with an eye for art for art's sake. Her creations throughout have been characterized by purity and simplicity. Her costumes, which she designs and often executes herself, are as surely studies in art as are the rhythmic motions with which she interprets the compositions of the great masters, but yet they are made subservient, not overshadowing, to the more important art of dancing. The baroness, too, has steadfastly refused to pander to the popular demand as expressed in the vogue of the modern dances despite the fact that her peculiar abilities would have made it possible for her to achieve distinction in this line of work.

As her contributions to "Midnight At Maxim's," which has won her to the world of the photo play, the baroness has executed two of her most popular classic dances, the first entitled "Sea Mist" and the second "Snow Flurry." She appears as the stellar attraction in the realistic representation of a characteristic New York city cabaret entertainment in which are also enlisted the services of carefully chosen beauties from such nationally known "Broadway palaces" as Rector's, Bustanoby's and Maxim's.

Her dances before the camera were done on a mammoth outdoor stage at Woodside, N. J., to the accompaniment of a full symphony orchestra, and it was in discussing this incident of her work in motion pictures that the baroness waxed most enthusiastic in her praise of the new line of endeavor to which she has been converted. "Although I have been dancing for years, and in public ever since I had turned fifteen," she said, "the glamour of stage life has never appealed to me. Indeed, I have done practically no stage work in the generally accepted sense of the term, having entertained at society functions in this country and abroad and in conjunction with big musical organizations. The little annoyances which I have always felt would hamper my work were I to follow a stage career I found very agreeably absent when I consented to dance before the camera, and, indeed, I was greatly surprised to find the 'tone' of the motion picture work so high.

"I am enthusiastic over the possibilities of animated photography not only for myself, but also for others who have taken their work, even though it be classic dancing, as seriously as I have taken it. I think the public will concede that the rhythmic interpretation of the spirit of the old masters depends for its success upon something within, rather than without, the artiste. If this is true, then, the lack of an applauding audience is rather a help than a hindrance, and there is consequently no reason why any classic dancer should not do her very best work before the motion picture camera, to be enjoyed more widely on the screen than it could possibly be enjoyed in any other way.

"I have been gratified, too, and made more confident that there is a great future for dancers in motion pictures by the care which has been exercised by those producing 'Midnight In Maxim's.' The arrangement, you know, embodies the identical selections which the orchestra played the afternoon I did my dances before the camera, with tempos fitted to the pictures of the dances as they appear on the screen. When I first saw the picture, with its musical accompaniment, it was easy for me to forget that the figure before my eyes was not flesh and blood and to drink in the spirit of the dances.

"I liked the outdoor feature of the work, too, and I hope that some day I will be given the opportunity—which only motion pictures make possible—to do some of my dances in those pretty fairy dells and majestic forests which are too often burlesqued in ordinary stage settings."

The Baroness Rottenthal has always been an enthusiastic contributor of her talents for charity. For a long time it has been her rule to appear at least once each year—about Christmas time—for the benefit of some deserving charity. These appearances during the past few years have been in the larger cities of the country—not only in New York—and her return to these cities, where she is loved for her art and devotion to the cause of humanity, even on the picture screen, will be welcomed.

The FORESTER'S DAUGHTER

A ROMANCE OF THE BEAR TOOTH RANGE

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

"It's all in the trip," said Berrie. "You have to take the weather as it comes on the trail." As the storm lessened she resumed the business of cooking the midday meal, and at 2 o'clock they were able to eat in comparative comfort, though the unmelted snow still covered the trees, and the water dripped from the branches.

"You'll have to take lessons in swinging an ax," she said. "That's part of the job."

"Isn't it beautiful!" exclaimed Wayland, with glowing, boyish face. "The landscape is like a Christmas card."

"It wouldn't be so beautiful if you had to wallow through ten miles of it," she sagely responded. "Daddy will be wet to the skin, for I found he didn't take his slicker. However, the sun may be out before night. That's the way the thing goes in the hills."

To the youth, though the peaks were storm hid, the afternoon was joyous. Berrie was a sweet companion. Under her supervision he practiced at chopping wood and took a hand at cooking.

He had to admit that she was better able to care for herself in the wilderness than most men, even western men, and, though he had not yet witnessed a display of her skill with a rifle, he was ready to believe that she could shoot as well as her sire. Nevertheless he liked her better when engaged in purely feminine duties, and he led the talk back to subjects concerning which her speech was less blunt and manlike.

He liked her when she was joking, for delicious little curves of laughter played about her lips. She became very amusing as she told of her "visits east" and of her embarrassments in the homes of city friends. "I just have to own up that about all the schooling I've got is from the magazines. Sometimes I wish I had pulled out for town when I was about fourteen; but, you see, I didn't feel like leaving mother, and she didn't feel like letting me go, and so I just got what I could at Bear Tooth." She sprang up. "There's a patch of blue sky. Let's go see if we can't get a grouse." Together they strolled along the edge of the willows. "The grouse come down to feed about this time," she said. "We'll put up a covey soon."

Within a quarter of a mile they found their birds, and she killed four with five shots. "This is all we need," she said, "and I don't believe in killing for the sake of killing. Rangers should set good examples in way of game preservation. They are deputy game wardens in most states, and good ones too."

The night rose formidably from the valley while they ate their supper, but Berrie remained tranquil. "Those horses probably went clean back to the ranch. If they did, daddy can't possibly get back before 8 o'clock, and he may not get back till tomorrow."

Norcross, with his city training, was acutely conscious of the delicacy of the situation. In his sister's circle a girl left alone in this way with a man would have been very seriously embarrassed, but it was evident that Berrie took it all joyously, innocently. Their being together was something which had happened in the natural course of weather, a condition for which they were in no way responsible. Therefore she permitted herself to be frankly happy in the charm of their enforced intimacy.

She had never known a youth of his quality. He was so considerate, so refined, so quick of understanding and so swift to serve. He filled her mind to the exclusion of unimportant matters like the snow, which was beginning again. Indeed, her only anxiety concerned his health, and as he toiled amid the falling flakes, intent upon heaping up wood enough to last out the night, she became solicitous.

"You will be soaked," she warningly cried. "Don't stay out any more. Come to the fire. I'll bring in the wood."

Something primeval, some strength he did not know he possessed sustained him, and he toiled on. "Suppose this snow keeps falling?" he retorted. "The supervisor will not be able to get back tonight—perhaps not for a couple of nights. We will need a lot of fuel."

He did not voice the fear of the storm which filled his thought, but the girl understood it. "It won't be very cold," she calmly replied. "It never is during these early blizzards, and, besides, all we need to do is to drop down the trail ten miles, and we'll be entirely out of it."

"I'll feel safer with plenty of wood," he argued, but soon found it necessary to rest from his labors. Coming in to camp, he seated himself beside her on a roll of blankets, and so together they tended the fire and watched the darkness roll over the lake till the shining crystals seemed to drop from a measureless black arch, soundless and oppressive.

"What time is it now?" she asked abruptly.

He looked at his watch. "Half after 8."

"If father isn't on this side of the divide now he won't try to cross. If he's coming down the slope he'll be here in an hour, although that trail is a tolerably tough proposition this minute. A patch of dead timber on a dark night is sure a nuisance even to a good man. He may not make it."

"Couldn't I rig up a torch and go to meet him?"

She put her hand on his arm. "You stay right here!" she commanded. "You couldn't follow that trail five minutes."

"You have a very poor opinion of my skill."

"No, I haven't; but I know how hard it is to keep direction on a night like this, and I don't want you wandering around in the timber. Father can take care of himself. He's probably sitting under a big tree smoking his pipe before his fire—or else he's at home. He knows we're all right, and we are. We have wood and grub and plenty of blankets and a roof over us. You can make your bed under this fly," she said, looking up at the canvas. "It beats the old balsam as a roof. You mustn't sleep cold again."

"I think I'd better sit up and keep the fire going," he replied heroically. "There's a big log out there that I'm going to bring in to roll up on the windward side."

"It'll be cold and wet early in the morning, and I don't like to hunt kindling in the snow," she said. "I always get everything ready the night before. I wish you had a better bed. It seems selfish of me to have the tent while you are cold."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Walk in the Rain.

ONE by one, under her supervision, he made preparations for morning. He cut some shavings from a dead, dry branch of fir and put them under the fly and brought a bucket of water from the creek, and then together they dragged up the dead tree.

Had the young man been other than he was, the girl's purity, candor and self reliance would have conquered him, and when she withdrew to the little tent and let fall the frail barrier between them she was as safe from intrusion as if she had taken refuge behind gates of triple brass. Nothing in all his life had moved him so deeply as her solicitude, her sweet trust in his honor, and he sat long in profound meditation. Any man would be rich in the ownership of her love he admitted. That he possessed her pity and her friendship he knew, and he began to wonder if he had made a deeper appeal to her than this.

"Can it be that I am really a man to her," he thought, "I who am only a poor weakling whom the rain and snow can appall?"

Then he thought of the effect of this night upon her life. What would Clifford Belden do now? To what deeps would his rage descend if he should come to know of it?

Berrie was serene. Twice she spoke from her couch to say: "You'd better go to bed. Daddy can't get here till tomorrow now."

"I'll stay up awhile yet. My boots aren't entirely dried out."

After a silence she said: "You must not get chilled. Bring your bed into the tent. There is room for you."

"Oh, no, that isn't necessary. I'm standing it very well."

"You'll be sick!" she urged, in a voice of alarm. "Please drag your bed inside the door. What would I do if you should have pneumonia tomorrow? You must not take any risk of a fever."

The thought of a sheltered spot, of something to break the remorseless wind, overcame his scruples, and he drew his bed inside the tent and rearranged it there.

"You're half frozen," she said. "Your teeth are chattering."

"I'll be all right in a few moments," he said. "Please go to sleep. I shall be snug as a bug in a moment."

She watched his shadowy motions from her bed, and when at last he had nestled into his blankets she said, "If you don't lose your chill I'll heat a rock and put it at your feet."

He was ready to cry out in shame of his weakness, but he lay silent till he could command his voice, then he said: "That would drive me from the country in disgrace. Think of what the fellows down below will say when they know of my cold feet!"

"They won't hear of it, and, besides, it is better to carry a hot water bag than to be laid up with a fever."

Her anxiety lessened as his voice resumed its pleasant tenor flow. "Dear girl," he said, "no one could have been sweeter—more like a guardian angel to me. Don't place me under any greater obligation. Go to sleep. I am better—much better now."

She did not speak for a few moments, then in a voice that conveyed to him a knowledge that his words of endearment had deeply moved her she softly said, "Good night."

He heard her sigh drowsily thereafter once or twice, and then she slept, and her slumber redoubled in him his sense of guardianship, of responsibility. Lying there in the shelter of her tent, the whole situation seemed simple, innocent and poetic. But looked at from the standpoint of Clifford Belden it held an accusation.

"It cannot be helped," he said. "The only thing we can do is to conceal the fact that we spent the night beneath this tent alone."

In the belief that the way would clear with the dawn, he, too, fell asleep, while the fire sputtered and smudged in the fitful mountain wind.

The second dawn came slowly, as though crippled by the storm and walled back by the clouds.

With a dull ache in his bones, Wayland crept out to the fire and set to work fanning the coals with his hat, as he had seen the supervisor do. He worked desperately till one of the embers began to angrily sparkle and to smoke. Then, slipping away out of earshot, he broke an armful of dry fir branches to heap above the wet, charred logs. Soon these twigs broke into flame, and Berrie, awakened by the crackle of the pine branches, called out, "Is it daylight?"

"Yes, but it's very dark daylight. Don't leave your warm bed for the dampness and cold out here. Stay where you are. I'll get breakfast."

"How are you this morning? Did you sleep?"

"Fine!"

"I'm afraid you had a bad night," she insisted, in a tone which indicated her knowledge of his suffering.

"Camp life has its disadvantages," he admitted, as he put the coffee pot on the fire. "But I'm feeling better now. I never fried a bird in my life, but I'm going to try it this morning. I have some water heating for your bath." He put the soap, towel and basin of hot water just inside the tent flap. "Here it is. I'm going to bathe in the lake. I must show my hardihood."

When he returned he found the girl full dressed, alert and glowing, but she greeted him with a touch of shyness and self consciousness new to her, and her eyes veiled themselves before his glance.

"Now, where do you suppose the supervisor is?" he asked.

"I hope he's at home," she replied quite seriously. "I'd hate to think of him camped in the high country without bedding or tent."

"Oughtn't I to take a turn up the trail and see? I feel guilty, somehow. I must do something."

"You can't help matters any by hoofing about in the mud. No, we'll just hold the fort till he comes. That's what he'll expect us to do."

He submitted once more to the force of her argument, and they ate breakfast in such intimacy and good cheer that the night's discomforts and anxieties counted for little.

"We have to camp here again tonight," she explained demurely.

"Worse things could happen than that," he gallantly answered. "I wouldn't mind a month of it, only I shouldn't want it to rain or snow all the time."

"Poor boy! You did suffer, didn't you? I was afraid you would. Did you sleep at all?" she asked tenderly.

"Oh, yes, after I came inside; but, of course, I was more or less restless expecting your father to ride up."

Of Interest to Women and the Home

He Walked Right Into the Water.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Baby Boy Who Was Not Afraid.

"YOU know, children, I have told you that I am going to teach you to swim this summer," said daddy, beginning the evening story for Jack and Evelyn. "It is a very useful thing to know, and every boy and girl should be taught how to do it. I am sorry to say there are many, however, who have never learned it because their parents neglect to have them taught.

"You know, it is pretty hard to teach many children swimming because they are so afraid of the water. The average child is timid when taken into it to learn to swim, and it requires a great deal of urging to induce him or her to 'dip down' in the water, which is one of the first things the child is asked to do.

"But I know of a little boy who wasn't timid. Not he! He was the bravest little boy you ever saw about and in the water. You know, some children come naturally by some things. And that was the way with this little boy.

"This little fellow had frowsly, tumbly golden hair, and blue eyes that sparkled with mischief and fat little chubby legs and arms. And he lived in the city of New York. His parents thought a great deal of him, you may be sure, and they were very careful that nothing should happen to him.

"And the summer he was four years old they went to a big beach near New York. And they took the little boy with them, of course. They wouldn't have left him behind.

"So they had bought a cute little bathing suit for the little fellow, and it was all of blue, and there was a jersey and the cutest little trunks you ever saw. And he went with his daddy down to the beach, and it was the first time he had ever been in the water, except the water in his bathtub, of course.

"Well, the little boy walked with his father down to the edge of the water, while his mamma watched from the beach, and both papa and mamma wondered if the little boy would be afraid and hang back, like lots of little boys do.

"And did he hang back? Well, I should say he just didn't! He walked right into that water as if he had always been in the habit of doing it, and, what is more, he crowed with joy and shouted with glee as the waves came rolling up to him. And he would have walked out right to his neck if his daddy had permitted him to do it.

"And he just loved that water, and, if you'd believe it, he learned to swim a few strokes that very season.

"He's fifteen years old now, and I read the other day how he had captured a schoolboys' championship in a big New York contest. And he has won medals, like his daddy did, just because he wasn't afraid of the water."

CONVERTIBLE COLLARS POPULAR.

No. 8899.

One of the delightful features of the season's many styles is the convertible collar that is used so widely both by men and women. For comfort, adaptability and practicability they are unequalled. A very nice frock, embodying this style of shirtwaist, is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8899 shown above. It consists of a blouse opening in center-front, with standing collar which may be worn high or turned down, full-length sleeves with trimming sections or short sleeves with cuffs, and a three-piece circular skirt opening in front. The dress may be made with or without trimming sections, which may form capacious pockets or be cut off to form straps as illustrated. Sizes 16, 17, 18, size 18 requiring 5 yards 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

IMPERIAL GRANUM

THE UNSWEETENED

FOOD for the BABY

for 4 months, his mother states:—

"He is the wonder of the community for firm, solid flesh, strength in every part of the body, regular habits and sweet temper."

Any mother can easily get the same results with Imperial Granum for her baby.

Three DON'TS in Feeding Baby

DON'T use Cows' Milk alone, its tough curds, intended for calves, must be modified. Add Imperial Granum, and you make the milk easily digested, besides greatly increasing the nutrition.

DON'T use a highly sweetened food, apt to make only flabby fat, quick to disappear in illness. Imperial Granum is unsweetened, it makes hard, firm flesh, good bone and muscle.

DON'T use Condensed Milk alone. Add Imperial Granum, it supplies the lacking, but necessary phosphates, and makes baby really thrive.

For Nursing Mothers

Imperial Granum taken thrice daily increases the quantity and quality of the mother's milk, and gives strength to bear the strain of nursing. It makes both Mother and Baby thrive.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Morton." The speaker was a woman of uncertain age; her hatchet face had a look of settled melancholy.

"Won't you come in, Mrs. Stevers?"

Nell held open the door and an icy blast and the chilling caller entered together. The caller carried a large bundle wrapped in brown paper, which she deposited on a chair. Then she took a seat by the stove.

"I understand that you and your husband are to be congratulated." The tone was one of gentle sadness.

Nell did not answer. She was busy trying to connect this speech with some cause of rejoicing known to the woman, when the latter continued:

"I saw a paragraph in the paper telling about the fortune that has lately come to you."

"In the paper?" said Nell weakly.

"Yes, the Fairport News copied a paragraph from the Kansas City Journal. It said that Mr. R. C. Morton of Fairport had come in for a share of a large fortune which his family had inherited from relatives in Sweden."

Nell sank into a chair. How had the thing leaked out when they had taken every precaution to keep it quiet?

"The ladies felt"—Nell suddenly realized that the woman had been talking right along while she had been adjusting herself to circumstances—"that you would be glad to help them from your abundance. The quilts were made by the aged members of the society and we value them at $5 apiece." Here she rose and began to untie the huge package on the chair.

"Now these are made from new calico and will wear a lifetime."

Nell groaned as she looked at the hideous riot of color spread out before her by her caller.

"We have a number of quilts that Mrs. Morton, my husband's mother, gave us," she began.

"No doubt, but you can never have too much bedding and you would be helping a worthy cause. The ladies charge the ridiculously small sum of $5 apiece for them. Seven spools of thread were used in making this one alone." The woman was complacently festooning the dreadful things over the furniture, the better to display them, "The society spent their afternoon meetings this winter quilting these. Look at that work!" She gazed at the display with the near approach to a smile on her mahogany visage.

"I told the ladies that I knew Mrs. Morton was a very amiable young woman. Though you never come to our meetings, of course you are interested in the work we are trying so faithfully to forward."

"I know nothing of the cause you are interested in," began Nell desperately.

"True, but you will become informed, and to be informed is to be interested. When you become possessed of wealth, you surely realize that it is a God-given possession to be used for His glory."

"Really, Mrs. Stevers, you do not understand. The fortune, as you call it, is nothing but an airy name at present. We had not intended that anyone should know anything about it until we, ourselves, knew just what to expect, so it is out of the question to think of buying anything at present."

"Oh, I did not suppose you would pay for them now; when you get your inheritance will be time enough," said the caller blandly. "The secretary will make a note of the sale."

"Indeed, Mrs. Stevers, she can do no such thing. Debt of any kind is abhorrent to both of us, and——"

"There, my dear, don't you worry; just use those quilts right along, and when you get your money you can pay for them. There's no hurry at all." Mrs. Stevers rose as if to depart.

"Really, Mrs. Stevers, I do not want the quilts. I will not take them," blurted out Nell.

A look of pained surprise settled on the narrow face.

"Do you mean that from your abundance you will refuse to extend the helping hand?"

"I have no abundance, and I do not want the quilts."

The woman was moving solemnly toward the door. "Surely you do not understand," said Nell, her anger rising. "Take these quilts away."

"I am going on another errand. I must leave them today. When you think the matter over, I am sure you will see your duty," and she let herself out as Nell stood rooted to the

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To Clean White Shoes—Make thin paste of lump starch and lukewarm water. Apply generously to soiled white shoes and let dry; brush off starch and soil will come with it.

"Change" Handkerchief — One often wonders what one can do with the money for church collection or car fare. This dainty handkerchief solves the problem: A large Irish crochet rose is overhanded two-thirds around one corner of the handkerchief, and a tiny crochet button and loops made to fasten this miniature pocket for change. The edge of the handkerchief is finished with Irish picot or any edge desired.

THE TABLE

Chicken Pie—Clean and cut up a chicken, boil until tender, cool and remove bones. Line buttered baking dish with rich biscuit dough and put in half of the chicken; season with butter, pepper and salt. Add a layer of hard-boiled eggs cut in slices and the rest of the chicken. A few potato balls, boiled until nearly done, may be added. Add enough of the water in which chicken was boiled to fill the dish, cover with a biscuit crust which has a large hole in the center for the steam to escape, brush with beaten white of an egg and bake half an hour or more.

Celery Salad—Take three bunches celery, chop fine in chopping bowl, sprinkle over it salt and a little pepper, then beat up one egg in sauce pan, add half teacup vinegar, two tablespoons sugar and four tablespoons salad dressing; stir it all together; when it comes to a boil put in the celery and let it all boil for about five minutes, stirring constantly; then put it into a dish and have an egg boiled hard, which cut in slices and lay over the top; garnish round the edge with tops of the celery. It is best when cold.

"Adjustable" Cake—One cup sugar, two-thirds cup butter, three eggs, yolks and one-half cups flour, half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup milk, one-fourth cup cocoa, one cup nut meats. By leaving out the nuts it is a plain chocolate cake. Or, the cocoa can be omitted and a nut cake is the result. By omitting both cocoa and nuts, and flavoring both cake and frosting with lemon, it is a delicious lemon cake. Or, baked in a large pan, it makes a nice white loaf cake.

Frozen Oranges—Frozen oranges for dessert at any season of the year are delicious. Remove peel and slice oranges; to each pound of oranges add three-fourths pound sugar and half pint water; freeze.

Lemon and Pineapple Ice—Eight cups water, four cups white sugar; boil twenty minutes. Two tablespoons plain gelatin; dissolve in a little water and add to sugar; when cold add one cup lemon juice and one can grated pineapple or any kind of fruit. This makes one gallon.

TO REMOVE GREASE ON RUGS OR CLOTHING.

This recipe for cleaning rugs will be found inexpensive and easy to prepare, and can be depended upon to remove all dirt and grease spots.

One bar naphtha soap (or enough to make lather), one-half teaspoon table salt, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon powdered alum. At the drug store get in a bottle: eight ounces ammonia, one-half ounce ether, one-half ounce chloroform.

Keep this last tightly corked and when ready to use add three tablespoons from bottle to two gallons of the hot soap water.

Shake thoroughly and USE THE FOAM. Apply with a stiff brush, wiping with clean cloth.

Rugs should be cleaned on floor and simply left to dry.

This recipe is sufficient for cleaning two 9 x 12 rugs. If any remains, let stand over night, then add to the clean jelly two quarts hot water, and use for woodwork, floors, etc.

Try this for grease spots on clothing, suits, portieres, etc. It works

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The Votes for Women column offers today some light (giving) literature for summer reading. It is culled chiefly from Alice Duer Miller, whose book "Are Women People?" is one of the most delightful of all the new books on woman suffrage.

Why We Oppose Women Traveling in Railway Trains.

1. Because traveling in trains is not a natural right.

2. Because our great-grandfathers never asked to travel in trains.

3. Because woman's place is in the home, not the train.

4. Because it is unnecessary; there is no point reached by a train that cannot be reached on foot.

5. Because it will double the work of conductors, engineers and brakemen, who are already overburdened.

6. Because men smoke and play cards in trains. Is there any reason to believe that woman will behave better?

Here is another:

"Father, what is a Legislature?"

"A representative body elected by the people of the State."

"Are women people?"

"No, my son, criminals, lunatics and women are not people."

"Do legislators legislate for nothing?"

"Oh, no; they are paid a salary."

"By whom?"

"By the people."

"Are women people?"

"Of course, my son, just as much as men are."

—ALICE DUER MILLER.

The following lines express the old dilemma as to how a man is to "represent" his women folk when they do not all think alike:

Representation.

I'm in a hard position for a perfect gentleman;
I want to please the ladies, but I don't see how I can.
My present wife's a Suffragist, and counts on my support,
But my mother is an anti, of a rather biting sort;
One grandmother is on the fence, the other much opposed,
And my sister lives in Oregon, and thinks the question closed.
Each one is counting on my vote to represent her view.
Now what should you think proper for a gentleman to do?

—ALICE DUER MILLER.

Misrepresentation.

By the Antis.

(Not a poem this but a bit of sad prose.)

On July 8, 1915, the headquarters of the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association had in the middle of its show window a large placard declaring in big letters that Kansas is the only suffrage State which has prohibition. There are six: Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Idaho, Arizona and Kansas.

Prominently displayed in the show window also was a printed statement that "throughout Massachusetts the woman school voter is a vanishing quantity." The woman's school vote in Massachusetts during the last few years has been much larger than ever before. When women were first given the school vote, in 1879, less than 5,000 voted. During the twenty years from 1890 to 1910, their vote averaged 15,600. In 1911 it rose to 22,755. In 1912 it was 48,127; in 1913, 44,503, and in 1914, 444,957.

This anti-suffrage mis-statement about the women's school vote has been contradicted in practically every newspaper in Boston, yet the Antis still make it unblushingly in their show window.

Under the title, "Mrs. Ella Flagg Young's Opinion," the window on July 8 also contained the false report of Mrs. Young's comment on the women's vote at the primaries, which Mrs. Young denied in the Chicago Tribune of March 1, 1915.

ALLIES ORDER 400,000,000 CIGARETTES IN NEW JERSEY

Jersey City, July 21—The P. Lorillard Company, with offices and a factory in West Newark avenue, has received a war order from the Allies for 400,000,000 cigarettes. Attempts to obtain details concerning the order were unavailing, but it is understood that most of the cigarettes will be shipped to the French government for distribution at the front.

Every one of the fifty- cigarette-making machines of the Lorillard factory will be taxed to its fullest capacity until September 1 in filling the order. Several hundred extra hands have been engaged to rush the work.

BELIEVE BERLIN HAS NEW NOTE

Document Forwarded From Washington Last Night by State Department.

CZAR'S LINES HOLDING

Men Have Turned and Are Fiercely Attacking Teutonic Hosts—Germans Now Only Thirteen Miles From Warsaw.

Washington, July 22—The German note was sent forward from Washington to Berlin at 9 o'clock last night, State Department officials announced today.

It is believed practically all of the note has reached Berlin by 10 o'clock this morning.

The note declares in emphatic terms that this Government will view with grave concern further loss of American lives by the unwarned torpedoing of a merchant vessel, asserting that such an action cannot be regarded otherwise than as threatening hitherto peaceful relations between Germany and the United States.

Reports today were conflicting whether in this connection the words "unfriendly act" actually were incorporated in the note. They were in the original draft. Later it was reported that the words "evidence of unfriendliness" had been substituted, with the additional statement that a new submarine disaster involving American lives might disturb friendly relations. Following the conference last night between the President and Secretary Lansing, it was understood the "unfriendly act" clause had been reincorporated with some modifications.

An important subject not touched on in the note, it was learned today, is a demand for financial reparation for American lives lost on the Lusitania. The question of collection of monetary damages from Germany for the families of the American victims is left open. There is no question but the such demands will be made later. The Administration, however, did not desire to inject money matters, at this time, into the more important question in dispute.

London, July 22.—While all Russia is engaged in a twenty-four-hour service of intercession for victory the Czar's armies have turned and fiercely attacked the Teuton hosts north, west and south of Warsaw.

The results of the struggle are variously reported, though all statements say the slaughter is without parallel. Petrograd maintains that both von Hendenburg and von Mackensen have been checked or forced to slow down under the slashing Russian defense. Berlin reports heavy fighting but consistent success for the Germans. According to Vienna, the Russian lines are pierced in several places along the railways leading from Cholm by way of Lubin to Ivangorod.

The guns of the fortress of Novo Georgievsk are being effectively used against von Hindenburg. It is believed that a prolonged and effective defence will be made on the right bank of the Narew, unless the German commander has unsuspected reserves of men and shells. Petrograd is hopeful, although prepared for the worst. According to the official report, the Russians still hold the town of Ostrolenka.

Fighting continues in the Riga and Shavli districts. On the right bank of the Narew the Russians forced the retirement of the invaders in several places. On the left bank of the Vistula German assaults in the direction of Vyntlin and Grievachoff were repulsed.

In the direction of Lubin the German advance was halted on the front of Chodel-Piasey. On the banks of the Wieprz near Soukhodly, and in the direction of Relovetz, the Germans were repulsed in some places with heavy losses. On the Bug sector of Littovij-Sokal-Potourjitza the invaders were greatly harassed in crossing the river. The Russians in this fighting took 1,000 prisoners.

A despatch from Petrograd says that the minister of finance will present a bill to the Duma empowering the State Bank to issue a further billion rubbles ($500,000,000) in notes. The Council of the Empire and the Duma will convene on August 1. The two legislative bodies were prorogued early in the year until November.

Berlin (via Amsterdam), July 22—The Germans have arrived within thirteen miles of Warsaw by crossing the river east of Blonie at the railway bridge west of the capital. North of Warsaw the Russian resistance has become more stubborn along the Narew, where the Germans have encountered strong defensive positions. Southeast of Lubin a great battle is raging along the Wieprz River when the last despatches were sent to the war office. The fighting here

EXPECTANT BRIDEGROOM SAILS ON ORDUNA

Mr. and Mrs. Donato Di Lonardo, of 1185 South Second street, announce the engagement of Miss Mamie Paoli to Walter Howe, of 313 Clinton avenue.

Mr. Howe sailed this morning on the Cunard liner Orduna for England to visit his parents. He expects to be gone six months, and the wedding will occur upon his return.

RETURN AFTER INTERESTING TRANSCONTINENTAL OUTING

Mrs. Frederick Sandford, of this city, and Mrs. William Sandford, formerly of this city, have returned from an extensive transcontinental tour during which they visited the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The trip, which was started on April 4, included a southern tour to California, stops being made at various points of interest en route.

With a view to completing the loop and taking in as much of the surrounding country as possible the tourists came home via the northern route passing through three days of snow. On their return they stopped over at Canadian towns and toured through the glacier district.

PLANS BEING COMPLETED FOR COLUMBIAN'S OUTING

Members of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, are completing their guest list for an automobile excursion to be conducted Sunday from this city to Morristown and return. A number of touring cars have been chartered for the occasion and it is expected that about thirty members of the Third Degree will go as guests.

A stopover will be made at one of the Morristown hotels, where dinner will be served and the return trip will be made via a different route to the clubhouse in this city. A general invitation has been extended to club members and it is desired that as large a representation as possible take advantage of the offer.

SECOND NIGHTERS WILL OPEN KEANSBURG CAMP

Members of the Second Night Club have completed negotiations for the rental of a bungalow at Keansburg for the remainder of the summer and expect to take possession next Saturday. It is proposed to have a certain number of members in charge during the remainder of the season and week-end trips will be a feature from this city. A meeting of the organization to perfect plans will be held in the Columbus Club tomorrow night.

Those in charge of the arrangements are Joseph Sullivan, chairman; Joseph Murray, John Kyle, Joseph Green, M. T. Moynihan, James Kyle, John Duffy and Daniel McAfee.

REV. DUNN'S WILL FILED.

The will of the Rev. Charles E. Dunn, formerly of this city, who died at Spring Lake July 12, has been filed in Philadelphia. The will bequeaths to the testator's widow, Emma M. Dunn, the sum of $9,800 absolutely.

HE'S STILL A CHILD; BUT LIKES THE GIRLS

Alexander Ross Declared "Incompetent" Because of His Kissing Mania.

With an estate of $316,000 in his own name, Alexander M. Ross, son of Mrs. Florence Potter Sheppard, of this city, was yesterday declared "incompetent" by a sheriff's jury in New York city. Ross is twenty years old, but has the mind of a boy of twelve and has been in the Bloomingdale Asylum for the past three years. He inherited more than $300,000 and his estate yields him an income of $20,000. Physicians and nurses from the asylum testified that the boy could not qualify in a class with boys of twelve years.

According to the mother one of the boy's chief failings lies in the fact that he wants to kiss every pretty girl he meets. One juror thought that this fault alone did not constitute an element of incompetency, but Mrs. Sheppard explained that boys normally constituted although they might wish to kiss pretty girls, had sufficient self-restraint not to do so until they were engaged. Alexander, she said, seems to have no self-restraint and on one occasion, when about seventeen years old, he eloped with a servant girl. His marriage has since been annulled.

NO REMORSE SHOWN BY NEGRO ASSAILANT

George Langford Held for the Grand Jury After Street Fracas.

Facing a charge of atrocious assault, with the possibility of later having to plead to a manslaughter indictment, George Langford, a South Second street negro, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning, and after entering a guilty plea he was held in $300 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The crime of which Langford stands accused was committed on West Third street, yesterday afternoon, and culminated in the removal of Robert Gray, of 212 Muhlenberg place, to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he now lies in a semi-conscious condition. Blows inflicted by Langford caused critical injuries to Gray's head and the kicking he later received at the hands of his assailant added three broken ribs and internal injuries of a serious nature. His recovery is a matter of grave doubt and it is probable that Langford will be held here for at least twenty-four hours pending the outcome of Gray's hurts.

The fracas which resulted in one man being taken post-haste to the local hospital occurred shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Reports received at police headquarters of a fight in the West End caused the assignment of Motorcycle Patrolman Martin Flatley to that district. Investigation revealed the fact that Gray had been hurt and that his assailant had fled. People in the vicinity informed Flatley that Langford was the culprit and he communicated with police headquarters for aid in running down the fugitive. Lieut. Higgins and Patrolman Martin Welsh joined in the hunt and about 5 o'clock Welsh took Langford into custody on West Third street. The man made no effort to conceal his identity and did not resist arrest.

Confronted with the facts of the assault at police headquarters, the prisoner admitted to Chief Kiely that he had committed the deed, expressing no remorse over his act. When told by Chief Kiely that Gray was likely to die the negro remarked: "Is dat so."

"Why did you attack this man?" asked the Chief.

"Jist to show him dat he couldn't fight."

According to his own story Langford, who is a sulky, defiant individual, met Gray in the West End and the two engaged in an argument relative to the war. Langford says that Gray passed some remark about his fighting ability and just to show the other man that he couldn't fight, Langford says he "bounced a soda bottle on his head." This rendered Gray unconscious and Langford then proceeded to pommell him, kicking him about the body and head. He then ran away and wandered aimlessly about until caught by Welsh.

When arraigned before the city judge he had a sneer on his face and apparently took no interest in the disposition of his case. He muttered that he was guilty and smilingly left the court room for a cell.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 65 degrees; 11 a. m., 69 degrees; 1 p. m., 76 degrees.

RECTOR'S WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

Rev. A. P. Tulp, Well Known Here, Made Defendant in Action.

GIVES UP HIS PULPIT

Letter to Girl Named as Co-respondent Found by Mother—Minister Makes a General Denial of all the Charges.

Closely following his resignation as rector of Christ Episcopal church, Hackensack, yesterday, Rev. Aika Peter Tulp, well-known in this city and at one time pastor of Marconnier Reformed church at Oak Tree, came the announcement that he had been sued for divorce, his wife naming a young woman of social prominence as co-respondent.

The divorce action was due to the finding of a letter in the room of the co-respondent by her mother, who after reading the missive hurried to the rectory and gave it to Mrs. Tulp in the presence of the latter's husband. Mrs. Tulp almost collapsed from shock, while it is said her husband's attitude was quite indifferent. In the letter regference was made to a trip to South Norwalk Conn., early in June. This trip is said to be made the basis for the action.

The young woman in the case is exceedingly pretty and also has many graces of mind. Her friends insist there could have been nothing more than a casual flirtation. Her mother, when she realized that Mrs. Tulp was beginning an action for divorce, ex-

PROGRESSIVE PARTY LEADERS TO MEET

Conference to Be Held at Metropolitan Hotel, Asbury Park, July 31.

Trenton, July 22.—Gifford Pinchot, Bainbridge Colby, Theodore Roosevelt and C. F. Connolly, the publicist, are among those who have been invited to attend the meeting of the Progressive party leaders of New Jersey, which takes place on Saturday, July 31, next, at the Metropolitan Hotel, Asbury Park.

While originally announced as a meeting of the Bull Moose State Committee, Clarke Millen, of East Orange, chairman of that body, announces that it will be more in the nature of a conference of all the prominent chiefs of the party in the State.

Those who are expected to be present in addition to the committeemen are the Progressive county chairmen and the candidates for Congress, State Senator and Assembly in 1914, as well as others active and interested in the welfare of the third party organization. Among those listed to be present are George W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee of the Progressive National Committee, and Walter A. Johnson, New York State chairman.

According to Mr. Millen, the purpose of the get-together is to discuss plans for the fall campaign and preparation for the battle of 1916. The meeting will be called at 2:30 p. m., and following its conclusion a dinner will be held. Invitations to prominent Progressives throughout the State, to the number of 250, have been issued for this conference, which is expected to have a very important bearing upon the future life of the party in New Jersey.

WELL KNOWN ORGANIST TO PLAY AT PROCTOR'S

The closing of the Proctor Broad Street Theatre, Elizabeth, during the making of extensive alterations has enabled Manager Harry Sanderson, of the local Proctor Theatre, to secure Amelia Denison, the phenomenal organist of that theatre for a period of six weeks. She will relieve the present pianist of the local house next Monday, while the latter enjoys a vacation, during the engagement of Mrs. Denison.

Mrs. Denison is a graduate of the Paris Conservatory of Music as well as the New York Conservatory. Her skill on the piano and organ is noteworthy and must be heard to be appreciated, while her interpretation of motion picture music is without an equal. The engagement of Mrs. Denison will add greatly to the entertainment at the Proctor house.

Don't forget that classified advertisements must be in by noon on Saturdays.

M. E. STAUFFER WEDS MISS E. H. BUCHHOLZ

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee Officiates at An Attractive Home Ceremony.

Miss Emily Hermina Buchholz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buchholz, of Grant avenue, and Mark Emanuel Stauffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stauffer, also of Plainfield, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of this city, performing the ceremony.

The home was decorated with flowers and potted plants, the arrangement in the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, being especially pleasing. Miss Ruth Johansen was the bridesmaid and William Buchholz, brother of the bride, was the best man.

A reception followed the wedding, during which congratulations were offered to the bride and bridegroom and refreshments were served. Later the couple left on a trip. They will reside in Plainfield upon their return, the bridegroom being employed in one of the local shops.

Among the guests were Mrs. William Hayes, Mrs. Frederick Karl, Mrs. Louis Buchholz and Mrs. John Donaldson, all immediate relatives of the couple. The bride received a number of gifts.

BRIDGEPORT STRIKE SETTLED THIS MORNING

Men Get Eight Hour Day and Readjustment of Wages.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 22—The strike of machinists and tool makers in the plants of the Remington Arms Company and the Union Metallic Cartridge Company, ended today. The men are granted an eight-hour day with a readjustment of wages.

Springfield, Mass., July 22—Not only in Springfield, but in Boston, Worcester, Hartford, Chicopee, New Haven, Providence and in every other place in New England where war munitions are being made, machinists' organizers are at work in the mills and factories getting the machinists ready to make hay while the sun shines on the war munitions industry.

The members of the local organization committee of the machinists' union, sitting in conference last night with Frank B. Jennings, one of the seven vice-presidents of the International Association of Machinists, and Daniel R. Donovan, chairman of the Springfield Labor Forward Committee, determined last night to make Springfield the second battleground, after Bridgeport, in the machinists' nation-wide fight for higher pay and shorter hours.

A whirlwind campaign to obtain, if possible, a ninety per cent. organization of the 6,000 or more machinists in Springfield and Chicopee, followed by the presentation of demands for an eight-hour day and a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour to the big Stevens Arms and Stevens-Duryea plants (now taken over by the Westinghouse interests), and to other plants engaged in the manufacture of war munitions, are embraced in the machinists' plan of action.

It has been arranged to have organizers start work at Wilmington, Del., also.

PREPARING TO ERECT NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

In preparation for starting work on the new chapel of the Netherwood Reformed church, Mobus Brothers today began making preparations to remove the portable building, which has been used by the denomination as a house of worship for several years, to a position at the front end of the church lot. This will leave the rear of the lot for the new edifice, which will be used for all church services when it is completed, but will be the Sunday-school building when a main auditorium is built. The board of domestic missions of the church will eventually be given the present building to dispose of as the members see fit.

RESCUE MISSION MEETING.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, will have charge of the meeting at the Rescue Mission tonight. The members will attend in a body and will provide some special music.

EXPECT TROOPS TO BE CALLED IN BAYONNE STRIKE; MEDIATORS NAMED BY U. S. LABOR DEP'T

RIOTING THIS MORNING RESULTED IN THREE STRIKERS AND TWO GUARDS BEING SHOT—FIELDER NEARBY.

RIOTERS ATTACK GUARDS--FIFTH FIRE STARTED

Hospital Authorities Refuse to Send Ambulance as Drivers and Doctors Fear Lives Would Be Placed in Danger by Going for Wounded—Sheriff Admits Situation is Beyond His Control.

Washington, July 22.—Upon request for mediation in the Bayonne strike the Department of Labor today appointed John A. Moffitt, of New Jersey, and James A. Smith, of Pennsylvania, to act as conciliators. They were detailed by Acting-Secretary Densmore. The request for conciliators was received this morning from Sheriff Kinkead, of Hudson county, in response to a request from residents of Bayonne.

Bayonne, July 22.—With Governor Fielder personally following all developments at his home a few miles away, in Jersey City, Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., on the ground here, and the expectation that an order calling out troops to quell the rioters at the Standard Oil plant will be issued at any time, Bayonne is in a state of turmoil this afternoon. Citizens of Bayonne, in an effort to bring about an adjustment of the strike, have appealed to the United States Department of Labor to name mediators, and two have been chosen. There was one serious riot early today, resulting in the shooting of five persons, three strikers and two guards, two of whom were said to be sympathizers with the strikers, but not actually participating in the attack on the plant. Fire was discovered in the operating room, making the fifth blaze in twenty-four hours.

A desperate battle between 500 strikers of the Tide Water Oil Company in Bayonne and 300 company guards raged for nearly an hour this morning. The strikers fought with stones and pistols, using the 30-foot concrete and earth embankment surrounding the plant as a breastwork, while the plant guards fired volley after volley from places of concealment behind the oil tanks.

A few minutes after the strikers were discovered the guards opened with a volley and in the first ten minutes of firing 200 rounds must have been fired.

Two men shot, who were said by some to be sympathizers of the strikers, but not actually participating in the hostilities, were hit during the first few minutes of the fray. The injured were Tony Baednock, 27 years old; John Sorgenski, 45 years old, and Steven Svhwal, 18. The last named was shot through both cheeks.

Baednock was shot through the abdomen and Sorgenski below the heart. All the injured were carried to a drug store, from where a call was despatched to the Bayonne City Hospital. The hospital authorities declared they could send no aid to the firing line, as the chauffeurs and doctors refused to risk their lives in the section of the city.

The wounded men, therefore, were without surgical aid for a long period.

A regiment of New Jersey State troops was expected to arrive at Bayonne this afternoon to assist the local police. Sheriff Kinkead, of Hudson county, has admitted that the situation is beyond his control and appealed for troops to Gov. Fielder and Adjt.-Gen. Sadler.

The desperate intentions of the strikers were revealed when the pipe line house was fired and a quarter-mile area of parafine and petroleum storage tanks were threatened. The blaze was bigger and more dangerous than any that had threatened Standard Oil property during the last day and night of terrorism.

FOURTEEN PERSONS KILLED.

Lisbon, July 22.—An armed mob early today attacked the municipal offices at Lamego, a Portugese city of about 10,000 lying forty-six miles east of Oporto. Soldiers fired into the crowd, killing fourteen persons and wounding fifteen. Only meagre despatches have reached Lisbon and these did not state the cause of the riots.

JUNIORS TO PERFORM.

The Plainfield Juniors will entertain the Y. M. C. baseball team, of Garwood, at Parker Field, Saturday.

Mrs. Charles Williams, of West Third street, is entertaining friends from South Carolina. They will remain in the city all summer.

DRIVER OF SMOKING AUTO ARRESTED IN THE BOROUGH

Eugene M. Gary, twenty-two years old, of 312 Stebbins place, was arraigned before Mayor Robert Clark, in the North Plainfield police court, this morning, charged with breaking a provision of the automobile law in driving an automobile through Somerset street, in the borough, with a smoking motor. Mayor Clark, acting for Recorder Hand, who was away, suspended sentence with a warning not to repeat the offense.

Gary, an employe of the Saurer Company, said that he was testing out a motor yesterday and promised to be more careful about creating a smoke nuisance in the future. Chief Marshal Weiss made the complaint and in court this morning, stated that Gary's car was not smoking at all until it crossed the bridge into the borough, but as he went north on Somerset street, the car emitted such a volume of smoke that it was impossible to see across the street. Chief Weiss has notified the head driver of the concern that when the men are testing out motors in the borough they must prevent the engines smoking excessively.

JACOB FERN PASSES AWAY AT DUNELLEN

Jacob Fern, aged 59 years, died at 9:30 o'clock this morning at his home on Whittier avenue, Dunellen, following an illness of several months. He had been a resident of Dunellen for ten years and had been employed as a shipping clerk in New York city. Mr. Fern was a Democrat and for several years served as a judge of election in the Second district of Dunellen.

There survives a wife, a daughter and one son, Robert Fern. The funeral will be held at the late home at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning and at 9 o'clock at St. John's church, Dunellen. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

DRAMATIC CLUB READY TO TAKE IN NEW MEMBERS

There is a splendid opportunity for anyone interested in dramatics to join a club which is planning to give several plays this coming winter. "Brown of Harvard" is under consideration and as thirty people can be used in the cast there will be a place for nearly everyone. This is one of the best college plays that has ever been given. The scenes are typical of college life and the situations which surround the famous "Yale-Harvard" boat race are intensely dramatic to say the least.

The college boys, the members of the Harvard crew, and last but not least, the beautiful girls all lend zest to the scenes. The tea party in Tom Brown's room, the scene on the campus, and the boathouse setting are all true to life and full of real college spirit. The best kind of a good time is promised all who wish to take part. Rehearsals will be held every Friday night at the Washington School. New members will be received tomorrow evening.

CLUB HELD PICNIC.

Twenty members of the Wednesday Afternoon Sewing Club enjoyed a picnic at the home of Mrs. A. E. Force on West Front street, yesterday afternoon, the spacious lawn being given over to the festivities. An interesting program particularly appropriate to such an event was indulged in and during the afternoon refreshments were served by the hostess.

Dr. Charles L. Moore, of West Front street, is in Asbury Park, where he is attending the Dentists' Convention.

MISS KUNTZ GIVES A LAWN PARTY ON BIRTHDAY

Miss Eva Kuntz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kuntz, of Washington avenue, gave a lawn party in honor of her seventeenth birthday anniversary, Wednesday evening. The lawn was lighted by strings of Japanese lanterns. The interior of the home, where the guests retired later in the evening, was artistically decorated with beautiful bouquets and crepe paper of canary and white shade, and Miss Kuntz was a pretty picture in a gown conforming with these shades. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing. Music was furnished by a victrola in charge of A. N. Randolph, who is always willing to assist anybody in having a good time. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and candy, were served between 11 and 12 o'clock. Miss Kuntz wishes to publicly thank her neighbors who so kindly furnished the beautiful bonquets for the decoration of her home.

The following guests were present. Lila Stites, Viola Bowlby, Winnifred Schenck, Ruth Apgar, Adelaide Ramsey, Ruth Eder, Hazel Watson, Luella Stryker, Anna Eichler, Maude Whitford, Blanche Pierson, Lydia Haight, Sarah Kuntz, George Smith, Clark Ramsey, Kenneth Dealaman, Adelbert Whitford, Harold Neely, Harold Seals, Charles Todd, Fred Noble, and Frank and William Cooper from Mount Pleasant.

Ruliff J. Fisher, salesman for Spaulding Son & Company, of Buffalo, has been visiting at his home on Washington avenue, since Sunday.

Dr. T. H. Platt leaves for Vineland the latter part of the month, where he will remain for the greater part of August, attending to the harvesting of his peach crop.

Herbert E. Nelson, the local taximan, visited his mother at Roselle, yesterday afternoon. Jules Margenthe took care of his taxi business.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Partian, of North avenue, are entertaining Mrs. Partian's brother, Lewis Custer, of Philadelphia.

T. J. Ronayne, of Front street, is laid up again with rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gardner, of Washington avenue, are entertaining Mrs. Henrietta Trimmer, of South Natick, Mass.

LOCAL PEOPLE SAIL TODAY ON THE ORDUNA

George Wood, who has boarded for the past three years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiedenhaupt on Madison avenue, was on the steamship Orduna, of the Cunard line, as she sailed at 10 o'clock this morning bound for Liverpool.

Mr. Wood is a native of England and while he is returning there to accept a position as machinist in the ship-yards of the Vickers, Maxim Company at Barrow-In-Furness, a place located about twelve miles from Liverpool, he is returning more for the experience and adventure of the trip across the mighty deep with all of its present perils and uncertainties than anything else.

Mr. Wood said that he has no intention of remaining permanently in his mother country and that Dunellen will see him again providing the boat is not torpedoed. Mr. Wood is one of a number of men whom are being sent over to England by the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and International Association of Machinists.

The Orduna is the boat which a German submarine tried to torpedo last week by the ruse of hiding behind a boat on both sides of which were painted American flags. She is an eight-day boat and will not enter the war zone until Wednesday night. The Adriatic was met on her last trip across by an English battle cruiser as she entered this zone and safely conveyed to Liverpool and it is expected that the Orduna will receive a similar convey. It will take the Orduna two days to pass through the war zone and Mr. Wood is looking forward with much anticipation to the thrills which he will experience during these two days. Mr. Wood will have as his companion Walter Howe, of Clinton avenue, Plainfield.

Mrs. George H. Richter, of Prospect avenue, was one of those who enjoyed the picnic of the Saengerbund Ladies' Society, of Plainfield, to Asbury Park, yesterday.

Emmett Dice, of North avenue, has accepted a position at the Levgar Structural plant.

Anna Eichler, of Treichlers, Pa., is spending a week in the borough visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kuntz, on Washington avenue.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENT IN DUNELLEN PROPERTY

The property at the corner of Washington avenue and Walnut street, which is being improved by Contractor A. H. Burdick, the owner, is being rapidly shaped into one of the best appearing properties in town by the contractor, with the assistance of John Fedderman.

The house which Mr. Burdick is erecting at this corner is rapidly nearing completion and under the direction of John Fedderman the ground facing the side and front of this house, between the property and the curb lines, has been nicely graded. Yesterday, Contractor J. S. Hawkyard, working under Mr. Fedderman, completed the laying of 200 feet of concrete walk and the construction of two catch basins for the recently completed storm sewer.

This storm sewer was built under the direction of Mr. Fedderman and extends along Walnut street, from New Market road almost to Fourth street. From Walnut street to Fourth street laterals have been built at different points so as to drain immediate lots.

Mrs. Henry Wiedenhaupt and daughter, Miss Anna, of Madison avenue, left for Brooklyn today, where they will remain until Sunday evening as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schwartzer. They will be accompanied home by Mr. Wiedenhaupt, who will go to Brooklyn, Sunday morning.

Gifford Kuhns has taken a position under Street Commissioner Isaac V. Smalley.

Miss Louise Wiendenhaupt, of Madison avenue, returned last evening from Roselle, where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kratzel for several days.

Miss Margaret Gardner, who makes her home with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gardner, of Washington avenue, has gone to Spruce Run, to visit her uncle, John Fritts, for three weeks.

Albert Russell, of Front street, has resigned his position with the Hall Press works and returned to work at the Levgar Structural plant.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hull have returned to their home on Westfield avenue after spending the past month at Forty Forts, Pa., where they were the guests of Mrs. James Price.

About fifty men of the borough and township, including all of the officials of the two places, have been named as members of the reception committee for the "community picnic" on August 11. It is not supposed that all will be able to serve and it was intended to be sure and have enough on hand to welcome the four or five hundred that those in charge of the affair expect to be present and are making arrangements for.

Entries are coming in for the athletic meet at the "community picnic" that already insures keen competition for the various prizes that are to be awarded to the winners in the several events.

A representative of the Public Service Corporation was in town a large part of yesterday going over Westfield road with a view of ascertaining the approximate cost of extending electric light wires along that thoroughfare. The residents of that street are in favor of the improvement as they now have to depend upon lamps for light. With the exception of lower Terrill road, it is the last part of the township or borough to be without the luxury. When the line is extended it will add to the altercation between the borough and township authorities concerning the road. At present the two places are divided as to which town should stand the expense of the upkeep of the road, it being the boundary line between the two places, and when residents on that street get house lights they will naturally want street lights and it will be then that the dispute will receive more material.

Mrs. C. I. Hall and Miss Claire Hall, of South avenue, are stopping in Philadelphia.

The Plainfield Boy Scouts and the newly organized troop in the Willow Grove section of the township are very enthusiastic over the granting to them by William Coriell the use of his timber land composing his farm on Terrill road and are working hard to raise the funds with which to build a summer camp. An architect has drawn plans for the structure gratis, which will serve as a meeting place for the boys. The estimated cost is $140 of which $40 is already raised. The grounds are large enough to give the boys experience in woodcraft, camping and other Boy Scout essentials.

Where Quality Counts

The reputation of a druggist depends largely upon the quality and the class of drugs and other merchandise he is known to sell.

Quality is the first thought here. The perfect quality of all our many lines of drug store goods has created a reputation of value to us.

Medicines, drugs, chemicals, toilet articles, rubber goods, sick-room supplies and nursery helps—all are of the best; all are carefully selected for class and grade. And this perfect quality costs the buyer no more than the unreliable kind.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"The Quarry," one of the big subjects released on the V. L. S. E. program, which, with the Paramount Company, comprises the big time of the motion picture world, will be shown for the first time in Plainfield at the U. S. Astor Theatre tonight. It is a film of gripping interest throughout. Photographically, it is a triumph in every respect and should be viewed by every lover of the artistic, the dramatic and the natural in photo dramas.

Tomorrow, "John Barrymore," who is exceedingly popular among Plainfield theatregoers, will appear on the Astor screen in the rollicking comedy, "Are You a Mason?" in which he scored a hit at the Strand Theatre, New York, recently. Mr. Barrymore is one of the best known actors on the stage today. His work in "Kick In," the underworld drama of last year, and many other productions stamps him as an actor of exceptional ability. Not the least of Mr. Barrymore's accomplishments is his ability to play in farces. In fact, his admirers say his farce work is becoming even superior to his dramatic work. Why not see him in this excellent farce at the Astor and determine for yourself?

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Fresh from the necromancy of the print-shop comes that very successful and very charming drama, "The Spendthrift," to open an engagement at the Proctor Theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Porter Emerson Browne's celebrated drama has been capably filmed by an unusually pretentious cast of George Kleine players, starring dainty Irene Fenwick in the role of the shiftless Frances Ward. Cyril Keightley, who is appearing nightly in "The Song of Songs" with Miss Fenwick, will be seen as Richard Ward, the young broker who elopes with Frances to his ultimate financial embarrassment and who, incidentally is making his premier appearance as a photo-player in this picture. The cast includes another well-known Broadway thespian in the person of Malcolm Duncan, long familiar as a leading man for Harrison Grey Fiske.

"The Spendthrift" was completed at the Kleine Studios, New York, after a considerable period of work. It is said to represent a lavish amount of money in beautiful interior settings and expensive "retakes" ordered by Mr. Kleine in his effort to reach as near the goal of artistic perfection as possible.

"The Spendthrift" is the story of a young woman whose Puritanical and wealthy aunt raises her in the good old-fashioned way, implanting in the girl's mind an unnatural love of pleasure and the joys that money will buy to the great discomfiture and financial embarrassment of her husband later on.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN COLORADO.

The Newark News sent a staff correspondent to Colorado "to obtain, first-hand and without bias, a survey of conditions in the State which was among the pioneers in extending the right of suffrage to women." His conclusion is that in the popular mind "equal suffrage is all right; it is just and fair, and owing to women," but that in their twenty-one years of voting they haven't done anything that men couldn't or wouldn't have done.

There was general agreement among the men seen in a wide canvass made by the correspondent, that "if woman suffrage were put to a vote tomorrow, the State by an overwhelmbing majority would vote to keep it. And simply because the people of Colorado believe woman suffrage is by way of giving women an honest shake." Coloradans believe the women should be allowed to vote because it is their right to take part in the government under which they live.

Women as voting citizens are just about as good and just about as bad as men, is the general opinion, though there is little doubt that their influence has knocked some of the rougher edges off election day, has reduced by more than fifty per cent. the amount of liquor used on election day; has resulted in much better location of polling places, and that the election officials in charge are of a higher calibre because of the presence of woman.

Nobody in Colorado condemns equal suffrage because it makes women unwomanly, and stormy weather on election day keeps no greater percentage of women from the polls than men. On political issues the women are about equally divided. Not a great number of them seek public office, though "like some men in politics, there are some women continually hunting political jobs, their qualifications being usually limited, it is asserted to their ability to swing a few votes."

Assuming that the correspondent has given a fair account of conditions in Colorado, which is the one State usually selected by the antis for making comparisons, the issue seems to be narrowed down to the question, should every citizen be given an opportunity for effective political expression? In other words, should the women be given "a fair shake?" They must obey the laws, just the same as the men, and ought to be given a chance to say what those laws shall be.

So far no one has made a canvass of this State on the woman suffrage amendment, but the opinion of political leaders is that the amendment will be defeated in October. However, that opinion in itself is not likely to influence many votes, for there will not be the same desire to be on the winning side that has been noticed in the case of elections for public officials.

Nobody knows what effect giving the ballot to three or four hundred thousand new voters will have on existing conditions, and that is why the politicians as a rule are opposed to the amendment, and their opposition is the basis for the prediction that it will be defeated. Many conservative voters are indisposed to take chances on what may happen, but on the other hand there are many who believe, with Coloradans, that "equal suffrage is all right; it is just and fair, and owing to women."—Trenton Times.

We cannot help agreeing with the Newark Call when it states that the Becker case is one which makes the public wish that there were some sensible censorship of the public press of New York. The man had a fair trial which was reviewed by all the courts of appeal, and the verdict found just. His associates in the murder have been sent to their death. He is, through friends and through those who fear his possible revelations, attempting to escape the law by having his case retried in the New York newspapers, and their respectable editors help what they know to be a public wrong and a dangerous cause, in the interests of a debased circulation of their journals. If they really want to know what is the matter with them, that they are losing influence and failing to sell their advertising columns and not gaining new readers, let their owners read the articles on the Becker and Thaw cases, and learn the reason why.

THE FORUM

Population and Area in Woman Suffrage States.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Since the importance of woman suffrage in the far Western States has been impressed on the Anti-Suffragists of the East, every conceivable argument has been employed by them to belittle the population of those States in the eyes of the Eastern voters who will soon be called upon to vote on the question of woman suffrage. Now it is perfectly true that compared with the population of the great States of New York and Pennsylvania some of the suffrage States do not look very large, but when they are considered as a whole their totals are quite impressive, and what is more important, they are growing fast.

The census of 1910 gave the 12 suffrage States a population of 13,828,060, an increase of 3,639,976, being an increase for the ten-year period of 35.7 per cent., a very much larger average than that obtained by the male suffrage States. The individual increases were even more striking than the aggregate. For instance, Arizona showed an increase of 66, California 60, Colorado 48, Idaho 101, Montana 54, Nevada 93, Oregon 62, Washington 120 and Wyoming 57.7 per cent. As the intermountain and Pacific States have been developing at a rapid pace it is extremely likely that the increases to be shown by the census of 1920 will be even greater than for the previous decade. These facts have no particular bearing on the merits of woman suffrage, but they do show that the condition of small population is being rapidly improved, and small population now sneered at by the thoughtless among the Antis are being augmented at a satisfactory rate. It is true that area does not vote, but it is equally true that area does provide the habitations where voters will gather by and by. As the poet says, speaking of those Western pioneers, they are "the first low wash of waves where soon shall roll a human sea."

It should also be remembered that in the suffrage States not only is the voting population increased by the incoming men, but also by the incoming women, so that the increased ratio of voters is more rapid in the suffrage States than in the others.

If the above facts are stated correctly, as I believe them to be, it is a fair inference that the fact that a population is small compared with others is no valid argument against woman suffrage in the larger populations, and as good Americans we should be glad that those great Western imperial areas were secured to the United States by the wisdom and foresight of Thomas Jefferson and the statesmen of his time. The "Antis" of that time thought the country would go to the bow-wows if the Western country was added to our domain; but they were mistaken, as I believe the Antis of our time are mistaken as to the result of "Votes for Women."

Yours truly,
ALEX. MILLAR.

WANT A BABY CARRIAGE.

The Charity Organization Society is anxious to secure a baby carriage to be used in taking children to and from the milk station. Any person having such a carriage that they would like to donate for this work will find the same appreciated by sending it to the society.

DUNELLEN'S POPULATION REPORTED TO BE 2,875

An unofficial announcement of the population of Dunellen, following the recent census gives the borough 2,875 inhabitants, an increase of 879 over the census of 1910, the figures at that time being 1,910. This year's figures should come close to those compiled by Robert Bogardus, the numerator, who completed his work on July 1.

Mr. Bogardus took a census a Dunellen last year for the Plainfield Daily Press, the residents of the borough being given an opportunity to guess the figures. At that time the census showed an increase of about 324 over the figures of 1910.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF PATRICK LAWLER HELD

The funeral of Patrick Lawler was held at 8:30 o'clock this morning at his late home on New street and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, where a high requiem mass was offered. Father Vincent Sciolla, assistant pastor, officiated at the service. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including a number from Elizabeth and New York.

There were also many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in St Mary's cemetery, the bearers being Patrick Kane, Alexander McGuigan, Patrick Mottley and John Mottley, of this place; Patrick Kennedy and Michael Whelan, of Elizabethport.

SALVATION ARMY GIVES POOR CHILDREN TREAT

The Salvation Army treated between 150 and 200 poor children of this city and vicinity to a day's outing at Wayside Park, Dunellen, yesterday. The children ranged in age from six years to sixteen and seventeen, and they enjoyed every minute of the day from the time they arrived at 10 o'clock in the morning until the last car carried them away at 6 o'clock last night.

The day was spent in outdoor sports and games for which prizes were awarded the winners. A fine dinner was served the guests at noon, and in addition to that each child was treated to a banana, a glass of lemonade and a plate of ice cream during the afternoon. The party went and returned by trolley.

The New Brunswick branch is expected to bring the poor children from that city for a day's outing at Wayside Park in the near future.

CROP SITUATION GOOD.

Chicago, July 22.—B. W. Snow, who has just returned from an extensive trip, said in an interview: "I have visited all important States of the Central West and the situation so far, except in corn, could not be improved. The crops of winter wheat and oats will be greater than previous records, but the corn situation is not quite so satisfactory, although there is nothing yet to warrant failure. I found the corn from two to three weeks late. All that is needed now is a few hot days and nights. In thirty years' experience I have never seen cattle and farm animals generally in better condition than now."

BABY AND CARRIAGE, TOO.

Marshal Frank Swody, of North Plainfield, is rejoicing over the birth of a daughter who arrived at his Grandview avenue home today. Something else arrived there soon afterwards—a carriage for the baby, carefully packed and crated, and the expressman who delivered it gravely collected alleged transportation charges. When Swody had uncrated the coach and taken a good look at its condition, he concluded that he would just as soon the donors had kept the vehicle and that he had his money back. It is said that certain members of the North Plainfield Fire Department were at the bottom of the joke.

K. OF C. EXCURSION.

Tickets for the annual excursion of the Knights of Columbus will be distributed among the members of the committee at an adjourned meeting to be held in Columbus Club, Sunday morning. It is expected that between 1,100 and 1,500 children will be provided with complimentary tickets this year and these will be distributed a week from Sunday.

ORGANIST DAVIS TO PLAY.

Charles Davis, organist of Holy Cross church, North Plainfield, will have charge of the organ at Grace Episcopal church during the remainder of the summer. In the absence of the regular choir, at its vacation camp at Manasquan, the singing will be congregational, but Mr. Davis will be glad to have volunteers to lead in the singing of the hmyns.

THREATENS EXPOSURE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—Threats that he will disclose the "house of mystery, which involves men and women high in business and social affairs," if he is not freed, Dr. C. C. Meredith, now serving a five-year sentence in connection with the death of a woman, is fighting for freedom. A rehearing of his case is set for today before the pardon board. The first appeal for pardon was made by friends last December, but it was refused.

WOMEN PLAN FOR LIVELY CAMPAIGN

Suffragists and "Antis" Establish Headquarters in Trenton.

Trenton, July 22.—In the furtherance of their campaign in the capital city of New Jersey, the leaders of the State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, have rented one of the stores on the ground floor of the Mechanics' Building, one of the largest in this city, for the purpose of carrying on their propaganda against the cause of "Votes For Women." The "Antis" now have two headquarters in this city, both being situated on East State street. In this connection it is interesting to note that all the political leaders going to and from the Capitol use this thoroughfare and hence the opponents of equal suffrage believe they have accomplished a piece of strategy in thus prominently bringing their activities before the eyes of the most prominent voters throughout the State.

The new headquarters of the "Antis" are in charge of Mrs. E. Yard Breese and Mrs. Ellsworth A. Corbitt, president and corresponding secretary, respectively, of the State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

It is planned to hold a number of noon-day meetings in the new rooms at which prominent speakers will address the business men of the city in urging that they vote next September at the special election against the constitutional amendment providing that the women of New Jersey shall have the privilege of voting.

WILLIAM SPICER, MEMBER DRAKE'S ZOUAVES, IS DEAD

Elizabeth, July 22.—William Spicer, one of the few survivors of Drake's Veteran Vouaves, died yesterday at the home of his daughter Mrs. Frederick Kaufman, 122 Franklin street. He was seventy-eight years old.

Mr. Spicer was born in Newark, but lived here most of his life, having been employed for thirty-three years in the Central Railroad shops. He served in the 119th Pennsylvania Volunteers, a Philadelphia regiment, during the Civil War.

Mr. Spicer was a member of Elizabeth Council, Daughters of Liberty, and was sexton of the Elizabeth Avenue Presbyterian church, Lyons Farms, until recently. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Harriet Spicer, five sons and three daughters, all of Elizabeth.

ELIZABETH WILL ENTERTAIN 196 PATRIOTIC SONS' CAMPS

Elizabeth, July 22.—Delegates from almost every community in the State are expected to attend the annual convention of the 196 New Jersey camps of the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, which will be held here August 17 and 18. There will be sessions for two days and the program includes an address of welcome by Mayor Victor Mravlag, annual report of President Thomas L. Prickett, of Palmyra, nominations of officers and applications for the honor of having the next convention.

The second day's business will include the election of officers and the selection of the place for holding the next gathering. Prize flags will be awarded to camps showing the largest gain in membership.

Most of the present officers will probably be re-elected. They are: President, Thomas L. Prickett, Palmyra; vice president, William E. Steinhauser, Asbury Park; secretary, J. Wiggin Thorne, Trenton; treasurer, John L. Wiemer, Palmyra. Nathan E. Post, John J. Boyer and Alvah O. Boyer are representing the local posts in making arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors.

PERSONAL.

The Misses Marie and Dorothy Donlin, of New York city, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Catherine E. Flynn, of 444 West Fourth street.

The Misses Gertrude and Catherine Bogan, of Newark, are visiting relatives in this city.

Mrs. Harvey Fisk, of 1424 Prospect avenue, is spending the summer at Woodstock, Vermont.

Mrs. John Harsell, of West Fifth street, is confined to her home by illness.

HANGING IN GEORGIA.

Quitman, Ga., July 22.—Jack Miller, convicted of killing his father-in-law, will be hanged here tomorrow. The crime was one of the most revolting ever committed in this section. The victim was Jack Edwards. A motion was made last month for a new trial, but it was withdrawn. Judge Thomas re-sentenced Miller on July 10 to die by hanging July 23.

The lost article that is of enough consequence to worry about is of enough consequence to advertise.

FREEHOLDERS WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

Likely That Entire Nineteen Who go Out Will Run Again for Office.

It is expected that every one of the nineteen members of the Union County Board of Freeholders whose terms expire this fall, will seek re-election. As the time for filing petitions draws near considerable activity on the part of the members is noticeable, as all except two go out of office. The two men who hold are both from Summit—John N. Cady, the director, and William I. McMane.

The chances of the entire nineteen being returned and the Board retaining its present Republican majority are considered excellent. J. Hervey Doane, of this city, has been in ill health for some time, but so far as is known he will be a candidate for re-election. The Republican freeholder slate will likely be made up on the outing of the county committee on Saturday, August 21. The majority of the men serving have been on the Board for many years and are returned year after year by their respective municipalities.

It is assured that the four Elizabeth men—Dennis F. Hennessy, William A. Bourdon, John C. Meyerholz and William F. Marsh, the latter a Republican, will run again. From Rahway comes the announcement that former County Clerk William Howard and former Councilman Edwin T. Valentine will be candidates for the Republican nomination. In Union it is likely that Aaron D. Crane, Republican, will oppose Noah Woodruff, Democrat, who, in point of service, is one of the oldest members on the Board.

Outside of Elizabeth the present members of the Board are:

Plainfield—J. Hervey Doane and S. P. T. Wilbur. Rahway—William H. Randolph and David H. Themley. Summit—John N. Cady and William I. McMane. Westfield—Charles A. Smith and Joseph Perry. Cranford—George Teller. Linden—Henry Krouse. Union—Noah Woodruff. New Providence—Bradford Jones. Mountainside—Elston Darby. Springfield—Peter H. Meisel. Clark—William J. Thompson. Fanwood—Burton P. Hall. Hillside—John Woodruff.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

acted the promise that the name of her daughter should not be mentioned in the papers unless the Chancery Court directed otherwise.

One of the relatives of Mrs. Tulp, when the letter was read, remembered that early last June the rector announced that, in answer to a telegram, he was going to South Norwalk to give a lecture on Hallington Booth.

"The telegram is such a cordial one that I may be asked to remain a day or so," he is reported as having said to his wife.

The relative, suspecting something, went to South Norwalk and declares the young woman from Hackensack was there. He also discovered, he avers, the rector's handwriting on a hotel register, although the name was that of "A. Thomas."

It is alleged that the clergyman admitted that he had sent the telegram to himself. He is also credited with writing a letter to his wife in which he admitted meeting the young woman and said that they had had a "jolly good time." Mrs. Tulp also charges in her petition that her husband was guilty of extreme cruelty and used profane language.

Mr. Tulp is temporarily in charge of an Episcopal church at Onteora Park in the Catskills. He has been notified of the divorce proceedings and has written back denying everything and questioning his wife's ability to prove anything doing on his part.

She and the three children are at Asbury Park.

Mr. Tulp is thirty-six years old. He was graduated from the Rutgers Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, in 1904, and the same year was ordained. After serving Marconnier church for a time he was called to the First Reformed church of Hasbrouck Heights, and there he first met his wife, then Miss Anna F. Behrens, one of the leading members of the church. In 1908 the Rev. Mr. Tulp decided on account of deep religious convictions to become an Episcopalian. He was duly ordained in his new faith by Bishop Lines, of Newark. A brilliant preacher and a deep thinker, he was rapidly promoted. He became the curate of St. Paul's church at Englewood, and when the Rev. Dr. W. W. Wolley retired from the rectorship of Christ church, in Hackensack, Rev. Mr. Tulp succeeded him.

RECREATION NOTES

On Saturday the regular dance will be held at Washington School. A good time is in store for those who attend.

The Dunbar Club meets as usual tomorrow night. It is to be a shirtwaist dance.

The Washington Dramatic Club is to hold an important meeting tomorrow evening. It is hoped that all the members will attend.

OFFERS PARK FOR SERVICES.

T. W. Sisty, proprietor of Wayside Park, Dunellen, has offered his park to any organizations that care to hold religious services Sunday afternoons or evenings this summer. There are a pavilion, a piano, lights and seats for about 400, but so far only one meeting has been held, and that was three weeks ago when about thirty people gathered there and opened a service which was soon afterwards stopped by a storm.

James Moore, of West Fourth street, has returned home from Atlantic City, where he has been appearing in theatricals.

THESE eminent authorities for years, in advocating beer instead of medicines in cases of poor nerves, poor blood, bad digestion, malnutrition and the like, say:—

Prof. Adolph Cluss, Royal College, Vienna:—
"It makes good the waste of human tissue, due to excessive mental or physical activity."

Prof. Jos. Zeisler, Northwestern University:—
"The small percentage of alcohol in beer induces medical men to favor it—it does not make drunkards."

Prof. Willis King, Kansas City, Mo.:—
"I have prescribed beer for forty years in many cases and always found direct and beneficial results."

Dr. Henry Davy, Pres. British Medical Society, London, Eng.:
"Beer, bread and cheese for a meal is infinitely more scientific than the American meal of bread, tea and jam.

The World's Greatest Scientists Assert:

The proper use of Pure Beer is beneficial as a food drink because it has great properties for building up the system. Good beer makes good blood, because it contains iron; it makes solid, healthy flesh, because its proteids are almost instantly assimilated. Pure beer is the best drink—for man and woman—because it is mildly exhilarating, wholesomely tonic in its effect, conserves human energy, aids digestion and steadies the nerves.

When, therefore, we find that renowned scientists the world over indorse the food value of beer, we should feel no hesitancy in using Pure Beer in our daily life.

AS CELLAR TENANTS THE BAPTISTS ARE O. K.

'Smatter With Pulling Across a Win Just for a Change?

Just why the Baptist baseball team has put up such a poor showing in the City League race puzzles local fans. Not a single victory adorns the Baptist walls, although the team has some of the best talent in the city. Each week a new name is added to the team's roster in an effort to register a win, but as yet the additions have proved of no value. "Wren" Townley and Ralph Smalley, two N. P. H. S. stars—were signed up a few weeks ago and although the two are very fast men, they have done little or nothing towards bracing up the team.

Smalley is a good catcher and a heavy hitter, but his work with the willow in the last two City League contests have been discouraging. At the last league meeting the names of Ernie Stahl and Oscar Dilts were added to the list, thus making a total of four schoolboy stars signed up during the past two weeks. Stahl is a fair twirler, and a good man with the stick, while Dilts is as good a player as there is in the city. He can field well and is an unusually heavy hitter. Patterson, the team's hurler, has pitched good games all through the season but has been the victim either of ragged support or rank decisions. The team's infield and outfield are unsurpassed by any others in the circuit, and the reins of the outfit are held by as competent a man as there is in this vicinity. Still the team's record to date is no victories and five defeats, with nine games still to be played and the heaviest teams in the league to be met.

WITH THE FUTURE GREATS

Jack Carney, the ex-Tab, played a brilliant game for the Plainfield A. A. Sunday. Carney, although not a heavy man with the stick, is a good fielder and gives promise of being a good hitter as time rolls by.

Joe Newell is one step nearer the coveted goal, the no-hit game. Joe twirled seven innings for his team yesterday and allowed his opponents nothing in the clouting line. Had the fray lasted but two more frames, Newell might have attained a place in the Hall of Fame. Besides being hard to hit, Joe is a pitcher with plenty of control and a moderate amount of speed.

Plainfield is certainly well represented in outside baseball circles. With Martin playing the greatest ball of his career at St. Paul, Hand hitting heavily in the New England circuit, and Mullin and Randolph showing the Amboys how to play the national game, local fans should feel justly proud.

"Tush" Jaeger handled the short position Sunday in fine style, his line of encouraging talk doing much toward helping Lou Brown pitch the game he did.

Marsh, who was the second string catcher for N. P. H. S. last year, declares that he does not think he will return to school in the fall. With Marsh and Smalley gone who will do the backstop work?

Bergen donned those numerous catching togs of his Sunday and handled the shoots of Conshay and Brown in a manner pleasing to all. One condition was brought to the notice of the fans by Bergen. The fact that so few of the local players will hit the turf when they are on the home stretch makes it a dangerous job to catch, according to Eddie's way of thinking.

No one ever speaks of this "Dipper" Jones as a ball player, yet he certainly performed to good advantage in Sunday's game. Any time a fly came shooting out to "Dip," the runner advanced no further than to first. When Jones came to bat the bleacherites with one accord indicated that they were confident that his efforts would result in a safe clout and Jones responded with either the clout or, at least, a mighty effort.

"Art" Kyle deserves praise for the calibre of ball he has been putting up of late. Kyle can catch any pitcher, play any infield or outfield position and hurl a little himself.

NESS STILL HITTING.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—Jack Ness, of the Oakland (Cal.) Club, hit in his forty-ninth consecutive game yesterday. His single to left in the fifth inning of the game with Vernon brought in a run. Ness established a new world's record for hitting in consecutive games on July 13, when he passed the previous record of hits in forty consecutive games made by Ty Cobb.

FOWNES' DEFEAT CAME AS A SURPRISE TO GOLFERS

Cleveland, O., July 22.—Surprises were recorded in the second round of match play in the Western amateur golf championship over the Mayfield links, yesterday. The defeat of W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburgh, former national champion, by H. P. Bingham, Mayfield Country Club, Cleveland, was a distinct shock. Fownes was beaten 4 up and 3 to go.

"Chick" Evans had an easy time disposing of K. P. Edwards, of Chicago, 7 up and 6 to go. D. E. Sawyer, Chicago, defeated Paul Hunter, Chicago, 6 up and 5 to go.

PRESIDENT COMISKEY HAS IT IN FOR THE UMPIRES

Chicago, July 22—President Comiskey, of the Chicago Americans, yesterday protested to President Johnson, of the American League, against the suspension of Manager Rowland, who, according to the White Sox clubowner, has been all season the victim of the "worst umpiring he has ever seen in the American League."

"Poor umpiring has cost my club seven or eight games this year," said Comiskey. "It looks to me as if Rowland is being made a mark. Umpires have called balks on my pitchers in Detroit, but failed to do so when they made the same motions in St. Louis; they beat us out of a clean triple play when we were at Boston; last Monday, Mayer was hit by a pitched ball, but was not allowed to go to first because the umpire said he allowed himself intentionally to be hit.

"The chasing of Rowland was senseless. He went out to protest, as he had a right to do, and as I would expect him to do. He told me he did not swear until after he had been thrown out of the game."

DEVITALIS FOR HARVARD.

Walter Devitalis, one of the best athletes turned out by the Morristown Academy, and who has played *against Plainfield and North Plain*field High Schools and Leal School, has been twirling for the All-Madison B. B. C. for the past month. Devitalis has beaten some of the best semi-pro teams in the East, and should be a tower of strength to the freshman squad of Harvard University in the fall. Devitalis is not only a baseball player, but he also plays basketball and football well.

JUNIOR TENNIS NEXT.

Junior lawn tennis players of the West Side Tennis Club and the Borough Park Club are to meet in the first of an important series of team matches next Wednesday, July 28, on the courts of the former organization at Forest Hills, Long Island. It has been arranged to play six singles and three doubles and the Board of Governors of the West Side Tennis Club at its meeting last night appointed Frederick B. Alexander to act as referee.

AGAINST ATLANTIC LEAGUE.

Action to recover a claim against the defunct Atlantic League will be started by Recreation Commissioner Nicholas LaVecchia in behalf of Frank J. McTague, who umpired in the league on his return from the South last summer. The amount is $95.50, and represents transportation and cancelled games.

LIPTON CUP RACES.

Duluth, Minn., July 22.—The Sir Thomas Lipton $5,000 trophy will be competed for at the Northwestern international regatta Friday and Saturday of this week. It was taken from Canada by Duluth oarsmen last year, and there had been doubt whether it would be raced for this year.

NEW WATER MARK.

San Francisco, Cal., July 22.—Ludy Langer, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, won the half mile open water Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championship yesterday at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 12:08 2-5, breaking the American record by 10 seconds.

INTERCITY TENNIS MATCH.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—An interesting inter-city tennis match will be held here today, when four crack players from Fargo, N. D., will meet the best of the Twin City players. Aubrey Lawrence and his son, Ray; M. C. Crawford, and D. A. Darner are the visiting quartet.

DETROIT GETS JONES.

San Francisco, July 22.—"Bobby" Jones, third baseman of the San Francisco Club, of the Pacific Coast League, has been sold to the Detroit American League Club, according to an announcement made here yesterday.

LOOKING FOR VICTIMS.

Highly elated by its victory over the Tabs last Sunday, the Plainfield A. A. is hot on the trail of the New Brunswick Michelins and the Johnson & Johnson team, of the same place.

Detroit, July 22.—Tillar Cavet, left handed pitcher, has been released by the Detroit Americans to San Francisco, of the Pacific Coast League.

NEED MORE TEAMS FOR PARKER FIELD BASEBALL

This year baseball enthusiasm at the popular playground, Parker Field, seems to be confined to the younger element. Owing to the lack of enough teams, the senior circuit has been unable to begin its season in the way mapped out for it. A big double header was staged by the only two teams in the league, the Laurels and the Red Stars, but since that time no other senior league matches have been played. A noticeable contrast to the older circuit is the junior league, composed of five fast combinations. This league has been in action for almost two weeks and already two of the teams have branched out into a neck and neck pennant fight. Three one-hit games have been uncorked by the twirlers of the various teams, while two and three-hit contests are pulled off daily. Joe Newell has hurled two one-clout contests and a seven-inning no-hit argument, while Sid Butler has staged a two-hit affair already this season. Last year Butler pitched a no-hit no-run game and bids fair to repeat this performance this year. There is not as much glory to accomplishing a feat of this kind this season at the present time because there are few really heavy hitters in the league. When "Sid" pulled off the "goose egg" stunt last season, he opposed several players who are now clouting the hide off the ball in the City League.

George W. Wriston, who has charge of the playground and who is the Ban Johnson of the allied organizations, desires to hear from the managers of several local teams in regard to placing their charges in the senior league race. The Parker Field baseball matches are staged in the morning and do not conflict with any duties that the boys may have to perform at home.

ROD AND REEL

Full reports concerning the fishing trip made to Barnegat Bay by W. L. Hetfield, Jr., J. A. Staats, Dr. E. A. Giddes, F. J. Blatz and William J. Whelan have at last been received. With Captain Amos Ridgeway they went out from Waretown and fished "Ladylove" channel last Thursday and Friday, catching 180 big tide-running weakfish, fifteen bluefish of about a pound and a half each, and some croakers, the latter being very rare fish in Barnegat Bay. Al Staats landed a four-pound croaker on his six-ounce "Douagic" rod and light tackle, and remarked that in all his Maine and Canadian experiences he never had two better days' sport than he had on this trip. The fish were gamey and some of them jumped like bass in their efforts to clear the hook. The party stopped at the Bayview Hotel, where a new chef put up a fine lunch, and in all other ways it was a delightful trip.

The fishermen of Keansburg are catching some fine weakfish. All it needs is a few live ones down that way to show that fishing off the beach is safe and it will soon become a famous resort. Weakfish, bluefish, fluke and large lafayettes are biting there now. John Briscoe has caught as high as thirty weakfish on a tide since the first of the month and he has already broken in a half dozen fishermen.

Frederick Allen, of Sandford avenue, has returned home after enjoying a two weeks' vacation at Budd's Lake. While there Mr. Allen spent a great deal of his time fishing but reports that the catches registered by him and others were not unusually large. Fishing at the lake this year has been worse than it has been for some years past, the heavy rains being assigned as the reason.

"Pop" Thorn and his four companions, who make up the "Big Five," are going on their weekly fishing trip tomorrow.

The Klondyke Banks, near Shark River, about seven miles southeast of Asbury Park, are attracting a good many fishermen from this vicinity. Sea bass and blackfish are plentiful at the banks and are numerous also at Long Branch, West End and Elberon.

It is interesting to note where there have been wrecks fishing is good, blackfish being very numerous in these regions. Off the Far Rockaway coast there have been some terrible sea disasters and as a result that section has become well-known as a fishing grounds.

"Eph" Compton and son, Leslie, accompanied by "Bus" Miller, spent yesterday fishing off the Amboy light. Their day's labor resulted in a catch of 20 weakfish and one small lafayette, commonly known as a "spot." They report that fishing in the region they traversed is extremely good, inhabitants of the nearby shores catching as high as 45 weakfish in one day. The fish obtained by the Plainfield trio were landed at Ackor's dock. Across from Amboy lie the Staten Island fishing beds, a place frequented very often by anglers from this vicinity.

Hardie Philips is entered in the surf casting contest to be run off at Asbury Park during the second week of August. Surf casting is a favorite pastime with this well-known angler, but it is some time since he has been engaged in active competition.

SPORT BRIEFS

Pitcher Cavet, who has been with the Detroit Americans since the spring of 1914, has been released to the San Francisco club. Cavet goes in exchange for Robert Jones, a third baseman.

Frank Ellerman, a pitcher with the Mount Vernon, Illinois club, has been signed by the St. Louis Federals.

John Mullen, who umpired in the American League two years ago, has been added to the Federal League staff.

The Brighton Motordrome races which were to have been run last night were postponed on account of the inclement weather.

Francis Ouimet, amateur champion golfer of the United States, won the qualifying round of the Massachusetts amateur championship tournament at Vooland, Mass., yesterday.

George King, the Columbia University player, scored a hard earned victory over Allen Behr in the Hudson championship tennis singles at the Park Hill Country Club yesterday.

W. C. Fownes, former national golf champion, was defeated by H. P. Bingham in the second round of match play at the Mayfield Country Club, Cleveland.

Fred C. Inman was defeated by Vanderbilt B. Ward in the Rockaway Hunting Club invitation tennis tournament.

PRIZE FIGHTER HERE.

Battling Levinsky, the well-known East Side pugilist, passed through this city yesterday en route to Pennsylvania. He was accompanied by a male friend who was driving the big roadster owned by the battler. Levinsky is evidently a believer in advertising, as he has inscribed on the side of the car his name and title. The auto bore a Connecticut license and hailed from Bridgeport.

WILL TRY THE GIANTS.

Eddie Conshay's baseball team will engage in a tussle with Kline's Royal Giants at Parker Field, Saturday, provided the field can be secured for the occasion. Conshay's clan have been strengthened, several of the players who participated in the match with the Tabs on Sunday having been reserved for the event scheduled for this Saturday.

SIGN FREAK PITCHER.

Mount Vernon, Ill., July 22.—Frank Ellerman, a pitcher with the Mount Vernon club, was signed yesterday by the St. Louis Federals. Ellerman, who is near-sighted, wears spectacles while pitching. He recently struck out nineteen men in a game.

MULLEN TAKES A JUMP.

Chicago, July 22.—John Mullen, an umpire of the Western League staff, will leave organized baseball and join the Federal League staff, President O'Neill announced yesterday. Mullen officiated in the American League two seasons ago.

HELEN PETERSON GIVEN A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

In honor of her second birthday anniversary a surprise party was given to Helen Peterson at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Richard Seidel, on Front street, Dunellen, yesterday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock. The affair was attended by twenty-five little friends of the celebrant. During the afternoon there were vocal solos by Edward and Russell Pierson, of Plainfield.

A collation was served later in the afternoon. A birthday cake adorned the centre of the table, it being surrounded with candles. Little Helen received a number of gifts. Among those present were: Mrs. Charles Todd and the Misses Elizabeth and Harriett Todd, of Westfield; Mrs. Pierson and Edward and Russell Pierson, of Plainfield; Mrs. Charles Wyckoff, Miss Rose Wyckoff, Mrs. William Wyckoff, William Wyckoff, Jr., Mrs. T. J. Hartman, T. J. Hartman, Jr., Lloyd and Ralph Broshart, Mrs. Frank Broshart, Ray and Ernest Keppler, Jr., Mrs. E. C. Keppler, Jr., Mrs. Richard Seidel, Oscar Peterson and Helen Peterson.

RELIEF ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The Relief Association of the North Plainfield fire department will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in borough fire headquarters. The notice was sent out by Chief Walter Chandler.

LATHAM WILL NOT SEEK RE-NOMINATION

Dunellen's Mayor to Retire at the Expiration of Term This Year.

Mayor E. B. Latham, of Dunellen, who two years ago was elected by the Republicans and Democrats of that borough without opposition, announced today that he would not seek a renomination when his term expires this year. His decision to retire from office is largely due to the fact that Mr. Latham is not in good health and he cannot afford to devote his time to the office.

The Mayor was informed by a New York specialist yesterday, following an examination, that he must take a complete rest. He is at the head of a large electrical concern in New York and his business has kept him closely confined for some time. However, he has been giving considerable of his time to the office of Mayor and the sewer work has been an added burden. With the retirement of Mayor Latham from the field there is much guessing as to who the probable nominees will be. There is no doubt but that the Republicans and Democrats will have candidates.

The concensus of opinion seems to be that Councilman Richard M. Ryan, who is now president of the Council and whose term expires this year, will be the logical candidate for the Democratic nomination. Mahlon R. Dayton, who has served the borough efficiently as a member of the Board of Education, was mentioned today by active Republicans as one who might receive the nomination if he would accept.

FIRE LOSS SETTLED.

The fire that recently damaged the dwelling belonging to the estate of David Young has been settled for by the receipt of a check for $680 from the Frederick A. Martin Co.

HARRY E. KINSLOW IS NOW AN "M. D."

Former Plainfield Boy Passes Examination and Will Practice in Louisville.

Dr. Harry E. Kinslow, formerly of Plainfield, but who has been living in the South for several years, is now visiting his parents here before going to Louisville, Ky., where he expects to practice medicine. He was born in this city and as a boy worked for the late John Powers, when the latter was engaged in the drug business on Somerset street, the borough.

Giving up that position, Dr. Kinslow entered Howard University in Washington, where he completed a four years' course. He then went to Bluefield, West Virginia, forming a partnership with his brother, Claud Kinslow, in the drug business. In 1911 he entered Meharry College at Nashville, Tenn., from which he was graduated this year. Last May he passed his examination in Tennessee and last month also passed his examination before the Kentucky board. He has also taken the West Virginia examination but has not yet learned the result. The Nashville News in speaking of Dr. Kinslow's success, says that from October, 1914, to March, 1915, he anaesthetized 142 patients in hospital work without a single fatal result.

FIRE STILL BURNING.

Durban, South Africa, July 22.—The Peninsular and Oriental liner Benalla reported today by wireless that it would arrive at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning. The fire on the vessel has been confined to compartment number 2, but it is burning so fiercely that the crew is unable to approach that section of the ship.

WASHINGTON, N. J., PAPER TO SUSPEND ITS PUBLICATION

Washington, N. J., July 22—The plant of the Tidings Publishing Company, publishers of The Warren Tidings, is being moved to New York, where it will be located at 12 Green street. Louis A. Jaffer, the New York attorney who purchased the plant last November, has built up a large business printing pamphlets for appeal cases and other law printing in the New York courts. He has also received a large contract for printing for a government official, but it is necessary for the printing plant to be within messenger call, and therefore the removal is being made to the city.

It is probable that the last issue of The Warren Tidings has been published, although the publisher may decide to publish the paper in New York and send it out each week until the expiration of the subscriptions. It is more likely, however, that Mr. Jaffer will decide to turn the subscriptions over to some other paper and discontinue The Warren Tidings.

The Warren Tidings has been published at Washington since 1877. It was owned at one time by J. B. R. Smith, assistant secretary of State, and later by Robert M. Petty, who at that time was president of the Washington National Bank. Five of the present force of employes will go to New York to work in the new office. Besides Mr. Jaffer they are his secretary, Joseph Hassen; A. B. Hough, foreman of the office; William Scheer, bookkeeper, and Levi Cressman and William Uhleman, linotype operators. Three auto moving vans will be used to move the plant, and included in the stock to be moved are three linotype machines and three presses.

NEW JERSEY COUNTIES FREED FROM QUARANTINE

Washington, D. C., July 22—An order effective July 19, which frees from quarantine for the foot-and-mouth disease the counties of Bergen, Essex and Union, leaves Hudson county the only portion of New Jersey still under quarantine on this account. Those portions of the county within a radius of five miles of infected premises are in the exposed area, and the rest of the county is placed in the restricted area, in which the regulations are much less stringent than in the exposed area.

New Jersey has been under quarantine in whole or in part for the foot-and-mouth disease since last fall, but the extent of the territory affected and the severity of the regulations have been steadily diminished as the work of stamping out the pestilence has progressed.

ANTISEPTICS TAKE A JUMP.

New York, July 22.—A sharp advance in antiseptics is the latest effect of the European war. Thymol has risen from $2 a pound to $12 per pound, due to scarcity of supply and the active demand from manufacturers of antiseptic washes and dental preparations, who report considerable difficulty in securing sufficient thymol for their uses. The American manufacturers are being forced to bid in competition with exporters who have been buying freely on orders from France and England. Germany has enjoyed a distinct monoply in thymol manufacture. The article is produced from anjowan seed grown in India. The low prices at which Germany produced the finished article caused the abandonment of thymol production in India, but since the rise in price, as in the case of other products, production in India and other parts of the world has been stimulated. It is reported that one shipment of twenty tons is on its ways from India to London.

JERSEY CITY'S POPULATION FOUND TO BE ABOUT 275,000

Jersey City, July 22.—James A. Sullivan, supervisor of the census in Jersey City, stated yesterday that the figures for Jersey City will probably be complete by today. These figures will show that Jersey City has a population of about 275,000, as compared with 267,779 five years ago, and 232,699 ten years ago. It was expected that a population of 300,000 would be shown.

Reports from other parts of Hudson county are not nearly complete, but it was learned that only 2,700 names have been turned in from the borough of Secaucus, which had a population of 4,740 five years ago, and 3,191 ten years ago. It was reported, though not officially, that Kearny had made an increase of about 20,000 in the last decade.

MUSIC OVER TELEPHONE.

Cincinnati, O., July 22.—Music by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, playing in this city, will be transmitted over the telephone to San Francisco tomorrow. It will be Cincinnati Day at the Exposition, and the official representatives of the city will be on the receiving end of the long wire to hear the music and dedicate the transcontinental telephone line.

WAR NEWS

is of decisive character. The war office is confidently awaiting word that Gen. Mackensen's centre has battered its way through the Russian lines and seized the Lubin-Cholm railway.

It is believed here that Warsaw is to be set in flames by the Russians and destroyed when von Hindenburg's forces penetrate the last lines of defences before the city. Grand Duke Nicholas is said to be determined that the Polish capital shall not fall into the hands of the Germans with its government buildings and churches unscathed. He is reported to have assigned groups of men to the task of applying the torch all over the city when the Germans close in and force his armies to evacuate.

Constantinople (from Berlin by wireless), July 22—The Turkish war office gave out the following official statement today:

"Near Avi Burnu on Monday, we exploded a counter mine which the enemy had constructed in front of our trenches. Attacks on our left wing were repulsed, the enemy suffering heavy losses."

Rome, July 22—A former workman in the Skoda arms factory in Austria, who has been taken prisoner, states that numerous employes of the factory have been dismissed because lack of raw material has cut down the output. He says that church bells are being everywhere requisitioned for the manufacture of ammunition, and are being used despite the fact that they are not of the same quality of material that is ordinarily required for that purpose.

Geneva, July 22—The police of Basle, the Swiss city on the German border, have arrested on a charge of espionage a merchant who is alleged to have acted on behalf of two belligerent powers.

Paris, July 22—The French war office gave out the following official statement this afternoon:

"The night was relatively calm on the whole front. Artillery duels occurred in Artois and the Argonne, also at Les Parges and in the forest of Apremont between the Meuse and the Mosele Rivers.

"During the night of July 20 and 21 violent fighting occurred on the heights of Little Reicks Ackerkopf. Near Munster our troops organized the positions they had conquered and also near Lingekopf. In the course of these fights we took 107 prisoners.

"Our aviators dropped eight bombs on the station at Autry, northwest of Binarville. Four of these were 90 millimetre shells, and the rest 120 millimetre.

"West of Munster a French attack was followed by nine violent counter attacks by the Germans. In spite of their fierceness two batallions of our Chaseurs held back the enemy and inflicted heavy losses. We captured and retained a trench on a front of 15 metres in addition to maintaining all other positions."

BOROUGH COUNCIL WILL MEET TO RECEIVE BIDS

An adjourned meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of receiving bids for extending the sewer in Summit avenue and transacting other business that may come before it.

A petition signed by a number of proerty-owners of Summit avenue requesting the extension of the sewer in that street was presented to the Council at the July 2 meeting, and steps were taken right after that to advertise for bids, and Friday, July 23, was set as the date for opening them.

LOCAL MEN ORGANIZE A REALTY CORPORATION

The Union-Middlesex Corporation is the name of an organization of local business men incorporated at Elizabeth today. The purpose of the concern is to deal in real estate. The company is capitalized at $50,000 and of this the sum of $2,500 has been paid in.

Charles Lyman is given as the agent and the office of the corporation as 220 Park avenue, this city. William L. Smalley, of West End avenue; Frank Mobus, 292 Watchung avenue, and Kennedy F. Harrington, Greenbrook road, are the corporators, and each has taken fifteen shares of the 500 into which the capital stock has been divided.

ORDUNA SAILS WITH MANY AMERICANS ABOARD

The Cunard liner Orduna sailed today for Liverpool with eighteen cabin passengers, including several Americans, among whom is George Howe, of this city, and George Wood, of Dunellen, and a large cargo of war munitions for the Allies. The recent narrow escape of the vessel from a German submarine did not appear to daunt the passengers abroad. No bookings were cancelled.

Among the Americans who engaged passage are Abraham S. Burns and the Rev. R. E. Young, of Chicago; Miss Lydia D. Wheeler, of Philadelphia, and John H. Jones, Mrs. Janie Levins and B. Forbes Mitchell, of New York city.

Capt. Taylor is in command of the Orduna. His affidavit and those of other officers of the steamship regarding the attempt of a German submarine to sink the vessel on July 9 have been turned over to Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port, who was instructed by the Government to investigate the attack on the vessel.

The passengers aboard the Orduna will be drilled in the use of life preservers in the event that the vessel should be menaced by other submarines.

TOURISTS ARRIVE SAFELY AT FIRST STOJ ON TRIP

William Floersch, manager of the Queen City Hotel, last night received a telegram from his father, Peter Floersch, that the latter, together with Mrs. Floersch and their daughter, Miss Marian Floersch, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lott and daughter, Miss Emma Lott, had arrived in Chicago on the first leg of their transcontinental tour. The telegram stated that the trip had been made without incident and the time of receipt indicates that the train arrived at Chicago ahead of the scheduled time.

They began the Western tour primarily for a visit to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, but will take in many points of interest en route to San Francisco. They will stay at Colorado Springs for a few days and then proceed to Salt Lake City and Yellowstone Park. The trip will include a month, at least.

WAGE ULTIMATUM.

Washington, July 22—Unless President Wilson instructs Secretary Daniels to restore the wage scale that prevailed in the Washington Navy Yard before July 1, labor leaders here say the skilled mechanics will strike. Local labor men say other navy yards would be affected by sympathetic strikes. Wages were cut in the Washington yard because of a mixup in appropriation legislation.

The FORESTER'S DAUGHTER

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

"That's funny. I never feel that way. I slept like a log after I knew you were comfortable. You must have a better bed and more blankets. It's always cold up here."

The sunlight was short lived. The clouds settled over the peaks, and ragged wisps of gray vapor dropped down the timbered slopes of the prodigious amphitheater in which the lake lay. Again Berrie made everything snug while her young woodsman toiled at bringing logs for the fire.

At last fully provided for, they sat contentedly side by side under the awning and watched the falling rain as it splashed and sizzled on the sturdy fire. "It's a little like being shipwrecked on a desert island, isn't it?" he said. "As if our boats had drifted away."

At noon she again prepared an elaborate meal. She served potatoes and grouse, hot biscuit with sugar sirup and canned peaches and coffee done to just the right color and aroma. He declared it wonderful, and they ate with repeated wishes that the supervisor might turn up in time to share their feast, but he did not. Then Berrie said firmly: "Now you must take a snooze. You look tired."

He was in truth not only drowsy, but lame and tired. Therefore he yielded to her suggestion.

She covered him with blankets and put him away like a child. "Now you have a good sleep," she said tenderly. "I'll call you when daddy comes."

When he woke the ground was again covered with snow, and the girl was feeding the fire with wood which her own hands had supplied.

Hearing him stir, she turned and fixed her eyes upon him with clear, soft gaze. "How do you feel by now?" she asked.

"Quite made over," he replied, rising alertly.

His cheer, however, was only pretense. He was greatly worried. "Something has happened to your father," he said. "His horse has thrown him, or he has slipped and fallen." His peace and exultation were gone. "How far is it down to the ranger station?"

"About twelve miles."

"Don't you think we'd better close camp and go down there? It is now 3 o'clock. We can walk it in five hours."

She shook her head. "No, I think we'd better stay right here. It's a long, hard walk, and the trail is muddy."

"But, dear girl," he began desperately, "it won't do for us to camp here alone in this way another night. What will Cliff say?"

She flamed red, then whitened. "I don't care what Cliff thinks. I'm done with him, and no one that I really care about would blame us." She was fully aware of his anxiety now. "It isn't our fault."

"It will be my fault if I keep you here longer!" he answered. "We must reach a telephone and send word out. Something may have happened to your father."

"I'm not worried a bit about him. It may be that there's been a big snowfall up above us, or else a windstorm. The trail may be blocked, but don't worry. He may have to go round by Lost Lake pass." She pondered a moment. "I reckon you're right. We'd better pack up and rack down the trail to the ranger's cabin—not on my account, but on yours. I'm afraid you've taken cold."

"I'm all right, except I'm very lame, but I am anxious to go on. By the way, is this ranger Settle married?"

"No; his station is one of the lonesomest cabins on the forest. No woman will stay there."

This made Wayland ponder. "Nevertheless," he decided, "we'll go. After all, the man is a forest officer, and you are the supervisor's daughter."

She made no further protest, but busied herself closing the panniers and putting away the camp utensils. She seemed to recognize that his judgment was sound.

It was after 3 when they left the tent and started down the trail, carrying nothing but a few toilet articles.

He stopped at the edge of the clearing. "Should we have left a note for the supervisor?"

The trees were dripping, the willows heavy with water, and the mud ankle deep in places, but she pushed on steadily, and he, following in her tracks, could only marvel at her strength and sturdy self reliance. The swing of her shoulders, the poise of her head and the lithe movement of her waist made his own body seem a poor thing.

For two hours they zigzagged down a narrow canyon heavily timbered with fir and spruce, a dark, stern avenue, crossed by roaring streams and filled with frequent boggy meadows, whereon the water lay midleg deep.

"We'll get out of this very soon," she called cheerily.

By degrees the gorge widened, grew more open, more genial. Aspen thickets of pale gold flashed upon their eyes like sunlight, and grassy bunches afforded firmer footing, but on the slopes their feet slipped and slid painfully. Still Berea kept her stride. "We must get to the middle fork before dark," she stopped to explain, "for I don't know the trail down there, and there's a lot of down timber just above the station. Now that we're cut loose from our camp I feel nervous. As long as I have a tent I am all right, but now we are in the open I worry. How are you standing it?" She studied him with keen and anxious glance, her hand upon his arm.

"Fine as a fiddle," he replied, assuming a spirit he did not possess,

She Found Herself Confronted by an Endless Maze of Blackened Tree Trunks.

"but you are marvelous. I thought cowgirls couldn't walk."

"I can do anything when I have to," she replied. "We've got three hours more of it." And she warningly exclaimed, "Look back there!"

They had reached a point from which the range could be seen, and, behold, it was covered deep with a seamless robe of new snow.

"That's why dad didn't get back last night. He's probably wallowing along up there this minute." And she set off again with resolute stride. Wayland's pale face and labored breath alarmed her. She was filled with love and pity, but she pressed forward desperately.

At last they came to the valley floor, over which a devastating fire had run some years before and which was still covered with fallen trees in desolate confusion. Here the girl made her first mistake. She kept on toward the river, although Wayland called attention to a trail leading to the right up over the low grassy hills. For a mile the path was clear, but she soon found herself confronted by an endless maze of blackened tree trunks, and at last the path ended abruptly.

Dismayed and halting, she said: "We've got to go back to that trail which branched off to the right. I reckon that was the highland trail which Settle made to keep out of the swamp. I thought it was a trail from Cameron peak, but it wasn't. Back we go."

She was suffering keenly now, not on her own account, but on his, for she could see that he was very tired, and to climb up that hill again was like punishing him a second time.

When she picked up the blazed trail it was so dark that she could scarcely follow it, but she felt her way onward, turning often to be sure that he was following. Once she saw him fall and cried out: "It's a shame to make you climb this hill again. It's all my fault. I ought to have known that that lower road led down into the timber."

Standing close beside him in the darkness, knowing that he was weary, wet and ill, she permitted herself the expression of her love and pity. Putting her arm about him, she drew his cheek against her own, saying: "Poor boy. Your hands are cold as ice." She took them in her own warm clasp. "Oh, I wish we had never left the camp! What does it matter what people say?" Then she broke down and wailed. "I shall never forgive myself if you"— Her voice failed her.

He bravely reassured her: "I'm not defeated. I'm just tired. That's all. I can go on."

"But you are shaking."

"That is merely a nervous chill. I'm good for another hour. It's better to keep moving anyhow."

She thrust her hand under his coat and laid it over his heart. "You are tired out," she said, and there was anguish in her voice. "Your heart is pounding terribly. You mustn't do any more climbing. And, hark, there's a wolf!"

He listened. "I hear him, but we are both armed. There's no danger from wild animals."

"Come!" she said, instantly recovering her natural resolution. "We can't stand here. The station can't be far away. We must go on."

Of Interest to Women and the Home

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

Who would find the prosperous way
The laws of order must obey;
Who would win a happy fate,
Must learn his time to regulate,
He whom this practice shall annoy,
Will be bereft of many a joy.
Then teach the child to value order, time,
For these are priceless gifts in every clime.

Teaching Loyalty.

"A boy's loyalty to his gang, although condemned by many, is really a trait that is commendable," declares Judge Lindsay. "Nurtured and developed in the right direction the same spirit that causes him to refuse to 'squeal' on his gang can be developed into one of the biggest assets of the State. It is all in the way you handle the boy. My prescription is wise sympathy, thus patience, plus more patience, plus kindly understanding, plus firmness, real firmness. Above all be careful and on the level. Submit a boy to one unjust punishment and he is through with you; catch him redhanded or punish him for a thing he has really done and you gain his respect."

Get the Right Viewpoint.

Get the children to help make home pleasant. First enlarge your own outlook. Get a vision of what life is for your family, then of what it might be. Get rid of the idea that life consists of gaining a few more acres of land or an enlarged bank account. Of what use will they be if your children all go from you? And if they do stay with the home, they will be much better than any amount of money tied up so they cannot enjoy it. The home comfort will fit them to take their rightful place among other young people, and to enjoy the best things as they come to them.—Maude Goodwill, in January Farmer's Wife.

Food Values.

Until a child has all its second teeth, foods that tax its digestion are to be avoided, so that those assuredly favorable to health and tooth formation may provide the aid required of food for such purposes.

Foods to be avoided are:

Fats, except cream, butter, oil (as purchased), acid foods, as tomatoes, vinegar, pickled foods, woody fibre vegetables, as cucumbers, radishes, celery (raw), carrots.

Preserved foods of all kinds.

Fresh and warm breads.

With these should be remembered those inadvisable throughout childhood:

Pastry, rich cake, rich nuts, rich pies, dressings; all heavy foods, sugar except as a food ingredient or a small quantity as a food supplement, but not alone nor constantly. Coffee, tea and every stimulating beverage. The quality of food daily needed during these years is approximately one and two-thirds pounds (as purchased). About one-fourth of this should be:

Building foods, as milk, eggs, beans, peas, cereals. These should be eaten with

Energy foods, as starchy vegetables, cereals, breads, sweet fruits, sugar as a food ingredient; oils and fats in milk and meat and with

Digestion foods, as green vegetables and fruits. Though not many foods should be eaten at one meal, variety should be wide during a week.—(Extract from article by Edith Greer, in Child Welfare Magazine for March.)

Plainfield.

Our playgrounds are open for the summer and it is expected that the mothers of Plainfield appreciate them. But we should not leave too much to be taken as granted. Go to the playgrounds now and then and show your appreciation to the teacher in charge. Incidentally you will learn a few things about your own children and how to keep them busy and interested. See that your children go to the playgrounds. They may have other places to play, but there is a great deal in example. If your children go some one is sure to follow them. All children are "copycats."

FOR THE LITTLE GIRL.

No. 8440.

Children will play, and as long as they have that innate characteristic mothers must expect to provide plenty of clothes for them to romp in. The busy mother who is trying to lessen her laundry is wise if she will cover her little girl's dresses with a sack apron, like Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8440, which has full-length sleeves perforated for elbow length. Cuts in sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years, size 6 requiring 2⅛ yards 30-inch material and ¼ yard 27-inch contrasting material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

San Francisco—A wedding on the high seas in the Far East has been chosen by Mrs. John D. Spreckels, Jr., wealthy society woman, who will wed Frank W. Wakefield, of this city. The couple obtained their passports two weeks ago, and bride-to-be is already in the Orient. The groom will leave this week, meet Mrs. Spreckels in the Far East and the couple will be married on the high seas. They will then tour the Orient.

Topeka, Kan.—Club life as a relief for farmers' wives from the humdrum existence in the rural sections, is the slogan of a new campaign to make every farmer's wife in Kansas a clubwoman. The idea is backed by Mrs. J. M. Miller, president of the State Federation. If women's organizations are beneficial, the farmer's wife most of all needs the club, she declares. The State-wide movement is the result of the success and example of the Osage County Federation, which was the first of its kind in the world, composed mostly of farmer's wives.

Chicago—That science has at last found a way to time the coming of Mr. Stork so that birthdays will be optional, is the claim of wealthy women of this city, who have become mothers at Wesley Hospital. The appointment with the stork can now be made anytime within a range of two weeks, and old Mr. Stork no longer chooses his own time for dropping in. The system was put in practice by Dr. Charles B. Reed at Wesley Hospital, and the last hundred babies have arrived at the hour decreed by the mother rather than that decreed by the bird with the big beak.

New York—Louisa Thorp Smith, now studying music in this city, has found a way to be friendly with her former husband, though divorced from him. She does not hesitate to travel with her former husband, and takes her sister along as chaperone. The mere fact that they were unsuited as mates has not interfered with their great friendship. Louis Alfred Smith, member of a wealthy Illinois family, first met Louisa Thorp when they were both music students in Chicago. They were married in 1912 and divorced the following year in San Francisco. Then they took a trip around the world with the chaperone sister, and agreed that in case either party married again the other one would attend the ceremony.

Seattle—A. J. Jarmuth, a prominent mining man, has secured a divorce from his Suffragist wife, Edith DeLong Jarmuth, who is campaigning in New York. He convinced the court that suffrage work was taking up all her time. In a deposition the Suffragist leader declared she had always been kind to Mr. Jarmuth's children by his first marriage, and emphatically denied that she was to blame for the breaking up of the home.

San Francisco—In proportion to population, this city pays more in mothers' pensions than any other city in the United States, according to Judge Henry Neil, of Illinois, who arranged the great Mothers' Pension Congress which came to a close here today. Judge Neil is known as the "father of mothers' pension system." He stated that this city distributed a trifle more than $300,000 during the past year to mothers who have dependent children. The Congress was held at the Exposition, and brought together many earnest advocates of the mothers' pension law.

Minneapolis—Miss Viola Bow, the [illegible] D. C. Bow, of this city, has ordered a baby. A blue-eyed, flaxen-haired baby from a New York orphanage will be sent to her, with her father's consent. Although the foster-mother is only 19, she has no fears as to her ability to care for her ward, for she has managed the alderman's household for the past few years.

Jackson, Miss.—Mrs. Margaret K. Thompson, candidate for State librarian, is the first woman ever asked to deliver a political speech in Mississippi. She will make her debut as an orator on Friday at the Woodmen Springs picnic in Amite county. She was postmistress of the House of Representatives, and has represented commercial bodies as a delegate to cotton conventions.

1,000 CARLOADS FROM ORCHARD.

Fordycke, Ark., July 22.—A record crop of peaches, totalling a thousand carloads, is being harvested at Highland, Ark., in the largest peach orchard in the world. The orchard contains about 5,000 acres, and over 300,000 trees. The orchard is equipped with electric lights and a telephone system.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— How the Crow Got Water From The Pitcher.

He Dropped a Great Many Pebbles In the Pitcher.

"ONCE upon a time, long years ago, there was a slave who told such wonderful stories that the king gave him his freedom." Daddy was telling the evening story to Jack and Evelyn.

"Well, this Greek slave told a very remarkable story one day about a crow and a pitcher, which has been translated into about every language in the world.

"This crow was a very thirsty crow he was so very thirsty that his voice was hoarser than ever, and, though he used to think he could sing, now he knew he couldn't. And he kept on getting thirstier.

"He flew into a gentleman's garden and looked for water. Joy of joys, he saw some in a pitcher that sat upon the garden table! But the pitcher was so deep he couldn't reach his bill down into it even though he stood upon the very tips of his toes and stretched his neck all he could.

"'I might tip over the pitcher,' he croaked. He could hardly say it his tongue was so swollen with thirst. He tried this plan, but the pitcher was too heavy.

"'I might break it,' he cawed wearily, and he tried this plan, but the pitcher was too strong.

"At last, after sitting there for awhile looking very wise, he suddenly flew away. And what do you suppose that wise old black crow brought back with him in his beak when he returned, kiddies?"

"Oh, tell us, daddy!" cried the kiddies, wriggling around in their chairs, they were so anxious to hear the rest of the story.

"Well, he had a pebble in his beak, and he dropped it right into that pitcher. Then he flew away and got another one and another and another until he had dropped a great many pebbles into the pitcher.

"But by this time the poor crow was getting very fatigued. He had been thirsty so long, you see, and now he came wearily back with a pebble and dropped it in.

"But, as it happened, the water now was just high enough, and so the bird drank and drank and drank and felt very much refreshed indeed.

"Then he sat beside the pitcher and thought out loud. We call it soliloquizing. 'There you see,' he said, 'what can be done and what obstacles can be overcome by simply keeping at things. And if you can't find a way to do things, why, make a way.'"

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Scarcely had Nell finished folding and tying up the hideous quilts that Mrs. Stevers had left in her high-handed attempt to force her to purchase, when a knock was heard at the door. This time a man stood before her when she opened the door.

"Is this Mrs. Morton?" he began. "My name is Graves, G. R. Graves, of the firm of Kittle & Fish of Kansas City. May I come in?"

As he was cooling off the room and threatening the baby with a cold, the desired permission was given. He seated himself with great nicety by the stove in the chair vacated by Mrs. Stevers and began making clucking sounds to the baby who sat in his carriage.

"Fine boy, that," he announced with the air of a connoisseur. As Nell made no reply he brought himself out of his trance of delight, and drawing a card from his pocket, let loose a torrent of words upon the helpless Nell. From the drift Nell gathered the words "fortune, "inferitance," "Kansas City Journal," "automobile," "self-starter," etc., as she was borne helplessly along with the tide.

When the first rush of words had swept by she raised a remonstrating hand.

"You understand this 'fortune' you speak of is entirely in the air and may remain there. It will be time enough to consider investments when the thing is a certainty."

"Surely." Mr. Graves rubbed his hands together in excess of joy. "But buying an automobile is a serious business, because you are so apt to make a mistake and get the wrong kind. It takes time to consider, and during these days when the details of the transfer of your fortune are being settled you can spend the time very profitably in studying the merits of the different machines. Our machine bears comparison with any on the market; in fact, we invite comparison, for we know of no instance where the study has been an open-minded quest for knowledge that the party has not decided to buy our machine. Therefore——"

"Mr. Graves," said Nell in desperation, "this is a matter that will be decided by Mr. Morton. Please leave it until you can see him."

He bestowed a gracious smile upon her.

"My dear lady, I have knocked about the world so long that I know just where the power is located; the power behind the throne, you know."

Nell closed her eyes, as that was the only means of shutting out the smile.

"If we can secure the interest of the ladies, our path is smooth before us."

"When Mr. Morton returns," said Nell, rising in a desperate attempt to end the interview, "I will speak to him about the matter."

"That's no lie," she thought fiercely.

"Thank you very much," and Mr. Graves bowed himself out of the room.

"Poverty may be inconvenient, but it surely has its compensations," reflected Nell as she locked the door and threw herself down in an easy chair by the window.

"I'm going to mount guard, and if I see a stranger coming I shall flee as from the wrath to come.

"It's time you went to sleep, my dear," she said as she made the baby comfortable and laid him down. Picking up a book, she began rolling the carriage back and forth as she read.

Soon her alert ears heard the gate click. She looked up and saw a wagon containing a sewing machine standing in front. A dapper young man was making his way to the house.

Catching up the baby, she fled to the kitchen, and throwing a heavy shawl over her head she softly let herself out of the door, locked it and sped down the path to the garden gate that opened on a path across the field to Jo Parsons' house.

Household Hints

MILK SHERBET

Melt butter size of English walnut in pan, add one-half pound mild cheese cut in cubes. When cheese is nearly melted, add one-half teaspoonful of mustard and a little cayenne pepper. Beat one egg slightly, add seven-eighths of a cup of milk and sprinkle in one-half tablespoonful of flour. Beat with Dover egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Add very gradually to the melted cheese. Stir until smooth and thick. Take from fire and add one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Serve on toast or crackers.

FLOWER ARRANGEMENT.

In decorating the table with flowers from the home garden we are quite likely to make the mistake of using too many, because the supply is so great that we do not feel obliged to economize. But a little experimenting will soon convince you that a few flowers tastefully put together will afford far more pleasure than many so crowded that their individuality is lost. Arrange them as naturally as possible.

CLAM CHOWDER.

Chop fine twenty clams, twelve boiled potatoes, one large onion, one slice of fat pork. Roll some cracker crumbs fine and sprinkle in. Strain the liquor of the clams and pour over all. Season with pepper and salt. Let the chowder simmer on a slow fire for two hours.

HOMEMADE SODA WATER.

First, three pints soft water, two pounds sugar, two ounces tartaric acid. Mix thoroughly and let boil five minutes. Let cool until nearly cold.

Now take the whites of three eggs beaten to a stiff froth, half cup flour, juice of one lemon; mix and add to the above, and flavor to taste (wintergreen best), can, keep in cool place.

Use two tablespoons of this to half cup of cold water and one-fourth teaspoon soda. Beat briskly.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Put on dishwater before sitting down to meals. It saves half hour's time and the dishes are easier cleaned then later.

Save broken clothespins; they make excellent skewers when shaved to a point and do not mar fine woodwork when washing.

To remove any burnt substance from kettles, put in enough water to cover, add about one teaspoon good soap powder to each cup of water and set on the back of warm stove half an hour. This will not harm the kettle as if scraped with a knife, but will soak loose without any trouble.

TO CLARIFY BUTTER.

If one has the misfortune to have rancid butter, put it into a pail, cover it well with water (perhaps one-third as much water as butter), put on the stove and let boil until water is all boiled out. Then take off stove, let cool, slice a large potato raw into it, put on stove again, let cook until done, then repeat. Take off to cool and harden; the butter will be nearly as sweet and fresh as when first churned.

HELPFUL HINTS

Fireless Dress—Muslin and cotton goods can be rendered almost fireproof if an ounce of alum or sal ammoniac is put in the last water in which they are rinsed or in the starch when they are stiffened. Even if the clothes take fire—which is highly improbable—they will burn without flame.

Tripless Heels—If you wear rubber heels, cut the corners off with a sharp knife and there will be no danger of your ever catching your heel in your skirt and tripping.

Baby's Bonnet Ties—Instead of putting ribbon strings on your baby's bonnet, buy a small piece of washable silk. Cut the desired length and width, hem and gather in plaits at the top, sewing a medium sized hook to this end. Then sew eyes onto the sides of the bonnet where you wish the ties or strings to be attached and clean ties can always be hooked onto the bonnet at a minute's notice.

POLITICAL NOTES.

August 25—Union county Democrats hold annual outing at Witzel's Point View Grove, L. I.

August 27—Last day for filing county nomination petitions with county clerk.

September 7—First registration day.

September 21—Primary day and second registration day.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day.

November 2—General Election Day.

Opposition to the renominations of Assemblymen George W. Downs and Harry W. Mutchler, of Morris county, has developed with the candidacy of Jacob J. Vreeland. The latter, who resides in Dover, declares that he will enter the Republican primaries, and his petitions will soon be circulated. Petitions are now out for Messrs. Downs and Mutchler.

A complete county ticket has been named by the Socialists, of Camden county. They have candidates for county clerk, register of deeds and assemblymen, and are planning a series of meetings in their behalf. In the meantime, Camden county Republicans are not worrying, as their normal majority of 5,000 or more permits of some loss.

With a complete rest it is believed that Congressman R. Wayne Parker, of the Ninth district, will recover from his recent mental lapse. He was temporarily placed in Morris Plains. Ex-Governor Franklin Murphy, who is personally interested in the case, tried to induce Mr. Parker to go on a camping trip, but was unsuccessful. He still insists that he is wanted at Washington by the President. War talk and discussions upon law will be strictly tabooed while Mr. Parker is in his present condition.

The anti-Dalrymple forces in Essex county are not working together harmoniously, according to reports. The part of the faction hailing from Newark and led by Mayor Raymond, favors unrelenting war, while the county antis believe that the struggle should end with capitulation if necessary, after the primaries.

Freeholders Hennessy, Bourdon and Meyerholz will be candidates for renominations on the Democratic ticket. Freeholder Marsh will be an aspirant on the Republican ticket. Other possibilities are reluctant about announcing their intentions.

Although there will be a lack of national issues in politics this fall, there will be no lack of contests for offices in Somerset county. Candidates for freeholders are bobbing up in all directions, and members of the board whose terms expire will have a hard tussle to retain their seats. This condition is brought about, it is said, because some of the members have been unfaithful to the party organization in power in dividing up the offices, this applying particularly to the offices of county collector and road supervisor. The former was filled by a Democrat, E. B. Allen, who had given general satisfaction for many years, and the latter office is still unfilled, last year's incumbent holding over. Thomas P. Gallagher, Democrat, was also retained in office, and the "faithful" object to this also, notwithstanding his acknowledged fitness for the office. Already candidates are in the field against the present incumbents from Bridgewater and Warren townships. In Bridgewater the candidate is said to be Charles F. Smith, at present a member of the Township Committee, while John C. Cooper seeks the nomination in Warren. Several names have been mentioned in Somerville, but no one has thus far made a decided stand for the office, although it is determined by the organization to go after the scalp of the present incumbent, Edwin Brown, Republican. Besides the office of freeholder, there will be voted for in Somerville, a collector, assessor, mayor and two councilmen, justice of the peace and constable.

Guaranteed titles and full reasonable restrictions. Think of it! Farm lots, swamp lots and other undesirable lots have been sold by others for the same prices. We sell these lots on easy monthly payments if desired. We build and guarantee dry cellars. We furnish money for building and you can do it yourself if desired. Prices of real estate always advances after a great war. There is a reason. Let us tell you about Hillside avenue, Putnam avenue and the rest. You can get first choice and first prices now. They are great investments. Send for map. H. C. Lockwood, Woolworth Building, New York, or 1353 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, Tel. 1168-J. 7 19 6

Germany About to Resume Offensive There, Says Amsterdam Dispatch —Petrograd Says Warsaw Battle Is in Decisive Stage.

Berlin, July 23 (by wireless).—Reports that Warsaw has fallen are in circulation and are causing widespread rejoicing, but no official announcement has yet been made. Other unofficial rumors have it that the German commander before Warsaw has demanded the surrender of the city with warning that it will be bombarded within twenty-four hours, and that negotiations are now in progress.

Amsterdam, July 23.—A resumption of the German offensive against the Verdun region is in preparation, according to advices from cities on the upper Rhine. It is stated that large forces have arrived at that front in the last week and are being concentrated at St. Mihiel, from which point the fresh attacks are anticipated.

Petrograd, July 23.—The great battle for Warsaw has reached its decisive stages. South of the Vistula the Russians have withdrawn to their strongly fortified outer defenses extending from Novo Georgiewsk to Ivangorod and are checking the Austro-German advance.

North of the river the right arm of the Russian army is holding von Hindenburg at the Narew River and inflicting severe losses by sudden jabs against the German line.

The dull roar of the fighting thirteen miles west of Warsaw is plainly audible in the streets of the Polish capital. Scattered bands of German troops have even broken through to within less than ten miles of the heart of the city, only to be slaughtered. But the belief still persists here that Warsaw may yet be saved from the enemy.

Despite a terrific bombardment the Germans have been unable to break down or break through the outer works of Warsaw lying west of the city near Blonie. For forty-eight hours an avalanche of explosive shells has been crashing against the Russian redoubts, perfected during the winter monts, but without serious damage. With a minimum expenditure of ammunition the Russian infantry have beaten back every assault and the General Staff is confident that the western approaches to the city cannot be stormed.

North of Warsaw the Narew River line is strongly held. Von Hindenburg, after suffering severe losses in attacks against the Russian positions, has not repeated the atempts to break through to the Bug. The chief danger to Warsaw, military men said today, lies in Mackensen's mighty attempt to cut off the city by moving northward through Ivangorod.

The Germans are sacrificing men on a scale only comparable with the Galician campaign. Von Hindenburg in particular has driven whole battalions to certain slaughter against the Russian strongholds north of Warsaw, according to official dispatches. The Russian losses thus far has been comparatively light.

London, July 23.—William Marconi, who is in England conferring with the munitions supply directors of this country concerning shipments to Italy, is today quoted in the Daily Mail to the effect that united Italy is prepared for any sacrifice. The men at the front are fighting with ardor and the whole country is virtually filled with recruits drilling in preparation to go to the front.

The Petrograd correspondent of the Times says that while the enemy's advance on Lublin has been checked on the front of Chodelpiaski, more serious fighting continues on both banks of the Wieprz. It is here that von Mackensen is endeavoring to break through to the railway.

Military authorities now affirm that the seizure of this railway will not decide the issue, since it parallels the Russian front and does not serve for purposes of transport. It is even asserted that an advance northward from Cholm as far as Wlodawa would not be regarded as a grave strategic menace. But beyond that point on the way to Brest-Litwsk the Russians have no intention of allowing the foe to proceed.

Now for the first time the Russians are able to operate in a region where strategic factors are in their favor. The entire theatre on the western side rests upon the fortresses of Novo Georgievsk, Warsaw and Ivangorod, the north upon the fortified lines of the Narew, on the east upon the

WILLIAM M. IVINS, NOTED LAWYER, DEAD

New York, July 23.—William M. Ivins, the well-known lawyer, died suddenly at his home, 145 West Fifty-eighth street, this morning. Mr. Ivins was counsel for William Barnes in his suit against former President Theodore Roosevelt for libel. He was born in Monmouth county, N. J., on April 22, 1851.

Mr. Ivins was taken suddenly ill while working at his desk in his home. Dr. Arthur Holland and Dr. R. G. Reese were called in. After consultation a number of other medical men were summoned.

Mr. Ivins had a breakdown following his strenuous work as counsel for William Barnes, Jr., in his recent libel suit against Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

William Mills Ivins was the son of Augustus and Sarah Ivins. He was educated at Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, and at Columbia University. He was admitted to the bar in 1873.

He married Miss Emma L. Yard, of Freehold, in February, 1879. Four children survive him—William M., Jr., Margaret, James S. Y. and Katherine.

After practicing law for some time Mr. Ivins became a member of the Board of Education in 1883, serving until 1885, when he became chamberlain of the city of New York. He served in that capacity until 1889. In 1890-1891 he was counsel for the Senate Committee on Cities.

In 1886 Mr. Ivins was Judge Advocate-General of the State of New York. In 1905 he was candidate for Mayor of New York on the Republican ticket.

STREET PETITION READY FOR THE COMMON COUNCIL

Signers are being secured to a petition now in circulation among those property owners in favor of the widening of Somerset street between Front street and the bridge and this document will be presented to the Common Council at its August meeting, according to present plans. The petition now in the hands of circulators makes an urgent plea for the improvement and at the same time guarantees that the signers will stand good for $15,000 of the expense involved in widening the thoroughfare. Such a move was announced at Tuesday night's meeting of the Common Council by Chairman Francis J. Blatz, of the street committee, but at that time the petition did not have sufficient signers and hence no action was taken on it.

Since then, however, Mr. Blatz has returned the petition to the senders and it is said that all of the property owners whose land will be effected by the widening have signed the petition, with the exception of the owners of the two corner tracts at the juncture of Front and Somerset streets.

CITY OF NEWARK SEEKS A DEEP WATER CHANNEL

United States Senator James E. Martine is in Newark today attending a hearing the object of which is to make a deep water channel up the river so that ships of the heaviest tonnage may be able to arrive and depart from that city. From a commercial point of view such an improvement would boom the industries of Newark.

The hearing today is being held under the auspices of the War Department and is being attended by many men of prominence in Newark, who are interested in the proposition. On previous occasions efforts have been made to secure this proposed deep water channel, but without success.

SOUVENIR SPOONS.

Silver souvenir spoons yesterday attracted many local housewives to Proctor's matinee, and secured one of these articles as a memento of the popular moving picture house. These gifts from the management of the theatre will be continued for five Thursday matinees, thus giving the women folks an opportunity for securing a set of spoons fit for all special and gala occasions. Tuesday matinees the younger women have the opportunity of securing bololink bracelets as souvenirs of Proctor's Theatre.

BRIDGEPORT STRIKE OVER.

Bridgeport, July 23.—The Bridgeport strike is over according to John S. Johnson, vice-president of the International Association of Structural Iron Workers, who in an interview early today said all that remains is to have our written agreement ratified by all persons concerned.

CONVENTION HONORS PLAINFIELD DENTIST

Dr. E. W. French Elected to Serve on State Society's Executive Committee.

Plainfield's representation at the annual convention of the New Jersey State Dental Society at Asbury Park yesterday was especially honored when Dr. E. W. French, of this city, was named as one of the new appointees to the executive committee of the organization. Dr. Chauncey M. F. Egel, of Westfield, who is also a member of the local organization, was named to the State Board of Examiners for a period of three years, his term being second in length only to that of Dr. Alfred Hane, of Jersey City, who was appointed for five years.

The local delegation included: Dr. Clive W. Montford, Dr. Charles Moore, Dr. Guy Hillman, Dr. George Moore, Dr. Ray Stevens, Dr. Frank Clawson and Dr. Otis B. Whitford. They returned home last night. During the convention the local delegation made its headquarters with the other conventionalists at the Coleman House. They attended all of the sessions of the gathering in the boardwalk casino and took particular interest in the exhibit of dental manufacturers which was a feature of the two-day gathering.

It was announced by the State Board of Examiners that about twenty-two out of seventy-six applicants for licenses in New Jersey successfully passed the recent examinations. The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Dr. Henry Fowler, of Harrison; vice president, Dr. J. R. Wolverton, of Trenton; secretary, Dr. J. C. Forsythe, of Trenton; treasurer, Dr. C. J. Jones, of Elizabeth.

COUNTER CHARGE FILED BY ALLEN AGAINST ACCUSERS

Making similar charges against his accusers as they had him arrested for last Wednesday, Harry Allen, a bill poster employed by Proctor's Theatre, appeared before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning in the role of complainant against Walter H. Smith, manager of the U. S. Astor Theatre, and Walter Glaentzer, a bill poster employed by the same house. Smith is held on a disorderly charge, while Glaentzer is accused of having defaced certain posters hung by the Proctor management last week on local billboards. Judge DeMeza postponed the case against Glaentzer and Smith until next Tuesday morning.

According to Allen the Astor manager attacked him on West Second street and "beat him up." The trouble between the two bill posters has been brewing for some time, and it came to a head Wednesday, when Smith had Allen arrested for daubing past and white strips of paper over the Astor signs. Allen admitted his guilt, and will be sentenced tomorrow.

NO RE-APPORTIONMENT OF MEMBERS OF ASSEMBLY

Trenton, July 23.—There will be no re-apportionment of the members of the Assembly following the present State census. In some parts of the State it has been reported that there would be a re-apportionment, and that some of the counties would gain an Assemblyman. The State Constitution is interpreted to provide that such apportionments shall only be made after each Federal census. The last re-apportionment was made in 1911, following the Federal census of 1910, and the next one will take place in 1921, after the decennial Government enumeration of 1920 is completed.

The Constitution limits the number of assemblymen to sixty, and if any county gains one, some other county must lose one.

DELEGATES SELECTED.

At a meeting of the Master Painters' Association of Plainfield, last night, three delegates were selected to represent the local association at the eleventh annual convention of the New Jersey State Association of Master Painters and Decorators, to be held at the Hotel Brunswick, Asbury Park, July 27, 28, 29 and 30. The delegates are L. B. Woolston, C. W. Mundy and J. C. Hansen. As a member of the executive board of the State Association, Charles Conover, treasurer of the Plainfield body, will also attend.

MERCHANTS WILL CLOSE IN AUGUST

Decide to Give Employes Thursdays Off During the Month.

FORTY SIGN PETITION

Other Shopkeepers Will Continue to Observe Plan of Closing at Noon on Saturday—Names of Merchants in Movement.

Forty Plainfield merchants have co-operated in the adoption of a summer schedule for the month of August, and it was announced today that they have decided to close their places of business on Thursdays during the month, thereby giving their employes four full holidays in addition to their regular vacation time. The matter was thoroughly discussed by the merchants, and inasmuch as nearly all of the weekly excursions are scheduled for Thursdays, it was thought that the employes would prefer that day.

There are a number of other merchants in the city who close their stores at noon on Saturday during July and August, which has been their custom for several years. It will be noticed that meat markets and grocery stores are not included in the following list, it being the contention of the proprietors that their business is of such a character that it would be impossible for them to close for a full day. However, there is no doubt but that some satisfactory arrangement will be made whereby the employes in these shops will have some regular time off during the summer months. Those who will close all day Thursdays during August are as follows:

Schwed Brothers, Morris C. VanArsdale, A. H. Osmun, Tepper Brothers, DeMeza & Blimm, Hyman Adelberg, S. S. Kresge Company, J. R. Blair, Charles Kurtzman, Woodhull & Martin Company, Weiss Brothers, L. B. VanCamp, Mrs. S. M. Fiedler, S. H. Whitney, A. E. Force & Co., Leo Zeisel, G. W. Woolworth Company, Shirley & Johnston, J. A. Laurie & Co., Harry Dreier, Samuel Rothberg, Jacob A. Fass, Rosenbaum Brothers, J. J. Varley, Waglow & Varley, Jacob Shlarew, M. D. Rosenthal, Harry Werner, George W. Pope Company, H. P. Greenwood, John J. Kenney, Stuart's Shoe Shop, Morris Abrams, George J. Finger, A. K. Willett, H. A. Benn Company, D. Trobiksy, O. M. Dunham, R. M. Daly & Co., Marcus Hoyt Company.

FORMER M'CLURE EDITOR DIES HERE

Edwin C. Martin, a Writer of Note, Succumbs to a Brief Illness.

Edwin C. Martin, a writer and at one time one of the active editors of McClure's Magazine for a period of several years, died at 8 o'clock this morning at his home in Washingtonville. The funeral will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the home, and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery. The service will be in charge of the Rev. E. W. Abbey, of Long Island, a close friend of the family.

Mr. Martin had been a resident of this vicinity for ten years. He was born in Hamilton, Ohio and was sixty-four years old. He resided on a part of what is known as the Thomas Taylor farm in Watchung, having bought about half of the tract. The remainder belongs to Champlain L. Riley. He was a writer of note and held other editorial positions besides the one with McClure's. Mr. Martin is survived by a widow. There were no children.

MRS BURGER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Barbara Burger, who died Tuesday, at Muhlenberg Hospital, was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the home of her son, Theodore Schwartz, 1109 West Fifth street, where she resided. The Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, had charge of the services. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery privately at the convenience of the family.

INCREASE DECLARED FOR SAURER'S MEN

Concern Voluntarily Raises Standard for Wages Thereby Dispelling Rumors.

According to an announcement made this morning the management of the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company, located in this city, has voluntarily raised the standard of wages in all departments affected by the present increased demand for labor, and the consequent higher wage scale tending to prevail in other cities for toolmakers, machinists and machine operators. This is done in accordance with the concern's policy to emphasize fair treatment toward the workmen, and the anonuncement came as a welcome surprise to the many employes.

It is the opinion of the officials of the company that its older employes are entitled to the same wages as are paid the men who are necessarily brought in from other localities, and, therefore, have made substantial increases in wages wherever inequality exists.

The Saurer plant gives employment at the present time to about 1,000 persons, having added 600 to its payroll during the past four months. Local business people will welcome the additional purchasing power made possible by the International Motor Company's increase in business, and its farsighted policy.

A groundless report, which is unfair to both the employer and employe, has been going the rounds during the past week to the effect that certain workingmen employed at the Saurer plant had struck for higher wages. It was learned by the Daily Press on good authority today that there is no existing discord between the concern and its men, and the rumor was of a malicious nature.

SALVATION ARMY CLAIMS "JUMPERS" MOLEST THEM

Objecting to the annoyance they have been put to by members of the Pillar of Fire sect, who persist in disturbing their meetings at West Second street and Park avenue, Sunday nights, leaders of the Salvation Army in this city have appealed to Mayor Calkins for some sort of protection against the alleged "invaders." The complaining parties believe that the Salvation Army has a recognized right to hold street meetings at this corner Sunday nights, having carried on the practice in an orderly manner for several years.

Since the invasion of the "Holy Jumpers" it has been a matter of "which takes possession first," and the Pillars of Fire have made it a practice to gain possession of the territory before the army corps arrives each Sunday night. Inasmuch as no complaints have been lodged against the manner in which the Salvation Army members conduct their meetings, the leaders believe that they have a right to protection, and this constitues their demand.

DELINQUENT LIST SHORTENED.

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of North Plainfield, reports that his list of delinquent 1914 taxpayers has dwindled from about 150 names to 90, with the prospect of its being shortened considerably before advertising day, next Wednesday or Thursday. Mr. Brown said this morning that he had received promises from a number of delinquents that they would pay their back taxes before the middle of next week, and thinks that several who have not yet spoken to him about the matter will come along with the money before Tuesday.

CLASS MET INDOORS.

The Bible Class of the Y. W. C. A. met at the association rooms last night instead of at Mrs. Frederick Mead's as planned. The weather was threatening, and those in charge thought it best to hold the affair indoors. There will be singing on Sunday and also the reading of stories by association members, after which light refreshments will be served. The presence of all who care to attend is desired.

DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP.

John W. Case and John B. Harsell, who have been engaged in the painting and decorating business for several years, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Case will continue the business with office at 3 Codington avenue, the borough.

CHANGES POSITION.

Ralph J. Auerbach, formerly of this city, who was connected with the New York Telephone Company for several years, is now associated with Dawson & Lyon, brokers, of 40 Wall street, New York.

MRS. SARAH TEPPER DIES IN 76TH YEAR

Mother of Tepper Brothers Passes Away at Daughter's Home in Elmira.

Mrs. Sarah Tepper, mother of Max and Adolpa Tepper, of the firm of Tepper Brothers, of West Front street, died last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. J. Brooks, Elmira, N. Y., after an illness extending over a period of several months. No arrangements for the funeral have been made except that it will be held at the home of Mrs. Brooks, in Elmira, and interment will be made either in Louisville, Kentucky, where her husband is buried, or in New York city.

Mrs. Tepper was about seventy-six years of age. She was born in Hungary, but came to this country in early womanhood, soon after her marriage. About three months ago she suffered a stroke of apoplexy from which she never fully rallied, and was in poor health until the second stroke, coming yesterday, caused her death.

Six sons and one daughter survive her. They are Joseph, who resides in New Brunswick; Benjamin, of Selma, Alabama; Max and Adolph, who reside in this city, and have charge of the Plainfield store; Jacob, whose home is in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Emanuel, of Elmira. While Mrs. Tepper had never lived in Plainfield, she had often visited her sons here. The Tepper store in Plainfield is closed today, and both the Messrs. Tepper, of this city, are in Elmira.

CHILDREN IN COURT FOR "HOOKING" APPLES

Officer Pope, of the North Plainfield police force, flung out his dragnet yesterday afternoon and captured an even dozen children in the apple orchard on the John F. Wilson property, Wilson avenue and Walnut street, "hooking" apples. Complaints made to the police by Mrs. Mary E. Truitt, owner of the property, through Mrs. Daniel Dillon, wife of the caretaker, caused Chief Marshall Weiss to instruct the officers on post in that vicinity to keep an eye on the orchard, with the result that early yesterday afternoon Pope was hovering around in that neighborhood at a time when it was a popular rendezvous for a large band of both girls and boys.

When the man in uniform descended upon the apple pickers there was a scampering in all directions, but a gruff word or two brought the children to a halt, and following obediently, they accompanied him to police headquarters, where Chief Weiss interviewed them and let them go home upon their promise to appear in court this morning. True to their promise, they were there, and after being warned not to repeat the offense again, Recorder Fred W. Hand suspended. Officer Pope confiscated a full basket of the apples and a peck over for evidence, and these were left in the stationhouse over night. After the recorder had settled the case, a couple of the boys came back for the apples and were allowed to carry them away.

APPEAL FOR DONATIONS.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild makes an appeal for donations of flowers, fruit, vegetables, delicacies and food suitable for the sick. They may be sent Monday afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock, and Tuesday morning, from 9 to 10:30 o'clock, to the W. C. T. U. rooms, 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building. Those having no way of sending the same may notify Joseph M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, telephone 758-W, and a messenger will call for the donations. Persons living in the Netherwood section may send donations to the residence of Miss Miller, 919 East Seventh street, on Monday, and a boy will call for them Tuesday morning.

FRIENDS TO DISCUSS PEACE.

A pilgrimage of the Friends' Joint Fellowship Committee, of New York, will be made to the Friends' Meeting House on Watchung avenue, on Sunday. A meeting will be held in the morning, and in the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock there will be a conference on the subject, "Not By Might Nor By Power, But By My Spirit." As the subject indicates, it will probably be a discussion on peace. Many of the visiting Friends will be in attendance at both meetings.

CALM PREVAILS IN STRIKE ZONE

Governor Announced This Morning That Troops Will Not Be Called Out.

STILL SOME ANXIETY

Today is Pay Day in the Standard Oil Plant and Fear of An Outbreak is Evident—Quiet May Be the Harbinger of a Storm.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Bayonne, July 23.—Comparative quiet that overspread the striking district here this morning, following twenty-four hours of intermittent shooting, led Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead to send a report to Governor James F. Fielder this morning, stating that he had the situation well in hand. As a consequence Governor Fielder announced that he would not send troops to this city. Fifteen hundred strikers remained at their posts along the curbs of Twenty-second street this morning, but they were kept in good order by the 250 deputy sheriffs. The optimists in the throng, however, believe that the calm is only the proverbial harbinger of a storm inasmuch as today is pay-day in the Standard Oil plant, where 700 of the strikers were employed. Those who are "out" still have money coming to them, but it is believed that admitting them to the building for "paying-off" will give them the much sought opportunity to make an attack. On the other hand the officials face the possibility of having the infuriated men swoop down upon the plants demanding their money. It was announced this morning that five of the private guards were among those wounded in yesterday's riots.

Between the massacre of yesterday morning and 10 o'clock last night no fatalities were reported but it was estimated that over fifty persons were badly injured. During a riot that broke out shortly after 10 o'clock last night one deputy was reported to have been killed. Last night's fight was by far the most spectacular of the week. With the three big searchlights of the International Nickel Company playing their rays on the field of battle the strikers established a fort behind a string of freight cars while the deputies and armed guards camped behind the cement walls. Many rounds of ammunition were fired across the palisade that separates the two places and many minor injuries were recorded. The cries and shrieks of women lent horror to the scene and chaos reigned supreme. A short time before Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., of the New Jersey National Guard, left the scene after conducting a thorough investigation and Sheriff Eugene Kinkead had just completed his task of marshalling out 250 deputy sheriffs. These men were entrusted with the task of keeping strikers out of the "dead-line" and each was provided with a pistol and club and wore a white badge in his hat. Adjutant-General Sadler met Kinkead at the entrance of the Tide Water Oil Company's plant yesterday afternoon and talked over the situation with him. He admitted at that time that he did not think it necessary to call out the troops unless new riots developed during the night and in that case he promised the assistance of two troops but would not indicate which ones would be selected. He promised to confer with Governor Fielder regarding the matter this morning.

At 6 o'clock last night the officials of the International Nickel Company and the Pacific Borax Company announced that they would discontinue work because of the fact that the only thoroughfare through which their men could enter the shop was lined on both sides by strikers who threatened the workers with bodily injury each time they passed.

The strikers do not know what is going on inside the walls of the plant and during yesterday afternoon and last night wild rumors were in circulation to the effect that many of the guards were injured during the two fights. These did not stand investigation. Because of the fact that the Constable Hook entrance is being used the strikers did not know that 250 deputy sheriffs were landed at the scene last night.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, John H. Olson, thirty-two years old, one of the guards, came out of the plant and the crowd yelled, "There goes a deputy." At that time Olson was standing in the midst of a group of reporters and photographers and several cameras were put out of commission by the rain of stones which followed. He ran across lots and escaped injury by hiding in a chicken coop. One of the reporters in the strike zone at this time stopped a stray bullet with the heel of his shoe, the lead finding a resting place in the thick leather and remaining there.

Later in the afternoon Olson attempted to come out from his hiding
